PLEA MADE FOR RETURNED SOLDIER BY MAJOR BELFORD

Speaks at Rotary Club on Remembrance Day

NEED SYMPATHY

Remembrance Day was fittingly observed by the Belleville Rotary Club, the great speaker being Major Belford of Toronto, who served in the Great War with two of his sons, one of whom was killed in action. Major Belford, who was introduced to the club by Rotarian Fred Douglas, also a veteran of the Great War, while Rotary appreciation was expressed by Rotarian Archie Cameron.

Major Belford, a returned soldier, weakened and disillusioned by the war, an invalid until the peaceful business by his training during the war, was made by his speaker. Four years of training to fit into the machinery of war, training to lose some limbs and blindness and become merely a cog of the great war machine, unfitted for civil industry upon returning home, while the lad who had remained at home had used the time to prepare himself for lucrative business man. Hence the returned soldier with no position to compete with the stay-at-home and in consequence a social misfit as of no account, a man who in seventeen years had failed to find himself. Major Belford, who is unique, being a men who had not been wounded, but who had suffered shell shock, was injured in the war, came home twenty years ago and then went through the strain and hardship of war had prematurely aged them.

Should Have Sympathy.

Returned men, even after seventeen years of peace should receive every sympathy and assistance, said the speaker.

College professors and even ministers of the gospel were teaching that Christianity should be discarded peace, which was a classed peace, which was harmful, declared Major Belford. Pressure was on colleges, as a consequence of teaching such example by professors, to discard the Bible and confining themselves not to participate in war. Such men were unpatriotic. While against war and believing that Christianity and all foreign entanglements the speaker said that the Empire was in danger or the home was in danger, that the British people the spirit of 1914 would rise to the call to the Public and High Schools in Trenton and worked his way through the various grades until he became a classed conductor, later graduating to the position of yard master and finally, When the C.N.R. took over this railway, Mr. Vandervoort continued in the service and also was retained, when the Canadian National Railway amalgamation was effected. Some years ago he was retired from active duty after giving a years of useful service to the various railways.

He was a familiar figure to the travelling public on the Trenton-Bancroft passenger run, while for some years he was in charge of the Canadian National Express between Toronto and Picton. The late Mr. Vandervoort was born in Trenton, 70 years ago; being the son of the late Tobias and Julia Anne Vandervoort. He was a member of Royal Loyalist Descent. The deceased was well known in Masonic circles, being a native town and he took a keen and active interest in the social, fraternal, municipal and fraternal life of that community and his passing will be regretted by the whole district. He was a member of the Anglican Church and Fraternally was a life member of Trent Lodge, No. 32 A.F. & A.M. and a life member of St. Mark's Chapter, R.A.M., and also a life member of the I.O.O.F. A life member of the Canadian Railway Conductors, he took an active interest in the affairs of the railway employes and his passing will be regretted by the whole district.

Left to mourn his loss are one son, Howard and his wife and three daughters, Mrs. Robert Reid of Carmichael, Saskatchewan; Mrs. Kenneth Couch of Trenton, Mrs. Jack McIntosh of Belleville and one sister, Mrs. Hooper of Toronto. Interment: The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon at 2.30 p.m., in the service to be under Masonic direction.

LATE C. BENN, (Tweed)

Tweed—On Saturday evening Clarence Norman Benn, 63, passed away at his home here after an extended illness. The deceased was born in Hungerford Township, 63 years ago, are his widow, four sons, Dan of Belleville, Norman, Herbert and Delbert of Tweed, and four daughters, Mrs. Orville Conley; Mrs. Wm. Morden; Mrs. Morley Green and Alice, all of Tweed. The funeral service was conducted on Monday afternoon from the late home of deceased, Rev. C. R. Hickey, pastor of Tweed United Church. The bearers were Messrs. John Brown, Claude Bennett, Fred Sedore, Orville Conley, Morley Green and Frank Sills.

JACKSON COMES TO TERMS

Toronto, Nov. 12 (CP)— Harvey "Busher" Jackson was reported today to have come to terms with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League after being a hold-out since the season started last week.

Manager Conny Smythe said the report was news to him and referred inquiries to President Frank Calder, pointing out the league President had charge of affairs in hand since the Leafs reported him a delinquent.

ADMITS KILLING SWEETHEART

New York, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Dr. Fritz Gebhardt, 40, was charged with first degree murder today and today and police seized his assorted fiances who, they said, admitted killing him.

He was fondly spread lilies in his room on the twenty-first floor of the hotel, clad only in a nightshirt.

197 PRODUCTS NOW UNDER FIRE

Economic Independence Imposed In Mussolini

(By George Jordan)

(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

An official decree directed 197 products, formerly imported under normal rule, may not enter the country after next Monday—the day League of Nations economic sanctions become effective—except under strict government supervision.

Publication of the new rules followed closely a formal protest to all participating nations against application of the League machinery boycotting Italian goods and putting an embargo on key products to Italy in punishment for the Italian campaign in Ethiopia.

Il Duce's decree applied to a wide variety of products, ranging from dried fish, meat and other foods to films. It did not affect fuels or other minerals already governed by an import monopoly.

Italy's protests to the League member states against invocation of sanctions were made in separate communications to the individual nations, rather than through the League.

CAR HITS POLE THREE INJURED

Rescuers Had to Use Knives to Cut Occupants Loose From Wreckage

Ottawa Nov. 12 (CP)—Three persons were in hospital, one in a critical condition, as a result of injuries received when their automobile struck a telegraph pole and overturned two miles west of here early today. The three occupants of the car were pinned under the wreckage and rescuers had to use knives to cut them loose.

Those injured were Miss Hilda Smith, 30, of Lindsay, Ont., most seriously injured who suffered fractured skull; Miss "Babe" Gram, Carleton Place, Ont., also suffered serious head injury, and James Doyle, Perth, Ont., who suffered severe cuts and bruises about the head and body.

MOOSE PLENTIFUL

Sturgeon, Ont., Nov. 11 (CP) — Plentiful moose hunting was revealed during the last three days of the season, it was guided by flares in the darkness and long lines bearing six large moose. American hunters guided by Indians were the chief sportsmen of big game in the district, recalling to old timers the big moose season of 1907-8 when 70 moose have been recorded as bagged in this area, once a "hunting ground" for Red Men.

CAR CRASHES INTO TRUCK

Orangeville, Ont., Nov. 12.—(CP)—Mrs. Ethel Tucker and Miss Leslie Clow of Owen Sound, suffered severe injuries today when the car in which they were riding left the road and crashed into a standing truck. Three other occupants of the car were only slightly shaken in the crash.

Although the extent of the injuries of the two women had not been fully determined, hospital authorities stated they received severe head lacerations. Driver of the car, which is believed Miss Clow was driving, was badly damaged.

SPECULATION AS TO PROVISIONS OF TRADE TREATY

Canada Will Likely Stabilize Whole Tariff System

MANY CONCESSIONS

U. S. Will Lower Duty on Canadian Raw Products

New York, Nov. 12.—(CP)—Washington correspondents of New York dailies speculated at length today as to possible provisions of the agreed upon Canada-United States Trade Treaty.

The advantages the neighboring countries will provide for each other to permit a free flow of trade will not be officially known until after documents have been initialled, probably before the week is out.

A Washington correspondent speculated as follows:

"It is the general understanding that the principal gain to the United States in the new Treaty will be a guarantee by the Canadian Government that it will stabilize its whole Tariff system, including a simplification of its customs collecting technique through which it has been able effectually to raise and lower duties against United States products almost at will.

"In addition it is understood that Canada will grant outright Tariff concessions in some form or other to several hundred exportable commodities of the United States, including perfumes and cosmetics, iron and steel, machinery, automobiles, automobile parts, radios, essential and dried fruits, grazing cattle and many other items of less importance.

Many Items Included

"It is believed that in return the United States will give Canada certain guarantees of maintaining the status quo on articles now on the free list, including free three months of export, namely, newsprint, pulpwood and wood pulp, and, in addition a grant in final decision in the duty of whisky and possibly many reductions on rough lumber, peat, potatoes, nickel, fishery and dairy products and certain other raw products.

The original draft of a Canadian-United States agreement, drawn up the summer of 1934, was understood to have provided for a 50 per cent reduction in the tall United States Whisky Tariff and there was such a cut would halve the Tariff down from $8 a gallon to $2.80 but would not affect the $2.00 per gallon Excise duty levied on Domestic products as well as imports.

The Times Correspondent says the new agreement is believed by informed persons to include the above provision. The question left in doubt, he says, is whether such a reduction would apply only to so-called "American Type" Whisky (Rye and Bourbon) or to all Whisky and distilled spirits.

ON TO LAKE TANA?

Italian advances are reported to have been so successful recently that Addis Ababa is somewhat alarmed. Without much opposition, the Fascist troops have occupied Makale and are now reported on their way toward Lake Tana, chief British stronghold in Ethiopia. The map indicates recent war moves. (1) The Italians have made a wide (1) line across the Tembien. The main forces of the Italians attacked and pressed beyond. The eastern army (2) is advancing near Mount Mecan, Ali Dagah Bar and nearby Scioa, Ethiopian stronghold. (4) have been bombed. Gondar (3) has been taken by the Italians. An Ethiopian army is reported massing (5) down the Webbe Shibeli from Imi (6). Ras Desta Demtu's army is said to have crossed the Italian Somaliland border (7).

Hogan says that shortly after ten o'clock on the night of November fourth, a woman whose home is near the ravine telephoned police that she saw three men in the driveway of her home. One of the three looked like O'Donnell, Mr. Hogan said the woman told him. According to Hogan, the policeman sent to investigate arrived about 11.30 p.m. The approximate time Ruth Taylor was dragged into the ravine, criminally assaulted and beaten, and the head until she died.

Police of Main Street Station state the call was received from the woman at 10.40 p.m. and that a constable was dispatched immediately to the woman's house, about 375 yards by their estimate, from the ravine. The officer searched the vicinity and returned to the station after finding nothing.

Mr. Hogan indicated he believed the three men seen by the woman were the real murderers of Ruth Taylor.

Obituary

LATE MRS. EMMA A. GLASS (Typewritten)

NAVY UNDERTAKES RESCUE OF CREW

Temporary Safety on Rocks Taken by Passengers

Manila, P.I., Nov. 12.—(AP)— The rescue of 84 persons endangered, when the interisland steamer Mayon ripped apart on the rocks of San Bernardino Straits was undertaken today by the United States Navy.

The U.S.S. Pearry, speed destroyer of the Asiatic fleet, was standing by the broken vessel, more than 250 miles southeast of Manila, after a dash from Cavite.

A. G. Henderson, official of the Silverheart's Line, said navy officials had agreed to dispatch a second destroyer to assist with special life-saving equipment.

Five passengers, four of whom are women, were aboard the British vessel when it piled up last weekend while enroute here from San Francisco.

The Peary arriving at the wreck scene early today, was in communication with the vessel and the Silverheart who had scrambled to temporary safety on rocks. It was not learned whether those on the rocks included the passengers but an unidentified message received by Henderson said "so far all is well."

DISCOVERIES

Some men are braver than others. Those who climb nearly fifteen miles into the stratosphere and bring back secrets of value to the world are great men.

In spite of science's development, greater and greater grows the zeal to get at the inner truth of things. Nature unfolds as science advances, her riches, and yet in her great wealth never has to reveal all. She is infinite in her resources and finite man is delighted to be lured by the beckoning of Mother Nature.

What a world of effort is being made to extract from nature the secrets she treasures, under the microscope, in the medical world, in the bottom of the sea, in the north and south pole areas, in the stratosphere, in the body and mind of man and the instincts of beast and bird, in the light of the moon and the stars, in botany, and in a thousand other fields! No man need complain that romance is dead for the great explorers are not "dead ones", neither are the scientists who are delving into star-dust on the sweep of the mighty constellations, or studying the planets of our solar system and of the lonely moon.

A man may be a pyschologist, a botanist, a zoologist, a bacteriologist, an astronomer, a seismologist whose duties concern the study of earthquakes, a doctor, a dentist and so on almost ad infinitum. There is no limitation of jobs for the men who seek the romance of science.

No man should set up a wall that there is nothing new under the sun. There are countless mysteries of humanity and soul, there are absorbing stories which he may pry out with the instruments which invention has brought into play, and so man's interest will never flag.

All honour to the men who risk much to bring new truths to man. Men like Captain Albert W. Stevens and Captain Orvil Anderson who set up a new high record on Monday are benefactors.

BOOK WEEK

Readers of books who are legion in every part of the country take added interest in reading during Book Week which brings to their attention in an unusual manner books, perhaps of a different type than they usually read.

Book-reading is one of the substitutions for the stories which used to be related and as story-telling has always been one of the most interesting and necessary of occupations, the art whether of conversation or of the printed page goes on apace. Of the matters of nature is no end, and a famous writer once said and his words will ring true until the end of time.

For the book and the narrated story satisfy the human need of vicarious experience—the desire to know others. There are some persons who from constitutional or other causes such as a retiring disposition or circumstances of a solitary nature strangers and without books would have a very limited knowledge of human nature and a dull life. To these the story as related by the novelist or by the writer of short storytellor or by the novelist fills that shortcoming in their surroundings or their nature. There is a natural craving to know more about fellow men whether they be engaged in the conflict with nature, or living out the ordinary routine of life. No man's experience except under the most remarkable circumstances can compass all men and their peculiarities, but as long as man can read the best authors he is brought into touch with human nature in every phase.

Some persons require the impulse of a bookweek to make them scan the book field and come to a realization that they have perhaps narrowed their interest to a peculiar phase of life, whereas the book shelves offer a much more extensive field for browsing.

It would be a good thing to see the number of readers go up, to find Canadians digging deeper and deeper into the study of their own literature for it is only the increase of interest in Canada which can bring the great Canadian novel and drama or short story.

A happy world which the non-reading class never knows to exist is ever that of the reader of books. Everything of interest to man, whether in his social relationship, in himself as an individual, in political organization, in peace or at war, in pioneering or in a highly complex society, in his relationship to nature, and to other forms of life, whether of animal, bird, or flower, is man's for the mere search of a volume. Does one like romance, how then about Marco Polo's travels, and so on?

Who can put an end to the sweep of the imagination as indicated in a library? For the library is but a storeroom somewhat like the storeroom of the mind or of the recesses of the ego, where are stored facts of real life or imagination.

PROPHETIC WARNING

The latest type of motor horn, we are told, reproduces the notes of a harp. This is a really subtle method of warning pedestrians to get out of the way.

THE KEY SUBJECT

Josh Corntossel took a collegiate course,
He had a successful career.
He joined in the sports with a masterful force
And led in expression of cheer,
His science he knew from the sky to the ground—
From comets to corn on the cob,
Reward he has claimed for his wisdom profound,
We have got him a Government job.

He figures in billions with elegant ease,
He gives to the time clock a punch;
Says 'yes, ma'am' and 'no, ma'am' likewise

MAN'S TASTE LIKE THAT OF OSTRICH

A man who swallowed nails, screws, and other impediments for a livelihood, and then cheerfully submitted himself to the surgeon—he "pleaded guilty" to a round dozen of operations—is the subject of an article in the "British Medical Journal" by Dr. I. Lloyd Johnstone, of Wolverhampton.

Dr. Johnstone first saw the man when a surgical dresser at Middlesex Hospital in 1923.

"The way in which he turned his ability to swallow objects such as cutlery, nails and screws, to pecuniary advantage," Dr. Johnstone writes, "was to take wagers that he would swallow the article or articles exhibited.

"When the 'book' was large enough to satisfy him he would proceed to carry out his boast and collect the bets.

"The public house was always the stage for the performance, and doubtless a drink or two, and an intimate knowledge of the psychosis of London, made him reckless in betting large sums.

The man's personal narrative is then given. One operation was performed at Westminster Hospital after he had swallowed three bits of tin, three large screws, and three large nails, 4½ inches long.

He went to St. Thomas's Hospital after he had,swallowed a tin whistle and a pea shooter. "When I told the surgeon Alan Dinehart, and is practically down and out when Frankie Darro as a jockey whom he had befriended tips him off to a frame-up in the face of the fix attempt.

About six o'clock last evening a resident of West Belleville discovered a red-hot oven up a tree on Cedarhurst Street. He stopped to watch it and everyone who came along stopped also until quite a crowd had gathered. Not one man could tell how it came, but each had a suggestion to make as to the best way to bring him down. Finally a boy was hoisted into the tree and although he searched thoroughly he could not find the coon; he had escaped to another tree and was later sighted, but as yet he has evaded capture.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Payoff"

Thrilling Drama of Newspapers With Star Cast

"The Payoff," First National's latest newspaper drama, at Capitol Theatre today, with a tri-star cast, including James Dunn, Claire Dodd and Patricia Ellis.

The picture is entirely different from all predecessors in the newspaper field, centering about the activities of an honest sports writer, his contact with the gambling fraternity, and his love affairs. Incidentally, furnish a new twist to the third degree.

The picture is based on the story by George Bricker, for many years a newspaper writer, and deals with the thrills and glamor and excitement in the work of a reporter who is constantly threatened by gamblers who try to bribe and intimidate him.

James Dunn has the role of the news writer, Claire Dodd plays the fish wife and Patricia Ellis a newspaper woman assistantly in love with him. Dunn is fired from his job when he ceases in his attack on the ace gambler, a part played by Alan Dinehart, and is practically down and out when Frankie Darro as a jockey whom he had befriended tips him off to a frame-up in the face of the fix attempt.

Robert Storey directed the picture from the screen play by George Bricker and Joel Sayre.

Nino Martini, the golden voiced tenor who comes to the Capitol Theatre Wednesday has a reputation as a tenor and his concerts all over Europe were crowded with people who acclaimed his wonderful voice. Thurber's latest film "Heart's Desire" has a more powerful and human story than "Becky Sharp" Time of which he was the star, and has a modern background and a more realistic thought and expression. ### AT THE BELLE

"Here Comes the Band"

Ted Lewis, high-hatted trumpeter and his merry mad musicians, who have established innumerable full-time hits since come on their most recent tour of America's theatres, come to the screen in a new story in "Here Comes the Band".

Romance is set to melody and mirth that high and low will enjoy in this love story set to music. Virginia Brunon, lovely lawyer pursuer as one of its most elaborate love sequences, which comes today to the Belle Theatre.

Hill-Billies Sing

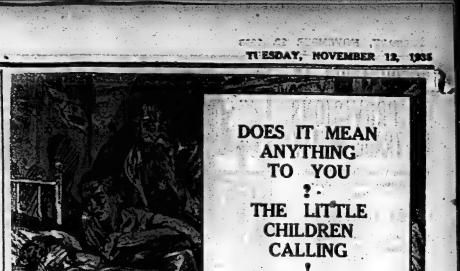
One of the additional musical features ever attempted in motion pictures is the Hollywood Hillbillies where singing cowboys from the famous Spahn Ranch sing from below the Mason and Dixon line, hillbillies from the Ozarks, and other mountain folk sing folk songs just in a vocal presentation to establish the rightful ownership of a song "Hasdin' Home", the key number in the picture, written by Herbert Stothart with lyrics by Red Washington. This number is expected to become one of the great pieces of musical motif of the current period.

Additional outstanding musical numbers in the picture include "Roll Along Prairie Moon" by Ted Fiorito and Gus Kahn, "Sweet Leilani" by Harry MacPherson; the big production number "We Are Not Long Table", by Lane and Washington, in which Ted Lewis' specialties such as "Me and My Shadow", "When My Baby Smiles", "Wear a Hat With a Silver Lining" and "Farewell Blues" symphony orchestra accompanies the production number.



The story of "Here Comes the Band" is laid in the days of the war, with Lewis playing the regimental band-master who goes into civilian life with a popular orchestra leader. Others in the band go into various walks of life, but on Armistice Day they get together.

A boy writes a great song, which he plays by the piano. The girl, who loves him, the musicians who have left him, and the old army band, get together and offer musical support. Stockwell proves his ownership to the number.

Beautiful Virginia Bruce, following a series of outstanding performances in many recent M.G.M. productions, plays the heroine and Harry Stockwell, one of America's most promising baritones, is the singing hero. Stockwell, prior to joining the film colony, scored in the New York musical hit, "As Thousands Cheer" and Karl Carrolls "Vanities" and won a national reputation on the radio with Paul Whiteman.

"The Informer" Gripping

Reaching supreme heights in characterization and in strength of emotional appeal, RKO Radio's "The Informer" the second feature attraction on the same program, ranks as one of the most powerful dramas ever brought to the screen. Directed by John Ford from Liam O'Flaherty's widely read and much discussed novel, featuring Victor McLaglen, Margot Grahame, blonde star of the English stage, Preston Foster, Heather Angel, Wallace Ford and Una O'Connor.

Stirling and District

Stirling, Nov. 12—Remembrance Day was observed by the citizens of Stirling with a parade of Girl Guides, Boy Scouts, and Veterans of the Great War, through the business section of the village to the cenotaph in Memorial Park, where special service was conducted. Those taking part in the ceremony congregated at the main entrance of the Consolidated School, where permission took place under the leadership of Ofc. Fred Houston. The Stirling band led the procession, followed by the Girl Guides and the Boy Scouts, with the Veterans of the community taking up the rear.

At the Memorial Park each group formed in their rightful places for the very impressive service which followed. Mr. Joseph Whitehead officiated as master of ceremonies. The band under the leadership of Mr. Maurice Bell led the gathering in the singing of the hymn: "O God Our Help in Ages Past". Rev. A. S. McConnell read the Scripture lesson, and prayer was offered by Rev. J. A. Hefford. The address which was delivered by Rev. E. W. Rowland of St. Paul's United Church was followed by two minutes of silence. Wreaths were placed at the base of the flag draped cenotaph by Mrs. Whitby Sr., Mrs. McConnell Sr. and Mrs. George Richardson. Trumpeter James Ward sounded the Last Post. Rev. J. A. Hefford of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church pronounced the benediction which was followed by Reveille, sounded by the trumpeter, and the very impressive service was closed by the singing of the National Anthem.

Jubilee Singers at Trinity United Church

The Trinity United Church choir was fortunate in having a second visit of the noted Jubilee Male Singers on Thursday evening. These talented people who appeared here just about a year ago, responded generously to the applause of the large hundred odd persons who attended.

The following personnel turned in an excellent performance. Miss Bratton, the soprano had a voice of sweetness and power. Her solos were splendidly given. Miss Fowler, pianist, and Miss Appleyard, accordionist, the contralto, in his fine mellow voice, and Mr. Russell, the bass revealed a voice of wonderful range. His solo "The Deep Blue Sea" was beautifully given and the encore "Old Man River" was also lovely.

The male quartettes rendered "Crying Loly Unto the Lord", "Little Lu, I Love You" and "Pie Song".

The programme was divided into two parts. In the first, the artists provided the entertainment with sacred songs while in part two they appeared in Jubilee costumes and sang plantation songs.

Other numbers were sung by the entire group.

The evening was closed with the National Anthem and will long be remembered by the audience.

MARRIED

Married in Watertown, N.Y., on Sunday, Nov. 10, 1935, by the Rev. G. Roy, Margaret Irene Wickett, of Belleville to Percy E. Lattin, of Watertown, N.Y. n13-1i

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kingston wish to announce the engagement of their second daughter, Laura Melinda Pauline, to Clifford Allen, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cassidy. The marriage to take place quietly the latter part of November.

Mr. Tom McCrae of the Bank of Commerce, Ottawa, formerly of this city was a week-end visitor in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Clark have returned to the city after attending the Lake Placid Winter Club, Watertown, N.Y., at which they were the attendants.

Mr. Ray Casselman of the Bank of Montreal, this city, is spending his vacation at Petawawa, deer hunting.

Mayor George O. Tice is much improved in health but will be confined to his home for a few days. He is, however not able to conduct official business nor receive callers as yet.

Miss Eileen Cannon and Miss Katherine McDonnell spent the week-end in Toronto.

Mr. Sid. Sherrit of the local Bank of Montreal spent the week-end at his home, Toronto.

Messrs. J. S. Boyce, W. H. Mordue and H. R. Mayfield motored to Toronto today to attend the Motor Show that is being held this week.

Miss Hattie Mastin, Reg. N., attended the Overseas Nurses' Dance at the Royal York, Toronto on Friday evening.

Mr. Howard W. Rathman and son Bill, of Toronto returned to Toronto on Monday, the latter after visiting Mrs. J. Rathman and the Misses Gallagher, 39 Bridge Street West over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Moher spent the week-end with relatives in Ottawa...

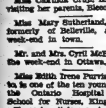
Miss Mary Sutherland, Toronto, formerly of Belleville, spent the week-end in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyril McBride spent the week-end in Ottawa.

Miss Edith Irene Purvis, Deseronto, is one of the 30 nurses being graduated from the Hospital Training School for Nurses, Kingston, who will receive diplomas at graduation exercises this week.



Mr. and Mrs. Bill Jeffery, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Saunders, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stewart, Harold, Coleman and Frank Stevenson, of Peterboro were among those present at the 21st Men's Dance last evening.

The Johnson's Academy presented a gay and animated scene last evening, the occasion of the annual reminiscence dance of the Y's Men's Club. A very large number of guests attended including a splendid representation from Peterborough and nearby districts. Music was supplied by Cannon's orchestra and the dance program merited high praise. Favours, balloons and noise makers added to the merriment of the evening and the picturesque scene was enhanced by the charming gowns of the ladies. Members of the Y's Men's Club under the chairmanship of Jack Wilson were in charge of arrangements for the dance and the wives of the club members graciously acted as patronesses. Two beautifully rendered solos by Harold Davidson, "Trees" and "Home" delighted during the supper hour, delighted the guests.

Here's Real Help In Avoiding Many Miserable Colds

Unique Medication Designed to Aid Nature's Defenses in Nose and Throat, Where Most Colds Start.

PROVED IN USE BY MILLIONS

In the exclusive formula of Vicks Va-tro-nol has been found a unique and successful aid in preventing many colds when the first threat is the sympt comfort and health.

Va-tro-nol is especially designed for the nose and upper throat—where most colds start. It aids and stimulates the functions provided by Nature in these parts to fight off colds, and to throw off head colds in the early stages. Used in time—at the first sneeze, irritation, sniffle, or sneeze—just a few drops up each nostril—Va-tro-nol helps to avoid many colds.

Where irritation has led to a clogged-up nose (a stuffy head cold or nasal catarrh), Va-tro-nol reduces swollen membranes—aids in clearing mucus—brings comforting relief.

For Fewer and Shorter Colds

Note to mothers—who guard the family's health: Vicks has developed, especially for you, a practical plan for Better Home Control of Colds. This guide to fewer and shorter colds has been clinically tested by practical physicians and is further proved in everyday home use by millions. Full details of Vicks Plan in each Va-tro-nol package.

Eyes Dominate In Features Of Face

Dorothy Lamour

Her sparkling eyes are full of fun

BY HELEN FOLLETT

In the human facescape eyes are the dominating feature. They are innocent. They stick in the memory. Recall an old friend of yesteryears: you will be able to visualize her eyes when you cannot remember what kind of a nose or mouth she has.

The beauty of the eye is dependent upon shape, color, size and expression — expression most of all. Expression is life spark; it speaks a language, it twinkles, laughs, expresses sadness and threatens. As for its lying qualities, well let's not get into them.

Follow these directions for eye care: Bathe them twice a day, first with warm water then with cold. If subject to dust apply mineral oil, one drop to each eye, or bathe with a boric acid solution.

Never read or sew in a dim light, never read on a moving train. If eyes are continually tired, be examined for glasses. When pouches appear under the eyes, rub them with ice cubes which hand packs. Most important of all get a good night's sleep and drink plenty of water.

For bust development, massage every night with lanoline or cocoa butter, using a round and round motion of the palms of the hands; cold always very cautious, alcohol rubs twice a week and arm exercises every day.

To hasten the good work, take five minutes off night and morning for exercises. Stand erect, lift the fairly wild stand it, sing at the top of your lungs. All singers are cheery and busty.

Obituary

MRS. ELIZABETH CRAIG (Brighton)

Mrs. Elizabeth Irwin Craig, widow of William Craig, died on Friday, November 8, in her seventy-sixth year. Funeral services were held Sunday from her late residence, 21 Ist Street, Brighton. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Ellen Hilliard, and Clarence Craig of Hamilton.

MRS. GEORGE A. PEAKER (Belleville)

Carrie Emery Peaker, wife of George A. Peaker, 162 Dunn Ave, died last night at the 68th year, following a heart attack Sunday. She was born in Ralton county, but accepts for a few years spent in Deseronto, her whole life was spent in Belleville. She was one of the original members of Parkdale Methodist Church Women. King Street West and Dunn avenue was the first bride married there and has received all the gifts at the club of the event. Besides her husband, two daughters survive, Mrs. Wm. William Colling, Belleville; a sister, Mrs. V. D. Bleecker, Oshawa, and a brother, George W. Emery, Toronto, survive.

LATE GEORGE CARTER

Monday afternoon the funeral of George Carter took place from the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Albert Scriven, 198 Dundas Street west.

The service in the home and at the graveside in Belleville cemetery was conducted by Mr. W. H. Foster of Foxboro.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

Busy hands knitting fine frocks for evening wear? Yes, Paris is sending beautiful hand-knitted garments for formal wear. A typical model is in cyclamen-colored silk in a diagonal stitch. It has a capelet that forms a short sleeve, a skirt with slits at either side and two wisps of cygnet-hued silk trailing . . . the bell.

Up in the air goes that head as it proudly wears a lovely new hat. A metal and charming model is a turban in wine-colored velours draped to suggest a modern treatment, it has a self-bow in front for width and height.

Out for the day suitably dressed in a slim coat dress of black woven jacquard crepe with an Ascot vestee in white satin crossed by a dull gold bar pin. The sleeve has a pointed pooch at the elbow, and the skirt has some front fullness.

Props leap right onto the nicest costumes. A three-piece fine tweed in plum-colored wool has a slim jacket fastened with silk braid frogs. The raccoon has a collar and narrow tuxedo borders of mink and is fastened at the neck with another frog.

Not always is fur found at the neckline of a coat. A model in brown frise woolen has natural furs as a bustline border continuing up the side closing until the waistline. There is a soft self-fabric collar.

Snuggle up in a nice comfy flannel robe. Use useful is in flannelcolored flannel with white satin forming a little turndown collar. Crewel buttons are used down the side-front closing and for cuff trimmings. The sleeves are fixed with white satin at the wrists.

Only One Command For Quints While Making Picture

Hollywood, Nov. 12.—(AP)— The Dionne quintuplets, signed this week for their first feature-length motion picture, will hear only one command from the director the day they start work.

It will be the French equivalent of "be yourselves, ladies".

They won't be called upon to act. "The story was designed with two purposes," said Darryl Zanuck, production chief at 20th Century-Fox studio, when he closed the contract. "Naturally, the emphasis will be on the babies, the routine of their daily lives, the gradually-developing differences in their temperaments.

"But almost equally important from the standpoint of plot will be the effect of the children on the community where they were born and on the doctor, who preserved their lives."

This character of the picture is Dr. A. R. Dafoe who performed the delicate surgery of keeping them alive.

Zanuck disclosed rehabilitants of Callander, Ont., birth place of the "quints", probably will be "cast" in bits. The film will be entitled "The Country Doctor."

Will Not Be Actors

The scenarist, Sonya Levein, said she had discarded the usual method of definite lines of action for the children, either as individuals or as a group. She favors leaving the lines of plot and experimenting on their reactions. After the picture is made, actually has begun work with them at Callander.

"It will be interesting, for example, to show him being taught to say their prayers," she said. "The individual reactions of Marie, the dramatic one, are expected to clash the lively one, probably would embody every element of real drama".

But, although the five famous children will not have to "act" in the dramatic sense of the word, at least one well-known Hollywood director was convinced of their ability to "emote".

He was Norman Taurog, considered one of the best ever to direct "baby specialist".

"The quintuplets could act," he said conclusively.

All you need when you have children in a picture is a little ingenuity. These Dionne babies seem to have more than enough intelligence to do the rest."

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beekman

SANDWICHES

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

My friend says that chicken salad sandwich (toasted) should not be eaten with a fork. I think it should. Who is correct?

O.

It's true indeed that a toasted chicken - salad - sandwich is more conveniently, and therefore properly eaten with fork and knife. But at least with a fork.

FLOWERS

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

There has been a little argument over the "when" of sending a young lady a corsage. I think that the thoughtful escort ought to make excellent taste in sending the young lady a corsage whenever they plan. ned to go to a large dance. The other person in the argument maintains that such a gesture would be displaying very poor judgment — that it is a very special occasion. Who is correct?

C.

For a man to send a girl a corsage at any time and for any occasion, is always a thoughtful and generous and courtly gesture for him to make. This, in fact, makes the occasion a "very special" one. And certainly a large dance is usually a very special affair. So you can't agree why the other - person - in the argument would be so grummy as to think that sending a corsage would "be displaying very poor judgment" — unless she isn't "the girl.

SHOWER

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

I have been invited to a shower which is an escort. May I invite a stranger whom they have never met and how should I address him to the bride-to-be and the groom-to-be?

G.

Are you sure that men are also to be invited to this shower to which you have been invited? Usually men aren't invited to showers. If, on the invitation, you are not asked to bring an "escort," it would not be correct for you to do so.

Announcing the Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

1. Is it correct when you decide to announce your marriage, to tell your friends that you are going to be married on a certain date and then announce the marriage after this lapse of time. And if it always the case that it is rather inappropriate to send out formal announcements so long after an "unconventional" wedding. It's so much more suitable to the circumstances for you, when you decide to announce your marriage, to tell your friends who live near enough to tell by word of mouth, and to write to those who live far away. Then either after or write to your friends. In this way all those intimately concerned with the news receive it in a closely-friendly form of announcement. And the news is not delayed unduly.

2. You may, if you wish, have a party as a kind of announcement. It will be made, but, unless you have first told your relatives your guests of this plan and have told them of yours and of your husband's. That is, it would seem very inconsistent, if you haven't told your relatives and your husband's relatives, for you to have an announcement party and tell your friends before you tell your relatives. If the guests are to be your relatives and his, and your close friends, then the announcement party would be appropriate.

3. If you have this announcement party, make the announcement with simplicity and dignity. For instance, toward the beginning of the party, say a dinner, your sister, for example, might say: "Mary, and to her husband Tom." As he is giving this toast he will slip your wedding ring on your finger (you probably will not have worn it in public before).....and the news will be told.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

Many young people and also some not so young, seem to regard marriage as a flirtation under the auspices of the church.

Never walk into it.

Marriage is the most serious of partnerships with less sense of responsibility than they would have in betting on a horse-race or taking a chance in a raffle.

Their "case History."

The medicos say, has probably been something like this — Met a dozen or more times, danced with each other almost as often, went along to shows and parties, each regarding the other as a glamourous individual of the other sex. But each knew nothing about each other's essential characteristics. It hasn't been enough if the moon was shining, eyes were bright and the orchestra playing a bewitching waltz.

And so they get married — and expect to go through life on this beautiful, but flimsy, equipment.

It can't be done, my dears, any more than a full moon can be commanded every evening or the season to stop in their rotation or a rose remain in the bud.

Normal people do not expect thrills to continue endlessly. It is the every-day humdrum interest of their lives, the amusement of their acquaintances and the benefit of basic economy of diverse lawyers.

Husbands and wives who experience real love are those who have striven and suffered, who have faced together life and death, who have laughed and cried together and whose very faults have become dear through many burdens shared together.

These people do not jump in and out of bed together with the ease of clowns leaping through paper hoops in a circus. Happy the enmity which numbers homes built on such marriages. They give a pattern to this seemingly hit-or miss business of living.

Thrills or romance are nothing but the garnish on the dish. Beyond pleasing the eye, they have very little to do with the dish itself. And some people actually prefer their dishes without garnishing.

The very young in their thirst for glamour, do not realize this. It is often the garnishing has been cast aside after the days of courtship, and a home and home comes to be put of each other's lives, that real love is experienced.

Comradeship is the rock upon which a successful marriage is built. In choosing a life partner, be sure that the one you marry has the same tastes and interests, the same ideals and principles, and set about it deliberately to hold fast to these fundamental connections.

MOIRA W. M. S.

The November meeting of Moira W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Can. Chisholm with only a costly number present. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Geo. Foster with Hymn 162. "On the world must be conquered for Christ" after which Mrs. A. Bailey led in prayer. Two passages of Scripture were read by Mrs. B. Ketcheson and Mrs. C. Morland in response. The minutes of the last meeting were read and the roll call was given. Short readings on the work in home community and religious life were given by Miss Verna Foster, Mrs. R. Morton, Miss J. Herity and Mrs. Wm. Scott. Hymn 181. "Come every soul by sin oppressed" was sung. Mrs. Bailey read a very beautiful reading on "Forty Days."

After singing hymn 226 "What a Friendship" Mrs. Geo. Foster closed the meeting with prayer. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, and she was given a vote of thanks for opening her home on this occasion.

BOAT CAPSIZES 80 ARE DROWNED

Turkish Steamer Plunges to Bottom And Will Not be Reflocated

Istanbul, Nov. 12—(CP-Havas) — Eighty persons were believed to have been drowned when the Turkish motor ship Ineboli capsized and plunged to the bottom of the Bay of Smyrna during a violent storm.

The British freighter Polo, which was in the vicinity went to the aid of the stricken ship as soon as word came less than a mile off shore and rescued its remaining 110 passengers. They were disembarked at Smyrna.

Rolling of the Ineboli in the night was caused her cargo of cotton to shift. She listed heavily and then capsized. Her engines died under water. It was not believed she could be floated.

Marked Curvature of Earth At 73,000 Feet Say Fliers

Stratosphere Flight One of Man's Greatest Achievements

While Lake, S.D., Nov. 12—(AP)—Examination of rarified air in sealed tubes, records of delicate instruments and photographic plates, obtained by stratosphere fliers 13 miles above the earth, was awaited today by the world of science.

Data gathered by Captain Orvil A. Anderson and Albert W. Stevens in their record breaking stratosphere flight yesterday were packed for shipment to Washington by officials of the National Geographical Society, co-sponsors of the project with the United States army air corps.

Valuable information about the cosmic ray, long a puzzle to scientists, was sought by the two airmen, who reached an unofficial altitude of 72,000 feet, highest point ever reached by a human.

Studies of sunlight and skylight, observation of sky, sun and earth brightness, studies of wind direction and velocity, checks of barometric altitude scales and study of balloon navigation, were some of the scientific observations recorded by the fliers.

The instruments were reported undamaged, though the huge balloon landed without even so much as a bounce.

Man's Greatest Achievement

The flight probably was one of man's greatest achievements in conquering gravity but scientists looked for even greater accomplishments as a result of the expedition into the thin upper air.

Rising more than eight hours the two balloonists, making their third attempt to attend above 70,000 feet were aloft and most of the time was spent in scientific observations.

Temperatures were so low with their instruments they were unable to carry on a radio conversation with the ground. They spent an hour and a half at the "ceiling" which Captain Anderson estimated at 73,000 to 74,000 feet.

Marked Curvature

At 1:06 p.m. the flyers radioed they were starting down. Three hours later, after descending at a rate of 300 to 400 feet a minute, it had drifted northeast until it landed.

IS RE-ARRESTED AT CLOSE OF CASE

Warkworth Youth, Given Suspended Sentence on One Charge

Directly upon receiving a one year's suspended sentence after pleading guilty to a charge of theft in this morning's local police court, William Wilson, 19-year-old Warkworth youth, was re-arrested on a charge of breaking and entering the Canadian Tobacco Store and theft of cheff. The arrest was made by Provincial Constable William McHenry, assisted by Wilson, accompanied by his parents, was about to leave the police station for their home.

Local police today announced the discovery of the breaking into automobile, reported stolen from Catherine street on Saturday night. The vehicle was later abandoned in Boardman's woods near Oak Lake, it was reported. The vehicle will be returned to Belleville late this afternoon, it is understood. Mr. Deshane, who returned to his Toronto home yesterday, was notified of the recovery of his automobile.

50 ANARCHISTS ARRESTED

Norway, Nov. 12—(CP—Havas)—More than 50 anarchists have been arrested in Tokyo and Osaka and are being held on charges of planning an anarchists uprising it was learned here today. The arrests were made on information from two anarchists who confessed to having taken part in a plot to rob a bank in a Tokyo suburb to obtain funds for their organizations.

WALL ST. FINANCIAL

New York, Nov. 13 (AP) — Heavy buying swept in over the stock market at the start of today's session, but it was of brief duration so far as the general run of equities was concerned.

Among Canadian stocks, International Nickel advanced slightly, while Canadian Pacific held even. On the curb, Hiram Walker got up more than a point but Lake Shore and Distillers Corp.-Seagrams were under pressure. Dominion Government bonds ruled steady a cent at 98 16-32c.

Shares of Radio preferred and Western Union got up a point, but common was unusually active and improvement was shown by Paramount and Loew's Inc., Columbia, American Telephone, Louisville and Nashville, Chesapeake and Ohio, Great Northern, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, United States Gypsum, Electric and Westinghouse. Stocks off fractionally to around four points included U. S. Smelting, American Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, American Commercial Alcohol, National Distillers, United Aircraft, Chrysler General Motors, Allis Chalmers, Electric Auto-Lite, Case and Sears Roebuck.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Nov. 13.—(CP)—An active and strong market in the Lake-shore and International Nickel issues in the Toronto Industrial Stock Section only dissipated a part of the gains also International Petroleum had a fair trade and early in the week, however, did not hold following announcement of a dividend of 75 cents and extra of 25 payable December 2. After touching 29 the issue was irregular.

A forecast of the trade agreement with the United States gave the Dominion Day issues a boost throughout the early session with gains ranging up to a point but part of the advances were held when New York turned heavy in the afternoon. Ford A was outstanding with a good, dropping to 27 down 2 points net.

TRADE PACT

Toronto, Nov. 12 (CP)—In a dispatch from its Ottawa correspondent concerning the Canada-United States trade agreement the Globe says:

"Broadly speaking . . . it is believed the basis of the agreement will provide for the reduction by both sides of its intermediate tariff rates to the United States, but depending on a selected list of commodities, in addition for which the United States is to reduce the existing tariff rates to 50 per cent on Canadian lumber, fish, potatoes, cattle, hay and other agricultural products."

The paper says it is believed "it is believed the agreement will continue for five years against notice of a program designed to facilitate the movement of commerce north to south. President Roosevelt, on the eve of a presidential election in 1936, will not be in a position to allow too greatly the many interests of the United States to be hurt. Canada will be injudiciously affected by any trade pact which favors farmers or Canadian fish, dairy products, lumber and cattle."

Hamilton Girl Beats Off Assailant In Lonely Spot

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 12—(CP)—A young girl had a thrilling encounter near a ravine in Westdale, Miss Phyllis Good, 18, succeeded in fending off her assailant and informed police today. A man suddenly leaped at her from the ravine as she was about her. The girl screamed and struggled and finally succeeded in beating off her assailant. He was described as about 27 years of age, five feet ten inches in height and wearing a dark overcoat.

BELIEVE SNOW FELL IN NORTHERN PARTS

Snow is believed to have fallen over the northern part of the country during this week although no direct reports had been received in the city up to noon. One car and one truck parked along Front street were noticed by pedestrians to have a slight coating of snow on their roofs today. Although a few flakes of snow swirled around downtown corners this morning they were a weak imitation of the real fall. During the night the lowest temperature reached was just one point above freezing. The greatest fall of rain has been received during the past twenty-four hours, the heaviest fall of the season.

WRITERS TO BE GUESTS

Saturday, Nov. 16—(CP)—When Balmy Beach and Sarnia Imperials meet here next Saturday for the final game of the Canadian O.R.F.U. playdowns, members of the Western Ontario Sports Writers' Association will be guests of the Oilers. Manager Scott of Imperials announced local special wedding arrangements had been made for the scribes who will hold their fall meeting here following the game. Members will discuss a proposed new affiliation with National Baseball Writers' Association.

Livestock

Toronto, Nov. 13 (CP)—The cattle division of the Toronto livestock market continued today's steadying trend at the opening today as good killers sold actively and stores slowly on a scale of 50 cents to $1 at holdovers. Calves, sheep and lambs all opened steady and while hogs, as usual were unsettled with no definite bids.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle, 470; calves, 300; hogs, 310; sheep and lambs, 1,100.

Choice fed calves brought $7.50 to $8 with medium downward to $5. Good butcher cows sold at $3 to $3.50 with canners and cutters from $1.50 to $2.25. A few lots of stockers sold from $2.50 to $4.50 according to quality.

The calf division was steady at $8.50 to $8 for choice vealers with a few tops up to $9.50. Heavy calves sold from $6 to $7.

Lambs were steady, good cows and wethers brought $7.50 to $7.75 and culls and bucks mailing $3.50 to $4.75. Sheep were steady at $1 to $4 cwt.

Montreal, Nov. 12 (CP)—Offerings on the two leading livestock markets today totalled 767 head. Receipts were composed of 86 cattle, 229 calves, 307 hogs and 109 sheep and lambs.

Cattle were unchanged. Common to medium butcher cows brought $2 to $3. Canners and cutters were from $1.50 to $2 and common and bulls $2.25 to $2.75.

Calves were steady at $3 to $3.25 for grassers to $8.50 for good quality veals. Common brought $4 to $5 and over were slow at $4 to $4.25.

Good cows and steers were $7.25. Heavy lambs $6.25. Culls and bucks $5.25.

Bacon hogs brought $8.35 to $8.40 fed and watered, with $1 per hog premium for sows. Butchers and heavies were cut 50 cents per hundred weight; extra heavies and lights were cut $1 per hundred weight. Sows were from $6.50 to $7.25.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, Nov. 11 — Butter and cheese markets advanced here yesterday; eggs declined. About the same potatoes sold at recent advances, and poultry ruled steady. The Canadian Commodity Exchange was closed and a part holiday was observed by most of the trade. The board of Trade remained open and receipts were limited as follows: being 1,309 cases of eggs, 230 boxes of butter, and 281 boxes of cheese.

The butter market was firm and higher than last week's closing, being 34 to 34½ cents per lb. for No. 1 curlots or 1cl. lots, with the latter level generally prevailing in the local trade today.

The cheese market was practically higher, being 21 cents about the same for No 1 Ontarios and 10c. to 10 1-4c for No. 1 Quebecs.

On the egg market graded shipments from Ontario were generally selling from 32c to 33c and 40-42c. for A-medium, 36-37c. for A-pullets, 29 or 30c. for B. and 24c. to 25c. for C.

| Last season ... | | 185,127 | 466,802 |
| P.C. inc. or dec. ... | | +212 | +140 |

The following cable has been received from the Dominion Fruit Trade Commissioner in London:—

"Apple situation quality unchanged — barrel prices remain steady and boxes slight improvement in evidence except one grade—McIntosh. Jonathan have hardened to 10 s. over Nov. prices. A higher level—Scottish Cox halves selling slowly 12s. to 13s., and British Columbia Jonathan quality meeting better demand than hitherto—Newtowns 12s. to 13s. Arrivals from United States indicating heavy shipments. Imperial Valley also exholding up B.C. Newtons—arrivals complete heavy at present crop supplies may be scarce in new year."

HOGS

Toronto, Nov. 13—(CP)—Bacon hog prices at outside reporting market points were steady today with the exception of 25 cents lower at Peterboro and London each rose 15 cents. Hamilton and Kitchener 25 while other points held firm at yesterday's quotations.

London, 7.25; Barrie $7.35; Kitchener, $7.25; Peterboro, $7.40; Brantford, 7.50; Hull, 7.50.

GRAIN

Winnipeg, Nov. 13—(CP)— Bearishness continued to predominate in market sentiment as Winnipeg grain exchange re-opened today after the extended week-end.

Wheat prices near mid-session were off 1½ to 1¾ cents, December and December at $3 7-8, May $7 7-8 and July 78 1-2 cents

FIGHT WILDLY TO WITNESS A HOCKEY GAME

HAWKS STRONG

Nicklin, Coach of Moncton Hawks Has Near Canadian Lineup

Brighton, Eng., Nov. 12—(AP)—Hockey sounded to the Britisher paradoxical. Hockey and Brighton—and especially Brighton out of season? Impossible!

Yet extra police had to be called in, windows were smashed, doors forced open and thousands of Britons wildly to get into the rink to watch Sussex Tigers play their opening match against Richmond Hawks. Spurred on by this tumultuous throng, the Tigers thus bent Mr. Nicklin's team 5-1.

Observers were unanimous at the start of the season that hockey would enjoy its best English season in history, but they were not prepared for the boom, that is underway. Brighton's 4,000 seats were several thousand short of being adequate and Wembley Stadium, well outside of London, has been expected to capacity for every game played there. Wembley seats 10,000.

Hawks Quite Strong

The Hawks, regarded as one of the strongest teams in England and the smallest by the former boss of Moncton Hawks, twice Canadian amateur champions, had new finishing touches at Wembley Lions and Streatham, last year's British champions, when they met Brighton on Sunday.

So starry were these Hawks that seven of last year's players were released to make room for fresh material from Canada. Two of the released seven including Leo Sargent, Battler Nesbo, Harry Prytlinch, Bobby Beaton, Hyrde Monkhur and Ivor Nesbitt, were on the newly-organized Hawks team.

It wasn't ever close as the form-er Hawks cut loose with a withering offensive, led by Bobby Beaton and Jack Borland, who got off the boat at Plymouth just in time to reach Brighton for the game. Borland is from Montreal. He played for the old Grosvenor House team here two years ago.

Nicklin, despite this setback is acknowledged to have become the outstanding personality in British hockey. He will coach England's Olympic team when the personnel of the team has been decided. His Richmond Hawks are one of the most colorful brigades, that will play this season in England and Europe.

Outstanding Team

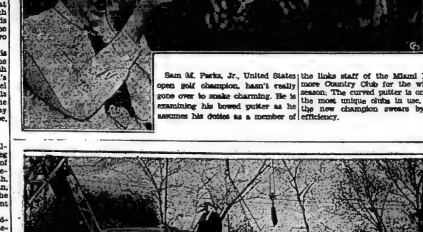
Nicklin has an outstanding goal-tender in Jimmy Foster, Canadian youth, who played on both of Moncton's championship teams before coming here with his coach. Nicklin had one good defenseman, Ivor Nicholson, at the start of the season but now he has two. He sent a rush to Richmond.

The result is Frank Currie, 185-pound rear guard from Charlottetown, rushed to the Richmond camp. He immediately became a sensation with his pile driving stuff.



Nicklin's first forward line is made up of Dicky Campbell, Joe Beaton and Earl Nicholson, all Canadians. The second line is all English and is headed by Neville Miland, former Oxford Captain and a nephew of the late Lord Curzon of Asquith. Only a rule, that four English-born players must be included on every team prevented Nicklin from putting together an all-Canadian combination.

The Hawks will play about 30 games this season—more than any National League team in Canada or the United States—and there are only 10 players to go through this schedule.

Sam (d. Parks, Jr., United States open golf champion, hasn't really gone over to snake charming. He is examining his breed putter as he assumes his duties as a member of the links staff of the Miami Biltmore Country Club for the winter season. The curved putter is one of the most unique clubs in use, and the new champion swears by its efficiency.

With lines suggestive of the shape of a whale, Mike U. S. 3, new inboard speedboat built by Edward S. Evans, Sr., and his two sons, Edward Jr., and Bob, is launched in the Detroit river for trial spins. The boat will be entered in the Harmsworth trophy race. Its owners hope to beat Gar Wood's record.

F. BATTAGLIA RATTLING DOOR

Canadian Middleweight May Get Chance at The Title

Philadelphia, Nov. 12 (CP)—Frankie "Fireball" Battaglia, Canadian champion, is rattling the door of the middleweight throne room again with those heavy fists of his. The Winnipeg blaster beat Paul Pirrone of Cleveland into a bloodstained pulp here last night in a thrilling five-round technical knockout victory and moved into Babe Risko's promise of a shot at the world title.

Before Pirrone headed into the leather tornado, Risko promised publicly he would meet Battaglia in the next defence of his crown if the Canadian-Italian scored decisively. It isn't improbable he runs that today although he holds a decision on points over the wallopper from the wheatlands.

BELLEVILLE INTS. STAY IN RACE

Defeat Lindsay 2-0 in Best Played Game of The Season

Lindsay, Nov. 12.—Belleville pulled out a 3 to 0 victory over Lindsay Rotarians in the closest and best intermediate O.H.A. game seen here this season at the Fairgrounds Monday afternoon. Belleville's two points came in the second quarter when Folwell kicked to the deadline and Hilton rouged Tripp.

In the last 10 minutes the locals sent wave after wave of attacks on the Belleville line, completely two forward passes and finishing on the Belleville five-yard line when the whistle blew to end the game.

Hilton of Belleville was the star of the game, his runs and plunges being outstanding and a great worry to the Lindsay defense. Wakelin, Campbell and Conklin stood out for the locals and Lamb played a great game at quarter, Folwell of Belleville outkicked the local hoofer Ringland.

The line-up:

Belleville—Flying wing, Forsythe; halves, Hilton, Schrieder and Folwell; quarter, Andrews; snap, Faulkner; middles, White and Morgan; inside, Haley and Burden; outsides, Lee and Clarke; subs, Wilson, Kelly, Johnston, Clare, Sheldrick, Gee and Cook.

Lindsay—Flying wing, Loucks; halves, Campbell, Tripp, Wakelin; quarter, Lamb; snap, McIlmoyle; middles Fryland and R. Gordon; insides, Bagley and Morden; outsides, Gromelle and McKee; subs, J. Gordon, Wilson, Kelley, Hodson, Lee, Bacon and Clay.

BELIEVE R. BERRY TO BE HILLIARD

Ottawa Player Under Fire As To Right Colors

Toronto, Nov. 13—(CP)—"Roy Berry" star back on Ottawa Senators' Big Four team, is believed to be Rahn Hilliard, great Texas University star of 1934, a special despatch to the Mail and Empire today from Tulsa, Okla., says. The item reports that Coach Lonnie Loughlin's Tulsa University football team in 1934, is now coaching a team near Tulsa.

In a footnote to the despatch the Mail and Empire says: "An official bulletin of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues sent out from Durham, N.S., on July 23, 1935, reported the signing of Rahn Hilliard with Gladewater, Texas club in the West Dixie Professional Baseball League.

This would disqualify Hilliard from playing with the amateur Rough Riders.

The Tulsa despatch says Hilliard's home means six or more than Roy Berry's name there. The two were members of the world-famous Golden Hurricane football game at San Francisco last New Year's Day. Hilliard was a star left half and Berry a sub right half.

The despatch adds: "Roy Berry declined to make a statement although he hinted he knew all about it."

OTTAWA DOWNS TRI-COLOR 11-5

Fans Able to Form Opinion of Relative Strength of Unions

Ottawa, Nov. 12 (CP)—Football fans of the Ottawa district have plenty figures to consider today, touching the relative strength of the Ottawa and Montreal Wildcats teams. Ottawa Rough Riders, already dropped from the Big Four race, defeated the latter, lock a 11-5 victory from Queen's University here yesterday in an exhibition game.

The Ottawa team, paced by Abe Elowitz and Dave Sprague had no great difficulty with the lighter Montreal team. Elowitz kicked Munro and Wing all afternoon between the Wildcat goal posts while Sprague ripped the Presbyterian line for consistent gains.

Filowitz, leading scorer in eastern football, split the posts with two placements and Sprague scored over the Queen's line for a major counter.

A blocked kick and some fast rushing by Sprague led to the locals' touchdown. The Presbyterians broke through the Wildcat line, smothering on the 25-yard line and Scott dribbled the ball over the line before pouncing on it.

MIXED BOUT PROPOSED

St. Louis, Nov. 12—Promoter Levinsky, the Chicago fish peddler who has been flattened enough to know his left hook from his right, is matched in St. Louis to train for a mixed bout with Jack Sharkey, Steelch. The heavyweights are contracted to battle in a three-minute round with Light Heavyweight champion Maxie Rosenbloom, 174, had a 12-pound advantage in the weights.

The Manhattan's handlers said it was the first knockout he had suffered in 300 ring appearances.

Johannesburg, Nov. 12 (CP)—Registrar of births and deaths, Frank Thompson has retired after 34 years' service. Although engaged for so many years in recording the births of others, Mr. Thompson says he was knocked out twice in three attempts against a boxer.

CHICAGO BLACKHAWKS LIKE NAVAJO INDIANS

Detroit, Nov. 13 (CP)—Those black and white uniforms that used by the Chicago Black Hawks stars? Coll looking birds are in the discard. Coach Clem Loughlin's Tulsa boys are now wearing gabardine pants, red sweaters with triangular stripes. They look like Navajo Indians.

The uniform problem disposed of, the Tulsa coach can get down to the scarcity of right wingers. He has one—Jones by name.

You read in the almanac where only three out of every hundred football players are right wingers but look at the way those numbers stack some very good ones. Of 10 good forwards and nine of them are left-handed shots."

MICHIGAN COACH IS AGAINST LATERAL PASS

East Lansing, Mich., Nov. 12 (AP) Charley Bachman, Michigan football coach at Michigan State College, said today he would wage an active fight at the National Rules Conference in New York this winter to abolish the lateral pass beyond the line of scrimmage.

"There is one place for the lateral, and that is behind the line of scrimmage," he declared. "Beyond that point the lateral adds football a game of chance and has been the cause of many injuries to players this season. The lateral takes the science out of football and makes it a game in which the better team frequently is defeated by a freak play."

The Rama Reserve Indian baseball team which was slated to meet George Richards, the agile Jewish grappler, in the semi-final bout of Thursday night's all-star show at the Belleville Arena. The main bout of the evening sees a battl. of superb strength when Joe Katelnikoff and Ali Hassan, the Tripoli tribe Turk and strongman clash. The supporting wrestling bill features the hairy chest, Taylor has built up and consequently with a large following of local fans, who will be seeking to cheer her him on Thursday night at the Arena.

One week from Saturday the annual meeting and election of officers of the O.B.J.L. will be held in Picterton and not a word or sign of liveliness has been heard from the camp of the Belleville Amateur Baseball Association relative to its intentions towards re-organizing for another season. If the members of baseball in Belleville have any grievances or suggestions of changes in the O.B.J.L. constitution or bylaws they should take them through their official delegates on the 23rd of the month at Peterboro. Despite the fact the LitRock City scribe says amendments may be accepted at the semi-annual meeting there is little use talking constructive suggestions at such a time, simply because it would be too late to have them included on the O.B.A.A. agenda.

Was a torrid struggle, but the red and blue clad gridders from Oshawa the shores of Lake of Quinte had what it takes and moved up a notch within one game of the leading Oshawa Blue Devils with a 2 to 0 victory over the Lindsay Rotarians Saturday. Hector Folwell again proved his worth to the locals, his punting being superb. Folwell repeatedly booted out of danger as the powerful Lindsay squad applied the pressure in the last quarter. Incidentally Coach Dr. Kennedy had his line of scrimmage holding well, while Hilton turned in a stellar effort. In reality the locals should have mounted the score in the first three frames, they missing two placements, but in the last stanza the homesters showed their mettle to stage a belated rally, but without avail, as the locals rose to the occasion.

Reports from the Oshawa scribe howls loud and long—there will be no play-off between the first and second teams in the Lake Ontario loop". The Motor City scribe knows perfectly well, that the Blue Devils were lucky to beat the Quinte squad both games and naturally wants the start of the Kennedy-coached outfit in the future. If Lindsay or Cobourg can beat Oshawa once more, defeat to the Oshawa twelve, will watch the blue and red clad outfit from Belleville go to town then. In the meantime all we can do is hope and pray that Osha's alibi just once. Incidentally yesterday's victory over the Rotarians was at Coach Kennedy's desires, especially as it was a defeat, but they were out of Lindsay in regards to giving the locals the well known going over. Incidentally the Lindsay scribe says the very best of feelings prevailing between the two squads after yesterday's game. "Naturally Lindsay will be disappointed in defeat, but they took their medicine like sportsmen and assured us they would do their best to turn back Quinte and if they continue to play the same brand of football they dished up in that third period yesterday, well they've little doubt in our minds, but that Oshawa is in for a trimming on Nov 23rd," added Business Manager Fry.

BELANGER KNOCKED OUT

New York, Nov. 12—In a battle of booming rights, Eric Seelig of Germany knocked out Charley Belanger, veteran of Canada's light heavyweights, in the fourth round at the St. Nicholas Boxing Club here last night.

The Winnipeg ringman shot over a right to the jaw that dropped his foe soon after the starting bell, but Seelig, former holder of the German middle-weight and light-heavyweights, bounced up without taking a count.

The European's speed gave him the edge from the second round on. He outed the fight, scheduled for 10 rounds, with a right flush on the jaw after 53 seconds of the fourth. Belanger weighing 174, had a 12-pound advantage in the weights.

The Manhattan's handlers said it was the first knockout he had suffered in 300 ring appearances.

Press dispatches from Western Canada yesterday were to the effect, that proposals of a drastic nature would be tabled at the next annual meeting of the Canadian Rugby Football Union. One of the changes to be suggested by the Western moguls will be that running interference be not permitted the receiver of a punt and an insistance of the five yard allowance for the punt receiver be discontinued. Personally we believe, that the moguls could go even further and allow interference for the ball carrier up to a distance of ten yards from where the ball was snapped. This suggestion would naturally go hand on the officials, but it would give the ball carrier more room to get under way and also afford the patrons a little more broken field running. As for the five yard rule in reference to the receiver of a punt, it is seldom the receiver averages five yards as the potential tacklers are rarely on the alert watching the receiver and not always, especially where the ball is going to light. A few years ago the mere suggestion of the forward pass being injected into Canadian football was sneered upon, but today what team would think of returning back to the game as played here ten or fifteen years ago. We would not want to see the American rules adopted in their entirety, but they could score very good ideas. Indeed would serve Canadian football to a purpose of the elevation of the pastime.

When the Windsor Bulldogs defeated the Cleveland Falcons 4 to 1 at Cleveland over the week-end, we failed to observe the names of either Larry Goyer or Hunnie Ethier in the line-up... although "Porky" Kelway lined up with Robertson as the Falcon's regular defence. Incidentally we heard, somewhere, of course, that Ethier was being groomed as a forward by Manager Harry Holmes. Lack of condition was attributed to the Falcon's initial defeat. Goyer, by the way is out due to injuries received in training.

Although loc.' weather conditions do not exactly warrant hockey chatter these days, we understand there are a couple of real good hockey sticklers located at the Trenton Airport. Then again another unofficial rumor has it that Campbellford Maroons disbanded, both Manager Jay Perrin and Secretary Hill... Beaty relinquishing their holdings. Whether other interested Campbellford men will step into the breach or not, has not been announced. At that the Maroons experienced some difficulty in persuading Buster Whitton, Archie McKee and a couple of others out with the Maroons last season. Doubtlessly these players will definitely sign up their stakes this year, but in Hendy, Bush, the two Ingrams and Lee there is still plenty of hockey. So what?

Despite efforts to bring Frankie Hart here for Thursday night's wrestling show a wire was received yesterday that read—"sorry Hart not available." Last week the effort was to match Joe Katelnikoff, winner of last week's bout, against Ali Hassan, the Terrible, Turk, who defeated Walter Pezzoli in the semi-final. Katelnikoff and Turk has never been defeated in a local ring, but have also met defeated in local wrestling does not altogether please the fans, consequently the purpose of the mat game in Belleville. Hassan and Katelnech should put on a terrific struggle of brute strength of both resort to this method of wrestling, using their superior strength against their opponents. Incidentally for the information of local fans Irish Steve Taylor has been signed and will meet Jim Wilkins in a wrestle-bout with the hairy chest. Taylor has built up and consequently with a large following of local fans, who will be

Don Felipe again, Janie thought. And knew a hysterical desire to laugh, in spite of the sudden wave of contemptuous scorn she felt for her brother's wife. Comparing them — that foreign creature! to the splendid graceful qualities that were Mark's! It was so ludicrous as to be almost sad.

Nearly the girl stood up, her voice vibrating to the emotions that warred within her.

"Listen to me, Mildred," she said, slowly. "I'm going to say something, whether you like it or not. No matter what you decide to do about presenting that letter to Mark's friend, there's one thing you've got to make up your mind about—and that is to drop this Perverse person. I mean this Mildred. People are talking, do you hear?—talking as both conspicuous—"

"Oh, people!" Mildred's tone was deliberately airy, her delicate lips curled in an odd, composed smile. "What do I care about the people on this ship! A lot of Rabbits. Fat old women, jealous of every other woman who hasn't hips and waistline. Broken down old men chasing their fallen arches around the deck. Who's there left for me to talk to?" she finished sullenly. "That ecumenical Doctor Barr, I suppose; or that Purser who never speaks! Now look here, Janie!"

Abruptly, and with quite surprising violence, Mildred swept from the chair beside her a heap of her own possessions. An enormous unopened box of French powder. A fragile lace shawl. A pair of expensive slip... all gifts, Janie thought irrelevantly, at one time or another from Mark. "I came over to tell you," Mildred's voice was saying, "to have a good time. And I intend to have a good time! I want to see life, I tell you—romance and color—and—well, the races at Harvan, for instance and the gambling casino, and perhaps a native cockfight! Don Felipe's told me all about them. He's going to show them to me!" Her golden eyes dilated momentarily with excitement. Then, with a complete change of tone: "Janie, what's the matter with you anyway? Don't you want me to have a good time? After all, if it hadn't been for Mark

"Finish it," Janie said dully. "If it hadn't been for Mark I wouldn't be here at all; I'd still be working in the Public Library in the Potrero District. I know that, Mildred. But life became impossible. I'm grateful to Mark that I can't stand by and see you do something I know you're going to be sorry for. You know how touchy, how jealous Mark is . . . someone to whom you told him about this Cuban—"

"Oh, Janie!" Abruptly as it had flared, Mildred's fury died, and in its stead came a look of such genuine distance fading. Tears brimmed her great brown eyes and she put up her red mouth with an affecting sob. "Please, darling, don't let's quarrel. It's just because I love to play bridge so, that I do it; love having people admire me. I do love to be admired, don't I?"

She laughed softly, all her fragrant, flower-like charm in her beseeching smile. Spun-gold and gossamer, feckless and sweet . . . Janie thought. No wonder Mark is crazy about her. She is a beautiful child; soft as a puff of dandelion and as irresponsible. . . .

"And you, my girl," she told her mirrored reflection, after Mildred, wanted and very contrite, had left the room, "were made to dust off books for the little children of people's children. And if you'd had any sense you'd have realized it before pulling Mark to the expense of this fool trip!"

Yet she knew in her heart that this wasn't so. That in giving her the trip Mark had done it because he wanted another proof of the trust to be with the woman he worshipped. "I know, Janie, I can take care of her for you, honey," Janie thought with a little rush of affection. But it was not to this that she had slowly prepared for bed, and lay staring into the darkness of her tiny cabin that she realized, with a faint sense of exasperation that left her —for all her naturally responsive-ness—had promised nothing.

CHAPTER 4.

JANIE DOES SOME WORKING

When she woke in the morning Janie Mildred had already dressed and gone on deck. Janie lay quite still for a moment staring with unseeing eyes at the dancing motes of sunlight on the cabin wall. Stealing through half-bemused senses, the faint shuffle of feet sounding in the corridors, and on the deck above. The sharply, insistently, she was awake.

She got out of bed and walked slowly to the open porthole. Outside the wind blew cleanly by, stirring to dancing belladonna of white the lace espanole of the sea. She turned slowly toward the bathroom with its shining tile, its gleaming white and pastel-tinted towels, its cakes of scented soap. Already Mildred had established her claim on this room. The mirrored walls reflected her pale satin slip, wings of powder on hook behind the door. In one corner her frivolous leather-trimmed suitcase lay tumbled. On the narrow shelf before the glass was her astonishing array of bottles and crystal jars; lotions, creams, astringents, crowding one another for space.

Janie, absently picking up the blue satin mules and restoring a box of spilled powder to its fragrant nest, remembered to rinse "" the steward-bottle that girl had given her. At least she need not face breakfast in the dining salon this morning. Luncheon she might have to endure—but she intended seeing the Purser at once, and having her seat in the dining room changed to another table. "Any table," she told herself furiously. "Just so it's far away from Mr. Gregory Stewart!" With the thought of him rilled her with coldly contemptuous distaste. His bold, demanding eyes, his insistent, insolent voice. . . . There was a knock on the door and the steward-ess entered with her tray.

Janie had long since made friends with Alfy, the bath-steward and with the stewardess, Syenda Hayner. A raw-boned Scotch woman with a rolling, wide-interested eye and a glance that saw everything and nothing. "An' usually I says nothin' too," Syenda had confided to Alfy on the second day out. "But if ever I sees a lamb layin' down with a lioness, it's them two girls in Suite D. The young un now, with the black hair, she's a real 'un. But that chaperone o' hers is goin' to lead us all a pretty dance or my name's not Syenda Hayner. I know the type, Alfy; all coils eyes and innocent smiles, and a 'pin' selfish heart underneath. Such clothes she has, and such fittings. You never seen the like. Thrown 'em all about the place, too, for me to be pickin' up."

Janie was automatically picking some of them up now, as she called her thanks through the open bathroom door. "Just set the tray down where on the table, Syenda. I'll be right out, thank you!"

She dressed slowly this morning, prolonging the creaming of her small white face, the brushing of the fully curled mop of hair. Slowly she walked to the shallow cupboard in the corner, surveying with a faint, rueful smile her meagre wardrobe—pushed into the narrow space which Mildred had left for her by the bed. Janie had come aboard with a small black frocks, her trailing draperies of flesh and lace clothes they hung there—the one white crepe dress with its ivy orange lily meant to be worn with the knitted orange sweater which had been the parting gift of Ada Pratt, illiterate. The slim flannel sport skirts, the little striped flannel coat. The big white polo coat she had worn when she came on board, and her two children evening or sport-suits, rubbed of her rounded young form within them, curiously blanched and colorless as they swung on their hooks. Ranged neatly below Janie's modest pigskin bag, were Janie's slim black pumps, the white buckskin oxfords and the one pair of evening slippers with their tiny rhinestone clips.

"Not that it could possibly make any difference what you wear on this ship from now on, my dear!" she told herself wryly; and slipped into the white crepe, knotting the gallant orange tie with fingers which were slightly unsteady. From the mirror her own face looked back at her; sensitive, delicately modeled, silver; the brown ashiing gravel beneath the shadowy black of her hair; the firm chin belying the confident sweetness of her mouth—curved now in a little worried line. If it were locked from she was reflecting anxiously, that people were discussing about Mildred, about herself, then there was but one thing to do—face it down. "And why not?" she asked the mirror whimsically, in paraphrase of a popular song—yet with a strange ache in her heart.

Facing the deck, however, as she discovered almost at once was far from being a whimsical matter. The glittering cerulean sea of early morning had dulled into a deeply grey; a sullen wavelessness expanse through which the big ship plowed relentlessly on. Stepping through the companionway onto the deck Janie became instantly aware of a curious sort of tension among the occupants of the row of chairs by the rail. Of the more than usually still acknowledgement accorded her bow by old Colonel Cramer, sitting slowly wrapped in his blanket after the usual morning walk—not in the ship's gym. Of the stereotyped smiles on the faces of the two fifth school mafams from Detroit. Of other curious, analytical glances which followed her progress as she advanced determinedly down the deck. And most particularly Janie was aware of, and somewhat amused by the hasty whispering which themselves in her coat-collar at her approach.

"I thought at once!" the girl told herself scornfully. "To a man, without a doubt, doing a Fani Revere all over the damned ship! I'll bet that old girl did a good job spreading the news of last night's escapade in Suite D." Then, with a scarlet woman this morning!"

A small rush of pity for Mildred gradually been taking on that edge of civil aloofness. Janie had supposed when she had stepped to wonder about it all, that these older, more conservative passengers were simply annoyed by the antics of Gregory Stewart's gay crowd—with whom, she, Janie, had been playing around. Too often she had joined with them in their heedless gropp in life-ing at the door glances, the querulous comments which had followed in their noisy wake. Now, however, she knew that it hadn't been this at all which had cost her the respect of these older folk on board. . . . It had been Mildred—and Mildred's careless flaunting of all accepted rules—that had brought criticism and, yes, ridicule, on them both.

For it was ridiculous—it was outrageous, Janie told herself soberly for a woman like her brother Mark's wife—beautiful, smart, sure of herself and her careful niche in life—to have made herself as conspicuous as Mildred appeared to have done in her association with a man like this Don Felipe. Even though he weren't married (and rumor stubbornly asserted that he was), the man was of another sphere, another race. And even though she, Janie, hadn't known him at all, still the very fact that she was Mildred's travelling companion could not help but be noted, and her with the same brush. Walking along the deck, Janie gave a short, stifled laugh—a trifle high and forced. It was all so ridiculous. . . . She, Janie Madden, staid and proper librarian, who all her live had had the respect, the approbation of her own little world, being snubbed now and ostracised by a lot of perfect strangers on a boat! Patronized by people she didn't even know—but whose approval, once forfeited, had suddenly become so absurdly important and necessary.

"It's just the idea of the thing, that's all!" she told her troubled heart, half resentful, half in tears. Janie was in a secluded corner of the deck. "These people have no right to condemn Mildred just because she's silly and vain. I suppose in a way it really is my fault too. I should have known what she was up to—what was going on during all those evenings she spent in that ship's lounge. But I hate playing cards—waiting all the evening. And I've been so darned spaced for a little fun myself. . . . Look! she walked with an inward shiver of apprehension. "What on earth will Mark think? Well—probably it will all blow over by the time we land in New York."

Janie's rapid, walk had begun again. Now she slowed up before a deck chair bearing a gold-lettered "Purser's Office." No, she told herself unhappily, "is certainly no place to stab your toe!"

The purser, whom she had been rather dreading to face, was mercifully not in the room. His assistant, an equally sardonic, equally elderly young man, met her request for a change of seating arrangement in the dining-salon with a fatherly knowing smile.

By the time the two girls were ready for breakfast, Wanada was prepared to serve it, and as they sipped their coffee in the shade of a tree, aalling the cameo face of the camp, Zora noted unwonted activity about the Aber byat, but she gave the matter little thought.

"I'll—ah—a trifle unusual, of course, this late in the voyage," he said, consulting his chart. "But if you insist—there's a vacancy at the Doctor's table—"

"That will do nicely," Janie said with fervent haste. The Doctor's table was at the end of the dining-table was at the end of the dining-saloon farthest removed from that of the ship's Captain—and Gregory Stewart's crowd.

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

When La awoke in the tent, she gazed upon the sleeping Zora Drbow. Perhaps this woman was the mate. She grasped the hilt of her dagger. Then the mood passed as suddenly as it had come, for in her heart she knew that she could not return evil for good.

When Zora opened her eyes, La greeted her with a filled face with profound wonder and mystification. How Zora wished she could converse with her, but all that she could do was to smile back at the beautiful creature who was regarding her so intently.

La, accustomed as she had been to being waited upon by the lower priestesses of Opar, was surprised that Zora dressed and bathed herself. Though she watched her before lifted a hand in the making of her toilet, she found now a new pleasure in doing so herself.

Stirling and District

River Valley Women's Institute Installs Fifty-Nine Members

Stirling, Nov. 12—The River Valley School room was filled to its utmost capacity on the evening of Friday, Nov. 8th, when friends and members gathered with their regular members of the organization to meet their 59th installation. Mrs. Walter, Past District President, who was responsible for the organization of the River Valley group was present to share in the festivities and thoroughly enjoyed the meeting from former members of the organization, who had since left the neighborhood, among the letters of greeting were communications from Miss G. Measham of Toronto; Mrs. A. Oldfield of Powassan, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. MacKenzie of Toronto, Mrs. G. Barber and Miss McDermid of Toronto, General Superintendent. The school was artistically decorated for the occasion with a large sentimental placard of dark blue material covering a large portion of the room set on a back ground for the silver lettering which spelled out the words, River Valley W. I. Silver Jubilee). This feature of the decorations was exceptionally well done and was very effective.

Fine Program

The program committee under the capable direction of Mrs. Chard are to be congratulated for the fine presentation of one of the most colorful entertainments ever given in the district. With a talented cast of artists the "Cavalcade" enacted was a real treat. Rolling back the years to 1910 which marked the beginning of the organization. Appropriate words of time were heptic depicting the activities and the growth of the group up to the present. The Cavalcade included brief sketches of the work done in each succeeding year given by a member of the retiring executive of the various periods. The first three years work was reviewed from the records by Mrs. Hannah, which also included the organization work. The Achievements of 1913-1914 were recalled by Mrs. J. Smith. The sound of a trumpet and mounting feet announced the declaration of war and a smartly dressed unit of soldiers marched across the stage the audience was swept back across the years to those grey days when the boys rallied to the call of arms. It was very realistic as was the scene which followed showing members of the River Valley Institute packing boxes to send to their sons. These scenes were typical of the social services rendered in those days and as they were re-enacted, war time tunes played by the Rosebush orchestra, made it even more impressive. The activities of the year 1919 were recalled by Miss E. Bush, as the curtain fell on the first act, the orchestra struck up a medley of popular tunes of 1919. The next scene was that of a chapel behind the Rose in Flanders Field. A group of soldiers giving perhaps for the first time since their return, a glimpse of conditions as they really were. Those chosen to take the part of the soldiers in this scene were all boys who had been there in the reality and because of their experience found it easy to enter into the spirit of the thing, with all the old army trimmings and sound effects added in a splendid manner. This particular scene could not have been given by any group of actors to a better fashion than it was presented by the following characters—Messrs. George and Fred Heasman and Miss and Roy Bush. The main feature of the scene of course was the opening of the parcels received by the boys from the members of the River Valley W.I. back home. Each was one of their great services during the war period. Other activities marking the passing of the time until 1919 were related by Mrs. Whitworth, Miss Fanny Heasman and Miss Mahood.

Recited 36 Rules of Books

The great thrill and joy of Nov. 9, 1918, Armistice Day," was recalled by those in the play on the occasion. Also during this part of the anniversary special mention was made of the fine work done during this period in the knitting of socks for the soldiers by Mrs. Magginson and Mrs. Bush and also Mrs. Chas. Harrow of Stirling who knitted 96 complete pairs of socks, while she resided in the River Valley W.I. to be sent forward to the boys over there. The achievements of the succeeding years up to the present, were pictured by complete reports read by Mrs. A. Bush, Mrs. F. Unger, Mrs. Roy Bush, Mrs. Vandervoort, Mrs. Frank Rosebush, Mrs. Roy Bush, Mrs. F. Carr, Mrs. Norman Rosebush, Mrs. Clifford Lansing. Possibly the oldest living member of the organization and the only surviving life member Mrs. Mills who resides with her niece Mrs. Walter Baker in Stirling was unable to attend this function on account of her advanced years being past her ninety-second birthday. A very artistic honor roll presented to the group by Mr. Walter Lindenfield was unveiled during the evening. The honor roll bearing the names of all the members who had passed on was unveiled by Mrs. Unger, As the names were read Mrs. Hannah placed a flower in memory of that member. Music for the evening was supplied by the Rosebush orchestra with vocal selections which were greatly appreciated being offered by Miss Fanny Lansing, Miss McDonald, Mrs. Tribible, Mr. Walter Lindenfield and Arthur Duncan. Miss Bertha Hannah rendered a very fine address. A very dainty lunch was served at the conclusion of the program, when a huge birthday cake was brought in and several ladies prominent in Institute work carried out the ceremony of lighting and blowing out the twenty-five candles and cutting the cake which was truly a masterpiece in the art of baking. This very important celebration proved to be one of the most successful social functions held in this district for some time, and the entire community is grateful to the very efficient program committee under the leadership of Mrs. C. Chard for their splendid effort in presenting such fine entertainment. It was well after midnight before the crowd was dismissed of people who had thoroughly enjoyed the entire proceedings.

Stirling Band Held Organization Meeting

The annual meeting of the Stirling Citizens Band, which was held in the lower part of the public library on Nov. 6th was largely attended by a group of enthusiastic supporters of the organization and general interest was shown in the election of the new executive which was duly appointed to direct the activities of the organization for the next year. Mr. Tom Ward acted as chairman for the evening and Mr. Harold Deller very efficiently took over the duties of Secretary protem. Mr. Maurice Bell, Bandmaster in charge, presented a brief report of the activities of 1935, which was marked with increases over every phase of the work of the previous year. A hundred per cent increase in the number of engagements and an increase in membership. Financial report was very encouraging showing an excellent balance after all expenses had been met. Mr. Bell spoke of the fine spirit of co-operation which had prevailed throughout the year on the part of all members and thanking everyone for their support.

The officers elected were as follows: Hon. President, Wm. C. West; President, Thomas Ward; Vice President, Lloyd Rowland; Hon. Vice Presidents, H. Leurz, S. A. Mumpby, Chas. Mitchell; Secretary-Treasurer, Donald Stook; Management Committee, K. Stanley, H. Deller, Geo. Duffin; Caretaker, Bob Leurz; Transportation Agent, S. A. McCormick; Bandmaster, Maurice Bell; Asst. Bandmaster, L. Waterfall.

Following the election of officers Mr. S. Mumpby addressed the gathering briefly and concluded by moving a vote of thanks on behalf of the band to Mr. Bell for his fine services of the past year. Mr. Ward also spoke briefly thanking the members of the band for the confidence they had shown in placing him in such an honored office. In conclusion, moving a vote of thanks to Mr. Earl Lacey retiring President for the excellent manner in which he had carried out his duties. After a few matters of minor details were discussed in a constructive way the meeting was closed.

Town Notes

Mr. E. Dalzard, more representative of the Canadian Legion, received word a few days ago that General Ross Davidson, President of that organization will address a mass meeting of returned men in the Memorial Hall at Kingston to which all ex-service men are invited. It is expected that the Stirling Legion will be largely represented and arrangements for transportation for those desiring to attend are now under way.

The coat of paint recently applied to the tower on the top of the fire hall was certainly very much needed and the added appearance is very noticable from the north side of Front Street.

Having completed the paving of the Frankford-to-Stirling section of Highway No. 33, the Construction Company in charge of the work have moved their equipment to Highway No. 14 at the point where it enters the village, where they have commenced operations on the improving of that section of the road. The great steam shovel is at work there day and night on a new right-of-way which will eliminate the sharp curve, which for many years has been a menace to motor traffic. It is also believed that after the new road bed is created paving operations on that section will soon be started and the road to Belleville greatly improved. The cutting off of the sharp corner at this particular point is one of the finest safety measures ever introduced, for numerous accidents have taken place there in recent years.

The Armistice display in the window of F. T. Ward's store is causing a great deal of comment these days. Mr. Thos. Ward has succeeded in creating something quite unusual in window dressing to mark this occasion. A miniature war-torn complete in every detail occupies the entire window. Under the dimmed lighting the flag draped cenotaph commands the attention of all people who pass the store and at times large numbers of passers-by stop to admire it.

Personals

Miss Emma Allan, nurse-in-training at the Belleville General Hospital was a Thursday guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Rosebush, River Valley.

Many friends of Leslie Eggleston will be glad to learn that his condition is much improved. Leslie had been quite ill for the past week suffering from pneumonia but in this last few days his condition is reported to be much improved.

Miss Dorothy Joblin of Frankford, spent friends in Stirling on Saturday.

Mrs. Louis Rodgers and Mrs. R. H. Williams represented the Stirling Women's Institute at the Silver Jubilee celebration of the River Valley branch held in the school house of that community on Friday night.

Mrs. Arthur Morrow and son Herbert of Barrie spent the week end at the home of the former's mother, Mrs. Mary Morrow.

Mr. Arthur Duncan attended the special anniversary services in Springbrook United Church on Sunday where he assisted with the musical part of the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rush spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Bennett, in Frankford.

Mr. Frank Foster of Moira is spending a week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Morrow.

Several members of the Stirling Legion attended the special Armistice Memorial services conducted in St. Mark's Anglican Church, Bonarlaw on Sunday.

Mrs. R. H. Williams has accepted the position of organist at St. Andrew's Church, Stirling.

Chronic Fatigue
Tells of exhausted Nerves

In health, rest soon overcomes fatigue. When you become chronically tired there is an underlying cause.

Perhaps you cannot rest or sleep because of the irritability of the nerves. Memory and power of attention soon weaken when the nervous system is exhausted. It is difficult to concentrate the mind and the daily task becomes a worry and a burden. Indigestion and constipation follow, and you become depressed and discouraged.

Whatever may have been the cause there is a way in which to regain health and that is by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Nay Nerve Force is created to restore the functional tone to the bodily machinery and ensure the healthful working of the mental and physical organs.

MONTREAL HOSPITAL FIRE TAKES LIVES OF FIVE INSANE PATIENTS

Not only did Montreal firemen have to face a stiff blaze in the Saint Jean de Dieu mental hospital, but they had to overcome the panic of violently insane patients, four of whom dashed back into the raging inferno to their deaths. A fifth died of heart failure. Over $100,000 damage was done and 25 were injured. Many heroic acts were performed as nuns and firemen dashed into the flames to release patients locked in cells. The fire broke out in the wing of the hospital where the most violent cases are confined. Layout shows TOP, the wing at the height of the fire. BELOW, a nearby wing which firemen fought desperately and successfully to protect.

GENERAL'S DAUGHTER SHOOTS CHINESE WAR LORD

MARSHAL SUN, FOE OF NANKING, SLAIN IN TIENTSIN

Well-Dressed Woman Shoots to Kill Out of Revenge

IN BUDDHIST HALL

Sun, Was Favorite of Japan to Lead North China Independence

Tientsin, Nov. 13—(AP)—A woman assassin today killed Marshal Sun Chuan-Fang, bitter opponent of the Nanking Government, and often mentioned as the possible choice of Japan to head an autonomous movement of North China.

Sun, formerly one of China's most powerful war lords, was shot while attending a Buddhist meeting in the Chinese section of the city, by a well-dressed Chinese woman.

She emptied her revolver into Sun's head, then calmly surrendered to the police.

The assassin was reported to be the daughter of the late Gen. Sze Cheng-Fin for whose execution she was asserted to have held Sun responsible.

Marshal Sun once was one of the most powerful war lords of China. In 1926 he was in control of Chekiang, Kiangsu, Anhwei, and Kiangsi provinces. On Sept. 9th, of that year, signing his territory had been attacked by the Cantonese under soviet influence, he declared war on the Canton Government.

By February of 1927 he was forced back to Shanghow and lost the big city of Hangchow to the advancing Cantonese.

At one time it was reported he might flee to Japan for safety. In 1930, he resigned vice-chairmanship of the Shantung and Chihli armies to be replaced by Gen. Chi Hsien-Yuan.

SERVICE GANGS OF SYSTEM BUSY

Many Poles And Trees Carried to Earth by Sleet Storm

Repair service gangs of the local Bell Telephone system were at work throughout the outlying sections of the country yesterday and last night, patching up repairs necessary to restore telephone service to almost many poles as the result of yesterday morning's heavy sleet fall.

The storm was particularly heavy in the Madoc section, Shirley said this morning, and Hastings township, with considerable damage being done, it is believed. The damage, however, it was indicated, was not as great as at first apprehended further east, where even roads were made impassable in sections owing to the fallen trees. Scores of telephone poles were broken off and carried to earth by the excess weight, while telephonic transmission was considerably disrupted. In the Tamworth and Napanee sections hydro power and telephone systems were both rendered inoperative until extensive repairs could be made.

Motorists using the roads from this city to the eastern section of the county during the day yesterday found the going very heavy, with a sharp lookout for fallen branches and make brief detours on sections of the highways to escape the bowed branches sagging almost to the earth owing to the heavy weight of ice. Roads were also covered with ice and snow in many places. The fall of sleet was declared to have been particularly heavy in the Latta north, Township officials declared the damage to trees owing to the broken branches considerable. Extra employees were called upon to remove the debris and branches from the roads today.

Damage in the city was reported not by the Belleville Hydro system. Public works Department reported no breakage of limbs and little inconvenience from the storm except an occasional call from some of the housebolders owing to flooded cellars.

ACQUITTED

Cobourg, Nov. 13—Appearing in police court yesterday, Percy Thompson of Belleville was acquitted of a charge of reckless driving in connection with an accident here last month when he struck a car driven by Mrs. Percy Gibson. Mrs. Thompson and Fred Yerrow, who was with him, testified that Mrs Gibson did not signal she was going to turn.

SOVIETS TURN BACK COWBOY GOSPELER

Cowboy Gospel-Bringer Freed from Soviet Camp To be Sent Back Home

Told Russians 'Jesus Was Greatest of Communists'

HIKED IN GERMANY

Once The Poles Kept His Bible, He Says on Release

By John Lloyd, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, Nov. 13 (AP)— Ernest Elmer Baker, long, range bricklayer and cowboy from Menard, Texas, who walked across part of Germany and all of Poland to preach the gospel to the Bolsheviks, arrived in Moscow today.

It is a year and nine months since his friends parted from Menard. He was brought here by two Soviet officials from Bobruisk, the city where he had been confined the last two and a half months, and turned over to the United States Embassy which made arrangements to send him home.

Previous to his hospitalization Baker spent nine months in a detention camp near the Polish border, having been arrested by the shortly after entering the Soviet Union. He had walked across part of Germany and all of Poland.

He asked the Russians why they were carrying those shadowers," Baker said, discussing his capture. "I told them, because I was the greatest of the communists because he was the friend of the working man and the poor, so they didn't need to go around carrying guns."

Baker, 30 years old and well over six feet tall, worked his way from Texas to Rochester on a freighter and with his last funds bought a ticket from there to Hamburg. He started his long hike from there.

He was picked up in Berlin and held for six days, he said, because he had no visa for Poland. On his way to the Polish frontier, only to be turned back by the Polish border guard, a German border official gave him something to eat he said, and showed him how to cut into Poland "by another way."

Detained repeatedly while crossing Poland Baker said he was invariably released after questioning. On one occasion, however, the Poles kept his Bible.

DETROIT TIGERS OWNER, DIES, 64

Found in Tall Grass Into Which He Had Fallen

Detroit, Nov. 13—(AP)—Frank J. Navin, 64, owner of baseball's world champions, Detroit Tigers and vice-president of the American League, died in a hospital today an hour after he fell unconscious from a heart attack from his home at the Detroit Country Club golf course.

First inkling of the tragedy came, when Mrs. Navin, riding back of the widely-known sportsman on the bridle path, saw his small, frail body disappear suddenly toward the rider.

Mrs. Navin followed the horse to the stable and with L. M. Droeger, manager of the Rent Club, and Mrs. Droeger started on a hasty search of the riding grounds for 15 minutes before discovering her husband in a clump of tall grass.

Second Unconscious

The baseball owner was unconscious, one arm thrown across his chest. He was hurriedly removed to a hospital where he died in a few minutes. Dr. J. H. Hamilton said there were no bruises on the body and that he was dead when he found his death. Attendants at the club said there was no evidence he had been thrown from his horse.

Navin is survived by his widow and a brother, Clarence Navin, secretary of the club, who now is in a sanitarium at Battle Creek, Mich.

36 Years in Baseball

Navin's sudden death ended a 36 year career in Big Time baseball, which sporting luck happily crowned with a world's championship early in October—his only one in three decades of competition.

Around him throughout the years "Polar-Face" Navin gathered some of the greatest of shot enclosed in a metal case.

DIVINING ROD LOOKS INTO BRAIN

Picks Out Tumors Too Small For X-Ray to Reveal

New York, Nov. 13—(AP)—A divining rod for the human brain which can detect tumors too small for the X-ray to reveal has been developed by Dr. Charles A. Ribeiro of the Neurological Institute of New York.

Dr. Frederick Tilney, director of research at the Institute, and other neurologists described it as a means of saving thousands of lives yearly.

Brain tumors long have been known to interfere with a person's sense of smell by pressing on the olfactory centres of the brain's sensory cells, Dr. Ribeiro said. Changes have been baffled, however, by the variations among individuals and in the same person at different times.

Dr. Ribeiro said he had discovered this variability could be overcome by injecting an odor directly to the olfactory nerve while the patient held his breath. Under those conditions, he said, the quantity of scent required for identification become constant for normal individuals.

Using a simple apparatus which pumps given quantities of an odor into the nostrils, Dr. Ribeiro has found in each case where a brain tumor was present the minimum identification was greatly increased. Subsequent periods of olfactory fatigue, however, lessened.

Further investigation, he said, showed that comparison of the results from the two nostrils would indicate whether the tumor was on the right or left hemisphere, or how nearly it was centred.

The flags of Great Britain and Sudan flying from the fortress of Gallabat, a small Sudanese village not far from the scene of the present Italo-Ethiopian conflict, where a small detachment of native troops now stand guard to see that the fighting is confined to that area and to protect Britain's Anglo-Egyptian-Sudan border.

REAR-END CRASH INJURES THREE

Mr. and Mrs. Claroux And Daughter of Weston Taken to Hospital

Three persons were taken to the Bellville General Hospital following a rear end motor collision, that happened one mile south of Marysville about 12:00 p.m. last night. Mrs. John Claroux, 35, sustained a fractured ankle while her husband, John Claroux, a Weston, Ont., truck driver, suffered an injured back and their 17 year old daughter, Mary Claroux sustained head injuries and face lacerations, all three being patients in the hospital today. The truck in which the Claroux family were riding was struck from the rear by a motor car driven in the same direction and by Burley Mills, Graham St., Napanee.

The accident was investigated by Motorcycle Patrolman Bert Delaney, who reported that Mr. Claroux was driving his small truck northward on highway No. 2 near Marysville at an alleged speed of 25 miles per hour. Mr. Mills, driving his automobile in the same direction, apparently failed to observe the truck in his path and crashed into the rear end of the larger vehicle. The result of the impact hurled Mr. and Mrs. Claroux, and their daughter May, suddenly forward causing their injuries. The front of the Mills motor car was completely demolished and the driver was thrown from the car when it struck the truck. Fortunately the occupants of the Mills-driven vehicle escaped without injuries, as the gh shaken up and shocked as a result of the impact. Patrolman Delaney announced today, that charges of reckless driving would be preferred against Mills. The Claroux family were homeward bound to Weston, having left Aynpior yesterday morning.

Alexis, N.C., Nov. 13—(AP)—The eight children of Mr. and Mrs. Hough Cunningham, farm couple, were burned to death early today, when flames swept the two-storey dwelling they rented on the Free Troupe farm near here.

Cunningham was injured in an efforts to warn his children of the blaze, discovered about one a.m. but his wife escaped unharmed.

The bodies were recovered later but most of them had been burned beyond recognition.

BAIL IS DENIED TO THOS. LEVEQUE

Serious Charge Laid Against Belleville Man Arrested

Thomas Leveque, 45, of this city, was arrested by local police last night, on a serious charge concerning the five-year-old daughter of a citizen. Leveque appeared before a local Magistrate in City Hall today and was remanded in custody until Friday. The charge read that he did unlawfully commit an assault.

Leveque was arrested by Sergeant Harris on the corner of Bridge street, last night, following the registering of a complaint by the father of the girl. According to the story related to the police by the parents who also reported that four playmates of their daughter saw what occurred in a vacant house on Ann street, Monday afternoon.

Physicians in the girl under the age of ten were allegedly eye-witnesses of the offence.

When Leveque appeared before the court today he was not asked to plead to the charge when Crown Chief Kidd requesting an enlargement until Friday. Leveque was denied bail and subsequently lodged in the county gaol.

STORM DISRUPTS EASTERN TRAFFIC

Lindsay Girl is Killed in Accident Near Ottawa

By The Canadian Press

Eastern Canada today took stock of damages suffered in the first sleet and snow storm of the season as linemen hastily finished repairs to disrupted communications. The storm, general throughout Eastern Ontario, Quebec and northern New England, has been most severe in the province.

The storm brought death to Hilda Smith, 18 of Lindsay, Ont., killed in a traffic accident near Ottawa, and caused injuries to three Montreal persons when a car skidded on slippery Blackburn was reported near death in hospital. She was struck by a street car.

Telephone and telegraph poles tumbled in many sections of Ontario and Quebec, upsetting service of the night and early morning.

Navigation on the St. Lawrence River was virtually suspended, conferring to drop anchors rather than take chances in the poor visibility. Quebec found its traffic in confusion, when automobiles could not climb the ice-coated slopes.

Relief from Relief Asked By Mayors of Ontario; We Can't Go On They Say

Burning Question Throughout Ontario, Hon. David Croll is Told

'HOW ABOUT APPEALS'

Labor Minister Says Present Situation is Very Serious

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—(CP)— Introduced by Welfare Minister Croll of Ontario as a delegation seeking "relief from relief", mayors from a score of Ontario municipalities met Labor Minister Rogers here today.

At the outset Mr. Croll told the Minister, accompanied by William Dickson, Deputy Minister of Labor, and Harry Hereford, Dominion director of Unemployment Relief, that the delegation represented a good cross-section of the municipal life of the province. The majority of delegates had been in municipal life five years or more. All were much concerned with the problem of unemployment relief."

Croll's Viewpoint

The situation was serious, Mr. Croll said. For every $5 spent on relief in Ontario, the Dominion furnished $1 and the municipalities $1 and the province $3. He did not propose to take up the question of relief now, once on an occasion when municipalities were gathered to study that issue.

"But it can't go on," he added, "and we have reached the stage when we can't continue to levy," Mayor Miller, of Kingston, told the minister. As president of the Association of Mayors, Mayor Wilson spoke first after Mr. Croll's introduction. "At every meeting of Mayors in Ontario unemployment relief is the burning question. The general feeling is we can't carry on." The problem of the big cities was accentuated by the concentration of people from rural sections.

Appeals for Funds

"How about public appeals for funds. Do you find any response to them?" asked the Minister.

"Yes," responded Mayor Wilson but those public donations many people were literally not in a position to respond to such requests."

Mayor James Simpson of Toronto said Toronto had made strenuous efforts to eliminate from relief lists those who should not be obtaining it. Toronto's unemployment relief bill in 1934 was $2,212,000 and in 1935 it was $2,179,000. The gross expenditure for Toronto from 1921 to 1935 on direct relief was $30,000,000 and on indirect relief $19,430,889. The city's share had been met by taxation. Toronto was refused funding the cost to the extent of $4,000,000. Toronto's total relief and expenditure on relief works initiated by the city, the share met by Toronto, for 1935 was $17,900,746.

Casting Off Undeserving

Mayor Simpson said Toronto's net debt was $75,000,000.

Mayor George Wenige of London said co-ordination of effort in his city had saved thousands of dollars on similar lines.

Mayor Hall, the number of persons on relief in London could be

Suit in U. S. Court Decided Favorably

Toronto, Nov. 13—Announcement is made by Lever Brothers Limited of Toronto that a suit concerning the company's rights in the United States against manufacturers imitating Lever Soap has been decided favorably in favor of Lever Brothers. The New York decision granted the Lever firm an injunction restraining defendants from manufacturing or selling soap cacholo in odor or octagonal in shape which is of a red, reddish or coral colour and from using the designation health soap. The defendants' soap was eight different brands of red carbolic soap which were in competition with Lifebuoy.

The Supreme Court stated: "The conclusion is inescapable that defendants intentionally adopted the color scheme and placed its imitation upon the market solely for the fraudulent purpose of appropriating plaintiff's reputation and investment and to attribute to defendant's product a false origin."

The court will direct defendants to account for all profits which they have realized upon the sale of the infringing soap and for such other damages which the plaintiff may sustained by reason thereof."

City and District News

FORMER BELLEVILLE BOY SUCCESSFUL

To the many friends of Joe Anderson on Bellevilleites, and now a resident of Oshawa, it will be welcome news that he has successfully passed exams giving him the Master's Certificate for high examinations obtaining the right to command of any boat. The exams were prepared and held under the supervision of the Canada Board of Examiners. Joe left for Oshawa last July, previously having earlier obtained a part of his apprenticeship with the Belleville Navigation Company of this city. He took an active part among the young people of the city and was for a time president of the Bellevue Street United Church Young People's Society.

SHOWER OF METEORS DUE FRI. AND SAT.

Local star gazers interested in celestial phenomena will have their long chance to see one of the best spectating exhibition of heavenly showers in this section of the country for at least a generation this year.

The sky show which needs only favorable weather conditions for observers of Belleville and district to see (late till near midnight on Friday, November 12-13 and Saturday, November 13-14 after midnight, promises to be a veritable celestial fire display equalling in intensity low clouds and rain.

Astronomers are confident that the heated fire shower is expected to be visible through the North American continent for the whole holiday week, but as bright as previous meteor showers have been recorded in 1833 and 1921.

BOUNTY PAID ON THREE WOLF PELTS

Pelts of three Hastings County wolves, the first recorded in the local office of county treasurer, Samuel Baker, were turned in to the office this week. The animals, which were destined to be small cubs, according to the story told by the hunters shot in the northern part of the county, live in the vicinity of Coe Hill and one by Chester Officer, Tweed. The customary bounty of $10 each will be paid for the wolves' scalps and the proper documents required in cases of this kind have been received from the office of the department of game and fisheries.

MISSIONARY HEARD AT ALLIANCE TABERNACLE

For the past several days the members and friends of the Alliance Tabernacle, Metra Street West, have been enjoying the services of a most inspiring ministry of Rev. R. F. Irwin, who is a consecrated servant of God who has been a missionary with his wife and family, in the field of French Indo China, and who is now on home on furlough.

Mr. Irwin addressed the congregation Sunday morning on the theme, "Simple Christianity" and in the evening on the subject "The Devil's Masterpiece" or "The Counterfeit Spirit". On Monday evening in spite of the rain a goodly number gathered for the first missionary rally held here on "The Birth and Growth of the Native Church of Indo China". Last evening Mr. Irwin chose as his theme, "God" and based his remarks on the first two verses of the ninety first Psalm.

STARLING FLOCKS INVADE CITY DUMP

Myriads of starlings in black, ever-flying clouds have invaded the city dumps during the late day or so of cold weather where they are feeding on the refuse and offal in the garbage, to the annoyance of the residents in the lower section of the town bounding on Bridge Street. The appearance in the city is attributed to the fact that the birds have been driven through the northern country have shot completed their fall journey, making the fields easier for weed seed feeding.

PADRE, REV. A. E. PAYNE TO ADDRESS MASONS

Military Night will be observed in Masonic Temple this evening by Bonche Lodge at its regular meeting, the one closest to Armistice Day. Rev. ## BLAZE UNDER HOOD CAUSE OF ALARM

While city councillors solemnly debated in committee last evening in the city hall the clang of fire bells and the scream of strong diesels immediately the building on Front Street ... abruptly dismissed their deliberations. Business was suspended briefly while members assembled the scene. A slight blaze under the hood of a delivery car was responsible for the alarm. Minor damages to the automobile was reported.

STORM FORCES 'GLEN ALLEN' TO TIE UP

In spite of the threat of fall gales and impending snow weather, navigation has not yet been officially closed for the season at the head of the lakes, as stated today by Manager Sandy Gough.

Hardly been will a more cool for a Trenton firm, the steam barrier, 'Glenallen', passed up the bay the morning, plowing her way heavily through the ice.

The first time this season, over the week-end he steamer Glen Allan was forced to tie up at Kingston on Sunday, owing to rough weather on the lakes. Waves were declared to have reached the top of the decks on the passage up. The Glen Allan, engaged in regularly weekly freight runs from the local port to Montreal, made the same round trip this season.

MISS E. CORBETT MAY BE CANDIDATE

Approached by Number to Contest Aldermanic Race

A son committal smile and the intimation that the idea "might be considered" was the only answer given today by Miss Elizabeth Corbett, well known Queen Street resident and one of the city's most active property owners, questioned regarding the probability of her candidature to enter the contest for aldermanic honors this coming year.

For the past few days, however, a place in affairs of civic management in the Ontario Intelligencer pressed.

"Well, they've distinguished themselves in other lines of endeavour and have proved themselves capable, so I think they might make excellent civic work. They are efficient, also, in carrying out their objects, I should say."

"I have been approached by several to offer myself for council, but so far I haven't considered it," said Miss Corbett.

Members of the present city council were unanimous in their admiration, when approached on what a lady councillor might be a useful adjunct.

Trenton Veterans Gather to Commemorate Armistice Day

Canadian Legion Responsible For Splendid Banquet

Trenton, Nov. 13 (Special)—One hundred and ex-service men, business, social and fraternal representatives gathered at the Trenton Town House on Monday evening for the annual Armistice dinner sponsored by the Trenton branch of the Canadian Legion. President Comrade J. R. Ashley was chairman of the night. The old wartime songs were sung with the audience sang lustily under the direction of Comrade R. B. Joyce, with Reginald Hallett at the piano. Many humorous numbers were presented including a duet by Comrades Hallett on the cornet and Reg. Wardle on the trombone, and a solo by Comrade and accompanied by Leslie Harris of Comrade Gordon Hall, a vocal duet by Leslie Hendle and Claude Huffman received much applause. The toast to the King was proposed by Comrade Rev. J. R. Boyce, responded to on behalf of the Legion by Comrade Tom Frewster.

Rev. W. E. Reilly, minister of St. Andrew's United Church, Trenton, proposed a toast to "His Majesties Forces." He said Canadians were proud that they belonged to a force, which in the late war still had the spirit of the old Empire and that they would never be ashamed. He felt that he defied any nation to stand up to the men who had marched date any more mean tricks to the land that they had left. He asked if the soldiers thought, that they had finished, if they thought that they saved the world from democracy, he said that the people of Canada still have to stand up and fight for all that is true, right and honorable.

Rev. F. A. Smith introduced the toast to the Ladies, which was proposed by Mrs. Charles Wallace of Birchcliff. Trenton, she said, was a fine place to live the least, that his Majesties forces were not what they used to be. He said he had always had his letters that we fought the last war to end war, but the democracy, a war to end war.

Mrs. Wallace, because, he said were not heard until two years after the fighting at the Armistice. He said that he entered the war in a fight for freedom and honor and for the good of the generations. Today we have the same things on the horizon and we had hoped, that after the Great War, that all this was settled. Conferences of all kinds have been arranged but Britain led the world in disarmament, she followed the example. Our army is small, the navy is small, the air force is small, the navy is not. He said to be prepared said, that he believed that the British Empire was the greatest force for good the world has ever seen. Throughout history we will find, that the British people were always responsible for a great force for peace, he continued, the British navy had been the peacemaker in the Mediterranean at present. Canada's navy is not there because Britain wants war but to keep her promise to the League of Nations of which she was one as she did in 1914. She is always ready to do her "duty" a word, that can not be found in any other language.

Comrade H. D. Graham proposed a toast to the "Town of Trenton" which was responded to by His Worship Mayor Harry Cory.

The officers of the Trenton Legion who were responsible for such a fine banquet in honor of their Act.

Ions comrades are: Past President Comrade C. M. Harrison, President, Comrade J. R. Ashley, 1st. Vice President, Comrade L. D. Forbes, 2nd. Vice President, Comrade Rev. J. R. Boyce, Padre, Comrade W. M. Donaldson, Treas. Chronicle, Comrade Reginald Hallett, and Comrade C. M. Harrison. The toast and banquet committee included Comrade Gordon Hall, Comrade Leslie Hendle, Comrade R. B. Wiggins, Comrade Comrade A. E. Wiggins, O. LaRoue, W. Fellman, F. Hendle, Comrade Comrade L. E. Hallett, N. Brett, George Jordon and C. Hamilton.

Service at Governor Simcoe Park Armistice Day was fittingly observed in Trenton on Monday. Hundreds of citizens gathered at eleven o'clock at the Memorial Cenotaph in Governor Simcoe Park to pay their respects to the heroes who fell in the Great War. The officers and men of the Royal Canadian Air Force, under command, of Wing-Commander O. G. Dickson, Officer Commanding of the Trenton branch of the Canadian Legion, many ex-service men and over 2,000 school children from the Relief Project rest at the park grounds and marched to Governor Simcoe Park for the short but simple service in memory of the fallen comrades. Rev. A. E. Robinson of King Street United Church spoke briefly and sang "Last Post" was sounded by Corporal of the R.C.A.F., the national colors followed and "Reveille" was sounded. Prayer was offered by Rev. Robinson, and the singing of the National Anthem closed the service. Wreaths were placed on the Cenotaph by many citizens and organizations including the Rotary Club, Trenton Legion No. 18 and Mayor Harry Cory placed a wreath at the cenotaph on behalf of the town of Trenton.

Class Aired in Trenton Court

Another lengthy list of cases faced Magistrate R. J. Butler K.C. of Belleville in Trenton court on Tuesday afternoon, when Crown Attorney R. C. Donnan K.C. of Belleville presented the cases.

Constable Arthur Wilson, 46, of the Relief Project, was given six months in the county jail on a charge of theft. Magistrate guilty by finding and sentencing four Trenton business places last week. Wilson had been on remand while his record was investigated and it's had previously served a term in Kingston penitentiary for theft. He'll arrest on parole from that institution.

Roger Carcher, aged 18, of Demorgville, was given a suspended for one week on a charge of a serious nature to a Trenton woman. Carcher called at the woman's residence on Sunday and was suspected by the police as he was found to have been looking for on the day previous.

Percy Cleveland of Frankford was charged with criminal negligence in the charge being laid by his father, Thomas Cleveland. After hearing lan witnesses and the evidence, Magistrate for the A.P.C.A., Dr. T. Taylor, the case was dismissed.

A local young man, who has been in the clutches of the police for some months and who was on remand for the past week, was given three months in jail on a charge of drunkenness.

John Hagan of the Relief Project, was given one year suspended sentence on a charge of car stealing. He also had been on remand in the county jail. Another Relief resident was found guilty of non-support and was sentenced for three months until he pay up arrears. Drunkenness in his home, a Trenton man was arrested ten days. Another case of being drunk was sentenced. Three others were dealt with for imbibing too freely. A speeder was arrested and did not appear. The Magistrate stated that he be notified by the police and that no one failed to pay $10 and fine for this infraction of the H.T. Act.

Trenton Contractor's Tender To Move Rink Accepted

All Employed on Job Will Be Recruited From City

Possibility that Belleville in the near future may find some more effectual and sanitary method of garbage disposal than the present dumping of the refuse on the bay shore dawned when Belleville at the meeting of city council held last evening through the passing of a recommendation by Chief Engineer Chas. Mott be instructed to make a survey of the situation and prepare a report regarding the cost and method of destruction through incineration. The recommendation was passed without discussion.

Minor business only occupied the attention of members briefly. Assigned to look after the interests of the city in the absence of Mayor Ross, confined through illness, Mr. H. B. Stock, city treasurer, was appointed a delegate to the convention of municipalities at Port Hope today. The convention will be decided in a three thousand dollar matters by the municipality and Dominion Government, said council on a request by John Burgess that he be allowed to move to and operate across the road from 164 Front street, was referred back for further consideration.

Grant Referred Back

Belleville Football Club—explained by one alderman to be the Belleville Rugby Club—request for the grant of $2,000 as a result to defray expenses for 1936 was also referred back.

A recommendation that the city treasurer be instructed to make application to the Ontario Municipal Board for authority to impose the city's borrowing from the Bank of Montreal for 1936 to 100% of the estimated receipts was passed.

In receiving a previous recommendation regarding the tender for the removal of the old Curling Rink from its present site on Church Street, to the property on Church Street south of the Collegiate, which was that the tender of Wallace Murden be accepted and the work proceed with forthwith, it was explained that the city be furnished to the satisfaction of the city engineer, the tender of Wallace Murden was ordered rescinded.

It was explained in the letter accompanying tender, Mr. Huffman his men would be employed and one foreman of his own for the work. The remaining employees will be recruited from the city.

The offer of Mr. W. C. Springer for the purchase of the vacant land by the Curling Rink for the sum of $500, with the proviso also that he would erect a $6,000 dwelling upon the site within a period of one year from the date the deed was delivered back for further consideration.

Purchase Of School

The recommendation that Geo. Jones be paid $1,000 for the sale of the old school building on Jones Street, owned by the city, at a meeting held in the committee that it be dismantled and removed, was adopted.

Through the unanimous vote of council Mrs. W. C. Mikel and ex-Alderman Mrs. Woodley were appointed to represent the City of Belleville on the Mother Alley Board.

The meeting which was presided over by Deputy-Mayor Harry Hill and with Alderman McCreary occupying the chair, was also attended by Aldermen Wills, Thompson and Arnott. Harvey.

POLICE BLOTTER

Two minor accidents happened on the streets of the city within a few hours, no personal injuries being sustained and only a minor damage to the automobiles involved.

While backing his automobile out from the west side of Front Street, at the Bridge, at Saturday noon, he collided with a south bound car driven by Arthur Mahaffy, also of Belleville street. The matter of settling the amount of the small damage sustained by the latter was satisfactorily arranged at prior to the arrival of P. C. Ernie Hall on the scene. No charges were deemed necessary, the incident being purely accidental.

Floyd Wood, delivery driver for the Glen Allan Laundry, informed the police that a youth named Sabrina, who resides on Church Street, struck had ridden his bicycle into the side of his delivery truck, while both were in motion. Mr. Wood stopped and found, that the front wheel of the bicycle was badly damaged and later drove the young man home. No charges were made since a possible settlement, as Wood contended, the youth should had ridden his bicycle directly into the side of his truck, called P. C. Taylor who investigated.

P. C. Hayes stopped a local motorist for driving automobile displayed but one headlight, last night. The latter argued with the officer regarding the matter, but when confronted with the fact, that fined him, when the officer requested him to get out and look for himself, the result then assured the constable he would have the matter rescinded immediately.

INTER-CITY VISIT MOST ENJOYABLE

Belleville Kiwanians Are Guests of Kingston Club

An inter-city visit always looked forward to by the Belleville Kiwanis Club is one to the sister city club, Kingston, and on Tuesday evening, that interesting event took place and to say that it was a success would be putting it mildly. A fine representation of the local club was on hand including some, newly members and Kiwanian members long on hospitality had the "glad hand" out as soon as the boys reached the rotunda of the Labelle Hotel and it continued until the last goodbye was said. The Belleville contingent was led by the energetic president, Cliff Hennigar, with the president-elect Frank Domenico on hand to help out. The local club supplied the principal speaker in R. V. Illsley, manager of the Bank of Commerce and his talk on "Some Impressions of a First Visit to Great Britain" was certainly the highlight of an entertaining evening.

Kingston Every in Order

The Belleville Kiwanis Kingston Club, Lorne Arkley, was in the chair, and from the moment they progressed far, he welcomed the Belleville Club, thanking them for the compliment of visiting the Kingston Club on the recent visit to Belleville. He also congratulated the Belleville Club on excellent results of the district drive, stating that while a large sum was raised for underprivileged work, Cliff Barrager replied briefly and Jack Morrison, Deseronto Rear, who in turn introduced the various guests present. This introduction brought down the house as Gordon had many funny remarks to make about each guest. The programme given by Kingston talent was a splendid one, Miss Mae Hartford selling a number of French songs, Miss Gordon Hall delighting with two baritone solos, George McCauley rendering banjo numbers and Miss Dorothy Lee concluded giving a number of Scotch songs, which were much appreciated.

Roll Call Interesting

Roll Call in the Kingston Club was taken with Harold Herrington in charge and incidentally the roll call was an interesting event to the club fund. Each man after giving his name and classification, had to chip in a quarter and sealed what he thought would be the score of the Kingston-Belleville City Junior-Senior game on Saturday. Half of the proceeds went to the club fund and to the member guessing correctly the nearest score. Belleville's city solicitor was introduced by Eddie Shapiro, while Kiwanian appreciation was expressed by Jack Morrison, superintendent of the Ontario hospitals. Cliff Hennigar, following his address, thanked all for the privilege of addressing the two clubs and hoped that in the near future many would be able to some time visit Great Britain.

Fine Synopsis

The speaker was well able to cover the surface of a wonderful holiday in the time allotted but after hearing him, one felt that he had a far different conception of the Old Motherland and therefore was not such an experience wiser, I hope, than the humorous remarks from the body of the Old Land is a volume under its capitalist titles of unemployment, housing, high temperature, commerce, transportation, conservation, agriculture, "packed with compelling interest", said the speaker. "And while it is an old land in many ways, it is not old, it is anything but a decadent land. Indeed it is in the throes of a great recovery. And what a lesson to us in this fact read in part.

Mr. Illsley remarked, that although on pleasure bent, he was always on the lookout and learn about business as done in the Old Land and particularly was he interested in the amount of Canadian business being done. He expressed the opinion, that the world's best market today was the British market and therefore was the most competitive market in the world. We are favored as a British Dominion with preferences in the imports tariffs and that is one trade to put all the trade we could readily handle", said the speaker. "We are not fully alive to our opportunities". Mr. Illsley showed the amount of business done in cheese, bacon, canned goods, lumber, wheat and flour and stated that we need more intelligent persistent propaganda. He stated, that money was cheap and plentiful, building was active and new issues quickly subscribed.

Beautiful Scenery

Turning to sight seeing, he stated London was the show place of the nation. He told of his interest in the houses, crowds, parks especially Hyde Park, shops, restaurants, theatres, palaces and the Thames River and boats, House of Parliament, Cathedrals and Churches, Art Galleries and the markets. "London is marvelously well policed and-is a place to know, even superficially", said Mr. Illsley. Next he commended the city of Bath. His peaceful hamlets, the slow flowing Avon, the parks around were described in a vivid manner, showing the interest and thought the speaker had spent on this trip. In conclusion the speaker dealt with Scotland and points of interest.

Negro's Rape Attempt Brings 7 Years, 15 Lashes

PARNELL'S LIFE IS PORTRAYED

High Lights Only Related in Drama by Archdeacons

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—The fatal love affair between Parnell, leading home rule to Ireland, a fight had by his own countrymen, and the opposition of Prime Minister Gladstone, is told in the play, "The Uncrowned," being presented in the 39th Street theatre.

The drama, covering highlights in incidents in the dramatic story of the home rule leader, is the work of two wrecking romances with Kate O'Shea and the working lives of his Irish party to Tim Healy.

Mrs. Alice Schreiner, the author, made no attempt to belong to society at any time in her narrative, abridging the compelling fatalism of Parnell's political and romantic life into his many years. The play follows him from his marriage to Katie O'Shea, and makes him die in her arms as the Irish leader's significance. Nov. the party.

George Curzon, London actor and author, has been appointed on the Broadway stage, impersonating Parnell. Frieda Altken, Mary Read, Margaret Rawlings, also a British actress, and Alexander Frank achieves a faithful Gladstone in physical appearance.

Mrs. Schaeffler of Kansas City, died in New York City last October 24, just as arrangements were completed for the play she wrote.

PREMIER TO SIGN TREATY FRIDAY

Ministers Continue to Shroud Agreement in Mystery

Ottawa, Nov. 12 (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King was expected to leave Ottawa this afternoon by train, returning to Washington for the purpose, presumably of signing the commercial treaty between Canada and the United States. The premier will reach the United States capital Thursday and it is believed signatures will be affixed to the treaty either Friday or Saturday.

Ministers continued to shroud the treaty details in complete silence; but speculation based on published statements has it that the United States will extend many concessions to Canadian primary products, this pastoring for a quid pro quo some of the market which was destroyed by the Fordney-McCumber and Hawley-Smoot tariffs. On the other hand Canada will give United States the intermediate or treaty tariff on a wide range of products.

FIVE PLANES AND HANGAR BURNED

Loss is $50,000 And Cause of Blaze Will Be Investigated

Toronto, Nov. 13 (CP)—Authorities today were investigating the cause of fire, which last night destroyed five airplanes and a 75-foot frame hangar at Barker Field a few miles north of the city. Loss was approximately $50,000.

Capt. Karl Hand, President of National Air Transport, said he was not in a position to make any statement as to insurance carried on the planes, four of which were owned by his firm. The fifth was owned by the Dominion government and was used by Col. Donald G. Joy, superintendent of civil aviation for the Department of National Defence. It was understood the hangar, owned by Harry Saunders, was not insured.

The theory was advanced the fire might have been caused by a stove left lighted in the hangar late yesterday afternoon or by a defect in the electric wiring.

COL. HARRY OAKES PROVIDES ROAD

Road at Niagara Falls Re-Opened After Being Closed 60 Years

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 12 (CP)—Closed for more than 60 years, the extension of Old Portage Road was formerly opened again yesterday under its new name "Oakes Drive," after $137,000 had been spent in construction work which included a new bridge over the annual view of Niagara Falls and the upper river.

Representatives of civic and provincial Governments and officials and addresses were made on the historic and other aspects of the thoroughfare, which once was used as a portage for Indians traveling between Colligan and Ontario. Later it was used by pioneer white men.

Officials said it was through the generosity of Harry Oakes, mining owner, that the reconstruction of the road, which gave employment to hundreds of Stamford township men, was made possible.

R. M. Smith, deputy minister of highways, was one of those who addressed the gathering.

The bridge enables traffic to avoid four railway crossings.

MICHAUD PREDICTS GAINS BY FARMERS

Montreal, Nov. 12 (CP)—Canada's trade treaty with the United States undoubtedly will be of great benefit to the farmers, lumbermen and fishermen of the Dominion, Hon. J. E. Michaud, Minister of Fisheries, said in an interview today.

"It is designed to help the primary producers and it stands to reason that if it did not it would not have been entered into," Mr. Michaud said in reply to questions as to whether the lower Canadian fishermen would benefit specifically from the treaty.

Mr. Michaud arrived with the executive of the Canadian Fisheries Association to visit the Produced in Canada Exhibition here.

SANCTIONS USE PROTEST PRESENTED TO OTTAWA GOVT.

Ottawa, Nov. 12 (CP)—A note protesting against the use of sanctions was delivered to the Canadian Government today by L. Patenod, Consul-General for Italy. It was similar to notes delivered to all sanction-approving countries.

The note protested against "the sentencement and injustice" and asserted that a great number of Italian emigrants to Tripoli are about to apply against Italy under Article 16 of the Covenant."

German Political Scientist Shot in N. Y.

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—A 43-year-old German political scientist, Dr. Fritz Grabbenhorst, was shot to death today in his fashionable Sutton Place apartment and Vera Stretz, 24, described as his former secretary and fiancee, was charged with murder and homicide in that she allegedly fired "four bullets causing his death."

RESCUE STARTED BY U. S. DESTROYER

Manila, Nov. 13 (AP)—The United States Navy destroyer Pruey wireless today that survivors men of the Silverhazel were picked up from a life raft at 5.15 p.m."

The message indicated that rescue of 54 persons on the wrecked British freighter in San Bernardino Straits had begun.

Since Sunday the five passengers and 49 crew members of the Silverhazel had clung to a rock and to the forepart of the vessel which was broken in two against it.

Little Benny's Note Book

Saturday before supper I heard the fellows starting to play hockey out in the street and I started to look around for my hockey stick and didn't see it anywhere, saying, Ma, where's that old hockey stick, every time I put something somewheres it's not there any more, and then I start thinking, I'm sure I put it here, or there, or somewhere else, and then I look and it's not in the house. A quick conclusion I placed in the same predicksament would resort to the process of elimination. Good and finally he would check off the places from which the hockey stick is elemin ated by stating where he would discover the place where it is present, Let's start with the most likely place, the hall closit. Then you looked there? pop said, and I said, aw, O, that's a first class I found.

And have you searched the other closits and your own room and the cellar? yelly? pop said, and I said, Ya sir and everywheres elts and it's not anywheres.

Then by the law of elimination from your house and circumstantial evidents points to fowl play, pop said, and I said, Fowl fiddlesticks, it's properly in the first place he looked and the judge of passed performances.

And she went and looked in the hall closet and came back with my hockey stick, pop saying, Yes gosh, I realgo from the case.

Meening what was the use.

ART NOT DISCOURAGED

The larger cities indicate clearly enough that the art instinct is active. In a world which speaks in terms of money and materials, the art side is not forgotten, nor neglected. The attendance of the young in the art galleries under the instruction of teachers in the presence of models of the masters in color and form is proof enough. A glance in the eyes of those children who are studying reveals very clearly the possession of the principle.

Art is not neglected as some people think. Today a vast amount of attention goes into architecture of houses and decoration of homes. No one shuns that duty to have a fine house and a comfortable home, calculated to foster the finest impressions and thoughts. Our streets are laid out according to art principle, we are plays no small part in the expansion of a city though trade and business are usually given the credit for it. But it is very evident that if the artistic temperament is notionally exercising greater influence than other men, the people would be living in less beautiful cities and soon the cry for beauty would go up. It is because we are in the presence of so much beauty, man-made and natural, that we do not stress beauty.

A recent visit to the Toronto Art Gallery revealed a sight which would have cheered the artistic—the presence of so many children, at work on a Saturday morning.

Really the art gallery does not have to be as large as a rugby field, the theatre does not require to be as large as a ten acre lot, the halls of music be as big as a town, to prove that art governs us and surrounds us at every turn. The art crowds do not require to be as large as those at prizefights, or at the attendance at a ball game. No one need feel discouraged that they are not, for the leaven of art is paramount.

As a matter of fact there is a great body of culture and those who do not in person worship at beauty's shrine, at least consent to the artists' exercising their great influence upon individual and social life.

One has but to look at the moving pictures today to realise a great deal of supreme art in portrayal. The picture would not be so appealing without artistic art. But the audience does not as individuals require to realise this—they simply know they are satisfied. Poor art in pictures would ruin them.

AS PREACHERS SEE PROBLEMS

When the people of the world become united in one God, one set of standards and one allegiance to humanity, not only the nations will be the inevitable result, declared Rev. Dr. Millard L. Robinson, executive secretary of the New York Bible Society at a meeting in Calvary Church, New York. "As I seek for foundations of peace I see one pre-eminent factor" he said. "And that factor lies in monotheism—one God. Many gods mean many standards of life. Many standards lead to quarrels and war. There is but one source of peace and that is in one God who created us all."

This was made clear in connection with the anniversary of Armistice. Another was that of Rev. G. A. Buttrick of Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, who said that the world today may be described as a disinterested road along which each nation drives according to its own rules, unwilling to make traffic rules for the good of all. He declared that disarmament is the greatest of war, that war breeds war and so does preparedness. He went on:

"Our economic system permits men to make a temporary profit in their ultimate loss. The last war cost $20,000 for every hour since Christ was born. It made 21,000 new millionaires in the United States, but it cost the country three billion dollars for every man, woman, and child. No one can imagine that war means an ultimate gain to business but wars are made because a few want to get rich immediately.

"Another war would sweep our capitalistic system into the limbo of things lost. I prefer that our capitalists devise their own control. My critical friends tell me that this is impossible, because capitalists have never given up anything except under compulsion. But Marxian ideas are wrong, too. Persecution is the worst foe of the truth. In the United States two capitalistic states exist side by side without clawing at one another's eyes, because we have thought ourselves out of sectionalism.

"Nationalistic bombast is another threat to peace. Nationalism is an extension of selfishness. It is 'to the world what our gangs are to war.'"

Worship of Mammon, Canon Bezzant, chancellor of Liverpool Cathedral in England, preaching in St. Thomas' Church Ascension, New York, declared was very easy in this age. He said "the greatest danger to us is the temptation to order our lives as if we had the right to command the use of anything we have paid for. Wealth without a moral knowledge of God is an instrument of degradation and often brings exterminations to its possessor."

Denial of the divinity of Christ and of the Virgin birth by "men ostensibly ministers of God", has produced a rising generation "educated to question the very existence of God and devoid of respect for God and authority," Mgr. J. F. A. McIntyre, chancellor of the Archdiocese of New York said at St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York. He scorned the "modernity", which because of the immutability of the qualities of human nature, "can add nothing to the experiences of men in the lusts of the flesh" but as contrived to accomplish an even more dangerous evil—the discard of religion."

"The future of Christianity depends on how it meets the challenge of present conditions and anarchy," declared Rev. Dr. A. Wismer at Matthew's Evangelical Lutheran Church.

"The spirit of nationalism is taking the form of a religion and threatens to supplant the church, according to Rev. Dr. Charles Robinson at Christ Protestant Episcopal Church.

BRITAIN

What is this Britain that survives
The deaths of a million valiant men—
How can she spare so many lives,
Yet rise through it all and fight again?

This is the Britain that has stood
Against the wrack of a thousand wars,
Who rules the seas with her sailor-brood,
And nets all sunsets with her spars!

Her sons ransack the earth for ore,
They smile the forests to fields of corn,
They perish in quest of an unknown shore,
Yet yearn for the land where they were born.

Under the ensign of the Cross,
Her staunch Crusaders never fail;
Undaunted by defeat and loss
They fight for the dreams that must prevail.

Since Alfred launched his Saxon fleet
And flung defiance at the Dane,
Since Drake sailed out the foe to greet
And shattered all the pride of Spain,

Britain has weathered every blast,
In liberty and right secure;
Broad based upon her deathless past,
In God and her Right she shall endure!

—James Lewis Milligan.

SCHOOL SAVINGS IN THE UNITED STATES RUN INTO MILLIONS and mil-

lions has been lost in the depression but folded up since the financial weakness developed there so virulently. Henry Joseph Gerling, Assistant Superintendent of Schools in St. Louis, vigorously opposed the placing of school children's savings in banks without the money being insured. He was over-ruled and the result was two banks in St. Louis and with deposits of $96,000 in school saving. Dr .Gerling pledged $25,000 of his own money to help make good the loss of the children's savings, fearing that the effect on the morale of the money would be to destroy juvenile trust and confidence in the honesty and ability of their elders. An army of school children, 4,500,000 exact, deposited $29,000,000 in school savings accounts.

ONE LUCKY STEP TAKEN WHEN

HE WAS 45 YEARS OF AGE made a more than millionaire out of a small Detroit lawyer. His had a neighbor who was a member of the Boy Scouts of America, experimenting and fussing, and the sputter of the engine so fascinated the lawyer that he spent most of his spare time talking to his neighbor in the mechanical ideas. The mechanical genius thought he had something and a company was formed. The lawyer, Horace H. Rackham, mortgaged his property for $5,000 which he invested with his neighbor, whose name was Henry Ford. That was in 1903, and in 1919 Lawyer Rackham after collecting four million dollars in dividends, sold out his shares to Henry and Edsel Ford for $12,500,000. Lawyer Rackham is dead but he left a fund of $30,000,000 to be devoted to worthy causes, and several universities are assiduously eyeing this fund— more especially since grants to colleges have been thin since the great financial debacle of 1929.

INSULT

It was their honeymoon trip, and the first time they had ever been out of their native village. As they waited on the platform for the train to be pulled out of the van, the young bride and bridegroom were obviously embarrassed.

Then a porter came up and asked: "Can I look after your baggage, mister?"

The blood mounted to the bride's cheeks, and, turning to her husband, she demanded: "Well, well, well! If ye ain't agoin' to thrash him for refairin' to me like that, ye're no man, George!

Workmen were engaged Sunday morning in removing the old house which stood at the corner of Bridge and Pinnacle streets and when they were stopped by Mayor Guinane. The reasons he gave for interfering were that they were mutilating the trees and breaking the Lord's Day Act. The men claimed that it was necessary to do the work as the building where it stood interfered with traffic on the Grand Junction Railway Line, and also that they had received permission to do the work on Sunday from the Police Magistrate. The Mayor, however, refused to allow the work to proceed until Monday morning.

A special messenger from Ottawa is enroute to Regina bearing the Governor General's warrant for the execution of Louis Riel on the 16th., inst. at Regina. Riel was made aware four days ago that the sentence of the court would be carried out on the 16th. After the first reprieve he got it into his head that he was to be sent to the penitentiary and his spiritual advisers could do nothing with him. His manner becoming insolent and at times exceedingly offensive. But when the news was broken to him that he must prepare for death he sobered down and is now said to be quite resigned. He was interviewed with no less than three men with him lately ever took place. Certain correspondents have been running a bogus news bureau for weeks back. The reports sent out by an irresponsible person at Regina to the effect that the Blackfeet Nation intend to rise in the spring and clean out the ranchmen and settlers are entirely untrue. The injury that is being done in the Northwest by these infamous canards is not great, but many Reformers as well as Conservatives in Winnipeg are in favor of punishing the fabricators if that can be done under the law.

Two Negro Boys 'Strung up' After Confession Announced

Columbus, Tex., Nov. 13.—(AP)—A mob of some 700 persons, including several women, hanged two Negro boys last night for the brutal slaying of Otho Cullins, 17-year-old high school honor graduate.

They mashed and armed men forced two others to accompany Ernest Collins, 15, and Benny Settnesil, 18, to the spot they had confessed attacking the girl and throwing her body into a creek Oct. 19.

The mob hunted its victims to a five oak tree a mile from the Kollinsch farm and quickly "strung them up" despite the pleas of the Rev. R. E. Marmion, Episcopal Rector, to "let the law take its course."

The men listened to him in silence and then broke into a chorus of hymns.

Sheriff Frank, please don't do this," pleaded Mitchell as the hangman's knot was slipped about his neck. Collins, apparently unnerved, peered into Mitchell's face and grinned.

The two prisoners were chained together about the waist. During an effort to break the chain, the boys hauled the negroes beneath the tree and threw two ropes over a limb. Promptly men seized the ropes and pulled up the kicking figures.

Sheriff Frank Hoegemeyer and Deputy Harry Kramer took the prisoners to the mob as they were demanded. They were lodged

Tweed and District

Tweed, Nov. 13—Despite lowering skies, a large number of the veterans of the Great War, members of Tweed unit of the Legion and Navy Veterans of Canada, gathered after the cenotaph at Tweed Memorial Park on Remembrance Day together with many of the citizens of Tweed and the surrounding district, to pay their respects to fallen comrades, to the king and peace and farewell to fight for Canada.

At the hour of 10.30 a.m. the veterans preceded by Tweed-Quinte-ville band under Bandmaster Waller E. Dark, marched to Memorial Park and took their places about the cenotaph as the sun breaking through gray clouds, shed a feeble light upon the scene.

Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne, rector of St. James' Anglican Church addressed the gathering of veterans and citizens as the speaker. He gathered about him the memory of those who had in the past years 1914 to 1918 heard the call of King and Country to save the world from destruction. Many of those who left Canada's shores have not returned; they slept in France's fields, in a foreign land, that this land of ours might be saved and that the world come to a troubled world. We pause for a brief moment in our busy life to honor them. Many of us in the days that are gone by enjoyed the fellowship of those who served. They went to fight in a common cause and we honor their memory. Mr. Swayne quoted a poem "The Bridge Builder" which pictured an old man building a bridge across a chasm on a dangerous road, not for his own use, but for that of a youth who would also pass that way.

"You and your fallen comrades," continued the speaker, "have built a bridge for the youth of today and for me. We must keep this bridge repaired." At the conclusion of the address, President G. P. Bowlby read the following list of fallen comrades: Captain Luther Sills, M.D., Lieut. Harry Rath (P.P.C.L.I. missing), Sgt. Percy Godfrey, Pte. Percy Beaumont, Pte. Archie Clarke, Pte. John Hall, Pte. Arch Sheer, Pte. Henry Villeneuve, Pte. Frank Gee, Pte. Raymond Hungerford, James Woodcock, Dvr. Ford Elliott.

The bugler then sounded the sunset, the conclusion of the Great War. Pte. Lyman Godfrey, Pte. Teddy Thomas, Pte. Harry Freeman, Pte. Jas. Breen, Pte. J. Reaves, Pte. Jas. Wood, Pte. John Douglas.

The Province of Ontario wreath was placed on the cenotaph by Mrs. C. Mather, who served as a nurse throughout the Great War. Reeve H. Bayne presented the wreath on behalf of the citizens of Tweed in memory of the fallen. Rev. Swayne offered a special prayer following the placing of the wreaths. The Last Post was sounded by bandsman Fort Hupck. Following the two minutes silence, the flag which had stood at half-mast during the service was hoisted to the masthead by Commissaire Beatty.

Other wreaths were placed on the cenotaph by Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Rath and family in memory of Lieut. Harry Rath, D.P.C. missing on October 30th, 1917, and by Mrs. N. Beetly in memory of her brother Gunner Claude Goodwin Smith, killed in action in France on October 30th, 1918.

An interesting rugby match was played on Monday afternoon at the Agricultural Park with the High School Grads emerging victors over the present team by the narrow margin of 17 to 16. "Ty" Thomson with two touch downs, one converted, and Joe Demmings with a converted touch down were the point getters for the winners, the Park Lead secured three major scores, none of which was converted for 15 points, with Jack Cameron starring in the other point on a rouge.

Grads: Flying Wing, H. Forrest-halven, J. Gourneyes, H. McCutcheon, captain, "Ty" Thomson, snag, O. Shorey, insides, H. Simmons, D. Cameron, middle, J. Thompson outsides, S. Way, J. Reeves.

Undergrads: Flying Wing, H. Lewis, A. Thurston, centre, H. Lockyer, D. Price, snap, L. Price, insides, R. Mackenzie, R. Sharpe, middle, B. Buyck, outsides, H. Harris, D. Barry.

Officials: F. Tummon, H. Wilson, Jr.

At the regular session of police court held in Tweed on Friday before Magistrate Lloyd of Northbrook, Dorothy Brank, aged 23, an Indian from the Reserve at Tyendinaga, appeared on a charge of carrying a gun without a license. J. C. Hayes, The accused pleaded guilty and because of certain circumstances surrounding the case she was sentenced by Magistrate Lloyd to serve two years in the city of the Andrew Mercer Reformatory for women in Toronto.

Pleading guilty to a charge of common assault, Eugene Cassine, 24, was sentenced to 30 days in Belleville jail. The charge was laid by Constable Hayes following a complaint from Matilda Turcotte of Hungerford township. Cassine had beaten rather badly. The Magistrate severely reprimanded the prisoner for his conduct. Harry Minnie of Ernevir on pleading guilty to disorderly conduct was fined five dollars and costs.

Two charges were also laid by Provincial Constable Kidd of Madoc. Frank Canada of Hungerford township was assessed the minimum fine for the unlawful use of auto markers. Thos. Caswell of Madoc paid the usual fine of ten dollars and costs on the charge of being intoxicated.

The first band concert of the season to be presented indoors was given on Sunday evening at the Capitol theatre under the direction of Bandmaster W. Lesl. H. Hannahow, the first band of Lesl.

4 Overture, "The Oracle"
5 Male Quartette, "Lord I Want to be a Christian."
6 Selection of hymn tunes, "Lead Kindly Light." "The Church's One Foundation," "Asa and Did My Saviour Bleed."
7 Selection of hymn tunes, "Lead Kindly Light." "The Church's One Foundation," "Asa and Did My Saviour Bleed."
8 March, "Your Square."
11 Overture, "The Stockade."
12 Hymn, "Abide With Me."
13 God Save the King.

Miss Lois Richardson provided the accompaniments for the solo and the male quartette. A feature of the programme was the selection on the hymn tunes. Too can of these recent numbers had ever played an instrument before the first of April of this year, and certainly deserve a great deal of credit for their success which was heartily applauded.

Another feature number was "The Oracle," the most pretentious number yet attempted by the band. It was played with great expression and was well received by the audience. The audience joined in singing, a verse of "Abide With Me."

At the conclusion of the program Mr. W. S. Gordon spoke appreciatively of the band and of its value to the community. A vote of thanks to the band was moved and seconded by Dr. M. O. Dales and Mr. S. H. Connor. It is expected that these band concerts will be given monthly during the winter.

Madoc and District

Madoc — On Monday, November the 11th, a fitting tribute to the memory of 60,000 Canadians who gallantly gave their lives for the cause of justice was observed in the Madoc armouries. A very large number of citizens and veterans attended and divine service was offered as a remembrance. Percy Naylor acted as chairman and opened the programme by asking all to rise and sing "God Save the King". Miss Lavina Weir accompanying at the piano. Reverend W. A. Hunter, pastor of St. Peter's Presbyterian church led in prayer and gave thanks for the years of peace. Chairman Naylor with a few remarks stated that Remembrance Day was really a day of Thanksgiving and that we should all pray that the League of Nations would speedily find a way to dispel the dark war clouds now gathering over Europe and the whole world. The hymn "Onward Christian Soldiers", was beautifully sung by the audience.

Reverend Hunter read the Scripture lesson from the second Chapter of Isaiah, which was followed by the hymn, "Fight the Good Fight".

A collection was taken by the veterans and given to the Daughters of the Empire to enable them to carry on their work.

Reverend I. Kennedy of Trinity United Church, gave an impressive address which was in part as follows:

"Seventeen years ago at 11 a.m. the Armistice was signed. We should remember the feelings of the great moment and among them the joy that filled our souls and the thrill of the black clouds which for four years had shrouded the whole world.

"We must remember the terrible cost of war, the awful waste of war, of beautiful churches, desecrated, of fields left waste and human lives sread.

"Every million young men gave their all and left behind nine million orphans who no longer would know a father's love.

"We don't want war, we want peace and justice; we must honour our heroic dead."

The benediction was pronounced by Reverend Hunter.

The assembly paraded to the cenotaph headed by the Madoc veterans and ten veterans, there, the following placed wreaths in memory of the departed:— Madoc Village, G. M. Walbridge, Reeve; Province of Ontario, Mrs. George Holland; Great War Veterans, Percy Naylor; Anglican Church, Gladys Aylsworth; Trinity United Church, Mrs. Mallman; Methodist Church, Michael O'Sullivan; St. Peter's Presbyterian, Tom Hawthorne; Madoc Women's Institute, Mrs. T. L. Nickle; Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, Florence Holland.

Bugler Lockyer performed the flag ceremony while the "Last Post" and "Reveille" were sounded by Jas. Constable Hayes following. Reverend Hunter pronounced the benediction and the assembly marched back to the armouries.

On Friday evening, the members of the Madoc Community Club and their friends and friends tendered a farewell banquet to Mr. and Mrs. Percy Rutherford, before leaving the club president. Mr. Rutherford has been manager of the Madoc branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce in Madoc, for the past four years, but has been transferred here on Tuesday to take up his new position in Brantford, to which place Mr. Rutherford has been transferred.

The banquet took about seventy-five friends of the Club's president and manager, and was a most sumptuous banquet awaited them. Following the toast to the president the Club acted as chairman for the evening. During the dinner Bill Fletcher acted as song leader and conducted community singing. Chairman Bristol called the meeting to order and called upon George Weir.

"We are gathered here to-night to bid farewell to an old friend and advisor. Some six years Jack Rutherford came among us as a stranger but soon he made his presence felt in many circles. Always willing to do his part at whatever he was asked to do, he has become an invaluable portion of the life of this community.

"With his experience gained in other places he has made a great success as President of the Madoc Community Club. It was his great help that aided so materially in putting over the Madoc Old Boys' Re-union some four years ago.

Both he and his wife have been great help in the church and their influence will be felt long after they are gone.

"It is our sincere and earnest wish that in future days they may find happiness and success in their new home and wherever you may be, our continued best wishes will always be with you.

As a token of our esteem and appreciation we ask you to accept this dinner wagon and we trust that it will always be a remembrance of and binding tie to all your friends here in Madoc.

The presentation was made by Bill Fletcher. Mr. Rutherford accepted the gift on behalf of his wife and family and thanked all his friends for their kindness.

Briefly he recalled his stay here in Madoc and expressed his opinion that he was glad to have been able to spend so much of the years of the last few here, in such a lovely place and among such worthy people. Everywhere from Kent County, he said the first thing he appreciated was the beautiful scenery, the rolling country side and the pretty lakes and streams. Then Madoc village itself with its built up front street, its beautiful churches and schools, were certainly a lasting impression of a new home. Mr. Rutherford briefly related some incidents such as the Old Boys' Reunion that would always remain indelible in his memory.

He also mentioned the fact that it had always been a pleasure to work in co-operation with Mr. Meehan, the manager of the Dominion Bank. He found the merchants always willing to take advantage of any active he was able to give and expressed deep regrets at leaving the village.

Dr. R. Alexander rendered a lovely solo—an old German song "Last Night" by Haitian Krysil. The file was most ably accompanied by Mrs. A. Kincaid. Mr. Bill Fletcher sang the familiar song "On the Road to Mandalay" and did justice to it with his deep bass voice. Mrs. Alexander accompanying him at the piano.

Mr. Bristol called on William McMain and Walter Whytock to add their words of farewell. Both of these gentlemen had only praise and appreciation for the work of Jack Rutherford and stated that they always found him ever ready to help and assist and deeply regretted his departure.

Mr. and Mrs. Rutherford were members of Trinity United Church while fraternally, Mr. Rutherford belongs to the Masonic Order. They will take up residence with their children, Mervyn and Donald in Bradford, during this week.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Full of Pep

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Then gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old-fashioned, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet certain in making bile flow freely to digest fats. Ask for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin today. Sold by druggists everywhere.

McCaughan of Stirling, became the bride of Mr. Harold Morgan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Morgan, of Minto. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Canon W. O. Swayne of Bonar Law assisted by Rev. A. B. McDonnell of Stirling. Mrs. H. H. Alger, organist of St. John's church, played the Wedding March from Lohengrin and Mr. Fred Houchin offered as a tenor solo, "I Love You Truly" by Carrie Jacobs Bond, during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a gown of peach duchess transparent velvet with matching accessories, carrying a bouquet of pink chrysanthemums. She was attended by Miss Edna Reid of Ivanhoe, who wore a lovely shade of rose transparent velvet with hat and shoes to match and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by Mr. Thos. Sarles of West Huntingdon as best man. Ushers were Mr. Carleton Wright and Mr. Lindsay Tanner.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents. The "Palsley Hotel", where the rooms were tastefully decorated in pale blue and pink colours and table bouquets of chrysanthemums and carnations. The bride's mother received in a gown of black crepe with a corsage bouquet of pink roses. For the groom's mother, who was gowned in black crepe with accessories to match. The guests included Rev. and Mrs. W. G. Swayne of Bonar Law; Rev. and Mrs. A. B. McDonnell of Stirling and thirty friends and relatives.

The happy couple left later for a trip in Western Ontario cities and Detroit, after which they will open their return will reside on the groom's farm at Minto where a reception will be given in their honor by their neighborhood parents. The bride travelled in brown pebble crepe ensemble with hat, coat and other accessories to match.

Miss Whelan Wins Oratory Contest

Four students of St. Michael's Academy High School took part last evening in an oratorical contest held under the auspices of the Canadian Women's Association. Angela Whalen being adjudged the winner. Mrs. A. B. Collins, president of the League, was chairwoman for the contest which took place at a regular meeting of the Belleville sub-division.

Speeches, well prepared and delivered in splendid style were followed with keen interest by the audience and the high standard of oratory maintained by all contestants made the decision of the Judges a difficult task. The topics were, "Lord Tweedmuir, Governor-General of Canada" by Miss Betty Belair; "Books" by Miss Angela Whalan; "Ringside" by Harold Giffen, and "The Life of King George" by Jimmie Belair. The Judges, Miss Lena Carroll, Mrs. Lee Callaghan and Mrs. T. Fitzpatrick, after considerable deliberation decided that Miss Whalen merited the prize presented by Mrs. F. Fitzpatrick.

Make Suds Quickly . . but be sure you make

SAFE SUDS!

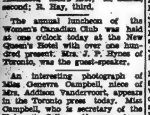
One tub of suds looks much like any other tub of suds. . . . It's what the suds are made from that means either risky washing or safe washing.

And you should think of your hands . . . everyone knows what harsh suds will do to them!



The purity of Sunlight Soap means safety for both clothes and hands. It is this purity of Sunlight which makes it dissolve freely. And Sunlight's gentle suds, so quickly formed . . . always cleanse thoroughly and above all . . . safely.

Other laundry soaps are never really satisfactory to the women who have once used Sunlight. That's why millions of bars the world over are bought for every wash day.

Look for the $5,000 Sunlight Guarantee of Purity on every carton. It means real economy—longer life to your clothes—protection to your hands.

HALLOWAY W.M.S.

The W.M.S. of the United Church held their November meeting at the home of Mrs. Ambrose Wright on Thursday last. Dinner was served and one quilt was quilted. The meeting opened at two o'clock with the president in the chair. "My Hope is Built on Nothing Less" was sung. Mrs. J. Wright from Stirling, one of the old members led in prayer. Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Peel from John 14, Roll Call was answered by twenty ladies, the key word being "Thanksgiving". Interesting papers were given by several members. Mrs. F. Ashley gave a very interesting reading "The Drowning Singer". Hymns and prayer were approved. Mrs. Peel and Mrs. McInroy presided on the Watch Tower. "Alas and did My Saviour Bleed" was sung. Mrs. Searles gave the Study Book. Mrs. J. S. Wilson gave a reading "God is Calling Me". It was moved and seconded that we have a Baby Band with Mrs. Clifford Elliott for president. Plans were made for a quilting at Mrs. McInroy's on November 28th. "Must Jesus Bear the Cross Alone" was sung, after which all repeated the Benediction. Collection $6.25.

CENTRE AND VICTORIA W.M.S.

The November meeting of Centre and Victoria W.M.S. was held on Thursday afternoon at Mrs. W. J. Redner's home. Mrs. Lorne Brickman opened the meeting with the call to worship and hymn, "Lord, God, the Holy Ghost," was sung. prayer was given by Mrs. E. Spencer and Mrs. B. Redner. The minutes were read and approved and the business conducted. The collection was taken and amounted to $2.00, flower collection 27 cents. The birthday collection was then received to the amount of $3.00. Hymn, "Holy Spirit, Truth Divine" was sung and Mrs. Simpson leader of Group Three had charge of the programme. Scripture Reading Matthew 3:21, 22, 4:14, 21 was read by Mrs. Simpson. The devotional Leaflet "The Spirit's Gift of Power" was read by Kathleen Giles.

Mrs. R. Fuller and Mrs. Mullin gave a report of the Missionary Rally held in Bancroft and they both made it very interesting for those who were unable to attend. The Study Book this year is "The New Africa, Mrs. Simpson gave the introduction by telling many things about the country and its people. Mrs. D. B. Fox closed the meeting with prayer. Lunch was served and a social time spent. A vote of thanks was given the ladies for the lunch and also to Mrs. Redner for her home and hospitality.

SMALLER TURKEYS

With the gradual disappearance of the old time roasting pan, the construction of smaller ovens and the increasing trend toward smaller apartments with limited kitchen space, a real need exists for a modern, stream lined, short-legged turkey of about which is more suited to 20th Century methods of living. It was pointed out by a local housewife today.

The day of the long-legged rangy fowl too large for the present up to date roasting pan has gone, it is declared.

Even buyers at present busy through the country making their purchases to fill expected Christmas and New Year's orders are particular about selecting the short, chunky bird, modelled on more modern lines.

The trend is toward smaller turkeys on the part of the breeder. Grandmother of the present generation found little difficulty in roasting to a turn a bird weighing 24 pounds and more, but the modern ideal is one weighing from 12 to 20 pounds.

Fashion Flashes

(By Alice Aiden)

(Copyright 1935 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Neat effect is that given by a turtle model for evening wear. It has a trailing skirt of black velvet, a fitted jacket of black taffeta with a white satin blouse pleated in front and topped by a high white collar and a black bow tie.

Sweet violets appear in all the shops as dresses and ensembles of these flowers are receiving extreme importance. A lovely frock of violet wool, simply styled with the slightest fagoting is worn with a short flaring carcaul coat lined with the violet wool.

Something nice and new is a short coat made of ostrich feathers, in evening fashion. The foundation is net and the ostrich fringe is sewed on. The sleeves are short length, and the coat comes in several colors as well as black.

Maybe it's going to be a cold Winter in some parts, and so we will welcome a copy of Gauntlet's new gloves. These are of leather via the Indie; the outside is of fur.

Years bite and so does human nature. Folks forget the next generation are of metallic cloth and are designed to add charm and freshness to a simple black frock. One big collar is of white and silver cloth with rhinestone buttons.

Hands out to hold a smart bag. A nice model is of brown antelope suede, and swings from a belt. It has circle motifs fashioned of small carnelian stones held by embroidery stitches.

(Napanee)

Joseph Dowling, 81, died at his home in Bracebridge Township on Tuesday. A native of Camden, he had farmed in Lennox and Adding ton County for the greater part of his life. His wife died three years ago. Surviving are one son, Mark Dowling, and two daughters.

Kansas City, Nov. 13 (CP) — Unwell Earl, 34, is casting his third set of teeth, pointing with pride to four new teeth marking through his gums. He lost his second set about 20 years ago.

DETROIT TIGERS OWNER, DIES, 64

mond from the days of Ty Cobb down to Hank Greenberg.

News of his death hit like a thunderbolt at the time he had made baseball a big business from April to October.

The Jazz Age Tiger Town, who knew all the details of Navin's baseball story from the turn of the century, had hailed him with louder cheers since the day he bought Mickey Cochrane for $180,000 from Connie Mack, of Philadelphia, and installed the popular catcher as manager of the Tiger Club.

Born of New Era

That was the dawn of a new championship era for Detroit baseball, brought on by league pennants and one world's championship, and shifted the seat of old American League baseball supremacy westward from the east.

One million home town fans began at the turnstiles into Navin Field in the 1912 season, the richest in Navin's years of baseball ownership.

Navin was born April 18, 1871, in Adrian, Mich., one of nine children of Thomas and Ann Crotty Navin, natives of Ireland.

He studied law, but persuaded Thomas H. Navin, small-million-aire lumberman to join with him in the purchase of the Detroit Baseball Co., in 1902. He took over the management of the Club and thereafter devoted all his time to building it up to the world championship it finished this year, when the Tigers beat Chicago Cubs in the World Series.

RELIEF SOUGHT FROM RELIEF

expected during the winter, said Mayor Wesley Gilbert, that the seasonal work was found to slacken.

The total number falling comfronting London was a sum of $1,352,000 for relief, and the city officials were unable to pay taxes at the present rate, let alone at an increased rate. The city has not funded any direct relief costs.

Premier Leads Way

Accompanying increased outlay by the city in direct relief were increased demands for old age pensions and mothers' allowances, said Mr. Wright, and the result was that green had cost a large sum and had not been collected.

"We rest it is a national problem," said the London mayor.

Mayor J. A. Brown of Kitchener also said the unemployment problem was a national one. The city has one.

In the last few weeks there had been a decided decrease in the number of persons on relief in Kitchener, the mayor said. There is a pickup of industry. The total however, is still close to the all-time peak and he looked for an increase during the winter.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Nov. 13—(AP)— The stock market was somewhat dull but selective support today as sellers of the previous session appeared. Gains predominated an overnight change of heart.

Among fabrication stocks, aside from firmness in International Nickel, fractional improvement was recorded by McIntyre, Dome and Canadian Pacific. On the curb, similar improvement was shown in Distillers Corp-Seagrams, Hiram Walker and Lake Shore.

Dominion government bonds rallied sharply. Canadian funds gained 1-8 of a cent at 98 7-8 cents.

Shares of Bethlehem Steel rallied more than 2 points on the company's shipyard activities received attention. International Nickel gained as much in a relatively heavy turnover. Bright earnings guidance locations for the nickel concern aided the demand for the issue.

Radio B and Paramount Bank Note added 3 points or so to their Tuesday's sharp improvement was shown by U.S. Steel, Western Oil, Chas. Association Can, North American Aviation, Cerro De Pasco, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Chesapeake and Ohio and Southern Dealers, Schenley and Louisville and Nashville. Stock Marks as Clayton, General Motors, American Telephone and Western Union were about even. Corn Products and Air Reduction were down around a point and Coca-Cola dropped nearly 4.

POWERLESS TO COLLECT DEBTS IN BRITAIN

Ottawa, Nov. 13 (CP)—Opening the door to a volume of applications for refunds from British income, a judgment has been handed down by the Exchequer Court of Canada in a test case ruling the Minister of National Revenue had no power to collect dumping duties on good entering Canada from Britain since Nov. 16, 1932, following the Canada-United Kingdom trade agreement.

Board Room Gossip

BOARD ROOM MARKETS

RED LAKE ON DIVIDEND RAISE BOOM

In well informed circles it is stated that the management will soon announce the distribution of a 25 cent dividend. It is suggested also that a small interim payment may be made out of 1935 profits and that the stock will be placed on a regular dividend basis next year.

Since the mine went into production there have been dividends totalling $430,000. Current production is estimated at over $60,000 and $70,000 a month or on a yearly basis of over $720,000 of which there should be a good profit.

Underground developments are progressing satisfactorily. Diamond drilling from the 450-ft. level is stated to have picked up what is considered to be the downward extension of the vein, and from the south vein branching from the west vein.

HOWEY GOING DEEPER

Howey Gold Mines has commenced sinking a winze from the 1500-ft. level to 2000 feet where a new level will be opened up. On the 1600-foot level diamond drilling has indicated a commercial ore-body from the south vein. This horizon is now receiving attention and operation, as the level has shown a large amount of well mineralized quartz. New ore from the 750-foot level has been made available for the 100 ton mill on the plant.

The recent noticeable improvement in public sentiment is based on solid foundations. Not only is business improving steadily but with the Liberal Government returned to power in the Dominion with the United States, and with the prospect of additional tariff reductory trade arrangements with other countries, particularly Great Britain and Japan, the prospect is for steady betterment which the market is reflecting.

The rise in the liquor stocks yesterday is predicated on the reciprocal trade treaty with the United States. One of the items that will receive preference is cheese. liquor. At the present time, the tax on liquor imports into the United States is $5.00 a gallon which has precluded any large shipments going across the line. Likewise with Ohio duty, which is in prospect will greatly facilitate such shipments and doubtless will enable the Canadian companies to compete in the American market. The duty on bottled in bond matured whiskey on this side would rapidly find their way to the United States in the event of an appreciable cut in the duty.

LIQUOR STOCKS STRONG ON POSSIBILITIES OF REDUCTION IN DUTY

There seems to be a strong feeling that included in the proposed reciprocity agreement between the United States and Canada, a proposal will be made whereby the duty on whiskey entering the former country will be reduced. Informed liquor trade circles still make a difference of $7.50 a case.

STANDARD STATISTICS CO. continue their advices to clients on the stock market, advising no change in invested position pending recommending, as in the past, that moderate cash reserves should be held to take advantage of additional buying opportunities. "The certainty that a cyclical recession in business will occur justifies substantial representation in selected common stocks on moderate recessions and declines within this major movement should be availed of as opportunities to realize profits on outstanding issues, to improve portfolios, cutting down holdings of issues which have run rapidly and building up representation in issues which predictably earning prospects warrant higher prices." In view of the recent bear market action during which virtually holding companies, the rating on a new power to collect dumping duties on good entering Canada from Britain since Nov. 16, 1932, following the Canada-United Kingdom trade agreement.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, Nov 13— Butter and potato markets advanced here yesterday. Eggs were steady to a trifle easier and cheese and poultry were steady.

The produce market was 1-3 cent higher than on 1. nday, being 30 to 28 1-4c per lb. for No. 1 cartons of fresh creamery, 27 3-4c for No. 2 and 27c for No. 3. Possibility that lower duties on Danish butter will be included in the trade pact with the United States prompted the cabinet situation in the butter market. Small lots to the retail trade were quoted by wholesale house firm at 30c for solids and 31c for cartons.

On the egg mar. ket demand was none too brisk with retail sales reported unrelated by prevailing high levels. Graded shipments in lots of 121, lots tended regular at 45c for A-large 40-41c for A-mediums, 36-37 for A-pullets, 33c for B, and 26c for C.

The cheese market was generally steady. Receipts were 1,200 boxes. Receipts, 434 boxes.

ALL CONTENDERS DURING SEASON FIGHT INJURIES

Fortunate Coaches Have Had Replacements to Fill Bill

QUEEN'S STAR OUT

Johnny Munro Sustains Sprained Ankle After Game

By ELMER DULMAGE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The number of star players, who will be missing when Saturday's titular football engagements is brought to bring tears from any union of coaches along the eastern front, but Ted Reeve of Queen's will be handed all surplus crying towels if his Johnny Munro isn't able to get out there to feed the trickey sparks University of Toronto.

Munro, brilliant kicking halfback, is in a Kingston hospital today with a sprained ankle, that he didn't get in a football game. He turned it while walking a few hours after Queen's played an exhibition game against Ottawa Rough-riders Monday. If it's a bad sprain, Queen's hopes of retaining the Intercollegiate title will be blasted before the game starts.

Most of football's leading contenders that will have been jolted by injuries, yet it is a fact that most of them still are contenders. Somehow they discovered replacements for the injured and went on to win ball games. But Reeve hasn't another Johnny Munro—not that he knows of, anyway.

Sarnia Favored

It looked like the end for Sarnia Imperials when they lost Normie Perry and Alex Hughes, shoulders, and Bob Molley, snap, on their western pre-season tour. Perry had no squad as an injury filled ball-carrier and Hayes was a ranking quarter, Molley the best lineman in the O.R.F.U.

But it turned out all right. Rocky Parsons, who hadn't showed anything great in three seasons, became a genius in Perry's place. Arnie McWhister, just out of High School, went in at Hughes and did a bang-up achieved stardom. The centre of that great imperial wing-line has been the only one unplugged.

So Sarnia is favored to win the O.R.F.U. title again—and maybe win more than that. Until a few days ago Sarnia had not conceded a chance to topple the Ingersoll-Tillsonburg club from the opening. Forward passing and play-directing for Sarnia broke down badly in practice and was helped into bed with a broken shoulder.

The result is Sarnia is expected to gain a decision over Ingersoll-Tillsonburg in the first game of their two-game playoff Saturday at Toronto and perhaps finish the second game well in front on total points. Coach Alex Poulton wasn't lucky enough to have another Rocky hanging around.

Tigers Can Win

Hamilton Tigers drifted along to nowhere in the four race semi with Frank Turville, No. 1 backfield man, out for the season with occasional bursts of brilliance, were down and out with a broken collar bone. It looked like the end for the Tigers. It turned out to be just the beginning.

Buck Welch, who hadn't been kicking very well, was given a shining chance, stepped into the top flight at once. When this season is over, we may be credited with being the East's outstanding halfback. He can't be overlooked by the with Toronto Argonauts for the leadership and the title may be decided Saturday, when Tigers play Montreal and Argos face Ottawa.

Argos are a dangerous team and there from injuries, the most serious casualty being Andy Mullan, a three-letter quarter, who broke a small bone in his wrist. But Warren Bankston quickly pulled the Scullers down. Young Annis Stukus has been doing a remarkable job in Mullan's place.

PITTSBURG WINS FROM CLEVELAND

Victory Gives Squad Leadership of Western Division

By The Canadian Press

International League hockey has completed two moves toward bigger and better things in the minor league and both seem to promise success. The pro game was introduced to a new city—Rochester and last night returned to Pittsburgh after a three-year absence.

When Detroit Olympics defeated Windsor 2-1 at Detroit 6,000 looked on; 1,800 saw London defeat Cincinnati at Rochester and 4,000 hailed the game's return at Pittsburgh, three Shamrocks won 6-5 from Cleveland Falcons.

Bulldogs were outclassed at Detroit but uncovered a hero in Earl Robertson, who tended goal so brilliantly all Olympics could get were goals by Gordon Pettinger and Burr Williams in the second and third periods. Duke McDonald gave the Windsor team a lead they failed to hold in the first period.

Pittsburgh, undefeated in two starts, took over leadership of the western section by their victory over Falcons in the high-scoring game. After they scored half way through the first they were never headed and at one time led 6-3

Billy Burch led Shamrocks to their win, scoring three goals and Stanley Kops two. Eddie Mc Dougall and Desse Roche aided with the other markers. Frank Daley was Cleveland's high scorer with two and Bill ps Crowe, Mike Brophy and Mike Hallidey got the others.

Bill Kendall, former Black Hawk, took a pass from George Lever in a goal-mouth melee seven minutes from the final whistle to give London their win. Old Rabbi McVeigh got Londen's first goal late in the opening period and LaFrance tied the score only a minute later.

The Tecumsehs were a better team on the night's play and only the stout Canada defence kept them from running up a higher score.

O'MAHONEY DENIES MARRIAGE

Milwaukee, Nov. 12 (AP)—Danny O'Mahoney, world heavyweight wrestling champion, denied last night that he was married, and said he was in New York on Oct. 26, the day, he was reported, he had been wed to Miss Julia Esther Burke in Cambridge, Mass.

A despatch from Cambridge today stated a marriage return file with the Cambridge City Clerk showed the marriage was performed by Rev. Francis Murphy at St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church.

"We've engaged and plan to be married, but I don't know when," the wrestler said before a match here. "I'm only 23 years old, and I think a little of time to think about marrying."

HAYES

Injuries may have taken their toll of the team's star players and opposition both in the east and west is undoubtedly strengthened, but between injuries and the Big Four Canadian football championship they will put up a rousing defence. Though the roster was so depleted by accidents that Coach Measnod was early compelled to bar most of his regulars from the practice game the team morale is high and the husky

Belleville Hockey Club to Enter Kingston City League

Eddie Thomas Has The Nucleus of a Smart Team

Eddie Thomas manager of the Belleville Hockey Club announced today that his club had been entered in the Kingston City League City Hockey League, along with five other teams. After a lapse of one year the senior Kingston City Hockey League is being revived and operated under the same system that was in vogue during the hey day of hockey, when the Belleville Civic Service team was tops and capacity crowds jammed the local rink. Harry Lumley is hoping of seeing a Belleville team's defeat.

After carefully considering several invitations to enter his team into the Kingston league, Manager Thomas answered Kingston queries in the affirmative today and will have his team in readiness to battle in Kingston prior to the opening of the league schedule, which is slated to be some time next week. The Belleville team will be the class of the loop, owing to negotiations between the club and the Ottawa City League. The six teams composing the loop will play games on the nights slotted the schedule of the Kingston City League.

Belleville's entrance into the league was announced by Manager Thomas announced he has secured the services of Don Mercer, ex-Campbellford goalie, for netminding duties, while Harry Pearson, the local defence will be in reference for the past few years, will be available for the league's use next year in a local uniform. both Mercer and Pearson are now residing in Stirling. Barney York or Trenton will line-up with Ingram to form the Belleville defence with possibly Alex Weir as the third member of the rear guard. We don't know just what front line material is available, but there are the three Morgan boys, Pete, Carl and Harry, Cy Barriage, Jack Connors, Doug Powers and Archie Hughes of last year's team. Then again I understand there are two or three good hockey players now residing at the Trenton Air Port as well as whatever material is available out of the Trenton Town League, so it looks as though we will have a team good enough to uphold the hockey traditions of old Belleville in the Kingston loop. Also included Manager Thomas. The recent sudden drop in temperature is bringing out the ice fiends and Belleville's minds towards the great Canadian winter pastime "King Hockey."

BOUTS PROPOSED WELL MATCHED

Joe Katelmach And Ali Hassan to Meet in Main Affair

Although no outstanding grudge bouts or personal feuds are slated to be settled in the Arena ring on Thursday night, three well-matched bouts have been secured and the contestants' contracts received by the local promoters. Due to the absence of pugnacious Walter Parnell, the timekeeper's watch will be safe from harm, but it is usually during these quiet methodical bouts, that the uninitiated hopping and shouting fan or a near riot arises out of a somewhat dreary affair.

Matchmaker Jack Pearl forwarded the signed contracts of the grapplers to the local promoters yesterday and all is in readiness for the big brawl Thursday night. It is difficult to explain, but whenever Irish Steve Taylor, local professional exponent of the limb-pulling art, is slated on a Belleville card, the attendance shows an increase through the turnstiles. Taylor is a crowd pleaser and does not always resort to the usual shady methods applied by some of his opponents, maybe that is why the fans like his style. Then again maybe it is because he has matched Jack Mahoney's famous Irish Whirl-bold. At any rate Steve tackles a tough hombre in Jim Wilkins who displayed his pugnacious wares versus Jack Parise last week.

The main bout of the night sees no ferocious men the calibre of Mahoney or Chief Lynx in Ali Hassan and Joe Katelmach the promoters have two superb strongmen, who wrestle somewhat alike inasfar as they both revert to their Herculean strength for victory. Doubtless the fans will be treated to a battle of ability to outwit opponent as the hands of strong tromancied men in this bout. George Richards, the Jewish lad who always drew a favoured crowd for his clean style work on the mat, will take on Chief Lynx in the semi-final go of a three bout card.

N. Y. RANGERS SCORE 2-1 WIN

Montreal, Nov. 13.—(CP)—A victory under their belts, New York Rangers today moved to their Madison Square Garden stamping grounds ready to clash with Toronto Maple Leafs tomorrow.

The Leader Patrick clan of veterans recorded their first victory of the 1935-36 National Hockey League season here last night in overcoming Montreal Canadiens 2-1 in an overtime struggle.

To witness Montreal's inauguration of the hockey season came about 4,500 spectators who saw early season form interspersed with real flashes of good playing. Interval mounted when four penalties of the game resulted in Referee Ace Bailey being forced to take advantage of man-power superiority.

From the stick of Glen Brydson, right winger, who played with his injured shoulder, came the deciding goal— one minute and 43 seconds before the end of the overtime period. Frank Boucher's shot was deflected by a Canadien defenceman onto Brydson's stick; the former St. Louis Eagle made no mistake as he drilled a power-packed shot past Wilf Cude inu the Canadiens' net.

IRISH WIN CUP FOR FIRST TIME

Horses And Men Gave Perfect Performance in Jump-off

New York, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The National Horse Show has gone for another year with the Irish jumpers of Ireland leaping to long-sought glory in the last night of brilliant competition.

Fifteen thousand spectators, the ermined ancestors and the stable boys, sent a thunder of acclaim through the long amphitheater of Madison Square Garden last night as the Irish Free State team defeated the teams of five other nations for the International Military Perpetual Challenge Trophy.

It was the fruition of seven years of trying, the Irish team having begun its quest ain 1928. In the final jump off the Irish team defeated the American team, four faults to 12, with the Chileans, third and the Canadians fourth. The latter team was tied with the French for last place but the French declined not to jump it off.

In the jump off, the officers of the Emerald Isle, Lieut. Dan Corbett and John G. Dwyer, gave an almost perfect exhibition of horsemanship as they sent their big mounts over the nine barrels.

United States, Chile and France had been favored to battle it out for the championship but the Irish surprised even their most enthusiastic followers. They sent three of their four months over the course in perfect form the last and when the United States did likewise it turned out to score two more o'car performances.

Although no authentic news has been received at the S.O.I. & Y.S. saying their O.O.S.B.A. playdowns in either the Junior or senior series, it is a foregone conclusion that the seniors will meet the Peterboro' O.C.I. seniors in the first round, the Lifflock City seniors having won the initial play-off game in the Lake Shore Group in Bowmanville. Although press reports state the Petes were lucky to win in the Robertsonville, it salutary follows the Petes should win at home. In the meantime, negotiations for the Shiels-coached tri-colored aggregation is practicing daily and hoping to be ready for the first O.O.S.B.A. fray. Coach Geo. Laughlin of the Collegiate junior squad expects some authentic information from Oshawa today in regard to proposed dates for the play off between the Lake Shore junior winners and the Bay of Quinte senior titleholders, which happen to be Oshawa C.C.I. and Belleville C.I. this year. While on the subject of intercollegiate football, we wish the coaches of senior squads every hustle along with their proposed all-star list for publication.

When the Peterboro' Orions come to town on Saturday it will be the Lifflock City's squads last game in the Lake Shore intermediate O.R.F.U. schedule this season. Incidentally the Orions have a one-side chance of getting into a post-season playdown game with either Belleville, but it seems to be very much outside the order to permit the Orions in such a tangle, that have to beat the locals here next Saturday, when the Lifflock Devils would have to lose two straight, one to Lindsay and one to Cobourg, something that does not really look possible. On the other hand, the comedy-coached Quinte squad stand a much better chance of getting into a play-off berth. At present the local aces are in the lead of the group with a home game versus Peterboro on Saturday and a game in Cobourg on the last day. Meanwhile the Oshawa squad entertains Cobourg on the first day and journeys to Lindsay to terminate the schedule. Actually it is on the cards that Lindsay game, the red and blue clad locals are pinning their hopes on, because the Quinte Orville squad feel they can trim the locals here, but they may not be in there into a group play-off. As a matter of fact, so do a lot of others, the Lindsay City crowd have had more than their share of luck, so let's hope it doesn't desert them.

In sequence to the success attained by the local punt sailors, President Maurice Hamilton has suggested that the members of the Belleville Athletic and Yacht Club attend their sailing meetings during the winter months and take up ice boating. "The boys may think summer sailing is keen and thrilling, but it is to be seen in ice boating. Ice boat racing for excitement," commented Percy Callaghan recently. It has been suggested that members of the Belleville Athletic and Yachting Club, that the same sails used for the punts could be converted into ice boats. Secretary Harry Chalk-ghan it is no great effort to build an ice boat, the runners and mast being the only essentials. Mr. Hamilton is very keen about the weekly ice boat races in the same manner in which our weekly punt races were conducted," suggested President Callaghan today. We would think the executive of the Belleville Athletic and Yacht Club should personally take up this suggestion and try to sponsor ice boating, even if only on a small scale this winter. If found to be successful the sport would advance upon its own merits in the future.

With the ever-rapidly approaching cold weather conditions, local wrestling matters will soon have to call off activities at the Arena until warmer weather sets in next June, that is the mandate two or three more shows may be held, for during Thursday night's trio we have Joe Katelmach in the Arena. This week's other bouts feature Ali Hassan, a match and Ali Hassan, the Terrible Turk and well muscled strongman, in the main attraction, if Hassan's mach can stumble over the Herculean Turk he will likely be pitted against Al Dunlop at some future date and then, if successful should keeping fit and ready for the C.O.S.B.A. fray. Coach Geo. ## POLLUTION IN WATER KILLING MANY FISH

Tilbury, Ont., Nov. 12 (CP) — Ukase Warden Arthur C. Stevens has notified the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries of a fish kill in the Canard River in the Thames River and Lake St. Clair which I believed has caused the death of thousands of fish in the Canard. Investigation is now under way in an effort to correct the situation and samples of water from the current pasing all sug-ar factories in Chatham have been taken for analysis, it was stated.

In addition to thousands of dead fish scattered along the banks of the river, it is reported, there are many hundreds of weakened they can be lifted from the water by hand. A small slip net only a few hundred feet long had been used.

D. Marchand, of the Tilbury Rod and Gun Club, who made a cursory examination of the situation, said he had never seen such a serious condition among the small fish. The cursory variety of which has been stricken by a strange malady.

"It would not describe it to say there were just thousands of them," he said. "There were millions. I never saw anything like it."

"Just hand this to your table steward at dinner tonight," Janie telling the card the man handed her ran the velvet ribbon through the cheeks of his small, scarred mouth. "Good evening," he said politely, and held open the door for her to go out.

"And in an hour from now," Janie told herself with precipitous confidence, "she'll have told everyone on this ship that I'm going in now for having a heavy crush on Doctor Barr!"

CHAPTER I.

DOCTOR MONA MOORE

The Reverend Amos Maidel—as seen the consolidated, absent eyes, and consequently of toilet—stood across the table and spoke.

"You—ah—read a good bit, I take it, Miss Madden?" he queried of Janie. "Really good things. I mean, of course, excepting, for instance, Ah, Browning! Striking the phrase most of the world has ever had to offer that any poet of his time!" The Reverend Amos paused, speaking a fact with delicate precision onto his plate. "A marvelous perception and a fashion touch!"

Janie, sitting silent in her chair, looked down the length of the long, narrow table, set with silver, and heavy white damask. Here and there was a small intimate table, complete with a rosy lamp, with a pink flower in a crystal vase. It was fantastic. It was exciting—but, for all her brave pretenses at enjoyment during the girl friend heard the was conscious of but one thing.... Of the Captain's big table at the entrance end of the salon and the clever, carefree group of young people who constantly surrounded him, until tonight, she had been so childishly, so absolutely happy.

She could see them quite clearly if she leaned a trifle forward in her chair. Mildred Madden, Janie's friend, with her slumberous glance and studied, languorous charm.... Lovely little Miss Tait, peering pixie-like through her bobbed hair.... Debby Lee, with her melody-haunted, notable, laughing.... The young married Arnolds, Jack and Gwendolyn, and less chatter. And Gregory Stewart.

From the moment she had entered the room tonight Janie had been conscious of young Mr. Stewart's unabashed admiration. She knew, guessing was making her own across the room. Now, at this distance the man's unspoken thoughts seemed stirring against her like currents of heat that she tried in vain to brush away. That he was laughing at her puppy-enthusiasm—contempt of her fury and her scorn—went without saying, and the memory of raging, the dull, implacable resentment which had glowed within the girl ever since she had taken up to go high-handed a fashion the evening before, had faded somewhat. She was merely coldly determined that young Mr. Stewart should have no further opportunity to speak to her at all.

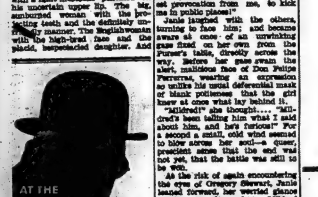
"Can you imagine anyone wanting to live in a city?" Doctor Barr's resonant, sweet voice was speaking now in Janie's ear. "I tell you, whenever I have to go to New York I spend all my time just holding refraining wheeks at people who seem possessed, without the slightest provocation from me, to kick me in private places!"

Janie laughed with the others, turning to face him; and became aware in terms of an unwilling gaze fixed on her own from the surgeon's table. Directly across the way, before her gaze swam the slant, malicious face of Don Felipe Ferrara, wearing his expression as unlike his usual deferential mask as Janie could possibly imagine that she knew at once what lay behind it.

"Mildred!" she thought.... "Mildred's been telling him what I said about him, and he's furious!" For a second a cold wind seemed to blow across her soul—a queer, prescient sense that the end was not yet, that the battle was still to be won.

As the risk of again encountering the eyes of Gregory Stewart, Janie leaned forward, her startled glance seeking the place where Mildred had sat—only to find the captain's stolid, honored bulk. Mildred—the fastidious, the unapproachable, the correct; yet who could be so bitterly imperious to everything except what he did not choose to see. Glamorous, golden-haired Mildred, of the beautiful crimson mouth and the heavy-lidded brown eyes.... Serenity came to was unified now in the captain's gaze, in approving, childlike glance. Watching her, Janie had a fleeting vision of Mark's worried eye, his sensitive, grave face, and felt a sudden sting of tears pricking behind her own lids. She was tired; and when one was tired everything was exaggerated in importance. There wasn't a thing to worry about, really. After all Mildred was just a child—a little patience and all the foolish tempers in a tempest would blow over....

Aware of a sudden stir among the guests about her, she came out of her miserable abstraction with a start. Dinner was over.



A girl was coming slowly down the grand staircase, her hand trailing calm to the desk above. A tall girl, with singularly brilliant eyes and a mass of the most astonishing red hair that Janie had ever seen. Her gown was made in a gown of peacock blue tulle, cleverly banded in purple and green; the flaring skirt revealed from the daringly cut bodice in families swirls, cleverly managed to conceal a doctor's long tail. Narrow gold sandals strapped her small feet. She wore no jewelry at all, save two wide bands of gold, encircling each while upper arm. The effect, while slightly bizarre, was not without a certain break-taking quality. "Like the slashing of cymbals," Janie thought. "Yet it suits her somehow, too! She's really amazing!"

"Miss Madden is a literalizer," the voice of Doctor Barr sounded with friendly warmth in Janie's ear. "And literalizers always read—don't that so, Miss Madden?"

Janie threw him a grateful glance, encouraging as rewarding the opaquely suspicious stare lurking behind the chocolate-colored foulard of the Reverend Amos' vest. The girl had slipped quietly into her place at the Doctor's table in the dining-room at dinner time, with a gracefully smiling and comments so characteristic naiveté as to give him the impression that she had been occupying the place since the beginning of the voyage. And Doctor Barr, the ship's surgeon, who had seen much in his time, and who nevertheless continued to be surprised at unusual people, had quietly headed her up in her efforts to carry off what might otherwise have been a difficult situation.

He had the medical man's quick, authoritative air of competence, combined with the wall-set-up shoulders and slim-waisted height of the man who follows the sea. He was not good-looking, not particularly young, but he had a fatherly solicitous manner and a shrewd, kindly smile. Usually he wore the unconsciously protective air of a man accustomed to humoring women. Janie had liked him from the first.

He had introduced her to the others at his table: The thin youth with a faint mustache patching his sun-burned upper lip. The shy, sunburned woman with the protruding teeth and the definitely unhappy manner. The Englishwoman with the high-bred face and the plaid, bespectacled daughter. And

It is much easier to prevent a cold than to stop one. Even a slight cold is the forerunner of many and serious complications. When you are threatened with a cold, the thing to do is to act at once. It is promptly for what it is—an internal infection.

BRITAIN WARNS AGAINST PROPAGANDA IN EGYPT

Fresh Rioting Breaks Out Gov't Says Situation Is Still 'Well in Hand'

Outrages Charged Against Italians by Ethiopians

Britain Has as Yet Taken No Action as to British Troops

PROPAGANDA SPREAD

Direct Accusation of Italy Has Not Been Made by Britain

(By Gayle Talbot)
(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press)

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 14.—(AP)—A British officer and one rioter is dead and wounded three others seriously today, it was announced officially, amid tension arising from serious anti-British demonstrations.

Earlier reports said all four demonstrators died under the fire of the officer, who suffered minor head injuries himself in a clash with a party of Egyptians advancing on Cairo from nearby Giza.

Authorities said the officer involved in the incident was named Rimbault Lear.

The advancing body, armed with sticks and branches and estimated by authorities at number 1,000, was met by a force of 300 police whose warning shots failed to halt their march.

Situation Promptly Fled

The British officer, the police, fired into the crowd. The marchers broke and burned and fled.

The shooting brought the total number of deaths in the anti-British demonstrations to four.

A reduction of the troops in the original disorders yesterday showed three dead and 20 wounded.

Armed police patrolled the streets of Cairo today.

A tour of Cairo hospitals disclosed more than 100 members of Egypt's powerful Wafd Party, including the resignation of the government and an end to British "domination" of the Kingdom's affairs, suffered injuries ranging from gunshot wounds in the leg to cracked skulls in the first clashes with the authorities.

Demand Independence

The disorders which started during the Cairo celebration yesterday of Egypt's "Independence Day", spread to various other towns by evening Tanitah and Beni Sief where police fired into the crowds. Three were wounded at Tanitah.

The party adopted a resolution before the Prime Minister retires, the Wafdist Movement would refuse to cooperate in any way with the governing of this nominally Independent Kingdom or with British authorities.

Authoritative sources believed if this program was carried out it might result in a movement similar to India's Civil Disobedience Campaign, hampering Great Britain's efforts to enforce sanctions against Italy for her war on Ethiopia.

The first days disorders came to a climax last night with a great fire started

Newfoundland Pups Mistaken For Black Bears at Cannifton

OUT FOR EXERCISE

"Bears," commented Mr. Chas. Mills, Cannifton, last Tuesday morning when a hunty appeared at the back of his premises about the size of half grown bruins ambled slowly across the plowed fields of his farm.

"And then again they might not be bears. I've never seen any around here before. But I haven't seen any black dogs about that big either", he added as he surveyed the animals at about a distance of forty yards. Before he could investigate closer the pair had disappeared, across the adjoining farm of Mr. Yarrow.

The "bears" it was learned today which had excited the curiosity of Cannifton residents were a pair of Newfoundland pups owned by Mr. Pallante, Cannifton. They had been let out for exercise and had promptly disappeared, leading their owner and believers in many others before reappearing. The pups, it was stated, will be entered in competition at the Royal Winter Fair dog show.

"I only hope in the meantime, or if they get home safely, that no one around Cannifton takes a shot at them; they're harmless kittens," stated the owner, Mr. Pallante, today.

Girl Trying to Break Into Pictures "Goes Native" on Catalina Island

Avalon, Santa Catalina Island, Nov. 14—(AP)—Right here on Catalina, a modern Miss Crusoe was found today.

Constable Tinch Morichi discovered the girl, a young woman, curled up fast asleep, while a dog stood guard over her and a baby mountain goat lay nearby. She unfolded strange story.

"My name," she said, "is Alice St. Helens. My home is in Indianapolis. I am an orphan. I came to California hoping to enter motion pictures. But I spent all my money on transportation and living expenses in the futile weeks in Hollywood. I found a deserted island native at Catalina.

"From my child drew, I made pets for dinners. For warmth, I wore three pairs of sleeping garments underneath my trousers and sweater.

"For a few days it was wonderful. But the cold nights brought suffering to me and my little dog. And I found it difficult to obtain food, so I was forced to ask for handouts at homes on the mainland and Avalon."

Tho constable gave her a warm coat and a little advice. Miss St. Helens started looking for a job.

Anti-British Propaganda Stirs British Gov't

(by Paul-Louis Bret, Copyright 1935 by The Havas News Agency)
London, Nov. 14. (CP-Havas)—Urgent representations will be made in Rome by British Ambassador Sir Eric Drummond informing Premier Mussolini unequivocally Britain will no longer tolerate inflammatory propaganda in Egypt, it was said here today.

Declaring Italy has fed the flames of anti-British feeling in Egypt, government officials were quick to point out strong protests were made to the government at Rome as far back as last September when Premier Mussolini told Ethiopia Ethiopia were exciting native populations in the eastern Mediterranean.

The British have not accused Italy of directly starting the trouble but they are convinced anti-British propaganda was broadcast in Arabic from the big Italian radio station at Bari, in Italy's eastern Adriatic, and Italy has done much propaganda in An Italian colony of 90,000 in Egypt has also helped spread the propaganda, it was claimed.

FORMAL SIGNING MATTER OF HOURS

Premier King on Way to Washington to Sign Trade Agreement

Washington, Nov. 14—(AP)—Formal signing of the Canada-United States reciprocal trade treaty, designed to increase commercial interchange between the two countries, awaits only the arrival of Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Making his second trip to Washington within a week, Mr. King is due here tomorrow especially to ratify the agreement which he and President Roosevelt reached last week.

Secretary of State Hull will sign for the United States with the formal ceremony taking place shortly after Mr. King's arrival.

Just what tariff concessions will be granted under the treaty is unknown but already lumber, livestock, fish and other products of the two countries are affected.

Canada also is expected to benefit from the signing of the pact by United States duty reductions on Canadian exports of farm commodities be lowered.

The reciprocal trade law of 1934 authorizes the United States President to reduce tariffs by as much as 50 per cent where there are concessions by other nations. How many articles will be benefited by the agreement with Canada will not be known.

BELLEVILLE GIRLS HELD IN MONTREAL 2 MEN ARRESTED

Party Found in Rooming House Late Wednesday Night

MEN ADMIT THEFT

Three Unloaded Revolvers Found in Cupboard in Room

Montreal, Nov 14—(CP)—Two unnamed men were being held at police headquarters today for questioning in connection with the kidnapping of three young girls from their Belleville, Ont., home.

The girls, aged 12, 13 and nine, were found in a downtown rooming house with the men last night, when police went in the house to investigate a complaint by a sister of the girls, a Montreal woman.

Police communicated with officials of Belleville and of Hamilton, Ont., where the men are wanted for robbery. Following arrest last night of the men, police said they confessed robbing a Hamilton butcher shop of $040 and implicated his companion.

Met in Belleville

Taken by detectives with the three girls following their arrest, the men stated they had met one of the girls in Belleville some time ago and after coming to Montreal they persuaded her, with her consent, to come here. She brought two girls, who also wished to go, and the men were ordered to leave Belleville at once that same night, when two other girls who had disappeared from their home returned, police said.

The men admitted they gave his age as 21 and said y was a native of Saint John, N.B. The other, who told police he was from Vancouver, was 20 years old.

Three unloaded revolvers found hidden in a cupboard in the room, police said, were the property of the men who gave their names as Ernest Cardinal, reports of their criminal stating, that three Belleville girls were being detained in Juvenile Court in that city and requested, that the police hold the girls there. It was stated, that the police will not take any further action, it being left to the parents of the girls to bring them home. Two of the girls are sisters.

The police further stated that two men had been in company with the girls at the time of their arrest. Plainclothesman Fred Izard of the Belleville police force, said one of the girls now held to the station, had previously been notified that the two men accompanying the girls were wanted by the police, while the girl was returned to her parents.

This week the police again received notice, that the girl had left the home. The police were notified of the departure of the two girls, and it was during their absence by information received from Montreal today.

Belleville, Nov. 14 (CP)—Police today confirmed the report Montreal authorities were holding Hamilton men for identification as suspects in recent robberies here. Fingerprints and description are availed here, and detectives hope to find the men with them of a safe from the John Duff Company.

About a month ago the strongroom door of the safe was torn from the Duff office and the thieves were sighted by a police car and pursued through the streets. They retreated to the country southeast of the city and there smashed the safe open beneath a culvert.

Will Rogers Pictures Record High Earnings

New York, Nov. 14 (AP)— Will Rogers in death is getting a new record for earnings of his motion pictures.

The picture "Steamboat Round the Bend," released after Rogers crashed to his death in Alaska, has "stirred a wave of interest" over pictures he made 20 per cent, Twentieth Century Fox Films said today.

This leisurely "war" in Ethiopia, which, according to correspondents, is not yet a war but soon will be, goes on apace, with Italy not possessing with much opposition, as the continues her slow advance into the interior. Above, the only determined stand the Ethiopians are taking is a guerilla fashion as the ABOVE picture illustrates. Familiar with street

Newspaper Woman Relates Thrilling Story of Rescue From Sinking Freighter

Three Sailors Cited For Th sir Heroism in Rescuing Her —Boat Broken in Two After Striking Reef—Forced to Spend Over Three D ays on Wreck Before Rescue Effected.

By Mrs. Winifred Scott Stanhope
Written For The Associated Press

Manila, P.I., Nov. 14—(AP)— I was in bed when the Silverhazel grounded at 7 o'clock last Saturday morning.

There was a scraping sound, a little shock and then five blasts of the whistle sounded.

George, my husband, and I went to the foredeck. We were there when about two thirds of the ship broke away and sank an hour later. Before it sank attempts were made to launch two lifeboats. Waves smashed them.

All Saturday and Saturday night we remained on the ship, mostly lying on the deck where we were sheltered from the waves. Saturday night two ships passed by us but failed to respond to our flares.

Whenever we were hungry or thirsty, we opened cans of salmon or milk, or ate candy bars which we obtained in the hold. Rain was our only drinking water but we had plenty of brandy.

Chief Engineer P. J. Clayton sang for us with a Scottish burr. We joked, were silenced when extra big waves crashed about the wreck. But later we sang again. We never were in panic and as far as I know nobody prayed.

Sunday Captain H. A. Lennard reached the rock 12 feet away on a cargo boom. Later a breeches buoy was rigged up and we all went to the rock which was about 30 feet long, deciding it was safer there.

Sunday night two ships again failed to respond to our flares.

Boat Locates Wreck

Early Monday an interisland steamship, the Governor Taft, turned her searchlights on the wreck. We cheered wildly. The skipper had seen the lighthouse keepers bonfires. Soon afterwards the Japanese freighter Nissan Maru arrived.

Tuesday morning when the destroyer Peary arrived, there were six ships hanging around but all had failed repeatedly to get boats or a line to us.

When a big wave broke over the deck Tuesday the captain decided we had better return to the wreck-ship. Then the crew started building rafts from the lumber in the deck-load.

Escape by Rafts

One raft broke away Tuesday night. Three Lascar seamen jumped into the water, swam to it and paddled safely ashore. They carried them towards the ships instead of toward the high cliffs of San Bernardino Island on which the lighthouse was situated, we were encouraged. We decided to try to escape by rafts Wednesday morning.

Sixteen officers and third officer Smith were first. Thirty one others were preparing to leave when the raft broke loose and the officers drifted for everybody to the shore.

We jumped about 20 feet into the water. Nine swam to the raft and the rest got hold of planks. George reached the raft and I clung to a plank.

I never could have made it if Edward G. Harding and H. A. Mathewson and Boatswain Mate Saunder had not helped me. I was in the water about 25 minutes and was unconscious at the end.

We lost all of our clothes and a new automobile we were taking to Manila.

ATTEMPT IS MADE TO PUT OUT FIRE

Garbage Dump Blaze Causes Annoyance to Citizens

Thousands of gallons of water forced through over 1,500 feet of hose line were used by firemen of the local department yesterday afternoon at the west city dump in an effort to quench the subterranean fires that have been eating their way steadily underground since last May.

Whether this latest attempt to extinguish the blaze will be successful remains to be seen, it was stated by Fire Chief Lynch, resulting in many other visits to the dump this summer, when much water and time was consumed to check or kill the invisible flames.

Continuous complaints have been received by city council and the department during the past six months or so from west hill residents annoyed by the smoke from the dump and the disagreeable odors emanating. This has been particularly bothersome, when south winds have carried the smoke across the city.

"One of the things that hamper us in our effort to put the flames fires out is the fact, that dump pickers and workers are continually lighting new ones. When we arrived there yesterday one worker had a big blaze going for no apparent reason at all," declared Chief Lynch.

KING OF GREECE NOW ON WAY HOME

Leaves England to Take Over Throne Vacated 13 Years Ago

LONDON, Nov. 14.—(AP)— King George II of Greece left today for Paris, first stage of his journey homeward to resume his throne.

The monarch, with the British Royal family, headed by the Prince of Wales, waved farewell to the restored monarch as his train pulled out from Victoria Station at 11 a.m.

The Duchess of Kent, a cousin of King George, and her husband, joined the Prince of Wales and the Duke and Duchess of Kent at the farewell celebration.

Others on the platform to bid goodbye to the 63-year-old monarch, were Prince Paul of Yugoslavia, Sir Samuel Hoare, British Foreign Secretary, the French and Belgian Ambassadors, and Greek dignitaries.

SENATOR GRAHAM FOR WASHINGTON IS THE REPORT

Brockville Publisher Would Make Ideal Minister to U. S.

WELL KNOWN LIBERAL

Announcement of Appointment May Be Made Today

Ottawa, Nov. 14—Rt. Hon. Senator George P. Graham, seasoned Liberal statesman and publicist, one of the most effective, as well as the most picturesque figures in the public life of the Dominion, is stated to be Canada's next minister plenipotentiary to Washington.

His appointment may be announced Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King after cabinet council to night. If, however, the pressure of matters connected with the session prevents, it is understood, he will be laid over until Mr. King's return from his southern holidays.

Senator Graham, nevertheless, is declared from high cabinet quarters to be definite. The belief of the Government is that in the genial Brockville publisher-senator-ex-M. P." it has hit upon an ambassador qualified by long experience, tact and personality to fill the important attention to the important matters which will arise between the two countries during the next few years.

The appointment will come to Mr. Graham as the crowning distinction of an unusually varied public career. By profession a journalist, Mr. Graham has piled his pen mainly for eastern Ontario publications, having been associated editor of the old Ottawa Free Press and also managed papers in Brockville and Morrisburg. He still writes frequent editorials in the Brockville Recorder. His political career commenced in the Ontario Legislature in the days of Mowat, and under Sir George Ross he became provincial secretary.

Subsequently, upon the defeat of the Liberal ministry, he was for a brief period leader of the provincial opposition. He was elected to the Commons in 1907 and joined the Laurier ministry. Meeting defeat in the reciprocity election of 1911, he returned to the House of Commons the following year. When Premier King took office in 1921 he became minister of Militia and Defence and subsequently Minister of Railways and Canals. In 1931 he was created an Imperial Privy Councillor. He is also a member of the Senate since 1926.

Without a Bitter Enemy

Reputed on Parliament Hill to be one of the few public men in Canada without a bitter enemy, Senator Mr. Graham is highly regarded by all political parties for his shrewd common sense and his faculty of getting things done in a quiet, unobtrusive way. This latter quality is looked upon as one of his most important qualifications for diplomatic office. In addition to his abilities, he has a genial and courtly personality which will accord well with his function of representing the friendship people.

Mr. Graham is one of the distinguished group of veteran statesmen —C. H. Cahan, Sir George Perley, R. B. Bennett and others—who on Parliament Hill is justifiably proud he is in his 76th year. His appointment will not mean his retirement from active public life, however, that for the period during which he is in Washington he will draw his Senatorial indemnity.

Some ten days ago Prime Minister King made it known that he had proferred the Washington post to John W. Dafoe, well-known editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, who, however, was unable to accept it. It is believed that following Mr. Dafoe's refusal Hon. Newton Wesley Rowell, an acknowledged expert in international affairs was considered, but that the Government's leader, who, too, would be unable to entertain it.

CONVENTS BROKEN OPEN BY ITALIANS, CHARGE IS MADE

"Conscience of World Will be Shocked" Says Official Communique

SLAVERY DENIED

Ethiopian Monks Urge People to Flee to Desert

Addis Ababa, Nov. 14.—(AP) — The Ethiopian Government today issued an official communique charging the invading Italian soldiers with violating Ethiopian sanctuary at Aduwa, Akaum, Adigrat, and Abba Garnia—cities occupied by the Italian troops advancing from the north.

"Some of these acts," stated the communique, "will shock the conscience of the civilized world. Some of the Italian soldiers are violating even the wives of Ethiopian priests.

"Thousands of Ethiopians are fleeing from occupied territory hoping to rejoin their comrades to the south.

"Italian soldiers have entered convents and looted and slaying Sisters.

To The Desert

"Under the persuasion of Ethiopian monks, the natives are deserting Aduwa, Akaum, Adigrat, and other towns and fleeing to the desert rather than be subject to the Italian outrages."

The government today issued an official denial of Italian charges declaring the emancipation of 14,000 slaves in the occupied provinces of Tigre and the surrender of many others was the "attacking armies."

Declaring "16,000 slaves have been emancipated by the whole province, of which 14,000 have been occupied by the Italian army, "the communique said that the occasion is opportune to call a conviction and sentencing of Italian citizens "for immorality and traffic in slaves during the Imperial crisis".

Regarding the Italian claim that Ethiopian chiefs, soldiers, and civilians have surrendered the communique states:

"With reference to caution with which Italian military operations are being carried out in a territory of such an Ethiopian troops as well as the daily bombing of Ethiopian towns how unfounded are such statements."

WEATHER

Toronto, Nov. 14 (CP)—An area of high pressure and cold weather has settled in the Canadian prairies over the western provinces to the Ontario border. Pressure is also high from the Great Lakes northeastward to Labrador, and with rain or snow prevailing in the Atlantic Coast, has caused northwest winds and snow and colder weather in Canada with snow and rain in Quebec and the Maritime Provinces.

Northern Georgian River: Northerly winds; partly cloudy and becoming somewhat colder with scattered snowflurries in south portion.

Manitoba: Northwest winds; fair and quite cold.

Saskatchewan: Fair and quite cold.

Challenge to Women Today Aptly Presented to Club By Mrs. Hynes of Toronto

Problems which make up today's menaces to home were presented to the Women's Canadian Club at their luncheon meeting yesterday by Mrs. J. F. Hynes, Toronto, in an earnest, thoughtful address, that showed her intimate knowledge of present conditions.

The luncheon, served at the New Queen's Hotel, was one of the most successful functions held under the auspices of the club. The long table at which about one hundred guests were seated was adorned with shaggy grey chrysanthemums. The speaker's table being centred with these lovely blossoms in a silver filigree vase. Arrangements for the luncheon were in charge of Mrs. W. N. Ponton, Mrs. A. E. McCall and Mrs. C. E. Argue, and club members were much appreciative of the splendid work of this committee.

Mrs. H. Williams, president of the club, in a gracious little speech introduced the guest speaker. It was a pleasure, she said, to welcome to the club a distinguished daughter of Belleville. Mrs. Hynes had been president of the local Council of Women of Toronto for three years and her life has been particularly full and active.

Before To Happy Years

In replying to the welcome extended her, Mrs. Hynes referred to the happy years she had spent in Belleville, as a child and a young girl until she was nine years old. Here her first appreciation of architecture and music was born and nurtured and Mrs. Hynes spoke of Dean's cantata in which Mervin Doyle sang as the home of her youth. To return to Belleville at the invitation of the Women's Canadian Club was an honor she greatly appreciated.

Through her association with the local Council of Women, Mrs. Hynes had been for the past three or four years closely in touch with the problems of our civilization and had had a wider picture of conditions brought about by these trying and difficult years, than comes in the ordinary way in a very interesting manner, Mrs. Hynes showed how the challenge of today had been accepted by this organization, what the Council had done to bolster up conditions, and what it hoped to do and thus brought to the audience of her hearers the power of united effort. The loyal support of the whole hearted spirit of co-operation of her audience in the Local Council of Women were inspiring to Mrs. Hynes.

Strong Organization

Affiliated with many national women's associations, the National Council of Women is perhaps the strongest organization of women on the continent. Through Provincial Councils, problems are taken to provincial legislatures while Local Councils are the connecting link in the chain. Seventy-four organizations in Toronto are affiliated with the Local Council of Women and committees are appointed to deal with the work of the organization. Of these there have been a number particularly active in local affairs. The Economics, Child Welfare, Citizenship, and Moral Standards Committees have been doing the major work of the Council.

Speaking of some of the problems and success of the Local Council, Mrs. Hynes told of the Maternal Welfare Centres, the result of consideration of the appalling maternity death rate. Through these Welfare Centres women were given care during pregnancy and confinement, that mother and child would become healthful and useful citizens.

A difficulty faced by the Council was the pitiable conditions of women engaged in needlework trades. It was learned by investigation, and it has since been made public by the Price Spread Commission, that women were being paid nine and one half cents for making an elaborate dress.

Great Challenge

"As women, we must realize the great challenge we have here. We are the buyers" said Mrs. Hynes "and it behooves each one of us to think of the human cost of a garment."

Through the contribution of ten thousand dollars from women teachers of Toronto the administering of relief to unemployed girls took the form of paying their room rent and providing them with food in a way that saved their self respect. Also kept up their morale while tiding them over a very difficult period.

Mrs. Hynes was particularly interested in the home canning project of the Council. For the two years twenty-five thousand cans of fruit and vegetables annually have been canned and distributed to the needy by th. organization. A year ago the project was changed so that the Council members could work with those needing assistance and help them to help themselves. Out of this has grown and flourished the Little Mothers' Housekeeping Centre, and those associated with it have taken more joy in its work than anything else in their lives. Fifty families use it as a community centre. It has opened the doors of renewed self respect to them. Here the women assist in canning, are taught sewing and recreation is afforded the young people, the most heartening thing about the enterprise is that the people who are helped have caught the true spirit of the place and try to help others in power circumstances, although as Mrs. Hynes pointed out it was difficult to realize and going through harder times than they.

Tribute Paid Mrs. Kreed

To Mrs. Kreed, the wife of the Lieutenant-Governor, Mrs. Hynes paid sincere tribute to her great interest in welfare work. To the families about Little Trinity Church keeping Centre the remembrance of Mrs. Bruce's birthday will stand out as golden days. Each year fifty or fifty families, children and all were invited to a birthday party in the basement House. Mrs. Bruce brought her own her jewelled china, linen and silver. There was a birthday cake and all the trimmings and the children were bewildered with the unaccustomed happiest birthday of her life.

Training centres for girls desiring to learn homemaking and the housing question are other problems engaging the attention of the Council at present.

"There is a great amount of work to be accomplished and this can be done with unanimity of opinion behind us, with women inspired by the urge to work together," said Mrs. Hynes. "The great work of the past have shown that women will forget all prejudices to unite in a great cause. If women were to take up seriously two questions, moral and rial reform and peace, and work as one force, it would be difficult to realize how far reaching would be the results of their undertakings."

Quoting from Virginia Woolf's "A Room of One's Own," Mrs. Hynes said that a lecturer should begin with her audience one nugget of pure gold to wrap in the pages of their notes and keep on the mantel piece forever, and hoped her talk had given her hearers even a tiny nugget.

The appreciation of the audience for the thought-provoking address was expressed by Mrs. Williams,

Name William Carswell-Not Thomas as Given

In the news column headed Tweed and District the name of Thos. Carswell of Madoc appeared as having paid a fine of ten dollars on the charge of intoxication. It should have read William Carswell of Madoc. Mr. Thos. Carswell has been in New York for the past three months on business. The Ontario Intelligencer regrets any inconvenience has been caused Mr. T. Carswell by the above error.

LIKELY MAN WILL SEEK CITY HONORS

Although eleven days yet elapse before official nominations for various civic offices are held in the city hall, unofficial nominations are still being held on the streets and street corners in the downtown section.

Today new names were added to the list of those, who may enter the lists as aldermanic candidates at the coming civic elections. While no statement has been made by any of the mentioned candidates, the majority preferring to await until just previous to nominations to announce themselves, those most prominently mentioned to date as possible candidates in the aldermanic fields are Mr. Laurie Lewis, Clarence Clapp, Clifford Farrager, Ernest J. Baldwin, Ex-Alderman Harold Armstrong, Ex-Alderman Wm. A. Wonder; Hyland Logan and Isaac Stephenson. Two of those mentioned are named possible candidates for Mayoralty.

FOUR CHILDREN ARE TAKEN AS WARDS

Four children were made wards of the Children Aid Society at Madoc on Wednesday, according to Inspector T. D. Reston. The hearing was before Magistrate Wills of Northbrook. The children were brought to Belleville by the Inspector after the hearing.

W. H. REEVES TO ACT AS DOG JUDGE

Waller H. Reeves, well known dog fancier and judge at the principal shows on the American continent and resident of this city, has been invited to officiate at the coming dog show held in connection with the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto, commencing next week. This is one of the largest shows held in Canada and the competition is always existent. Mr. Reeves will be the senior judge, an honor well merited.

PICTON ARTIST IS PRIZE WINNER

Mr. Frank Boulter son of Dr. and Mrs. O. H. Boulter of Picton, has been notified that his name appears in the prize list of the Ontario College of Art. The prizes were given for the most artistic posters prepared for Book Week, sponsored by the Canadian Authors' Association. Mr. Boulter was awarded second prize.

Deer Hunters Have Little Luck This Year

Despite the fact that deer are reported plentiful this season, hunters of the city are having little luck in the bush. In many cases although days have been spent in the trails not a shot has been fired from their rifles. Trains, too, filling the swamps and low ground with pools of water are not responsible for the small kill. Several parties tunning in the vicinity of Millbridge and further north have returned home empty handed.

Licence Issuer Turns Art Collector

Mr. S. E. Vermilyea issuer of licenses for this district, is considering the possibility of framing some of the works of art, that are annually left on the counter by applicants for the licences now being issued.

After the business of applying for a license is a pretty nervous affair at best and the local caricaturers are a bunch of hon carbonnists and kept busy, it is believed.

How and then a real work of art is produced.

Salvationists Form Young People's Legion

A number of the young people of the Salvation Army and their friends have been organized in the meetings, which are held by the Young People's Legion under the leadership of Mrs. Bill Mackey.

On Monday evening the meeting opened with Song No. 1, a hymn followed by prayer offered by Major Jordan. The following officers were elected:

Honorary President: Major Jordan.

President: Eric Naylor.
Chaplain: Irene Thomas.
Secretary: Mary McCoy.
Treasurer: Roy Wards.
In charge of Suggestion Box: Nellie Collins.
Pianist: Dorothy Mitchell.

The members are divided in three groups namely:

(1) Fellowship: Under the leadership of Mrs. Jordan.
(2) Service: Under the leadership of Mrs. Geo. Wards.
(3) Stewardship: Under the leadership of Mr. Bill Mackey.

The meetings will be held each Monday evening at 8 p.m. and all young people between the ages of fifteen to twenty are invited to attend.

Pianoforte duet — Misses Dorothy Mitchell and Dorothy Morgan.
Solo — Mrs. Maud Hall, a very interesting address entitled "The Wisdom that kept pace with the cleverness of man".
Pianoforte duet — The Misses Mitchell and Morgan.
Contest and games—Miss Irene Peat.

The meeting closed with the singing of a chorus and the closing prayer by Mr. Eric Naylor.

'Favorite Four' Present Concert

Last evening a grand concert was presented in Bridge Street Methodist School rooms by "The Favorite Four", a quartette of well known and talented musicians. Held under the auspices of the Men's Association of the church, the concert was attended by a most appreciative audience who received with enthusiasm the many varied numbers offered by the visitors.

Instrumental numbers, vocal solos and readings comprised the excellent program which reached a high standard and gave to the audience an evening of keen enjoyment. The strong, violinist, Mrs. Pauline Wilkins taking part were Mrs. (Dr.) Anderson and Mrs. Cornell, contralto, Mrs. May Arnold—Maybelle Smith, pianist.

Frankford and District

Frankford—The Armistice Day Service held at the Cenotaph in Frankford's Memorial Park was attended by scores of citizens who gathered to pay tribute to the memory of the Boys who slept in Flander's Fields and to those who have since passed away as a result of their war service.

The parade formed up at the Community Hall and headed by the Chilsen's Band playing stirring martial music moved off at 10.30 in the following order. Ex-service men, Girl Guides, Brownies, Boy Scouts, R.C.I.L. and the village council.

Reeve D. B. Hutcheson acted as chairman in a most capable manner and the service opened with the singing of "O God Our Help in Ages Past" accompanied by the Band.

Rev. Wm. Gregory, pastor of the Free Methodist Church then led in prayer. The chairman then called on Rev. J. D. Knox to address the gathering. Mr. Knox was pastor of the Methodist Church during the war days and took a great interest in the lads going overseas. He was one of those instrumental in having the Cenotaph erected. His address was impressive and brought back memories which touched the hearts of the listeners.

Following this, Rev. J. F. Lane, pastor of the United Church also addressed the meeting. Mr. Lane in his remarks stated that the new generation has come along since the First Armistice who know nothing of war and the futility of it all". He also spoke of the suffering that the returned men were still going through, that their ranks were thinning and remarked that some from our own community who took part in the service last year had answered the last Roll Call.

At eleven o'clock, with bowed heads the two minutes of silence was observed and the ringing notes of The Last Post from the bugle played by Bugler Harry Slingerland brought this solemn part of the service to a close.

Laying of wreaths on the Cenotaph in the order named, followed:—War Veterans by Walter Smith, Memorial Committee by Mrs. Powell Pollard Sr.; Girl Guides by Doreen Loney; Boy Scouts by Hugh Sinclair. The Parent Teachers' Association wreath by Mrs. E. H. Ketcheson; Masonic Fraternity by George Spencer; L.O.L. by Lee Flood and the Village of Frankford Wreath by ex-Reeve J. B. Ford.

With the singing of "O Canada," led by the Rendezvous by Mrs. Wm. Gregory followed by the National Anthem the service was brought to a close.

The parade then formed up, marched back to the Community Hall and were dismissed which ended the most impressive Armistice Day Service ever held in Frankford.

The ex-Service men of Frankford and vicinity attended Zion United church on Sunday morning, Nov. 10th., for divine service. About twenty-five men turned out for the annual church service and they were welcomed by the rector, Rev. A. S. McConnell, whose sermon was in keeping with the Remembrance Day.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Almey of Lindsay were Sunday guests of Mrs. George Rogers.

Miss Kathleen Moakley has returned from Hamilton.

Miss Ruby Ridder of Hamilton, spent the week-end at her home, 4th Concession Sidney.

Mrs. M. Frye and son of Kalkasaco, M., are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Pollard Sr.

Mr. Thomas Latta, B.A. of Toronto, was the guest of his mother, Mrs. M. Latta, over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Harrison of Carlisa spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Ben Chase.

Mr. Harold Wills, Esq. N., of Belleville, was the guest of her mother, Mrs. O. W. Sine over the week-end.

Mrs. Chas. Walt of Shirley, was the week-end guest of her sister, Mrs. C. D. Powell.

Mrs. Edgar Maithews of Stirling spent a few days last week with Mr. and Mrs. George Spencer.

Miss G. Fryer spent the holidays at her home in Brantford.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Southworth were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Ford.

Mr. John Welbourn, Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Welbourn and son Jack, all of Toronto were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Welbourn.

Mr. G. Price of Toronto, spent the week-end in town visiting friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pollard and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bird of Stirling spent Sunday with Mrs. R. Potter.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hamilton of Toronto, were the guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Bonisteel for the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Mikel of Toronto and Mr. and Mrs. Ridley Mikel of Ottawa spent Saturday and Sunday in the village.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted. Reynolds spent Monday in Stirling.

The regular meeting of the A.Y.P.A. was held on Friday evening, November 8th at the home of Mrs. Jury.

The meeting opene, with hymn 518 followed by a prayer by Alex Nivason and the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison.

The minutes of the last meeting were read. It was moved by George Ketcheson and seconded by Eleanor MacKeetie that the minutes be adopted as read. The financial statement was read by Eva Harrison.

After a discussion of the plays it was moved by George Ketcheson and seconded by Donald MacLaren, that three more play books be ordered.—Carried.

Cyril Mager then took charge of the program which was opened with a reading by himself. A contest was the next feature. The remainder of the evening was spent in amusement afterwards a dainty lunch was served.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to those who had provided such an enjoyable evening.

INDICTMENT SOUGHT

New York, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Prosecution officials rushed today to seek the indictment of pretty Miss Vera Stretz for the shooting to death of her purported fiancee, Dr. Fritz Gebhardt, wealthy German industrialist and economist.

Police expressed the belief the killing was an act of jealousy. They said the woman told them that she had become engaged to the industrialist last December. Gebhardt, however, had a wife and two children living near Karlsruhe, Germany.

1 DIES, MANY HURT IN EGYPTIAN RIOTS

Italian Reprisals On France Softened

Mussolini's protest to all nations which have accepted economic sanctions against Italy will not receive a direct reply from Britain, it was authoritatively indicated in London today. The British attitude is that sanctions are applied by the League of Nations and any reply to Italian representations should be made under League supervision. An exchange of views leading up to a joint answer is expected.

Paris, Nov. 13 (AP)—Softening of Italian reprisals against France for the latter's participation in the League of Nations sanctions against Mussolini's Government was reported today in official circles.

Cessation of Italian criticism of the French bailon also was regarded after Vittorio Gerruti, Italian Ambassador, had called on Premier Laval.

BELIEVED MARRIED

Boston, Nov. 14.—The perplexing marital status of Danno O'Mahoney, world champion heavyweight wrestler, appeared settled last night with a published facsimile of his returned marriage license.

The Boston American printed the facsimile showing that O'Mahony who gave his occupation as "wrestler" and Julia Esther Burke a nurse, were married in Cambridge, Oct. 27, by the Rev. Francis V. Murphy.

The marriage was made known here yesterday but last night in Milwaukee Danno denied it. On the marriage license Danno's name is given as "Daniel Michael O'Mahony."

The wrestler's bride said the secrecy was to avoid the presence of a curious crowd at the wedding.

DESTROYER RACES WITH PNEUMONIA

50 Rescued Storm-Bound Passengers Are in Danger of Disease

Manila, P.I., Nov. 14—(AP)—Desperately racing incipient pneumonia among survivors of the wrecked Silvershaet, the United States navy's destroyer Peary, swept toward Manila.

Aboard were 50 of the 54 persons who spent four stormy days in a rock in the San Bernardino Straits, two of whom, the destroyer reported here, were developing pneumonia. Immediate hospitalization on arrival was asked for the pair, Seamen R Puckerrill and Rodney Talbir, a Hindu.

The Peary also carried the bodies of Mrs. Nell Williams of Los Angeles who died of exposure, and Bernard G. MacPherson, an apprentice seaman.

Searching craft hunted through the treacherous waters of the Straits, 350 miles south of here, for the bodies of Capt. H. A. Leonard, master of the British freighter, and an unidentified seaman.

Masseys Greeted by Fergusons On Arrival at Waterloo Station

(By Thomas T. Champion)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
WATERLOO, Ont., Nov. 14.—(CP Cable)—Among the first to meet Hon. Vincent Massey, Canada's new High Commissioner to London, when the boat-train pulled into the Waterloo station today, was his predecessor, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson. Mrs. Ferguson was also present and greeted Mrs. Massey.

London newspapermen and photographers crowded in full force, repeatedly grouping the Masseys and the Fergusons for snapshots. When brother, Sir Edward Harding, permanent Under-Secretary for the Dominions, represented the government.

Interviewed aboard the Empress of Britain prior to landing at Southampton, Mr. Massey said he and his wife were looking forward to "a very happy time in England".

Mickey Cochrane May Become Club President

Detroit, Nov. 14.—The Detroit Free Press predicted last night that Gordon S. (Mickey) Cochrane, manager of the world champion Tigers, may succeed Frank J. Navin as president of the club, or be selected to represent the owners.

"As secretary and treasurer of the club, Mr. Navin's nephew, Charles F. Navin, outranks Mickey both in position and experience but there is some doubt whether he would consent to lead the club. His health has not been of the best and he might not consent to depart a little by taking upon himself all the worries of a big league baseball concern," the newspaper said.

Hundreds of Chinese residents of the native Chapei section of Shanghai, China, have evacuated their homes and fled to the safety of the International section of Shanghai, when Japanese naval commanders declared they would take "free action" unless Chinese authorities immediately arrested the murderer of a Japanese marine killed in a street attack. During the last evacuation of Chapei, in 1932, scenes like this were witnessed. Mothers, come with meagre household belongings strapped to their backs, fled from the danger zone before it was bombed by Japanese guns. Map shows layout of the international section.

THEIR FUTURE ASCENDANT

Some are born great, some achieve greatness and some have greatness thrust upon them.

The Dionnes were born quintuplets, through this fact greatness is being thrust upon them through the agency of their unique relationship and through the power this appeal has to draw money. Those who are thrusting the fortune upon the five sisters are the people and the Government of Ontario.

Comes the next big step. Advertising has played a great part so far in building up the Quints' nest-egg. Now the theatre is entering the scene. The quints have reached a happy stage in their lives when they can play no small part in a moving picture production. To add even more interest, their medical man, Dr. Dafoe, is going to play the leading character in the play on the screen "The Country Doctor".

The little Dionnes are now worth $200,000, which will bring in at the present time about $10,000 a year for Marie, Yvonne, Annette, Cecile, and Emilie. And the first will add many a thousand to the fund.

One New York writer is wondering how large this fund is to grow. He thinks it large enough now. "The Dionne fund is now at a point where the proceeds should be spent on others than themselves. There must be plenty of poor and handicapped children in Ontario," he says. He does say that "the world's enormous interest in the quintuplets is legitimate and there is nothing wrong about putting them into a film."

Nothing is going to prevent the people paying for the privilege of seeing them in pictures or any other scene. The public wants it and it is right that the sisters should get the money.

Still one wonders if in the interests of the children the time should not come when some of this notoriety should fall away. The girls sooner or later must be allowed the freedom that most people have, whether they desire it or not—to go about without mere curiosity of others dogging them at every step. Only then will praise can be given the efforts to bring the youngsters to healthy growth, for it would have been a most difficult thing for one mother to have reared so many. But after all the time will come when the girls will have a right to say to people that their "souls are their own".

Meanwhile their fortune will grow. It is being wisely directed and the little girls when they grow up will thank those who made possible their living in comfort.

The amount of the fortune so far may not seem ample to many for really there is no reason why the curiosity of the public should not pay. There is also no reason why these little girls with the world's natural curiosity clustering about them should not have a larger fortune for there are many children who have only wealthy parents and no quintuplet births to bring them fortune who will come into vaster estates than the Dionnes ever will no matter how large their estate may grow. But the fortune need not affect their afterlives adversely. It must not hamper them.

The plea on behalf of the other children in Ontario, which the New York writer makes, is one which can justly be heard. It may seem unfair that through a quintuplet birth some little girls are put in the way of fortune, while others are born to poverty. But that is the way of the world, whether mankind is to blame or not for such a condition.

But man if interested will pay to see the pictures and such other means as will be decided upon to increase the harvest for the five children.

A TRIBUTE

Tom Little, custodian of properties at a major Hollywood studio paid a tribute to the British sense of respect for the symbolism which a medal means. He said that in the collection of war medals and decorations which the studio possesses, many were bought at $1.50, though their winning was paid for in blood and suffering. But the studio possesses but one Victoria Cross. Even before the ban on the sale of the decoration, Hollywood always had difficulty in getting one of them. Little says: "An Englishman would rather starve than sell that medal."

MOTORCAR PRODUCTION

Motorcar production has jumped greatly and a trend to high price models is now marked. The significance of these two features in the industrial situation is very important.

It is a fact that when business reaches a certain buying point, the more luxurious products are bought.

Both these factors ought to prove the sound basis for the upward climb which has been going on for more than two years.

A noble heart like the sun, showeth its greatest countenance in its lowest estate.
—Sir P. Sidney.

Whether a man owns mansions by the sea,
Where nothing shades his oceanic pride,
Or whether his immense prosperity
Builds a retreat with mountains for a bride,
There comes a time when even he is poor
And prays for more than gold to give him life:

A lonely hour when one pathetic door
And sympathetic room must be the wife
To soothe his terror that the Enemy
Will also rob his breath to put it dead.
And then and only then, a careless hole,
More than the bounding earth with all its pelf,
Will be the one possession that can free
A man who doesn't even own his soul.

DOWN ON THE FARM

HOWYOUGOIN' TO KEEP 'EM DOWN ON THE FARM after they've seen Paree—popular versions of song expresses the thought that the bright lights of city and town still attract the young people and cause them to desert the farm. The drift from farm life to city life has been so noticeable in recent years and blamed by some for most of the economic ills, no doubt still continues in a measure although the actual increase in population in the urban centres is now almost an unknown quantity for newcomers must stem the tide for the time and keep youth on the farm when inclination turns toward the glitter and glamour of the city.

Some folks say we have too much education, of a kind, the wrong kind, that the boys and girls after a term in the magnificent Collegiate Institute of today find farm life very drab and prosy, failing to see the really great things of life which are part and parcel of the great open spaces.

A reader of this column refers to a recent article in which a New England Yankee speaks in praise of the farm and farm life and boasts of passing through several depressions without having had to seek outside help, but who admits that his two sons are professional men in Boston and his two daughters are married and living in the city. Farm life was fine for Dad but evidently he did not make it attractive enough for the children, for they deserted the farm for the city just as soon as they possibly could.

In the reason too much education, or too little education in the things that really matter, the basic principles of all life?

If someone could suggest a method whereby a little of the glitter from the city could be engineered he or she would confer a great boon upon humanity.

The drift from the farm which started some years ago was started largely by the fact that there was a demand for factory and office workers at good wages on account of a boom in manufactured articles, automobiles, radios, etc.—it's time the tide set the other way and young folk took a deeper interest in farm life which offers above everything else the best gift of perfect health, offers also a good living, with plenty to eat, good beds to sleep on, most of the conveniences of city life, including, generally speaking, electric lights, telephone, radio, daily newspaper, automobile, etc.

And so, we think that there should be more agricultural education, including dairy, orchard and live stock—the making of good butter is an art unsurpassed in all the arts, also good cheese to produce which demands an artist, and not in book knowledge, but with natural wit sharpened to detect the first hint of impurities of any kind—artistic production of fine apples, cherries and other fruit as well as garden stuffs, and grains.

Then there is the breeding of live stock, what is more artistic than to assist in the production of a better type horse or cow in the flesh?—a million times more satisfactory and useful than producing the same animal in paint and oils on a canvas.

The farmer is a real artist in that he helps to produce that which sustains life and is the real thing, not a copy—but there must be readjustment.

Dad was willing to work long hours, dawn to dark, eat hearty, tumble into bed to wake again for another long spell of work. His work was his life and he enjoyed it.

The rising generation has been trained to divide the day into work and recreation, there is so much reading to be done, with lectics, social diversions, and other new-fangled things which never entered into Dad's life, and these must be considered and made a part of farm life if farm life is to be made attractive for the youth as against the pull of the city.

However, while much more might be said on the subject, it is time serious thought and study was given the whole question.

Electric Power to be transmitted from Trenton to Bellville. The Canadian Manufacturer says: "An electrical enterprise of considerable magnitude and importance is about to be undertaken by Mr. Heward of Toronto, which presents features of a most novel and interesting character. A water power at Trenting, Ont., will be developed to 500 horse power; this will be used partly to give electric light and power in Trenton, and about 400 horse power will be electrically transmitted to Belleville, a distance of about eleven miles, there to be used for a most comprehensive service. The Belleville water works pumping plant will be converted from its present system into a complete electric pumping plant; the street railway generator will be operated by means of an electric motor, also the lighting dynamos, and power for other commercial purposes will be distributed by means of induction and synchronous motors. Ample provision has been made for incandescent lighting. Polyphase currents will be used throughout, and a high voltage requiring special features of line construction. The entire work has been placed in the hands of Mr. G. White-Fraser, consulting engineer of Toronto, and will be begun at once."

Mr. J. Macallum of the Belleville Daily Sun, was in Brockville yesterday.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

(Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)
(Beatrice Fairfax Letters)

She Gambled Away His Savings

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We were engaged for three years and had a joint bank account, with which we hoped to buy and finance a little home.

My girl had a good job, and put money into the joint account as regularly as I did. For the last two or three months she made the deposits, but never wanted to show me our bank statement, and after a while this aroused my suspicion.

I dropped into the bank to ask about the account and was amazed to find out that the money had all been withdrawn. My girl had been gambling and had lost the entire amount. I could have forgiven this, if it had not been for the defiant attitude she took.

Later I discovered she had been meeting a young man from a broker's office at lunch, and he was at the bottom of these "investments". Have I any legal redress?

Kenneth

Your question is one which a lawyer should answer, as banking laws are different in different states, and the proper claims of parties holding a joint bank account will depend on the conditions with which the account was accepted.

Wants to Know If Marriage Is a Lottery

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've heard so much about marriage being a lottery that, though I have been engaged for two years, I hesitate to take the step. What do you think of this question? I'm 28 and my fiance is ten years older. Do you think that it too great a difference in ages?

Mabelle.

Isn't everything in life more or less of a lottery, my dear girl? The house into which you put your life savings isn't likely the neighborhood may go up or down, and your property is more or deteriorate?

Will you return in good shape from that motor trip to which you've looked forward so eagerly? Are your friends loyal or disloyal? Will you keep your job?

Life seems to be a succession of lotteries.

As for marriage, the most promising among our friends and acquaintances have gone on the rocks, and the most wildly hazardous have been successful. Not long ago a certain Court of Appeals handed down a decision declaring that marriage is not a lottery, but the product of skill and judgment." And ten years is certainly not too great a difference in age. Call to mind the recent marriage of Senator McAdoo.

Parents Disapprove of His Family

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm very much in love with a splendid young fellow of 24, who has been supporting himself since he was 13 years of age. He has a fine job, and seems likely to make a steady income, but my parents object because his mother and father have been divorced, and his mother has a pretty bad reputation.

Do you think it is fair to condemn him on this account?

Marilyn

It would be most unfair to condemn a young man of good character on account of the shortcomings of his mother. You're not marrying that lady, or his father, either. The thing for you to do there wholly to make you a good husband, because his own home life has been unfortunate.

Heart Doesn't Rest or Jump When He Sees Her

Dear Miss Fairfax:

It was a case of love at first sight with me. She is a stenographer in the same office building where I am employed, and we constantly meet in elevators and corridors. I have never spoken to her, because she isn't the type of girl one could "pick up".

My parents are very anxious for me to marry a second cousin, but when I meet her my heart does not seat or jump or turn flip-flops the way it does when I see the lovely stenographer.

If I marry the cousin it would be prudent, and there would be money in it, but it would be about as inspiring as lukewarm soup for dinner.

I've discovered that my young manner is a widow with a child, but she is only 23 years of age—heavens, she looks it!! I've been adoring her speechlessly for nearly a year. Should I pluck up courage and speak? If she threw me down, I'd never have the nerve for another.

Bert D. C.

Where is your imagination, my dear young man? Certainly you could go into the office where this young widow is employed, and engineer the matter around so that you could ask her out to dinner and theater or two. Hasn't anyone in your own firm a friend, and couldn't they send you there on an errand?

If she is such an about goddess as you have described to me in your letter, which I'd had to cut somewhat, don't attempt to crash an acquaintance.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

(By Cornelius Beeckman)

FLOWER GIRL

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1.—Will you please tell me if it is correct to have a small flower girl assist at a formal evening church wedding, that is, when the bride is not wearing a wreath and veil and is having just three maids?

2.—Also would it be correct for the sister of the groom to hold a shower in honor of the bride? I think a bridge and tea would be the right thing, but I have been criticized by relatives for not having a shower.

Wondering.

1.—It is quite proper to have a flower girl at an informal morning church wedding. She walks just in front of the bride and her father.

2.—I think that your taste is better about this—that, as the sister of the groom, it would be in better form for you to give a tea and bridge rather than a shower. Showers given by close members of the families are often criticized, as you evidently know.

TOASTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please let me know if a girl should stand or remain seated when "toast" is being tendered her by several men much her senior?

BRIDE'S CAKE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me some of the traditions connected with what are usually put in the bride's cake?

Lucy.

Some of the trinkets that are baked in a bride's cake are: a ring for the one who finds it, a coin, a cat for the old maid, dice for the bachelor, a thimble for the spinster, the one who will achieve the heart's desire, a miter for the bachelor, a dime or a new penny for the one who is to be wealthy, a four leaf clover or a horseshoe for the lucky one.

Teach Child To Judge Self

(By Lisa Grenelle)

It wasn't Lisa Roger was so bright or so quick either." He was an average sort of fellow, apparently, by his own account. But he was steady, steadily, unobtrusively, Roger noticed onward, to the head of the class, to leader of the dispatching team, to partner in the firm.

And those were only a few of Roger's successes. Anything Roger did, he did more quickly and better than anyone else. What was the cause of it?

Was it natural ability? Not entirely, Ambition? Not in the ordinary sense. Was it great self-confidence or the kind of complex which is determined to "show them"?

Roger had none of these qualities. He wasn't even interesting in succeeding the other fellow, but he was interested in impressing and improving himself.

Taught Self-Criticism

Early in his life, wise parents had taught Roger that the most stimulating competitive activity is when the opposition consists of oneself. The most exciting victory is the victory over oneself, the victory in improving and perfecting one's own abilities.

Roger had been taught the art of self-criticism.

Instead of mother and father simply raving over any creation, accomplishment or triumph of Rogers, they took pains to let slip in, after the praise, some suggestion for further improvement.

Criticism, especially by parents during the self-assertive stage of the child's development, must be tactful.

It is far better, in fact, to guide

ANNIVERSARY SERVICE

Plainfield, Nov. 13.—The anniversary services of the Methodist Church on Sunday and conducted by the Rev. S. A. Kemp of Colborne, a former pastor were a decided success. Large congregations greeted the speaker at both services to listen to his timely messages after an absence of many years. The local choir rendered several selections of specially prepared music at each service.

The chicken dinner on Monday evening, was one of the most successful in many years. The supper receipts amounted to $131.00. The program which was given in the church following the supper was the occasion of many compliments on the large crowd present. The pastor the Rev. J. J. Evenson was the chairman and found his duties a pleasure on account of the splendid hearing given to all the artists who included, Mrs. Fred Horton and Misses Doris and Freda Horton of Pinebore; Mrs. Houston and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Hayes of Belleville; Mr. Frank Palmer of Tilley; Master Donald Sedrick of Mount Pleasant, Mr. Ralph Wilber of Redmerville, and Mr. Clayton Hall and Reginald Dawson of Latta.

Famous Poet is Subject of Talk To Young People

Last evening the Young People's Union of Tabernacle Church met in the church parlours. The president, Mr. Geo. Wright, conducted the Devotional exercises Miss Edith Riddell read the minutes of the previous meeting, and Miss Edna Cherrie favoured with a beautiful solo, "Night of Love."

Mr. J. O. Herity was the guest speaker and chose as his subject the Life and Works of James Whitcomb Riley. Before dealing directly with Riley he gave a short discourse on poetry in general, in this modern world it has been said that poetry along with many other things should be relegated to the attic; this however, is far from being true, and only betrays in the person making this or a similar remark, a lack of appreciation for the finer things of life. In defining poetry Mr. Herity stated that it was "All is not gold that glitters" "All is not gold that glitters" His definition was that poetry is the language of the imagination, poetry plays an important part in our lives from the cradle to the grave, from the nonsensical nursery rhymes, that incidentally teach an important lesson, for e.g. the familiar story of the pussy cat which went to London to visit the Queen, but which became distracted by a mouse and did not see the Queen, has its counterpart in many lives that lose sight of the main objective because they are distracted by a mere mouse.

Examples were quoted to illustrate the different types of poetry, namely, Hymns, Psalms, Epic, Marrigal, Limerick, Patriotic, Narrative and the sonnet or Spring poetry, which was summed up as follows: "In the Spring I feel that I must poetize or bust."

The circumstantiates surrounding the writing of Tennyson's immortal Crossing of the Bar were related. This poem was inspired and written by the poet, in his eighty-first year while at a luncheon engagement with his nephew.

James Whitcomb Riley was born in the sprawling frontier town of Greenfield, Indiana, in the year 1849, of poor but honest parents. His father, Reuben A. Riley, was a lawyer who later rose to be a judge, and later a member of the State Legislature. He also served in the Civil War. James Riley attended the Public School in Greenfield, until he was 15, when he refused to return. After leaving school he travelled with several medicine shows, etc., finally becoming a lecturer and entertainer. His poetry deals with common everyday incidents in the life of the common people, with whom he was familiar, he also had an understanding of childish thoughts as evidenced in some of his works, namely "The Raggedy Man," "The Boy With Curiosity of the Spine," "Orphaned Annie" and many others. His poem "Orphaned Annie" portrays the love of an old Southern farmer for his harem scarem son who returned home only to leave to take part in the Civil War. The father, although completely wrapped up in the boy, could only say: "Goodbye Jim, take good care of yourself."

Men were divided into two classes—those with that worried look and bachelors—James Whitcomb Riley belonged to the latter class. On the occasion of the death of an only child of very dear friends of his, Mr. Riley wrote a most human note of sympathy to the bereaved parents, saying that he, who had not known the love a child might come in and weep with them.

He died in the year 1916 after a series of paralytic strokes and was buried in Indianapolis.

Mr. Herity has visited the scenes —including his birthplace in Greenfield, his home in Indianapolis, and the monument in his memory, hence the character was made more real, especially when given in Mr. Herity's own inimitable style. The hearers were very much appreciated by these present and a vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Herity by Miss Laura Dougherty on behalf of the Young People's union.

The meeting closed with prayer by Rev. I. B. Naylor.

DRINKOSE: THE SUGAR FOR CHILDREN

Children require large amounts of energy for maintenance and repair of tissues and for the growth and development of the body. These life activities exact more than twice the amount of energy in children than in adults. If a grown-up were to consume, in proportion to his weight, the amount of food consumed by a child he would be taking about two pounds of sugar and ten pints of milk daily. The best food sources of be energy are the carbohydrates. Of these proteins, the chief energy-producing foods, the carbohydrates are most effective, efficient and economical.

The energy value of foods is given in terms of the calorie. It is the unit of all energy produced by the combustion of food in the body. Each food has its own food production value. The calorie value of sugars in comparison with other foods as an energy producers is obvious when one considers hundred-calorie portions. One tablespoonful of CROWN BRAND CORN SYRUP will produce one hundred calories in the body in comparison with the same yield of a tablespoonful of butter, a lamb chop, a large head of lettuce or a whole cantaloupe.

The child's daily dietary requires two-thirds of the total food intake in the form of sugars and starches. And these are easily digested and assimilated at each meal. Whatever the type of carbohydrate consumed, be it cereal, potato syrup or sugar, the body breaks it down to the one simple sugar—dextrose. No sugar found in nature or synthesized in the laboratory can be assimilated by the blood or tissues in any other form than dextrose. It is the only sugar that can be used for fuel anywhere in the body for every purpose, be it in the brain, muscle or muscle. Dextrose is the ultimate energy food that is to be replaced by none other for any function of the body. Whether it be formed in the food from other sugars in the body or taken as such, it is promptly absorbed into the blood and utilized by the tissues with equal avidity.

Dextrose is the ideal sugar in the nutrition of children has been better appreciated since the science of nourishing the body properly has made its advances during this generation.

There is no danger of children eating too much dextrose. Nature safeguards because of their tremendous energy needs. It is the adult that indulgence in sweets and pastries tends to accumulate unnecessary gains in weight.

It is during the periods of rapid growth that very large amounts of carbohydrate foods are indispensable. The first period of rapid growth is during the first six years of life; the second is between the sixth and eighth years, and the third is between the tenth and twelfth years. In the interim between the child's carbohydrate requirement is high but not to the marked levels at these rapid growth periods. Of all the carbohydrates, dextrose has the unique properties advantageous to the growing child. It will be recognized that CROWN BRAND CORN SYRUP is a food that is rich in dextrose.

Over-activity in children produces fatigue. The cause has been found to be a low level of dextrose in the blood, the prompt alleviation of which has been made possible by feeding dextrose to raise the level of children's blood sugar. This method of providing quick energy for the body has proved so effective that it has become a routine in many schools to banish fatigue. Incidently, it explains the time honoured custom of the morning broth for afternoon tea. The effects obtained are due primarily to the dextrose which formed eventually. Dextrose is the emergency food of the body, the quick energy for children.

Those above opinions of one of the leading child specialists is no extract from a report received by The Canada Starch Company Limited, manufacturers of EDWARDSBURG CROWN BRAND CORN SYRUP, a sweet that is rich in dextrose and of splendid value in the diet of children.

—say scores of nurses

AMONG the millions of women who are now using this famous medicated cream, many are nurses and doctors' wives. They are enthusiastic—they tell their friends to use it. Their reading has taught them how the skin needs to keep it healthy and beautiful.

Science now recognizes that many of the common skin faults come from tiny hidden poisons that lack unsuspected in our pores. Pimples, Blackheads, Large Pores, Oiliness, Coarseness and many other beauty-robbing flaws are now traced to these invisible poisons.

Ordinary care is not enough. Soaps don't confine their cleansing to the surface fill to reach these insidious poisons. A special cream is necessary—greaseless medicated cream that will sink into the skin, help purge "poison zones" and correct these faults.

Snow-white and dainty Noxzema Skin Cream is such a cream. If your skin is merely blemished, if you are troubled by aching frustrations, use Noxzema. Apply it at night and during the day as a foundation for powder.

Note how Noxzema soothes irritation—how clear, soft and lovely your skin becomes—in a few short days.

POLICE BLOTTER

Employees of the Belleville Parks Commission complained to the police that the buildings on Victoria Park were being damaged by vandals and toys removed. Clues leading to the identification and arrest of the guilty culprits were supplied by the informants.

While going to his beat at an early hour this morning, P. C. Taylor found a bicycle that had been apparently abandoned at the upper end of Front Street. The bike was taken to the police station for safekeeping.

Seventeen transients slumbered warm and peacefully at the police station last night. No arrests were necessary in Belleville during the past 24 hours, while adjacent highways were the prey of auto accidents.

FRESH RIOTING BREAKS OUT

Wafd Party mass meeting at which Nahas Pasha, former Prime Minister and leader of the Independents and Moustafa Nokrashy Pasha, British

"Egypt that every Egyptian be dead than to continue under the heel of the oppressor," declared Wafdist Betag Order

Another outbreak followed during which police used tear gas, arresting some 50 Sadists.

The Wafd movement was reinforced in its opposition to British influence by the Egyptian Communist Party elements, which joined the students yesterday in their violent flow-storming attack on the British Consulate.

Egypt's large Italian communities and its Greek and cosmopolitan elements, sentimental ties with Italy, extending back to the days of Imperial Rome, figured in British efforts to persuade the Kingdom to act against the warring Italian nation.

Italy is a major customer for Egyptian cotton and Italian communities in Egypt have a population of 130,000.

Against Occupation

All Egyptian parties have joined in a renewed campaign for an eventual end to British military occupation, and a "treaty alliance with Great Britain, in addition to a return of parliament and re-establishment of the constitution."

Despite this campaign, however, the Egyptian Press has made manifested sympathy for the nearly Italian people, and in the Egyptian through the Moslems and the Coptic Christian church.

Italy, in its protest this week to nations applying sanctions, sent a separate note to Egypt because of its adherence with Britain to the League of Nations punitive measures.

University Closed

Cairo, Nov. 14.—(AP-Havas)—The Government today ordered the closing of Cairo University for seven days beginning Sunday. The order will be rescinded if the students are back at their classes by Saturday.

London, Nov. 14.—(AP)—British authorities said today that, in their opinion, the situation in Egypt did not as yet call for action on the part of the British government and no consideration had been given to the possible use of British troops for police work.

In official quarters it was said although the government takes a serious view of the Cairo and Port Said outbreaks, the situation was "well in hand".

DO YOU KNIT?

To yesterday's luncheon meeting of the Canadian Club came Canada's guest speaker, Mrs. J. P. Hynes, of Ottawa. Mrs. Hynes was a prominent figure in those knitters' whose needles would ply in the interests of the Empire. She was to knit an inch square to be made up into quilts, utilizing scraps of wool. Mrs. Bruce, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, had the honour of knitting the first instructions printed and distributed in order to give the women of the Dominion an opportunity of helping those in need. Each knitter's six inch square, the actual size required for the squares in a knitted patchwork quilt, would, it was said, be used in a very lovely effect results in a beautiful quilt. Thirty-two six inch squares are required on number 8 needles and the knitter is also furnished off the ends. Twenty-four squares are needed for a baby's cot, twenty-four for a child's cot, forty-five or sixty-three for a single bed, and one hundred and twenty-six have been made at Little Trinity Housekeeping Centre, from squares sent in.

Miss Hurley, secretary of the Red Cross Outpost in this city, has also been invited by a splendid one for the making of wool by those who knit or would like to help the Red Cross' winter welfare work in Belleville. Application for the instructions which will be available to those Provincial Queens are badly needed at present and knitted squares for making cosy coverlets would indeed be welcome.

EXAMINATIONS START FOR INFANTRY SCHOOL

NEW YORK CLOSE

New York, Nov. 14 (CP)— The market pushed upward to new highs in the fastest pace witnessed in around 18 months. Gains of 1 to 3 points were scattered over the entire front and the ticker tape frequently fell behind.

The upturn was led by the steels, rails and specialties. Buying demand centred on U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, National Steel, United Gas Improvement, Steel and Tube, Western Union, Radio common and preferred B, Douglas Aircraft, American Can, Pullman, Chrysler, International Nickel, American Smelting and Douglas Aircraft.

Profit taking was definite but orderly without difficulty. The late tone was strong. Transfers approximated 3,800,000 shares.

POTATO PRICES

Toronto, Nov. 14—Ontario potatoes in carlots are quoted at $1.10 to $1.15 per 90 lb. bag to the retail trade yesterday. New Brunswick potatoes were quoted to the retail trade at $1.35 per bag, and Prince Edward Islands at $1.25.

FORMAL SIGNING MATTER OF HOURS

be known until after it has been signed.

Probably Quota System

Representative Coffee (D-Neb.), chairman of the House committee with Roosevelt and said later he had received assurances of the quick action it were lowered a quota system would be set up.

Rumors of a slash in lumber duties brought from Dr. Wilson Compton, secretary-manager of the National Association, an assertion that the move would amount to "selling the lumber industry down the river."

Before negotiations for the new treaty started last January, the Canadian government asked for forty per cent cuts in the tariffs on lumber, fish, potatoes, milk and cream, live cattle, other agricultural products and several minerals.

Canada also offered to pare Canadian duties on a number of American products, both natural and manufactured.

Should the United States exports to Canada include coal, petroleum, iron, steel, fresh fruits, automobiles and parts, rayon and chemicals.

Canadian-American trade has dropped sharply since 1929. Moreover, Canada, next to Great Britain, is the United States best customer, officials call this trade treaty far more important than any of the others in the list of trade negotiations or the 14 others being negotiated.

COUNTY POLICE COURT

Walter Vincent and Joseph Deleve, two Madoc Township youths, were charged with the stealing of peace and fined five dollars each by Magistrate Ponton in County Police Court held at Madoc yesterday. The imposed fines were paid. The prosecution in the case was handled by Crown Attorney R. C. Donnan. It was in the magistrate's court that the accused men were charged in a previous hearing.

A second charge of the theft of a pair of license plate markers was laid against Joseph Deleve. He also found guilty as charged. A second charge of the theft of a license plate was laid against Deleve but he will be a splendid one for the making of wool by those who knit or would like to help the Red Cross' winter welfare work in Belleville. Application for the instructions which will be available to those Provincial Queens are badly needed at present and knitted squares for making cosy coverlets would indeed be welcome.

Stirling and District

STIRLING—The regular weekly meeting of St. Paul's Young People's Society was held in the church parlours on Monday evening, when the program was under the direction of the Missionary Division under the leadership of Mr. Lloyd Rowland. The meeting was opened with a song service of well known hymns. Miss Mary Hulin, President, conducted the opening exercises and Rev. E. W. Rowland led in prayer. The Scripture lesson was read by Lloyd Rowland, who also took charge of the remaining portion of the programme Miss Mae Currie contributed the first number in a splendid rendition of a soprano solo accompanied at the piano by Mr. E. W. Rowland. Rev. James A. Beckel, pastor of the Rawdon circuit was then introduced by the chairman as the guest speaker for the evening, and delivered a fine address on the subject of Missions. He gave a splendid outline a Missionary work with China, Himself, as the first Missionary. He stressed the very definite need of Missionary work in all Young People's organizations throughout Canada and the world. A very hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Beckel for the fine address. Mr. Reginald Masters then gave a violin solo "Mazurka-tide" with Mrs. Rowland at the piano. The final number on this interesting program was a contest given under the supervision of Miss M. Jones.

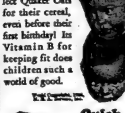
Welfare Club Opening Meeting

The first regular monthly meeting of the Stirling Community Welfare Club was held in the Community Hall on Tuesday evening, with a good number of members in attendance. This was the first meeting since the reorganization of the organization and was devoted largely to matters of business and how best to do with future activities of the organization.

A splendid dinner was prepared for the gathering by the ladies of the Stirling Women's Institute and in rollicking community singing by Mr. R. A. Valentine with Mrs. Lloyd Houchin at the piano. Dr. H. H. Alger, the president, occupied the chair in the absence of Mr. Thos. Holmes and executed his duties in a very pleasing manner. After the Toast to the King, Mr. Fred Mallory was called on to introduce the officers, Mr. Fred Houchin, and Mr. Wells, principal of the Stirling Public School, Mr. Mallory on behalf of the Club welcomed Mr. Alex Nicholson who was induced to attend the meetings last year because of his European trip. Artist Hicks can then offered a character song. The nominating committee was then pointed to draft a slate of officers and committee leaders for the coming season, after which the session was adjourned. Mr. H. Hulin, Secretary, then read the slate which showed a present membership of seventy-seven. The treasurer's return was very favorable Mr. J. E. O'Donnell as treasurer, gave a complete report of the financial standing of the club. Reports were also given by Mr. A. Nicholson, chairman of the social committee and Mr. C. N. Baker, chairman of the programme committee.

Dr. C. F. Wait then gave a brief address giving information about many activities carried on by the club in the short time since its organization and expressing the hope that the same spirit of service will continue in the future. The speaker emphasized the need for harboring the young manhood of the community stating that, during that time, Fifty-five homes had been built. They also had organized a skating rink which during its time had accommodated large crowds at hockey matches, than any other of its size in this part of the country, with a gate receipt of $650, a long game. The acquiring of other sporting equipments, the installation of electric power, pavements, waterworks are some of the finest theatres in the province. These and many others were the improvements made in the Village of Stirling in the past 30 years and lastly the Men's Welfare Club.

This is the progress of which we as members of the Community, must have a vital part and the march must continue to even greater things. We as members of the Stirling Community Club can proudly add honorable part to Community as one of the best in the province that is one of the services we can render to our splendid village.



Rev. A. S. McConnell of St. John's Anglican church, in a ten-minute address set forth many constructive ideas for the benefit of the Club. He suggested the cultivation of home talent on the programs of the future. Debates and mock trials to be part of them for educational purposes and to stimulate interest.

Following these fine addresses which contained each in themselves constructive ideas for the furthering of the cause of the club a period of discussion was entered into by several members of the club, the meeting was then adjourned.

Authority Given to Sign Treaty

Washington, Nov 14—(AP)—President Roosevelt said at his press conference today he had signed an authorization for the government's signature of the Canada-American reciprocal trade treaty.

He said no time had been set for signing the treaty. Time Minister Mackenzie King is expected here tomorrow. However, Secretary of state Hull probably will sign for the United States.

Picton and District

Armistice Sunday, Nov. 10, a special memorial service was held in the Regent Theatre at 10.30 a.m. The regimental band, the veterans, members of C. and D. Company, Prince Edward and Hastings Borough Regiment, and friends, comfortably filled the theatre for the very impressive service.

Rural Dean G. C. Winter was chairman, and introduced Rev. Fr. Meehan as the first speaker. Father Meehan, described the valour, of those who paid the supreme sacrifice in the Great War. "They went over there in the pride of their youth, and hope, and courage, and they sleep today in foreign soil," said the speaker. "Greater love hath no man than this. We are deeply indebted to all those who were instrumental in bringing us victory and peace. We cannot repay our indebtedness to those who are gone, except by honouring our sacred dead, recalling their valour and bravery, their undaunted endurance and acknowledging publicly our indebtedness to them. We can only renew our pledge to carry on the torch, and to keep their memory green in our hearts forever".

Judge McLean spoke most insightfully to the veterans. He said, "We dwell today on those men who did not come back, and the things they stood for. Their ideals are the motives animating the Canadian people. In these very difficult days it is up to us to help those who did their part and came back. Ere day for the post five or six years has beaten into my heart the trials you are enduring. You are not so well fitted to endure the hardships of these times because your bodies have been weakened by war. But when you are tempted to crack, remember you are the men of St. Julien, of Passchendale, the men who marched into ..ons, with the flame of enthusiasm on your faces as you entered Cologne. "God Save The King" was played by the band a audience stood, and the Benedic was given by Father Meehan.

...e of march then formed and ...e band playing stirring ...s preceded to the monument, where a two minute silence was observed. The Provincial wreath, sent in honour of the late Major Jones, and private wreaths were placed at the monument. "Last Post" was blown, and "Abide With Me" played by the band, and the Benediction given by Mr. Winkle. The National Anthem closed the service.

Picton Armouries was the scene on Monday evening of the banquet enjoyed by Post 78, Canadian Legion, other important guests and friends. The catering for the banquet was by ladies of the various churches and organizations of the town under the direction of Mrs. R. M. McLean. More than two hundred men enjoyed the bountiful supper. The head table was done in the Legion colours, and near it was a huge basket of beautiful chrysanthemums. It was a night for the veterans, for the only lady members of the Legion Nursing Sister Mary Stubbs of Black Creek, wearing three medals and the decoration of the King for distinguished service. Mrs. Whitney, Pres. of Post 78, was toast-master of the banquet, and he was chosen to present what the Legion was ready to help any returned man with his problem. As a mark of appreciation for many kindnesses in supplying a meeting place for the Legion, Comrade Adams was made a life member of Post 78.

The toast to our Fallen Comrades was proposed by Lieut. Ackerman, and Wallaney, who drew a picture of the local boys he had grown up with, and played with, and went to war over with the first contingent, and did not return. "None of those boys", said the speaker, "could have foreseen the twenty years ago, their glorious end. Their memory will live when you and I are dead and forgotten." A two minutes' silence was observed before this toast was drunk. The toast "To the Ladies" was proposed by Brig. Gen. Bernard Hepburn, who urged the ladies to realize that "disarmament" and "prohibition" are ideals that do not stand up well in practice. He spoke words of praise for the Minister of Pensions in the new government. The toast "To the Canadian Legion" was proposed by Judge McLean, who spoke of the way our boys stood up with the veteran soldiers of Europe, in the Great War. He said the Legion stood for the rights of the wives, children, and mothers of the men who went overseas and didn't come back. No man who served his country and came back, or didn't come back, will be neglected. The legion performs a great and useful duty in our civilization. In replying to this toast, Colin Hepburn urged all ex-service men to join the Legion and support it. Comrade Reg. Abraham proposed the toast "To the British Empire", speaking of the explorations begun in the 15th Century, the colonization and conquests that have resulted in the binding together of divers people for commerce and defence, into the great British Empire, loved by its loyal sons. The guest speaker of the evening, Major Beauchamp Payne of Belleville, spoke most interestingly on "Visions of Empire Greatness" which would cause Canada to rise to the need of England in case of war." A feeling of enthusiasm and goodfellowship prevailed throughout the evening—the 17th anniversary of the Armistice.

On Thursday night the Catholic Women's League met at the home of Mrs. Harry Slavin, Bloomfield Road, for their November meeting. Forty members and guests were present. The President, Mrs. Gerald McCaw occupied the chair. The minutes were read by the Secretary, Miss Kathleen McGloin. Mrs. A. B. Collins of Belleville, the guest speaker of the evening, gave a most interesting discourse on the "Origin of the C.W.L." Mrs. Arthur McKenna read a well prepared paper on the life of Theresa Newman, which was followed by papers by Miss Mary Delane and Bernice Slavin. In moving a vote of thanks to Mrs. Collins for her fine address, Mrs. John Rodwin also urged parents to take a greater interest in their children. Mrs. J. B. Foley seconded the vote of thanks. Refreshments were then served with Miss Bernice Slavin assisting the hostess. Mrs. Howe, Mrs. Fred Heffernan and Mrs. Chas. Meagher of Belleville, were also guests at the meeting.

Mrs. D. E. Wark has returned from a short visit with relatives in Brantford and Buffalo.

Mrs. Beatrice Hamilton and son, with her mother, Mrs. W. W. Williamson, and niece Miss Williamson of Toronto, were week-end guests of Mrs. Jones Colliver, Cobourg Street. They returned to the city on Monday, leaving Mrs. Williamson for a longer visit in Picton.

The funeral of Morley Bongard whose death occurred in P.E.C. Hospital on Sunday, was largely attended at his late residence, East Main street, on Tuesday afternoon. He had been ill for a number of weeks and was in his thirty-second year. When very young, he had enlisted and served in the Great War. He is survived by his mother and a brother Percy Bongard of Picton. Interment was made in Glenwood Cemetery.

The death occurred suddenly at his home, Kl. derly, B.C., of Elmer A. Miller, son of Mr. Irvine Miller of Picton, in his 45th year, on Sunday, November 10th. Deceased had been an engineer on the C.P.R. for the past thirty years. He is survived by his father, and four daughters, at home, his wife having predeceased him fourteen years ago. Interment is being made in Kimberly, British Columbia.

Col. Arnold Adams is confined to his home, Bowen street, for several days with illness.

Mrs. James Thompson, Union street, is ill as the result of a recent bad fall at her home.

Big - Four All Star Team Powerful Going Both Ways Argonauts Secure Five Berths

Team is Nearly an All-Star Eastern Outfit

GOOD ONES OUT

Three American Players Compose The Back-Field

By ELMER DULMAGE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 14 (CP)—All-star heads, bobbed up today from scores of the most unexpected spots as the Big-Four team announced its third annual Interprovincial Union football all-star team. The Argonauts of Toronto and Montreal's mighties, but relatively unsung Hamilton Tigers were placed in command.

Coaches and sports writers picked the team that has the experience, speed and all-round qualities to take rank with any selected south in the League's history. Of the three United States' players behind the line and one in the centre of a great forward wall, three is the team.

Flying Wing—Ted Morris, Argonauts.

Half—Huck Welch, Hamilton.

Half—Ab Elsworth, Ottawa.

Half—Pal Ryan, Montreal.

Quarter—Andy Mullen, Argonauts.

Snap—Buddy Mosley, Ottawa.

Inside—George Pigeon, Montreal.

Inside—Jim Palmer, Argonauts.

Middle—Tommy Burns, Argonauts.

Middle—Pete Joktus, Montreal.

Outside—Wes Cutler, Argonauts.

Outside—Lee Ruton, Montreal.

Nearly All-Star Rest Team

A few years ago this array would almost automatically have become the year's all-eastern team. This isn't the case any more since the Intercollegiate Union has developed some of the greatest performers of 1935 and Santa Imperato and Sidney Beach of the Ontario Union will respond quickly to the roll call.

But no better Five Power has been developed after the season's work is nearly done. Hamilton's Tigers, now smashing their way toward the title, played so unprogressively in the early campaign that only the great Welch, leader of the dynamic surge, gained recognition.

Injuries, in midseason cost Frank Turville and Lillie Seymour whom their all-star places and Ken Pudney veteran Brian Timmins still an outstanding middle, went down under an avalanche of votes for Pete Joktus and Tommy Burns.

The real battle was for snap, between Mosley and the chunky centre of the Tiger Tanks, Jerry Brokaw, late of Cornell University. Mosley's play the second season with Roughriders, won out with the edge to Jerry for Brock, whose work during Hamilton's sensational rain rally has been outstanding.

There was no struggle at all in deciding the wingline make-up. The all-star Tiger wingline was strong defensively and packed with attacking power. Welch, Morris and Palmer, were all-eastern choices in 1934. Both ends going to Hamilton but neither did. They came back to the wars to prove the same class as earlier.

Four Americans Chosen

Joktus, a superlative plunger and Burns, one of the country's most accurate place-kickers, had no opposition at middle. Joktus was a star even when the wheezing was being soundly walloped and the educated toe of Burns was actually the most potent scoring weapon in the Argonaut line.

The fact Lee Ruton is a newcomer to football all-stardom, but he has been a famous athlete for years. In 1930 he won a broad jump for Canada at the British Empire games. He went to the 1932 Olympic games. At football he is a sure tackler and forward pass receiver.

The Americans chosen are Elsworth from Michigan State; Ryan from Manhattan University; Mullen from University of Syracuse and Morris from Michigan State. Ryan, sparkplug of a Montreal team that has failed to win a single game but has fought hard in every one, is the only member of the quartet playing his first season in Canadian football.

Elsworth, Ottawa's front man in everything the Roughriders do, has been in the capital three years. He is a fine left-footed punter and place-kicker, a good forward passer, and runner, plus a good defensive player. Until this year Big Abe was credited with being the star of Ottawa backfield while doing a fair share of the wingline's work.

Ferraro Mentioned

Mullan helped Argos win the Canadian championship in 1933. He didn't return to Toronto last season, and the Rockets failed to repeat. They had he is in the driver's seat again, Argonauts's team has marched steadily forward until two weeks ago. At the moment the Scullers look like a sure grasp on the title.

The selectors found themselves almost unanimous in eliminating such stars as Tony Romeo and Dusty Griffiths of Argos, Stan O'Neil and Ray Berry of Ottawa.

Joe Ferraro of Montreal, Murray of Montreal from backfield connection, Dunn number wanted Johnny Ferraro of Hamilton at either quarter or half.

ALI HASSAN

THE HERCULEAN TURK

The semi-final bout of tonight's all-star wrestling show at the Belleville Arena sees Ali Hassan, the human Samson control wizard and strongman, meet Joe Kastelnach, Western Canada's gift to the wrestling world.

The semi-final bout is between Chief Lynx, who needs no introduction to a local audience, and George Richards, the agile Jewish grappler, while the opening bout brings together Belleville's own Irish Steve Casey against Jim Wilkins of Toledo. . A truly metropolitan show at popular prices.

Y NOTES

Members Swim Club Work Hard

The members of the "Y" Swim Club are out regularly every Wednesday evening and at present are putting considerable time in at practice for their life saving test which they will be taking at the end of the month. It is expected by instructor Murdoch that upwards of twenty of the members will be able to pass their final tests and qualify for the National Y.M.C.A. Swimming and Life Saving Award.

Senior Rooms League To Start Next Week

Basketball enthusiasts in the Senior Division of the membership will be in full action on the Basketball League early next week with five or six games being played. The membership taking part, schedules for the full series will be available within a few days.

Ontario Volleyball Tournament Earlier This Year

Due to the fact that the Ontario Volleyball Championships are being played off six weeks earlier this year than they are usually held, Physical Director Morden is planning to start several games in order to solve advanced players in regular weekly practices. The group regularly take place on Wednesday evenings commencing at 8.00.

Wing Chase to Begin Soon

With the promise of a qualified wrestling instructor who will teach strictly scientific wrestling, it is planned to begin a weekly class just as soon as sufficient interest is displayed to warrant a start. With a wrestling mat now in the gym it is possible for the wrestling enthusiasts to get plenty of practice and it is hoped that a class will soon be formed. Those desiring such a class, are requested to leave their names at the Y office. Any further information or any temporary interest being shown in this department of the programme.

VETERAN OF RING WARS - By Jack Sords

Six teams, three from Kingston, the Belleville, Prescott and Smith's Falls will face the barrier in the Ontario City Senior League this fall. Two or three years ago the Kingston Harrier team masterfully assisted in making the Kingston City loop a match race affair but when the local entry dropped from the loop, well it seemed to die a natural death. Headed by Coach Charlie Hicks, of the Queen's Athletic Board, a group of Kingston fans again opened negotiations to revive or replace rejuvenate the old loop once more. Manager Middle Thomas yesterday announced his Belleville team was definitely in the fray and would be materially strengthened by the services of Don Mercer and Harry Ingram, ex-Champlain and Barrie Collegiate basketball Maroon players now residing at home in Sterling Road. Three outside senior teams there will be the Pauline Crafts, Queen Electric and the R.C.A. Brigade of Kingston. In the junior Kingston are Wally Elmer's Red Indians, Deseconto, Eddie Waits' Napanee squad, Reginalds College and Brothers' Candy. Incidentally Manager Thomas is pressing negotiations with the Jock Harty Arena to procure a practice before the loop gets under way next week in the Belleville Arena.

Manager Thomas made his decision in a rapid fire conference one day and today is angling about for potential league stars. The present squad seems to be well taken care of with Morton in the nets, Harry Ingram and Barney Yorke on the defence, supplemented by possibly Max Weir. If he undertakes, Middle Pete Morgan may return home from Toronto, if so Skipper Thomas will have a complete Morgan front line with Pete, Harry and Carl. Of these three we believe Harry Ingram is shifted to centre, where he would have more room to shake down some patrolling along the right boards. For a second line Coach Thomas has Cliff Barrhart and Doug Prescott of proven ability. Barrhart is a clever player and carries a good shot well at centre, being a good playmaker. With the addition of a few more proven players the Belleville squad should be able to step out and hold their own in the opposing leagues in the fast Kingston loop. A pre-season schedule will be arranged in Kingston, usually acts as a stimulant for a team and Belleville should be the same. The league schedule will be published later this week, it was announced.

In order to keep his charges on edge and ready for a possible junior championship in the Ontario City League, Coach Geo. Laughlin took his junior R.C.I. squad out to the O. I. C. for a practice contest game on Tuesday afternoon. Frank Cunningham's junior O.S.S.A. squad stood out for a 5 to 5 victory in a well played exhibition game.

The entire baseball world will mourn the loss of Frank J. Navin, president and owner of the world's champion Detroit Tigers, who died yesterday as the result of an acute attack of heart trouble. Navin had been connected with major league baseball for a period of 30 years and was also vice-president of the American League as well as the owner of the 1935 world's championship team. Fortunately he lived long enough to realize his life's ambition a world's championship for Detroit He was 64 years of age.

We have a letter in hand from one Tom Goodman, of Newtonbrook, Ont., who wants to stage professional boxing show in Belleville, headed by George Pifield, former welterweight champion of Canada. He has five bouts listed, who is interested?

With the curtain slowly descending upon local wrestling shows the curtain season is expected at the Arena for tonight's all-star show. If the cold weather continues it will be practically impossible to hold very many more shows in the Arena, as the fans interested in the grunt and groan racket should take full advantage of what may be one of the last shows of the year. The promoters have endeavoured to present three well-matched bouts and we feel they have done so. Promoter Turkish grappler, meeting Joe Kastelnach in the main attraction while in the semi-final George Richards, the Jewish boy, will try to show a certain punishment as possible at the hands of Chief Lynx, the pugnacious Belleville aboriginal from Tyendinaga—Hills. From a direct local interest viewpoint, the fans should be keenly interested in the opening bout between Irish Steve Casey, the Belleville boy who made good in the moneyed ranks, and Jim Wilkins, the shrewdest scion of county Frank Toledo.

The final home stand of the Belleville intermediate football squad in the Lake Shore group of the O.R.F.U. is slated for Saturday afternoon when the Peterboro Orfuns supply the opposition. Incidentally the Orfuns are a team the gridders well known to Belleville football fans as a result of admirers. Red Kearns, Eddie Murphy and Art Lepper, Peterboro's brilliantined backfield star Belleville so seldom met last summer, are all with the Orfuns and will be seen in action on Saturday afternoon versus Coach Murphy's squad. The Orfuns are now practising faithfully every night, in high hopes of finishing the league season at least in a tie with the group leading Oshawa Blue Devils, who have already won their way across to meet the locals in a playoff of any description. The Orfuns have only lost three games this season, two to Oshawa and one by the Belleville team and are out to get even revenge for their reverse suffered earlier in the season at the hands of the locals. The locals must win this games to keep the group standing, a defeat will seriously mitigate their efforts to gain the group championship.

JOE O'BRIEN TO ACT

Montreal, Nov. 14 (CP)— Joe O'Brien, McGill University football star, will officiate for the first time as referee for the intercollegiate game between the University of Toronto and Queen's University.

Stated one of the referees in Canada, O'Brien gave up wholesale for the first year when pressure of McGill coach. Fred Barton will act as umpire.

COLLEGE TO BE REPRESENTED

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 14—(CP) — For the first time in history, Assumption College will be represented in the Ontario Hockey Association when a team under the direction of Father Walsh participates in the Junior "B" series this season.

"Mud" Brunelean of the Detroit Red Wings is assisting Father Walsh in coaching the team for his former college pal in Windsor and his cronies are also candidates for the team.

RANGERS TO OPEN AGAINST LEAFS

Both Teams Will Not Be at Their Full Strength

(By A. — Fulford)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 14—The New Yorkers for the first time this season, Lester Patrick's Rangers move against Conn Smythe's Maple Leafs tonight with a weakened defence both forward and rearguard that have shown they can do much to relieve the pressure.

The New Yorkers open the Madison Square Garden Hockey season without Earl Seibert, an accident victim of holdouts, and Harold Starr, injured in training. It is probable that they will lack all but an appearance by Murray Murdoch, the game's iron man.

Murdoch, who has played nine games in the National League now without missing a game, suffered a chest injury in the Canadien clash at Montreal Tuesday and likely will play only a few minutes to keep up his record. There is no hope for Starr or Seibert, who is still at home in Kitchener, Ont., even dressing.

Teams Not Disclosed

Although Harvey Jackson is not in perfect condition Coach Dick Irvin of Leafs will put him into the game on the line with Joe Primeau and Charlie Conacher. Whether Jackson will get the $7,500 he asked for the season's work, the $3,750 Conny Smythe offered or a compromise figure was not disclosed.

Milt Karakas, American Association goaler, who showed good in his first big league start by holding Montreal to one goal, will be with them out for Chicago again tonight when Hawks meet Red Wings in the only other game scheduled.

Lorne Chabot, League's leading goaler last season, still blushing around on crutches with a twisting injury.

There is no telling what Manager Jack Adams may do to the team. His Olympics of the International League are always ready to step into Red Wing uniforms and if Adams isn't satisfied with the 1-1 tie the Major Leaguers played with Rangers Sunday he may make last minute changes.

FAVORS EQUALITY IN JOB CHANCES

Psychiatrist Says Women Should Do Same Work as Men, If Capable

New York, Nov. 14—Dr. Jacob L. Moreno, psychiatrist, believes women should be allowed to hold men's jobs if they can do the work.

"What counts in a job is not a single performance, but the ability to repeat under the most hazardous circumstances," he said. His declaration came in a discussion of the case of Miss Helen Richey, who resigned as a pilot because the air transport company for which she worked refused to allow her to fly passengers in bad weather.

"The man in the street is inclined to think a man is superior to a woman," Dr. Moreno said. "She always has been and still is, to him the bearer of his children and the maker of his home."

He pointed out that physical and mental hardships in women's lives demand greater physical and emotional stamina.

"But this is only true for the average," he cautioned.

The paychologist said he favored a single standard in all vocations "for an equal opportunity for men and women.

Hymn of Peace

(Written by George Allen Kingston of Toronto, formerly of Bellville, which will be "Peace" day in many Toronto churches on Sunday. His Grace Archbishop Owen of the Church of England commenting on the hymn says "I have read your "Hymn of Peace" and I write to tell you that I am very pleased with the sentiments expressed therein. It embodies a prayer in which we should all ask, at this time. I hope it may be widely used and I commend it to the consideration of our people.")

HYMN OF PEACE
(Tunes, Stella, Melita, or St. Christopher)

Dreadful's Lord who from the heights,
Doth move the planets in their turn,
Who stilled the waves and stayed the sun;
And e'en made fire refuse to burn;
Give ear, O Lord, to this our plea,
And again the world war's dread decree.

Lord of the Nations who dost know
The world's High Rulers' inmost thought,
Teach them to learn in Thy great Light
The work that only love hath wrought.
Create in them the will for peace
That war throughout the world may cease.

Forbid, O Lord, that hymns of hate
Should ev'er the lands again be sung;
Let songs of love and brotherhood
Swell high the note on every tongue
May man enthrone Thee, Prince of Peace,
That war in all the earth may cease.

Hasten the day when men shall cast
Their
O'er all the world to brothers be,
When swords to plowshares shall be turned,
And spears to pruning-hooks, that we
May soon forget the aris of war.
And "Peace" be man's sole guiding star.

—George Allen Kingston.

Little Benny's Note Book

A package came from Hookbinders department store while we was eating breakfast this morning. I was saying, It's the shoes I bawt Benny yesterday, but now that I look at 'em in conpunction 5 dollers really seems excessive for shoes for a liner boy.

Yee pod, my own last pair cop cost 5 dollers, pop said, but the latter of principal those shoes set to be taken back and exchanged, I suppose some smooth, dark eyed young salesman waited on you and after that your mind was a blank till the end of the transaction, he said, Mr. Hall. Well a matter of fact the young man did happen to fit the shoes on Benny, I mean there are 2 salespeople in the boys shoe department, a young man and a young woman, but that had nothing to do with it I'm sure, Mrs. Hookbinck. If you're hemming to die for your principals why dont you endanger your life yourself? Just get the same size in something dollers less.

By golliss, I will pop said. I'll take them along with me this morning he said.

With he did, and lonlie he hawt home another pair and opened and tryed them on, saying, I must say Benny, that I'm very disappointed. I imagine that, it just goes to show. How much did you pay for them? he said, and pop said, After all the anual cost of a necessity is reatively unimportant, it is the reason you got for your money that counts. I mean when you buy shoes and they are garanteed to last twice the anual length of time you're accustomed getting 2 pairs of shoes in repair he said.

Willyum Potts how much did you pay for those shoes in round numbers? he said, and pop said, Dollers, it's not a very round number.

That gurl waited on you, I know it, that person with the blond hair & shades lighter than the last possible shade of natural blond, didn't she? he said, and pop said, Well, I cant say I noticed her hair.

No I'll be it is, he laugh. he said. With she kept on doing and pop kept on not seeing any joke.

Painful Piles

Can be Quickly Relieved

If you think there is no way to relieve the misery of piles, I can assure you don't know of HEM-ROID, a new medicine, from a prescription written by Dr. Leonhardi, a western physician. The real cause of piles is on the inside—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel and rectum. HEM-ROID tones full of stagnant, impure blood.

Dr. Leonhardi decided the way to relieve piles was internally, with the medicine which would ease the congestion of blood in the lower bowel and rectum, and help to heal and restore the sore, tender spots. After many years he wrote the prescription which has been so successful in giving quick relief from pile misery. It is now offered to you with our promise that if HEM-ROID does not relieve piles or any other disorder of the rectum, your pile misery or your money back. HEM-ROID must show you quick, clean-cut relief or your money will be given back to you. All druggists or other druggist can supply you with HEM-ROID and will back up this promise.

"CHAPERONED"

— by —

Virginia Sullivan

"Tell me about her." She turned the Doctor impulsively. The quiet signal, his answer, a hint, to withdraw curiously into herself. Then he said quietly:

"Why, there's not much to tell, I'm afraid. I've known Mona for many years. She's a stage name this trip with us often. Used by she's private session. Two or three days out. After that she dresses her time equally between being the delight and the scandal of the ship."

Scandal, Janis thought, with a small wincing stab. The word rang to a distant bell. Grey Harvard had used it last night in reference to Mildred.... As though stung by the very mention of the name, she was suddenly aware of a familiar figure floating before her eyes. Mildred, having finished her dinner at the Captain's table, was descending the grand staircase to the deck. Even as Janis watched, there came from somewhere among the crowded tables nearby a stifled, excited whisper in a woman's voice:

Janis sat completely still; rigid with the shock of despair. It was not imagination, then. It was true the thing Gregory Stewart had told her about. People were gossiping....

She stood up slowly; then, with a murmur that was a small tangled sound in her throat, followed where she had led the stairs in Mildred's wake.

"Now, I-listen, Mona!" Bill shuffled his feet. "You've just got to let me off on that. I 1-tell you I can't—"

"Nonsense! Why, of course you can. You're the answer to the cat-alcoupe, the sparkle in the jug, the mustard in the sandwich for me. Now, now, why this sudden girlish shyness? Of a sudden? In this nineteen hundred and thirty-5-ight? Why, so don't worry." She stood up, propelling his reluctant form before her. "I'm staging a little number myself," she threw back over her shoulder—"Swirl love 3t, Doc. It's settled: 'She Loved 'Em From the Bottom of Her Heart'—that's it. There was Alvara Rotten at the Twp!"

Laughter swept the adjoining tables, Janis found herself laughing too. It sounded so exactly the way this strange girl looked: brittle and tinsel, with her lipsmeared red mouth and challenging green eye shadow....yet with something softer and more vulnerable 3 all.

CHAPTER 6.

JANIS RISES AWAY

It was not going to be true, Janis told herself a little stiffly, as she walked rapidly along the corridor leading to the cabin she shared with Mildred. "Not if I have to hang onto the folds of that golden skirt for the remainder of this terrible!" she vowed inwardly. "Not if I have to pack her bodily off to bed...."

The memory of the thin, vitriolic whisper she had just heard in the dining saloon still rang in her ears. She had been acutely conscious, too, of the furtive, half-withdrawn glances which had followed her on hasty progress up the aisles in Mildred's wake. It was a thing within the girl felt twisted and sick. Was this the way things were going to be for the rest of the voyage? Was she to go on meeting polite—even envious, beneath, but possibly spying upon this woman who held in her selfe hands the happiness of the one person on earth whom Janis loved?

She stood hesitating for a moment at the head of the companionway; only half-aware of the dim beauty of the night-shadowed sea; the almost fairy splendor of the schreous moon with its trail of spreading, fluid gold.... Standing there, a strange, lonely feeling came over the girl. She felt, when she could analyze her feelings at all a trifle stunned, a trifle incredulous that it could be herself who was involved in this messy, improbable situation, like a fly caught in a web. And she knew, with a sort of bitter clarity, that her one hope of emerging from the situation at all was to hold on as tightly as possible to whatever of dignity or self-control she possessed.

She had felt a momentary impulse back there by the whole thing drop; to let Mildred work out her own salvation as best she could. There was plenty that she, Janis, could find to interest her on this trip. And there was no earthly thank-you notes to write; letters to the people who had showered her with bon-voyage baskets, with flowers, candy, fruit. Mildred would never acknowledge them at all. Mildred, she told herself with increasing bitterness, never did anything; except what happened to please herself—and did to her comfort. Even as she formulated the thought, Janis realized that, paradoxically enough, it was just very fruit in Mildred which was part of her charm—at least, where Mark was concerned.

"There are two kinds of people in the world," Mark had said to Janis once, "those who need decorating. People with responsibilities and ideals; and the other sort—like Mildred—made for laughter and sunlight and gaiety. These are the people who bring joy into this dreary world; they create it, draw it around them for the rest of us so warm ourselves by. If you see?.. ."

His sombre eyes had grown suddenly soft, and he had added, almost to himself: "I've spent my life being responsible and conscientious." He had grinned at Janis, the old beloved crooked grin that was the chief charm, "if you see what I mean!"

And oddly enough, Janis had seen. She had seen a new Mark emerging from the tired, worried brother who, though scarcely older than herself, had always been too serious for his years. She had seen that Mildred, in spite of her deficiencies, or because of them, had somehow managed to make that brother riotously, gloriously happy. And for that Janis loved Mildred.

But this, she told herself now, was something else again. This had nothing to do with being decorative or gay. Nothing to do with the sweet, heady spell Mildred had cast upon Mark's simple soul. This was something that was going to strike at his very soul itself, Janis, decency, for simple honesty, for playing the game squarely. Now what it was going to mean to him to have his wife's name linked to gossip—to possible scandal—In the dimness, her hands clenched together in nervous haste; she found that she was clenching her teeth.

There had been no trace of Mildred when she reached the deck. No sight of the daffodil yellow head among the groups of passengers already beginning to throng the lounge. And, apparently, Janis found on reaching the familiar stateroom, Mildred had not been there either. The dim-lit room held only the blue and white figure of Brenda Haynes, moving competently about, her lanky gait the evening's only sign of lowness. Too miserably anxious for even idle friendly contact, Janis fled silently deckward again.

They were dancing on the boat-deck as she slipped quietly along the shadows by the rail. All about her arose the gentle babble of voices, uttering the usual brightly casual, banal remarks of the shipboard social gathering. Under a roseate spotlight, curiously shadowed with dimmers, a blur of black coats and white mess-jackets were in and out among the women's colorful frocks.... Clinging crepe and slinky little velvets, swinging giddily backward and forward as their owners danced past, their backs. White arms, upraised about masculine shoulders. Waving slippers, drifting and slipping in time to the syncopated cotsades of the Santa Nina's orchestra....Nowhere, however, either under the lights nor in the dim groups about the rail, could she catch even a glimpse of the bright head she sought, a trace of Mildred's slender form.

In a corner by the companionway young Gregory Stewart was bending his cavalier's above Mona Darnell's laughing eyes. Almost unconsciously, Janis noted the girl's carefully casuette little air, and the arch glance of triumph she sent around the deck. Twelve she told herself briefly, "you're just what that young man needs!"

Teddie Crail danced by, with Miss Tail clinging coquettishly to his arm. Dr. Barr, looking a trifle grim, followed close behind with Monique, the supple bulk of Mrs. Cramer in his arms. Across the doctor's shoulder Janis encountered the remotely critical stare of old Mrs. Kent; and smiled faintly in return. Edward, a noisy college group, she caught the glimpse of Mona, now dancing with a new air of disarming innocence, as she talked with a group of admiring, enchanted young men. Mona Moore, who—had Janis but known it then—was to play a large part in her own destiny.....

Then she saw Mildred, drifting leisurely along the edge of the dance floor on the farther side of the deck. Mildred—with the mauve and orchid and apple-green of her frock, and the golden halo about her lovely head; her bright hair a casque of liquid gold in the moonlight and her red rouge laughing up into the face of the tall man who walked by her side. Mildred, all gold and tawny yellows and creamy tones, like a splendid Elaine; and Don Felipe, his soft black hat held lightly in one slender, graceful hand, bending the other hand holding her white arm in a gesture of courtly solicitude.

Without moving from where she stood, Janis was conscious of two things. That there was nothing (short of making a hideous scene) that she could do, now, or ever, to undo the mischief already done. And that no slightest move in this drama that was being offered as a sop to her boredom was being overlooked by the delighted passengers. Without turning her head to look, Janis was aware of the maliciously demure smile on Linda Sutro's mouth. Of the darting svidness of Miss Tail's flashing red tongue; the mumbling words of the Harvard man as his currantly black eyes went over the obliterating pair; of Mrs. Cramer's stone-colored eyes in her long stone-colored face—Mrs. Kent's dropsical pinkness as she leaned far over the mound of her knitting, making no effort to conceal her contemptuous regard....

Without warning, Janis felt a childish desire to cry. Then an equally childish urge to fly at them and beat them all with her own small fists. Arid brains and cactus tongues! Her knees trembled, her mouth filled with water..... She cast one brief, imploring glance at her sister-in-law's receding figure, response only a quick flash from the beautiful eyes and a demure dropping of the lids before Mildred turned insolently away. Her light, tinkling laugh floated behind her like a banner as she disappeared into the lounge with Don Felipe.

"Well, I guess that's that—for tonight at least," Janis whispered to herself wretchedly. "Now she'll stay in that room, playing cards with that creature and his friend Cecilio all night—" she shuddered with nausea and distaste. "I can't just go in and drag her out of there. And these people—all these people are whispering about her this minute—"

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL
"Last Outpost"

Shown Wed. & Thurs.

Strongly reminiscent in treatment and atmosphere of the sensational "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" but with all individual appeal, "The Last Outpost" nevertheless, made it as absolutely successful as the "Lancer" production, the Paramount film, "The Last Outpost" is now at the Capitol Theatre.

Heading the cast of principals is Claude Rains, fast rising as "Mad and Crime Without Passion" fame, appearing in a role quite apart from any he has yet attempted on the screen, with Cary Grant, Gertrude Michael, Muriel Burbs and Colin Tapley.

Set against the colorful background of the Eastern Front during the World War, "The Last Outpost" tells a strangely intriguing, authentic story of the relentless warfare that the Turks waged in Kurdistan, in their endeavor to strike at India, the heart of the British Empire. Into this seething field of battle comes Cary Grant, captain of a British armored car division, secured by a treaty between Great Britain and Turkey, to assist in the training of Kurdish cavalry, he is lured by Claude Rains, a fascinating Russian secret service agent, to reveal his identity. The two form a strange friendship, but together, they save an entire Armenian Bishop's village from massacre by the Kurds by taking men, women, children and cattle across the border to the Mesopotamian mountains, at the same time averting a serious crisis in the British army stationed there.

Grant, before consenting on a hurry to his leg, is sent to the British hospital in Cairo. He falls in love with the nurse, Gertrude Michael, who, confessing her love for her, tells him that she had once married, a Secret Service agent, had not been heard from in four years. At this point Rains returns to claim her for his own. Love and duty, Miss Michael bids Grant, who does not hear Rains' words, her last goodbye. Chance brings the two men face to face, alone in a remote garrison in the interior where the natives plan to ambush the fort by starting a bush fire. The film closes in a dramatic, suspenseful sequence with the two men flee for their lives before the flames.

Gripping drama, tense climax after climax, thrilling, fast-moving action, romance, adventure, combine to make this picture a thoroughly satisfying photoplay of the love of two men for one woman, complicated by their commission as soldiers. In the unsearched deserts and jungle hells of Arabia, the "Last Outpost" a noteworthy achievement.

WEST LAKE

West Lake—Mr. and Mrs. Glair Hawley of Toronto visited relatives here and in Picton over the week-end.

Miss Lillian Maitland left for Toronto on Saturday to spend the winter.

Mr. Moore and family are moving from Mr. Reed's house at Glen Creek, to Mr. Hagerman's home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Kleinsteuber are moving to Salmon Pt. will they be pleased, Mr. and Mrs. K.

Mrs. Right Jackson is confined to her bed for a few days and under the care of Dr. Currie. Her daughter Mrs. Harry Leavitt, has been caring for her.

FAREWELL to BACKACHE!

Her back ached—she felt miserable—so she couldn't be "bothered" to go out and mingle with friends and see her family. Her sister advised her to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Her backache soon vanished—restfulness and energy returned—she was glad she had taken her sister's advice.

Say GOODBYE TO BACKACHE! with Dodd's Kidney Pills

WEST HUNTINGDON

West Huntingdon—But-r the first shoks hands with winter came on Tuesday but farmers are not complaining as the rain was so badly needed, many wells had gone dry. The fall ploughing is nearly all finished. The young cattle have been called in from their summer resorts and one can now say with the poet, Henry Alford—"All is safely gathered in, for the winter storms begin".

Citizens observed the two minutes silence on Monday and on Sunday special peace services were held in the two churches by Rev. J. A. Kofford and Rev. E. A. Turner. At the Union Church in the evening a Hymn of Peace, composed by George Allen, Kingston, of Toronto, (who spent his boyhood days here), was sung. The sentiment of the hymn embodies a prayer, in which all people would do well to join in all this time.

The Young People's Union of this Community held a re-organization meeting at the parsonage on Friday evening, when the following officers were appointed to manage the organization for 1936, President, Miss Marjorie McMurry; Vice-President, Miss Georgie Fillman; Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. Jack Fillman.

It was decided to hold meetings in homes of the various members during winter months. Those who were privileged to attend the special meetings conducted by Rev. J. A. Kofford in St. Andrew's church, last week report that the lectures given by Mr. Kofford were very inspiring. The subjects chosen were "The Second Coming", "The Birth of a Nation"; on Wednesday, "The Re Birth of a Nation" or "The Re Birth of a Nation"; on Thursday, "The Anti-Christ" or "The Great Tribulation"; on Friday, "The Parables Relating to the Second Coming of Christ".

Many were in attendance from Ivanhoe and some of the United Church congregation. Mr. Kofford is very desirous in building up the spiritual life of his congregation and next week he is furnishing a former pastor, Rev. F. A. Robinson, M.A., here for a week of special evangelistic meetings.

The Elliott Bros. of Belleville, are busy drilling a well at the Ridge Road school. If they are successful in striking a good vein of water it will be a great advantage to the school as formerly water had to be carried from the neighboring well for use in the school. Principal Martin deemed it better to have a good well on the school grounds.

A number of local farmers have disposed of their surplus straw, by baring it baled and shipping it to large trucks.

Mr. Richard Haggarty, County Patrolman, has had a number of local men employed putting gravel on the shoulders of those portions of the highway that are paved, the shoulders were falling away and making the roads more hazardous.

Mr. Thomas Banks was groomsman for the Morgan-McCann wedding at Stirling on Tuesday.

Mrs. N. Holden who has been ill at Mr. Jas. McGwan's home, was removed to Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday for X-ray examined.

Mrs. Steward Pitman is visiting relatives, at Campbellford, this week.

Mr. Phillip Carr attended the Grange supper accompanied by the W.M.S. on Tuesday evening.

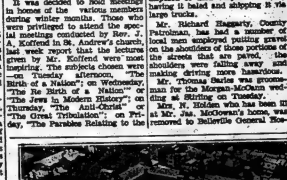
Mr. and Mrs. William Hodkinson and baby Joyce, of Stockdale, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sandy McCurdy.

Mrs. Allen Parrey of Stirling, visited her son, Charles, of town on Sunday.

Miss Leah Carr was a Sunday guest of Miss Annie Coote.

Miss Vera Wilson is spending the week-end as guest of Miss Sarah Wilson of Frankford.

Messrs. Alex and Don Strickland of Belleville, were guests of their sister Mrs. Albert Campion of Marmora, over the week-end.



Mrs. William Hammond returned home on Saturday after visiting friends in Belleville.

Reasonable Hope for Trans-Atlantic Air Service in Not Distant Future

London, Nov. 14.—(CP Cable)—"Technical developments now offer reasonable hope for a regular transatlantic air-service in the not far distant future," said the Royal Bank today as he left for Ottawa at the head of a delegation to discuss the project with Canadian authorities.

Sir Donald, Director-General of the Post Office, said possibilities of such a service had been long considered but practical and other problems had prevented progress. He is accompanied to Ottawa by Col. F. C. Shelmerdine, director of Civil Aviation at the Air Ministry, C. E. Wrodd-Smith, engineer, manager, Director of Imperial Airways, and other experts.

The discussions at Ottawa would be very long, Sir Donald said, and his party hoped to return to England by Christmas. Also sailing for Canada today are John Lydon and J. P. Walsh, representing the Irish Free State who have taken part in preliminary discussions with United Kingdom and Northern Ireland officials.

LIBERALS FAVORED TO TO BE RETURNED IN QUEBEC ELECTION NOV. 25

Here is an air view of the Quebec parliament buildings which after Nov. 25 welcome a new legislature. Early indications are that the new regime will be of the same party as the old, and that Premier L. A. Taschereau will again head a Liberal government. They are opposed by Conservatives and by an independent Liberal organization.

JAPANESE MARINES LAND AGAIN IN SHANGHAI; NATIVES FLEE

Another international "incident" that may cause another Sino-Japanese war has occurred in Shanghai, where Chinese are reported to have murdered a Japanese marine, Japanese naval officers immediately ordered the landing of marines to the Chapei district, where they remain stationed with bayonets fixed, until the Chinese government arrests the murderers. Chinese, fearing another war, are fleeing the district for the interior and into the international settlement of Shanghai. Meanwhile, Chinese are being arrested and searched by Japanese marines as in 1932 (TOP). In north China, Japanese activity continues, and the LOWER picture shows Major-General Yada (left), commander-in-chief of the Japanese troops in north China, receiving last-minute instructions from General Takashi Hishikari, supreme war counsellor. Map shows three entries into China, all of which are now under foreign control: Britain controls Canton through Hong Kong, Britain, U.S. and Japan control the Shanghai entrance, while Japan is the master of the northern entrance.

Edmonton, Nov. 14 (CP)—Taught by men at back shed, Alberta ducks have become educated, according to Professor William Rowan of the University of Alberta Zoological Department.

Addressing the University of Alberta Philosophical Society last night, Dr. Rowan, renowned for his zoological research, declared ducks have found grain fields better feeding grounds than swamps and sloughs and have learned to estimate accurately the range of fire arms.

BALDWIN GAINS SWEEPING VICTORY AT POLLS

Mandates Given Baldwin Upon Rearmament and Reconstruction: Maj. 252

MacDonalds, Father And Son Are Both Defeated

LABOR DOUBLED

Victor Over Ex-Premier is by 20,498 Majority

BY GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 15 (C.P. Cable) — Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin today gained a sweeping victory on his demand for a mandate of rearmament and reconstruction. Late returns showed he will command a load of close to 300 in the next House of Commons, as compared with a National Government majority of 429 at dissolution on October 25.

Expectations Bettered

Conservative headquarters had expected the government to lose more seats. Majorities in all parts of the country came crashing down from the record high levels of 1931. But the Labor party failed to gain more than 98 seats from the Conservatives and lost four to them.

The David Lloyd George Liberal group, led by the "Father of the House," who was re-elected in the Carnarvon Boroughs, came through the test unscathed, all three of his followers holding their seats. They are Miss Megan Lloyd George in Anglesey, Major Gwilym Lloyd George in Pembrokeshire — both children of the wartime Prime Minister—and Major G. Owen in Carnarvonshire.

TAKE TWO BRITAIN IN

The Macdonalds Defeated

The Labor party more than doubled its strength and ousted the former head of the National Government, Ramsay MacDonald, in Seaham, together with his son, Colonial Secretary Malcolm MacDonald in Bassetlaw. Rural constituencies reporting late today swelled the total of government seats.

The popular vote for the government at mid-afternoon was 9,467,116 and against the government, 8,197,-478. In the 1931 general election the government vote totalled 14,-536,409 and the opposition vote 6,-885,230.

Liberal Losses

Opposition Liberals suffered heavy losses as the electorate chose between the National Government and the Labor party. Sir Herbert Samuel, Liberal chieftain, was defeated in Darwen and attributed it to the intervention of the Labor candidate.

"I am not at all surprised," said former Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald at his London home when informed he had been overwhelmed in Seaham by Emanuel Shinwell, Labor, with a majority of 30,488.

"Seaham," he declared "is not only in a special area where the means test is the predominating issue, but the vast majority of the electors are miners and a wage increase has been a special issue."

Jubilation at Seaham

There were wild scenes of jubilation in Seaham when it became known Shinwell had been defeated by one of the largest majorities in the country.

Some time passed before the returning officer could obtain sufficient quiet to make his declaration. Escorted by police officers and election helpers, Emanuel Shinwell, victorious candidate, went to the miners' Welfare Hall where the miners and their wives cheered him

MINISTER TO U. S.

Senator Geo. P. Graham

It is reported from Ottawa that Senator Geo. P. Graham, noted liberal statesman has been appointed as Canada's new Minister to Washington to replace Hon. Duncan Herridge, who has resigned.

MACDONALD OUT

Former Premier Ramsay MacDonald, defeated at Seaham after what he calls a "filthy" contest in which bricklbats were thrown at his women supporters in cars, today frankly described himself as a "done-in old man."

HIGHLIGHTS OF ELECTION

(By Canadian Press)

Lord David Cecil, Burleigh, famous Olympic Athlete, was again elected as the Conservative member for Peterborough with a majority of 4,-624 over Ernest Davies, Labor. He led the British team to the Olympic games at Los Angeles in 1932.

The Labor leader of Wednesday's third success of the election when Lord Willingdon (Freddie Guest), Lady Alice's son-in-law, was returned with a majority of 9,541 in Hartlepool and Stamford. The Viscountess is safely elected in the Sutton division of Plymouth, and her son, Hon. Peter Astor, captured East Fulham from Labor. All three winners are Conservatives.

A. F. Townend, Social Credit leader, was defeated in Leeds South by H. C. Charlton who gained the seat for Labor from the Conservatives. Townend was supported in his campaign by the Social Credit "Greenshirts" and also by Dame Ethel Thorndike, noted actress.

Viscount Duncannon, son of Canada's former Governor-General, was unsuccessful in his first bid for political honor in the Islington West division of London. Running as a Conservative, he was beaten by M. Lindsay Rogers, Labor. The seat was Conservative in the last House.

Election of two women brought the representation in the House of Commons to six today.

JEAN BATTEN, OCEAN FLIER, IS FOUND SAFE

WOMAN FLIER IS FORCED DOWN BY FUEL SHORTAGE

Miss Jean Batten, Conqueror of Atlantic, Was Believed Lost

ALIVE AND WELL

Requests Gasoline And a Mechanic to Repair Machine

Rio De Janeiro, Nov. 15 (AP) — Jean Batten, forced down at Praia Secca, Brazil, while on a flight to Rio De Janeiro, reached that city today in a Brazilian army plane, leaving her own damaged ship in a safe area.

The New Zealander, first woman to fly alone over the South Atlantic, had landed at Praia Secca, which is 15 miles north of Rio De Janeiro, because of lack of fuel.

Three army planes had searched for her after she was hours overdue here following her departure from Natal, Brazil, on the last leg of an England-to-Brazil flight.

The National Telegraph received from Natal message signed "Batten" at 7 a.m., saying she had been forced down—the first word that she was safe.

It was learned here the propeller of her plane was bristled as she landed in the swamps about four miles south of Rio, town on the Rio-Natal highway.

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 15. — (AP) — The National Telegraph Company reported today Miss Jean Batten, missing New Zealand flier, had been found alive at Araruama, Brazil, south of here.

The feminine pilot, only woman to fly alone over the South Atlantic, had been down for a time after flight here from Natal by fuel shortage, the telegraph company reported.

The location of Miss Batten as given by the company was a town on the east coast of Brazil between Rio de Janeiro and Cabo Frio, famous for its gambling resort.

National Telegraph officials told the Associated Press a laconic message signed "Batten" came to them at 7 a.m., advising the woman flier had been forced down on the salt marshes of Praia Secca, 15 miles south of Araruama, because of lack of fuel.

The message requested the British Consul to send a gasoline and a mechanic, the National Telegraph reported.

13 Below Zero At Norwegian Peak

North Bay, Ont., Nov. 15 (CP) —Northern Ontario shivered under chill northwest winds today with a low temperature of 15 degrees below zero reported at Hornepayne. Other reporting weather thermometers read as low as zero but as high as 25 above when the sun was well up today. It was 27 degrees below zero day but rigid weather was forecast for the next 24 hours.

Topeka, Kas., Nov. 15 (CP) — Ernest A. Norman, grocery clerk, tells of an elderly negro woman who had been singing radio relapse with her mark. This week, the negro "O" learned of an "X" explaining: "The last pet married and changed mah name.

THREE CHILDREN OF MINER DIE

Kirkland Lake, Ont., Nov 15 — (CP)—Left alone in their shack home on the Goodfish Road, two miles from here, three children of Charles Wilson, Lake Shore mine employee, were burned to death when fire broke out last night. The children are Russell, 12; Reid, 11, and Eorlie 8.

The father, who was out at the mine on the 11 o'clock shift, had left home earlier in the evening, while the mother had also left to spend the evening with friends in Kirkland Lake, telling the children to go to bed.

Origin of the fire will probably never be known. The shack was situated in a scattered settlement outside Kirkland Lake and the lack of water facilities made it impossible for firemen to do anything but prevent the flames from spreading to two adjoining homes.

Gordon Hubbard, one of the volunteer firemen, dashed into the building before it collapsed but was overcome by smoke and suffered a badly cut hand. He was unable to find the youngsters, whose bodies were later taken from the box mass of timbers, two of them apparently clasped in each other's arms.

Edwards, notified at the mine his home was on fire, was rushed to the scene in an automobile, while Mrs. Edwards was located in Kirkland Lake.

Delaware, O., Nov. 15 (CP) — This city is going on a silver standard. Shoppers have agreed to pay wares in silver dollars until Christmas.

Macdonald Says Campaign Filthy

London, Nov. 15.—(CP Cable) — "I feel I am out at Seaham", said Ramsay Macdonald pessimistically as he arrived this morning by train from Durham.

"I have no wish to backer," declared the former Prime Minister, "but I really do feel I am justified in describing the contest as a tremendously keen one—and a filthy one as well."

Without referring by name to his Labor opponent, Emanuel Shinwell, Mr. Macdonald added: "The tactics were absolutely reprehensible. Throwing brickbats yesterday at my women supporters in cars came to a climax to a series of horrible demonstrations."

Leaving the train, the man who was Prime Minister from June, 1929, until June of this year described himself frankly as "a done-in old man."

His face was drawn and pinched and his attendant on the sleeping car said had "never seen a man more collapse than Mr. Macdonald when he got on the train."

Fifty Turkeys Stolen in Swoop Gang Believed to be at Work

Provincial Police today are investigating the wholesale theft of fowl reported in Hastings County recently. Fifty bur 75 were stolen from the farm of Robert Matthews, 7th Concession of Rawdon, last night, while the night before a Thurlow farmer reported the theft of a large number of chickens. Inspector F. Gardner of the O.P.P., Constables McIlwain and Kelly today are making a thorough search of the surrounding district in hopes of apprehending the culprits. Other minor cases of a similar nature have also been brought to the authorities' attention. The fowl thefts are believed to be the work of an organized gang, who are stealing the birds and selling them to a metropolitan market in either Toronto or Montreal.

STRATEGIC CITY HARAR TO FALL, WORD FROM FRONT

LINE BOMBED

Encampment Virtually Destroyed by Rain of Bombs

By A. K. Simms, Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Rome, Nov. 15 (AP)—The fall of the strategic Ethiopian city of Harar was reported by Italian correspondents on the front African roads today to be imminent.

After a pitched battle in the Harar area Colonel Maleitti's column in southern Ethiopia was engaged in sweeping the region clear of ambuscades and raiders.

The correspondents added Maleitti with his "Flying Dubats" was already so far advanced in the high valley of the Fafan he was "only 80 kilometres (about 32 miles) from his immediate objective."

They reported the regular Ethiopian defenders in the settlings around Harar had fallen back in disorder before Maleitti's advance.

Italian pilots reported that Maleitti the soldiers he was driving back were "in complete flight" from Harar towards Jijiga. They were said to be "suffering at first."

Rome, Nov. 15 (AP)—Italian bombers and pursuit planes have destroyed the encampment of Ethiopian troops at Dagahbur, 60 miles southeast of Harar, the high command announced today.

"The rain fell in torrents and the camp was virtually destroyed by bombs," the communique said.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Miami, Fla., Nov. 15 (CP) — Prof. W. E. Castle, Harvard biologist living tasting ice cream, says "people are not educated to the use of ice cream."

Canadians Break Even in Campaign

London, Nov. 15.—(CP Cable) — Anglo-Canadian broke even in British election balloting. Today's count showed Captain Peter Macdonald retaining his seat as a Conservative in the Isle of Wight by a majority of 11,167. Miss Agnes Macdonald, a Nova Scotian, had a 22,-000 margin when her world's seat was contested.

His election assured presence in the next Parliament of three Canadians. Bartie Bull, son of W. Purbis Bull, Toronto, was elected for in Middlesex Enfield, last night's count showed and A. Reyner Bancroft, Torontonian and former editor of the London Daily Express, rolled up a big majority for Middlesex Woolwich.

Retired in Alington East of Viscount Dunsannon, son of Lord Beaverbrook, was recorded today. The two other unsuccessful Canadians were Arthur Haycock of Canada, beaten as a Labourite in Salford West, and Sigmund Samuel, formerly of Toronto, in West Wiltshire West, formerly a Government seat.

Magistrate Browne Says Second Remand Not Unusual

Toronto, Nov. 15—(CP)— Harry O'Donnell, charged with the murder of 19-year-old Ruth Taylor Nov. 6 last, was remanded to Nov. 22 for preliminary hearing, when he appeared in Magistrate's Court today. Frank Regan, defence counsel, protested the remand, stating O'Donnell had the right to hear the charge against him sired in open court.

O'Donnell was pale and appeared nervous as he stood up in the prisoners' dock and heard Magistrate Robert Browne grant the request of the crown's counsel to give scientists an opportunity of completing their researches, decided to form the main evidence at the hearing.

Brought Into Court

O'Donnell was wearing a black leather windbreaker, dark blue shirt and leather tie. He was not brought into court until after the Magistrate had asked the Crown if there were any remands.

"There are a number of scientific witnesses who have not yet completed their work," said Assistant Crown Attorney Gibson, asking for a remand to Nov. 22. Mr. Edgar Wade seconded the request and

Regan's Objection

"You mean it is custody case a week," he objected. "You mean it is on little if any evidence."

"I don't know about that," remarked Magistrate Browne.

The Magistrate told Mr. Regan there was nothing extraordinary about asking for a second remand in a murder case.

"But this is an unusual case," interjected the defence counsel. "This is a woman with a little baby, whose life may hang on this," he added, stating Mr. O'Donnell was in a maternity hospital, unaware of her husband's arrest.

Magistrate's Report

"There is also a young girl in her grave" the Magistrate replied.

"Through no fault or my client," came back Mr. Regan.

BELLEVILLE GIRLS BROUGHT HOME

Clifford Brown Found With Women Taken To Hamilton

Montreal, Nov. 15.—(CP)—An official from Hamilton, Ont., will arrive here today to escort James Clifford Brown back to Belleville to face a charge of burglary.

Brown was detained here following his discovery in a room in an east end rooming house with another man and three young Belleville girls, aged 14, 11 and eight. The girls were taken back home yesterday following arrangements made by officials of the Montreal Juvenile Court and a Social Service Society in Belleville. No charge was laid against the other man and he was released.

The girls were found in the room with the girls, when an elder sister complained the youngsters had left their home to join two men here. Three revolvers were found in the room.

Brown was found to be wanted in Hamilton on a charge of robbing a butcher shop of $400.

The final chimney fire in several days was reported at 7:30 this afternoon by the fire department to six o'clock last evening.

WHITE BLANKET OF SNOW IN NORTH

Estimated to be about three inches in depth a white blanket of snow is now covering the ground over most of the county from Cornsky north. It was stated yesterday by Warden James Bronson of Picton, who was a visitor to the city on official business. The fall occurred early this week when sleet storms caused much damage to the roofing section of the county. Traffic, however is unhindered by the fall, and nearly cold weather has been reported in the north. Lakes are still unfrozen and plenty of duck shooting are still viable in the northern townships. It was reported by the Warden.

THOS. LEVEQUE PLEADS GUILTY

Remanded One Week And Costell Will be Procured

Thomas Leveque, 46, of this city, pleaded guilty to a charge of indecently assaulting a five-year-old girl, when arraigned before His Worship Magistrate K. J. Butler, K.C., today. The assault took place in a vacant house on John Street earlier this week. Sentence was postponed for one week by His Worship during which time Leveque will be examined by mental experts.

Following Leveque's plea of guilty A. G. Donnelly, K.C., local Crown Attorney, addressed the court. "Your worship, this is a very serious matter and I am trying to procure a lawyer for the accused, who is also from Toronto. I ask good for one week during which I suppose he can be assigned counsel by the proper authorities as I believe this is a case of mental observation," stated the Crown. "I am in accord with your suggestion. Case enlarged for one week for sentence," concluded Magistrate Butler.

Constable Costell is Policeman Constable Fred Lazet, Leveque partially conducted the case for the department given that chief officer on Wednesday.

3 CARS INVOLVED IN ACCIDENT

Reckless Driving Charge is Laid Against Toronto Driver

Although only two automobiles were damaged, three motor cars were implicated in a motor accident that happened on the Dundas road, 11 ris of the city at 5.00 p.m. last evening. Provincial Traffic Officer Fred Wise was called to the scene of the crash and after investigations laid a charge of reckless driving against Wm. R. Krier, 66 Sarnt Road, Toronto.

According to information received by the officer, Mr. Krier was driving easterly in the wake of another automobile, being driven by Albert Jones, of this city, when the lead car suddenly was forced to stop and a hard application brought out of the laneway leading into the filtration plant. The following car stopped in successfully stop his vehicle in time to allow the third motor car sufficient space to back out the laneway, but while so doing the Krier-driven car backed into the car of Mr. Jones' automobile. The name of the driver of the vehicle backing out of the laneway was not procured, however.

The Jones' motor car was badly damaged about the front fenders and radiator, while the rear fender of Jones' car was also badly damaged. A charge of reckless driving was laid by the officer against Krier who was alleged to have not had his car under control.

POLICE COURT

A large docket of minor cases was presented before Magistrate K. J. Butler, K.C., today. Wm. Krier, Toronto motorist, who appeared on a charge of reckless driving, arising out of a motor accident, this occurred at the western extremity of the city yesterday afternoon, had the charge reduced to that of common speeding today and paid the usual assessed fine of five dollars and costs The charge was laid by Traffic Officer Sam Irvine. Numerous other M.T.A. offenders also attended the court's coffers by paying similar fines.

A non-payment of wages charge was withdrawn when the employer paid up while a non-support charge was also amicably settled. Other cases of a minor nature were by the husband and wife concerned.

For the first time in some months no charges of intoxication were heard in the local court.

POLICE BLOTTER

Activities were none too brisk in and about local police circles during the past 24 hours when only one fire midnight last night a motor accident happened at the intersection of Foundry and Church Streets, when an automobile driven by H. D. Norman, Toronto, collided with another auto, being driven by Edward Shapiro, 171 Ann Street, Belleville. Mr. Shapiro was proceeding south on Church Street when Mr. Norman was going east on Foundry Street and apparently did not see the other vehicle. Both cars had their damaged headlights resulted, but the matter of settlement was amicably arrived at upon the arrival of P. C. Evans who investigated. No charges were deemed necessary.

Eight transients were afforded a warm nightly lodging at the police station last night, while in the women's cell a petite Perth lass was confined, after allegedly obtaining wearing apparel from a local dealer fraudulently. The young woman in today's police court and was sent back to her Perth parents after being severely reprimanded.

HOBBY SHOW AT COLLEGIATE IS MOST INTERESTING
Exhibits Show Ingenuity And Handiwork of Students

MANY STAMP ALBUMS

Answering the invitation of Miss Beatrice Wickstead, instructor in Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, to bring exhibits for a Hobby Show, students have revealed the various worthwhile projects, which fill their leisure hours. The hobbies include all manner of collections and handicraft pursuits and show the ingenuity of clever workers.

Stamp collections prove, that boys have no monopoly in this field for several really good albums were compiled by girls. The Jubilee issue exhibit by Alwyn Green was especially noteworthy and collections of coins and dolls by Lawyn Gaskin and Haddow Sears were also very interesting.

The study of astronomy led Helen Smith to make outline of the constellations in gold stars in a book, whose leaves are interspersed with colored cards on Knitting screening, fancy work, lamp shades, scrap books were revealed by the girls. Silhouettes made from linoleum cuts, oil paintings by Tom Hyland, painted silhouettes, and drawings of movie stars were evidence of artistic leanings by a number of students.

Wood' Carving Excelsed

Delicate hand wood carving by Beverly Biggs and modelling in soap were greatly admired and of course well-designed model airplane wood working had a special place in the exhibit. Many clever and Christmas gifts were clever and amusing, intriguing spectators to the PEI finally, Mrs. Ethel Ross and Gy. Thomas' unusual linens in the show room and Dorothy Lee's basket made of an armadillo shell. Aeroplanes and boats beautifully modelled and executed revealed growing interest in these handicraft and those of the Dufek boys were leaders in this class.

Echoes of the war centred in the collection of Great War souvenirs, the most extensive of which was brought by Malcolm MacKeland. Also after brought from Cologne, the ruins of a Cathedral near Amiens, vacuum bottles for holding up sobtles, relics in the Ypres salient, Belgium gas masks, shrapnel and bullets, a German machine gun, a Dreyse automatic found at Sill Mill, an old-time German marching horn, machine gun belt and a pocket-map were among the interesting items together with a Canadian Field Service Coat brought by Hal Mackey. A German officer's cap and dagger were exhibited by Malcolm Mackeland. Only a month in the war of 1812, and one of the Indian tomahawks were shown by George Hunter.

The librarian had endeavoured to link with the exhibits books relating to the various topics and the display was completed with a literary map.

COUNTY WARDEN SECURES A DEER

James Bronson States Deer Getting Better Protection

Warden of Hastings County Council, James J. Bronson, mainstalks this week, and has been one of the best shots and mighty hunters of the county for many a year, as he has done without fail every fall. Yesterday morning during the genial Warden managed to get his annual buck deer without the worry and strain of previous hunting trips.

Not as large as other specimens he has secured in the past, this year's buck was described as just right in size.

The deer, shot in Cashel Township was brought to the county seat shot, when surprised feeding in some underbrush. Only a second bullet was necessary to terminate its career.

Deer in the north country are getting better protection each year through the fact that throughout the north second growth timber is annually increasing in density and size. Following the growth of the wooded tracts, heavy undergrowth has also kept pace with the growing of the trees afforded the deer ideal coverage. Absence of snow this year has also contributed to lack of really good hunting, it was declared by the Warden.

Telegraph Creek, B.C., Nov. 15 —(CP)— Anxiety was felt today for the safety of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Simpson who left Oct. 1 in a small gas boat for a trip down the Stikine River to Wrangell, Alaska. They did not reach Wrangell.

Obituary

MRS. JANE MORROW (Frankford)

(Contributed)

Frankford community lost one of its most highly respected citizens in the passing of Mary Jane Simpson of the late John W. Morrow which occurred on Monday, Nov. 18, at her residence. She was in the 81th discussion of the township of Sidney after an illness of two weeks.

The late Mrs. Morrow was born in the township of North Sherbrooke in Lanark County, May 16, 1851 and was in her 71st year. She was married to the late John W. Morrow Dec. 2, 1886, who predeceased her ten years ago.

To this union were born eight children, three of whom survive, Etna, Mrs. Chas. Blanchard of Toronto; Florence of Wooler, Richard of Murray, Walter at the homestead, Mildred, Mrs. R. Terry, of Brighton Lena, Mrs. Rd. Dawson of Harold, and Evva, a teacher on the public school staff at Frankford, and residing at home, Edith, Mrs. R. Ecker, of Tweed, who predeceased her six years ago.

The late Mrs. Morrow was a daughter of the late Walter Sim and James Duncan of Vancouver, B.C. After her marriage they resided at Maberly for a number of years later moving to Baldwin near Perth, and seventeen years ago they moved to her late residence where she has resided since.

The funeral service was conducted at his home Nov. 6th by the Rev E. J. Wilson of Kingston, a friend of the family. Mr. Wilson is a minister of the Holiness Movement Church of which the deceased was a member. He was assisted by the Rev. F. J. Lake of the United Church, Frankford, the Rev. W. Hollingsworth of the United Church, Marysville and Rev. R. Mayne of Smith's Falls.

During the service a beautiful solo was rendered by Mrs. Rhoda Maybee, "Home Day the Silver Chords Will Break" accompanied at the piano by Mr. Gerald Snider.

The pall bearers chosen by the deceased lady's son-in-law were Messrs. Walter Priddy, John Morrow, Jas. Mayhew, Jas. Williamson, Charles Badgley and Harvey Johnson.

Interment was made in the family plot at Stockdale cemetery.

OLDER BOYS' PARLIAMENT

On December 7th will be held the election of a candidate for the fifteenth Ontario Older Boys' Parliament. Names of candidates nominated will be published as soon as the nominations are closed.

The Older-Boys' Parliament is composed of elected representatives, boys between sixteen and twenty-one, who are members of a Christian church or of good moral character and whose attitude and activities indicate that they are worthy of church membership, who fulfill the necessary standard of personal conduct and living and who are nominated by their constituencies by November 15th. Election will be by secret ballot.

Any boy who has passed his twelfth but not his 21st birthday on December 7th may vote if he has attended at least 25 per cent of the meetings of a Sunday School class, or Trail Ranger or Trail Crown, which is duly registered with the Ontario Boys' Work Board. Names have to be on voters' lists by December 2nd.

Arthur Long, Fleda Mullett Oratorical Contest Winners of Warden Jas. Bronson's Medals

Contest Held Under The Sponsorship of Agricultural Committee

MANY ATTEND

Tyendinaga Boy Will Compete in District Competition

Crowned champion orator of all schools in the North, Centre and South Hastings Inspectorates, Arthur Long, Tyendinaga, junior pupil of School Section No. 16 was named winner of the annual Championship Public Speaking Contest held in Shire Hall yesterday. The diminutive winner trimmped over nine other champion orators from throughout the county.

As winner of the Warden's gold medal, Arthur Long was also presented with the Championship Shield awarded either boy or girl at the annual contest. The Bronze Vanderwater for highest marks. The win now permits him to enter the District Championship Public Speaking contest at Brighton on Friday, November 22nd. Until then his subject will be withheld.

Largely Attended

Five boys and five girls from throughout the county participated in the speaking contest, which was one of the largest events of the annual event. In the positive statement of Judge T. J. MacGregor, principal of the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, Mr. J. G. Hertz, principal of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce and Mrs. (Dr.) Ross, the oratorical efforts of the small contestants were some of the best produced.

In opening the afternoon of proceedings, Warden James J. Bronson, who presided at the meeting, called attention to the efforts of the Agricultural Committee of the Hastings County Council through whose efforts the contest had been originally fostered and annually established.

Declaring himself highly pleased with the contest, Warden Bronson added those present to consider the fine work here which Hastings County is so rigidly. Previous generations had contributed to the county, but has always been upgrade since Hastings County was first formed. Many of these pioneers, who had helped build Hastings and had come to her triumphantly forward to its present high position among other municipalities of Ontario. Warden pointed to in the pictures on the wall of historical interest, referring in which the contest was being held.

"You of the younger generation remain to take their places, to carry on this work and I am satisfied that have not completed. Always the question will now remain, which one of your pictures will adorn these walls in years to come? The boys and girls of today are the men and women of tomorrow."

High Standard of County

Warden Bronson called attention to the high standard this county had set for others to follow. "At the present time Hastings stands second among all counties of the province financially and otherwise and in richness of its agriculture."

Although brief, the juvenile orators excelled in their efforts in splendid addresses offered. Hastings County, he reasoned, is the opportunities which it offered to all classes of residents, and ease of living within its boundaries was stressed by some of the competitors in their remarks. Others chose the physical and man made characteristics of Canada and Ontario for development in within the country and the varied industries that had helped her maintain, that stirred adulting when other nations were in chaos. They were the historic highlights, the early settlers and the pioneering of the country neglected.

Paper Industry Explained

As winner of the girls' class, Miss Fleda Mullett chose as her topic, "Pulp and Paper Industry." With a clarity and ease of expression she took her listeners through the varied and intricate development of that industry from its early invention by the Chinese to its present highly organized state. Now definitely linked as the chief component necessary to business of the world.

From the rock and stone tablets of the rendition she gave the finer paper of present day use what had at first been a useful invention but now become one of the accepted necessities of life. Paper had kept in advance of civilization and without it, said that material such would not have been possible. Humorously she referred upon the fact that without the every day scribbler and note book "We would probably be carrying our home work in wheelbarrows."

Competitors

The following competitors were entered in the speaking contest:—

Boys—Mac Cooney, S.S. No. 4, Sidney; Gordon Ray, S.S. 14, Thurlow; Arthur Long, S.S. 14, Tyendinaga; Clare Waddell, S.S. 4 and 5, Huntingdon; Bert Judge, S.S. 1, Carlow.

In making his presentation of school fair trophies, Reeve J. L. Churcher paid tribute to the efforts of Mr. Jas. Wilson, Stirling, agricultural representative of this district.

"But for his untiring effort and interest and keen assistance given County Council we would be unable to keep this annual event up. It is one of the best things that could be maintained and of lasting benefit. I do not call the pupils but to the teachers also," declared Reeve Churcher. One of the students who had received his trophy. Alfred Blair, of his own township, was unable to walk five miles to school, but even that did not daunt his interest in school work, pointed out the Reeve.

SAY ACCUSED HELD MAN UNDER WATER

Drowned Him For Price of Bottle of Liquor, Witness Quotes Prisoner

Brockville, Nov. 15—(CP)—Testimony that Joseph Donovan said he had drowned a man "for the price of a bottle of liquor," holding him under water until air bubbles began rising, was given Thursday at Donovan's trial on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Victor Johnston.

Johnston's body was found floating in shallow water in the St. Lawrence River near his summer cottage outside the city last May 1st. He formerly was in business here.

Eric Landry, a boarder at the home of Mrs. Hazel Fryker, where Donovan is said to have called the morning after Johnston's death, was the witness.

Landry said that on August 18 at Mrs. Fryker' home he opened the door to Donovan and another man. They asked for a glass of beer. After they had left, Fryker's tenant, Landry took a bottle into the dining-room and poured a glassful for Donovan.

Donovan, witness testified, asked him if he had heard about the man who was drowned. Landry said he had said: "What man?"

Donovan answered, "Johnston," Landry said.

Then Fryker entered the room and asked, "What man was drowned?"

"He (Johnston) drowned himself

SIR CHARLES KINGSFORD-SMITH

Doubt remains as to the fate of Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, lost on another of those flights calculated to establish a new record.

For eight years he has been making a name as one of the greatest of aviators, some going so far as to call him the world's greatest. He has circumnavigated the globe, used radio to keep the world in touch with his flights. He has crossed the Tasman Sea from Australia to New Zealand, leaped from England to Australia, hopped the Atlantic, doubly circumnavigated the Pacific. These were some of his achievements.

Writers declared his record-breaking has resulted in practical trans-Pacific navigation between China and the United States by way of Manila, and a close tying of the Orient to the Occident. He has strengthened the tie which binds England to Australia and the rest of the Empire.

Men like Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith have done things which should give man a very definite idea of the earth. We are so accustomed to talking of infinite distances in the solar system and in the universe that we are apt to forget that the earth is very small and that Kingsford-Smith went around it in the matter of days. That means that the distance of earth to moon is only ten times the number of days' distance it took the aviator to take his flight around the earth. We look on Canada as very large, and yet a great part of this country can be traversed in a day flying three thousand miles from sunrise to sunset.

Then he has tied nations together and may be the herald of a world confederacy, distant perhaps, yet to be in the minds of many. He is bringing the nations so close that they may scarcely have room to quarrel especially if all are so close.

Hope seems almost lost for this man, and yet it is a regrettable fact that the more one flies the nearer is seems danger, else, even if experience does grow, Men and women may wonder what is the good of all this effort and nerve strain. But very practical results are seen, the world has a new notion of the world. And there is the proposed commercial service among the three nations, Britain, the United States and Canada by next year across the Atlantic. Without Kingsford-Smith and other daring aeronauts such would not be possible. They prepared the way.

Meanwhile everyone prays the hero Kingsford-Smith may have landed safely and will ultimately find his way back to civilization.

BLACKBOARD IN CHURCH

Bringing the blackboard back into the church for the morning lesson was advocated by the Rev. E. B. D. Bennith of Farrowsmith, speaking at Kingston United Church Presbytery. The blackboard plays no small part in the life of school, college and university. Should it not in the church? It is used with benefit in the Y. M. C. A. where the brightest youths and young men are gathered.

A picture is worth 10 letters is better than the merely spoken word. Man learns through the eye more than by any other agency. How easy if something is marked on the board it is to remember it, but how easy it is to forget every single word of a sermon or an address. . . . . .

Mr. Sexsmith wishes every member in church would carry a pencil. If so, the day when they will not depend upon reporters will have come. Indeed newspapermen have often wondered why so many good seeds are scattered before congregations in sermons which never reap full reward because the memory at best is treacherous and the mind is thinking probably of something else even when the pearls of wisdom are being poured out by the preacher who has given hours of study and a lifetime of experience to what he wraps up in a sermon.

Life is a school, even when one is in church. Would it make the church too scholastic and intellectual? The church today does leave a deep impression of spiritual values as its great aim. Will the blackboard which is valuable in school and college stress the mind only?

Is not the ordinary service in church too comfortable anyway for body and not strenuous enough for the mind?

Will the blackboard come? Who knows? or will there be other appeals to the eye which will help to rivet the lessons on the minds and hearts of the people?

'A sneer is the weapon of the weak.—Like other weapons of the devil it is always cunningly ready to our hand, and there is more poison in the handle than in the point.—Lowell.

It is said that jealousy is love, but I deny it; for though it may be procured by love, as ashes are by fire, yet jealousy extinguishes love, as ashes smother the flames.—Margaret of Navarre.

Jealousy is always born with love but never dies with it.—Rochefoucauld.

It is a good thing to make a jest, but it is a bad thing to make a jest, but it is a worse thing to jest at nothing.—Fuller.

PLEA

God grant me a moment that brings no dream
Of the white sea spray and the wind's bellows,
And the gulls that follow the spars and scream
To the hard deep songs of the sailing fellows.
For sick is the deepest heart of me
With a thirst to go where the dark hulls ride
And the moon swings up from the mid-night sea
And the wind roars in with the restless tide.
God grant me an hour that does not burn
For a whistling boom and the spanker's crack
And the wheel's short kick and the water's churn
On a tough ship's side, on a strong ship's back.
God grant me a heartache that drives and whips
For aught on earth save the lant of ship!

LOTS OF THINGS FOLKS ASK YOU QUICK LIKE and you are at loss for the right answer. F-RINSTANCE, where did the name Cheddar as applied to cheese come from? We didn't known until we enquired and the answer was: "Cheddar Cheese got its start in the quaint old village of Cheddar, England, when an enterprising farmer named Joseph Harding, first manufactured the cheese according to a combination of methods probably learned from the country people of that section of England."

WITH THE FLOOR OF THE SHACK LITERALLY FAVED WITH GOLD two prospectors levelled it, and threw pay dirt up and the roof with the mud and stones removed to make the shack floor level. Then they sank a shaft a few yards away and found nothing but country rock. They gave up in disgust. Another prospector came along, after a rain, noticed something shining on the roof. Investigated, found gold which assayed high. Hunted around until he found where the pay dirt came from then sank a shaft in the floor of the shack. Struck it rich, acquired the claim, and handed the two original owners a pain which they never got over. This happened in the Black Hills of Dakota some years ago, and only goes to prove the age-old saying of miners "Gold is where you find it."

THE PARTING

After the farewell sermon the minister stood at the church door bidding good-bye to the members of his congregation as they left the church.

An old farmer shook him warmly by the hand. "Well, sir," he said heartily, "I can't say as we shall miss your vacant chair, but we shall miss your vacant face."

ALL IN THE DAY'S WORK

The country auctioneer held up a battered fiddle.

"Lot twenty-four" he announced to his audience, who were for the most part neighboring farmers.

"Now, what am I offered for this beautiful violin. Take a look at its case. See the blurred finger marks of remorseless time. To the merry notes of this fine old instrument, the brocaded dames of fair France have danced the stately minuet in the glittering ballrooms of Versailles. Now, gentlemen, what do you offer me for this splendid instrument?"

There was a long silence while the farmers turned the auctioneer's words over in their minds.

"Ninepence," said one at length.

"It's yours" declared the auctioneer, cheerfully.

20 YEARS AGO

NOV. 15TH, 1915.

Last evening in the assembly room at Bridge Street Methodist Church a mock trial was held under the auspices of the Epworth League. The affair was a most pleasant diversion, bringing out much excellent talent in the members of the League. Mr. Harold Holton, president of the league, played the part of the judge; Mr. Wendell Osborne was prosecuting attorney; Mr. Hyde was counsel for the defendant, Miss Van Luven, who was charged with not having given one tenth of her income to religious work. Some clever witnesses were examined. The jury accepted the burden of the evidence at pointing to guilt of the accused and the judge imposed the sentence of a term of one year's attendance at league meetings. Needless to say the severity of the sentence almost broke down the defendant. The attendance was well over one hundred.

THOMASBURG

Thomasburg, Nov. 13.— Friends and neighbours of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Preston (nee Miss Mary Hicks of Carrying) numbering over one hundred gathered at the I.O.O.F. Hall on Wednesday evening to present them with a diamond and rocking chair and wish them bon voyage on the sea of matrimony.

Rev. J. C. Beaner, rector of the Anglican Church here acted as chairman and called the gathering to order. After a brief address, welcoming Mrs. Preston to the community and giving some timely advice to the young married couple as well as to the newlyweds, Rev. Mr. Beaner called on Mr. Harry Caufield to read the address. Mr. and Mrs. Preston were then invited to the platform and both made suitable replies, thanking friends and all for the beautiful gifts and extended an invitation to everyone to visit them in their new home. Mrs. Nell Preston and Mrs. Ray Diamond then favored with humorous songs. Several local men spoke briefly expressing good wishes to the happy young couple. Mrs. Neil Steven gave an appropriate reading. All joined in singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" followed by "Three Cheers" for the Bride and Groom. The singing of "God Save the King" brought to a close a pleasant evening spent by all. Lunch was then served and the remainder of the evening was spent in games and social intercourse.

The programme opened with a grand parade the prize winners being Mrs. Jack C. Morton and Misses Anita and Beade English. The remainder of the evening was spent in games and music. A delicious lunch was served at the close, and Mr. J. F. Bateman, on behalf of relatives and their friends, moved a vote of thanks to the host and hostess with which Mrs. Neil and Harrington replied very aptly.

BIG NEW MONEY-SAVING DODGE

Beauty Winner of 1936!

Famous for Ruggedness, Dependability, Safety and Economy . . . New Dodge Hailed by Noted Auto Editors as Smartest and Most Handsomely Styled Car in Dodge History

● Everyone knows Dodge as the car that has smashed all records for ruggedness, for dependability . . . for amazing gas and oil and upkeep economy. Everyone knows Dodge as the car that has survived the most torturous safety tests that scientific ingenuity and human daring can invent. Now Dodge steps out ahead with breath-taking beauty . . . sets the pace for all 1936 cars with sensational new style and smartness.

HAILED BY AUTO EDITORS

Canada's foremost automobile editors — men who know their cars and dig, hail the new Dodge — its every stunning line and feature—its rich, new interiors. And no wonder they all endorse. At very first sight you, too, will recognize the sheer beauty and luxury of this new Dodge. This "Beauty Winner" of 1936 gives you all the things you should demand of a motor car—the things you are entitled to. It gives you the kind of a ride that would thrill you even in the most expensive cars, yet with the amazing economy of operation everyone knows Dodge provides.

SAFETY-STEEL BODIES

It gives you the time-proved safety of Dodge genuine hydraulic brakes . . . safety-steel bodies . . . the finger-tip, toe-tip handling ease of Balanced Steering . . . new, more spacious interiors, trimmed in richer, more expensive materials . . . and above all, it gives you the economy of the powerful Dodge engine which will save you money every mile you drive. See this brilliant new Dodge today. Drive it. See for yourself how much extra value this big Money-Saving Dodge gives you . . . yet it is priced right down among the lowest-priced cars!

Warren B. Hastings, Automotive Editor, Toronto Star, Weekly, says: "Solid, beauty and comfort are the outstanding features of the new Dodge. Its appearance is unique. The 1936 Dodge adds up to prosperity in lines and color features."

Harry Clarke, popular Automobile Editor, Toronto Star, Weekly, says: "Two 21 years a lot about motor cars, but I'll be darned if at the 21st Dodge I haven't found a car that I like looking at more than any other I've ever seen."

YOU'LL FIND MORE COMFORT than even in this new Dodge ryar compartment. Most spacious than before, it is trimmed in richer, more expensive materials and provides every luxury and convenience you could desire . . . "driver's right" seat . . . longer, more restful arm rests . . . handy ash receivers . . . and many other smart appointments.

GENUINE HYDRAULIC BRAKES were pioneered by Dodge —have been tried and proved in the toughest test of all—time! Always easy to operate, always equalized, Dodge genuine hydraulic brakes stop you quickly—surely—safely!

PROTECT THEM IN THE DODGE SAFETY-STEEL BODY

Dodge pioneered in building the safety-steel body 21 years ago. Now the big, new, Money-Saving Dodge gives you a steel body that is even stronger, more rigid than ever before — steel reinforced with an even more sturdy framework of steel pillars, corner posts and side braces . . . all welded together into a rugged unit of steel. Safety glass in all windows of closed models.

BOOK TALK

In the Collegiate Auditorium during the last period yesterday afternoon Miss N. P. Merry addressed the first and second forms of the Collegiate department on the subject of reading, completing the second of a series of Book Week addresses to the school.

Miss Merry impressed on her hearers the importance of developing a taste for good reading. Reading is so satisfying in lonely hours, or when things look gloomy, as the companionship of books, and no one is so solitary as the person who has never learned to turn to book friends in leisure moments. One should try to develop one's taste for a certain class of literature, such as adventure, so that nothing will satisfy one but the writings of the great narrators. The stimulating and educating effect of books as well as their entertainment was stressed by the speaker who warned the students not to read a book simply because they think they ought to, but because they want to.

Picton and District

Picton—The November meeting of the Home and School Club was held in the Legion Clubrooms on Thursday afternoon, November 7th, with a smaller attendance than usual present. The President, Mrs. Ira Ward, occupied the chair. The meeting opened with the Lord's Prayer followed by the singing of O Canada, and two songs from the song sheet, with Mrs. Cass Wallers at the piano. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Fenwick, followed by the treasurer's report, given by Mrs. Knapman. The corresponding secretary, Mrs. L. R. Calnan read communications from the Sec. Picton Public School thanking the Club for the kitchen cabinet given to the new domestic science room; from Mrs. Gordon Walmsley for flowers sent by the Club, and from a Kingston branch of the Club inviting members from this Club to their annual meeting. The pictures that the club purchased, and which went to the room in each school having the greatest number of mothers present at each monthly meeting, were presented, one to the Mary St. School to be hung in the new hall, and the other to Miss Wyeth's room in the York St. School. The president asked all members to try to think up ideas for securing better attendance at the meetings. Mrs. Walden gave a solo, accompanied vocal solo, accompanied by Mrs. Wallers. The guest speaker of the afternoon, Rev. David Wren, gave a very comprehensive talk on "The League of Nations". The speaker claimed that this great and wonderful institution that meets at Geneva has responsibilities greater than at first hand we can conceive. Three-quarters of the world's population is represented in this assembly of nations. Each nation represented has its own characteristics and individualism, and it is not so easy to change convictions and ideals over night." We hear more about the efforts being made for war than for peace," said the speaker. "The news flashing give in only one side of the picture. The league of nations is one of the most useful organizations of all time. The representatives of the different countries have no power over the governments of the countries they represent. But before a representative leaves his own country he gets the attitude of his government. The League is a means of getting together to discuss matters that affect world unity. If it can settle the Italian-Ethiopian dispute it will banish the fear of future wars. United States, Russia and Turkey are the three great powers who are not members of the League. The U.S. has a representative who sits in the outside court and Russia wishes to enter. We should be a member of the Society of the League of Nations and subscribe to its magazine."

Mrs. Bowers moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Wren for the fine address which was seconded by Mrs. Harry Carter. Mrs. Cass Wallers then gave a piano solo, "Land of Hope and Glory," God Save the King closed the meeting.

Mrs. Doney Thompson of Toronto is visiting relatives in Picton.

Mr. T. Frith Fraser has been confined to his home, Queen Street, since Monday, and is very seriously ill.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Calnan left on Thursday to spend a few days in Toronto.

A new form of chain letter has invaded Picton. The one receiving the letter sends a piece of new print of a certain stated size to the person whose name heads the letter, and in turn makes four copies of the letter and sends them to friends. If the chain is unbroken each letter writer receives eventually enough pieces for a quilt. Since money is not being asked for more people are entering the "contest".

BEAUTY AND DAHLIAS

This picture of charming Rita Chanlon, screen star in the making, was taken to show some prize winning dahlias belonging to her father. And while a few of the lovely flowers are shown, we thought Rita was much more decorative than the horticultural display.

SHANNONVILLE W.M.S.

The W.M.S. of Shannonville United Church held their monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon, Nov. 7th at the home of Mrs. F. McFarlane, with Mrs. Sam Elliott, group leader in charge and Mrs. Sara Stickney presiding at the piano.

After the opening hymn all joined in repeating the Lord's prayer. Mrs. C. Boulistridge read the Scripture lesson, and also the devotional leaflet, and Mrs. (Rev.) Clark, president, led in prayer. Roll call was answered by a verse of Thanksgiving; twenty-nine ladies being present. The treasurer reported over twenty dollars worth of coppers handed in as a result of the contest.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary and adopted. Eleven dollars thankoffering was consecrated by prayer (Mrs. (Rev.) Clark. All were very pleased to welcome a new member Mrs. J. Cockell to the auxiliary.

Mrs. Jesse Elliott gave a reading from the Missionary Monthly. Mrs. C. Boulistridge gave a reading entitled "Wintry Ambition" and Mrs. P. Knight gave the temperance reading by Rev. George Little. Mrs. W. S. Dies then introduced the new Study Book on Africa explaining conditions of living in that country. The regular collection was $1.85 and for Dower Fund $1.62. After the closing hymn all repeated the Mizpah Benediction.

The hostess served refreshments and a very pleasant social time was spent.

Stirling and District

Stirling—The regular weekly meeting of St. Andrew's Young People's Society was held in the Sunday school rooms on Monday evening with a fair attendance for the prevailing weather condition. The meeting was opened with the usual song service. Mr. James Johnston, president, was in charge of the evening's activities. Miss Inez Johnston read the Scripture lesson. The Secretary, Miss Margaret Rosebush, gave the report of the previous meeting. A quartette composed of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Eggleton, Miss Inez Rigby and William Dermidy sang "I'll Think Of You Way" in a very pleasing manner. Miss Inez Rigby gave a very interesting reading which was followed by the address of the evening which was delivered by Miss Margaret Rosebush. Miss Rosebush dealt very carefully with a very interesting topic. The program was greatly enjoyed by all those present. The first meeting was brought to a close with the singing of another hymn and all repeating the Mizpah Benediction.

St. Paul's W.M.S.

Owing to the absence of Mrs. Lavis, the opening exercises and the business portion of the St. Paul's W.M.S. meeting were directed by Mrs. S. W. Rowland who led the gathering in prayer after the singing of the first hymn. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary followed by the Roll Call and also the reports of the various department secretaries Mrs. J. R. Thompson then directed the remaining part of the program which was devoted to the cause of peace. After the singing of another hymn, Mrs. F. N. McKee offered prayer. The Scripture lesson for this meeting was taken from several passages each bearing on the thought of peace and was read by Mrs. Thompson who also addressed the gathering briefly on peace reading also a poem "The Cry from the Foreign Fields". Miss Mae Currie then offered a pleasing solo, "In the Secret of His Presence", accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Rowland. A very interesting letter was then read by Mrs. H. Eggleton received recently from her daughter Mrs. Hayworth, who is now in active service on the Mission Fields of the United church in China. An interesting synopsis of a chapter from the study book was given by Mrs. Fred Jackman. Mrs. C. Wright read a letter from Mrs. Cannon Simmons of Kai Ling, China. After the singing of another hymn, the meeting was closed with the benediction.

MANDATES GIVEN TO BALDWIN

loddify and sang "The Red Flag".

"We shall not forget that will strike at the National Government" a Conservative shouted. The National Government rested on Ramsay MacDonald. We have withdrawn the party from the Government and are hurting to the ground. It can no longer keep up the pretence of being national," he cried, "and we shall keep the whip in hand. Conservative government. I hope the country will treat it accordingly."

Mr. Baldwin was in Durham

Joseph Dawson, chairman of the Dividend Labor Party, said enough to 85 per cent. of the electors voted for the Socialist candidate.

Walter Elliott, Minister of Agriculture, obtained a majority of two on the first count in the Kelvingrove division of Glasgow; over his Socialist opponent, Neil Maclean. Conservative, and W. Adamson, Labor, in Fife Western. The only other Cabinet minister reached the House was S. Sakiatvala, member for Battersea North in 1922-29 and 1931-35.

Speaker Hobbs Davenry

E. A. Fitzroy, Speaker of the House of Commons since 1928, held his seat by 1,000 majority. Observers said the majority indicated the trading the tradition that the Speaker should be opposed.

Ellen Wilkinson, well known woman Labor leader, won back the sitting constituency of Jarrow she lost in 1931.

With demonstrations followed the announcement of the result in the Stanley division of Stoke-on-Trent. After the defeated Conservative, H. Ellis Hall, congratulated his successful Labor opponent, Ronald Dennis, the latter announced he had been handed a writ for alleged libel. The hall was immediately thrown into an uproar and for ten minutes pandemonium reigned. The writ was thrown on the floor and kicked unmercifully.

Obituary

THE LATE HERBERT J. VANDERVOORT

(Trenton)

Trenton, Nov. 15.—(Special)—Hundreds (of citizens attended the last rites on Sunday afternoon, Herbert James Vandervoor: veteran railway employee, whose ural was held yesterday afternoon from the residence on Spring Street. The services were performed by Rev. F. Arthur Smith, minister of the Bethel Methodist church. The last rites of the Masonic Order were performed by Messrs. N. Sprague, W. J. Potts, and W. B. McClung. Interment took place in the Old Cemetery. The bearers were Brothers of the Trent Lodge No. 38 A.F. & A.M.: W. Galinforth, N. Sprague, C. Foster, H. Sager, C. Sager, and O. Newton. WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Nov. 15—(AP)—Buying in the rails, oils and there in specialties drove prices to the week's best levels today as a fast city-to-city Armistice Day session got under way.

Among Dominion stocks, sales in both Canadian Pacific, Gatineau and International Nickel held about unchanged. On the curb, Lake Shore yielded slightly to profit taking but Distillers Corp.-Seagrams and Hiram Walker Gooderham & Worts common bonds were fairly active. Canadian funds eased off to 99 cents U.S. from 99 1-32 cents.

Shares of Case got up more than 7 points as did International Harvester and other farm advanced about 3. Gainer of fractions to a point or so included Canadian Pacific, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Standard Oil of California, American Can, Caterpillar Tractor, American Commercial Alcohol, International Cement, Westinghouse Air Brake, Lorrie's and Omnibus Corp. The Utilities, Steels and Motors were inclined to ease

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 15—(CP)—Industrial shares were off with the New York market today after a firm opening and losses up to more than a point were registered among the leaders before the rest ripped into strong again in the early afternoon. Features of the afternoon advance were Brazilian, Massey Harris and International Petroleum.

In the mid-day dip, Industrial Alcohol A backed up a full point to 10 7-8, Waltham Common a point to 10 1-2 and Brazilian common 1-4 to 33 1-2. All recovered in the late movement.

Turning over in heavy volume, Brazilian issued around quickly by 3 3-8, up 7-8 for the day. Ford A also came back to show a net gain and C.P.R. at 11 1-8 was up 1-8 at 3-4. The leading oils firmed 1-4 to 1-2. International Petroleum challenging up the best gain.

NEW YORK CLOSE

New York, Nov. 15 (AP)—The Stock Market retained most of its firm appearance during last trading today although the pace slackened after the buying flurry that kept things moving at a fast clip around noon.

J. I. Case held firmly at a level 3½ points above Thursday's close. Gains of around a point were made by International Harvester, Chrysler and International Cement while improvement of about a point was shown by U.S. Steel, Common and Preferred, Standard Oil of N. J., Standard Oil of Calif., Lowe's, American Commercial Alcohol and Caterpillar Tractor Sales approximated 2,900,000 shares.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Nov. 15—(CP)—A moderately soft tone prevailing over Toronto Mining Board through most of the session today a sharp setback to Gold Eagle being conspicuous the list. The afternoon tone was somewhat improved with the base metals and silver and gold issues showing to erase the early losses.

Gold Eagle slumped 2.17 in heavy offering and in the early afternoon declined to 1.33 but failed to hold all the recovery. Minor losses were turned in by other leading issues. Hollinger was weak was strong on announcement of a dividend of 6 cents.

In the early session Eldorado dipped to 1.43 but recovered and Castle Trethewey at 1.90 was bought. Lord Corporation was about the strongest of the cheaper stocks.

SIXTY PARDONED IN PHILLIPINES

Final Official Act of Last U.S. Governor General is Performed

Manila, P.I., Nov. 15 (CP) —The pardoning of 60 political prisoners —final official act of the last United States governor-general in the Philippines—was performed today as the Filipinos took over the government of the islands.

Some of those released were supporters implicated in the 1931 alleged secret society of Sumigas province in the Southern Philippines, who had been in prison for a decade. A few were Communists and the remainder Sakdalistas involved in the May, 1935 uprising in which 90 were killed.

After two years and five months as governor-general Murphy, former Detroit mayor, stepped out of the political picture today as he turned over the reins of government to Quezon, former Speaker of the House of Representatives.

In a speech at the inauguration of Quezon as president, Murphy declared:

"I am sure that I shall be remembered as the first governor of the Philippines to whom the people of the islands were not subject."

FOOTBALL FARE MOST ATTRACTIVE FOR WEEKEND

Two Playoffs And One Crucial Game on Schedule

VARSITY WINS

Blues Ready For The Invasion of Queen's Squad

(By Elmer Dolmage)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The fading Toronto Argonauts, Sarnia's gallant, unbowed but crippled Imperials and the fleet and fiery University of Toronto Blues will answer the call tomorrow to win their titles ever again. Football is getting its that. You prove how good you are, and then you prove it again.

Argos, machine-like in attack, mowed down the big four opposition without a loss in six gruelling games. They looked great. Then Hamilton Tigers jolted the smiling with a defeat and Ottawa Roughriders caught the potential championship at bay for the following week and administered another.

Parties Lew Hayman's team is going to win the big four championship anyway, but they've got to prove all over again that there isn't a better team in the vicinity. They play Hamilton Tigers tomorrow in Ottawa, while Tigers entertain Montreal Wheelers. It will be a playoff if the Tigers and Scullers both win.

A Sarnia team, getting along pretty well without Normie Perry, Alex Hayes and Boob Molloy, twice defeated Malinaf Yeaman in the O.R.F.U schedule and that earned the Imperials a two-game play-off series with the Beachers. The record shows Balzac beat the Hamilton-leaned Hamilton Cubs twice to qualify for the honor of playing Sarnia again.

It's something like that in the college circuit too. Warren Stevens' Toronto brigade finished the schedule undefeated, Saturday they must gamble everything on 60 minutes of football against a Queen's team that managed to get one tie with the Blues and lost decisions to Toronto and McGill.

Program Most Attractive

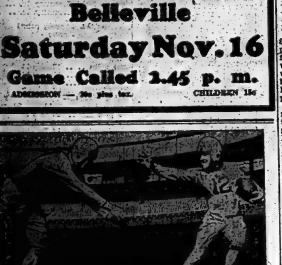
The program is the most attractive football has offered this fall in the East. It involves all the contenders for eastern honors, notably Argos, Tigers, Sarnia, and U. of T. It emphasizes a new drama, particularly as Ottawa, where the Roughriders, without a chance to finish first themselves, plan to throw a monkey wrench into the Hamilton championship.

More than 18,000 are expected to sit in Varsity Stadium, Toronto, to watch Queen's Golden Gaels tackle the Intercollegiate championship, Toronto, with its Marks-Dunlop-Coulter-Valeriote backfield power, is expected to win. It will be favored even should Johnny Munro, Queen's punter whose ankle was sprained early this week, turns up fake and heavily.



Varsity will get good kicking. Bob Jabister, who has been out with injuries for a month, will probably do the punting when Queen's get into Toronto territory. The tricolor will have to overcome his offensive booting before they can go on. Can Gray may get his call, when the Blues are on attack, because he is an accurate place-kicker.

Two Strong Teams

Two of the strongest teams the Intercollegiate union has produced in years, Queen's and Toronto played a 2-2 tie at Kingston in their first engagement this year. They drew nearly 20,000 customers to the return contest in Toronto, when the Blues won 18-15 by virtue of Hughie Marks' forward passing and Gray's placing skill.

After Saturday's game, the winning team will probably decide at once whether to remain in the Canadian playdowns. Queen's is declared ready to go, and the idea is making headway on the Toronto campus, that the Blues are powerful enough to make a serious bid for the National Championship.

Sarnia's mighty men, including Rocky Paraaca and Ayrie McWatters (Hiram) the backfield gaps left by injuries to Perry and Hayes, are expected to build up a sizeable lead over Balmy Beach. As Hor won't be on the Beach firing line, which means the Toronto Club is without its best punter, forward passer and quarterback.

HOW THE STRAIGHT-ARM WORKS

Barry Newman, former star of first, the approach; second, Good, the University of Michigan but now with sights his tackle, and Newman's one of the pro New York Giants arm unbends; third, Goodwin, entirely clear of the ground, is stopped by contact with Newman's stiff arm; fourth, the tackle has failed evading a tackler by use of the straight arm. Tod Goodwin, a fellow and clashes toward the goal-line. Giant player, is the tackler. Looking while Goldrick heads for an unfrom TOP to BOTTOM we see, happy gridiron landing.

SINGS TO VICTORY

Here's a tale for the winter discussions of baseball's hot stove League. Sam Shada, manager of the Scanlon team of the New York-Pennsylvania Baseball League, won victories in the recent election for the office of Lackawanna county treasurer. As Democratic candidate for the office, Joe Scanlon flatly refused to make a speech. "I can't make speeches, but I can sing," said the cabinet his votes by song. Old-timers among baseball fans will remember Joe Shada as a big league pitcher who toiled for Cleveland Indians and Brooklyn Dodgers.

BOLL'S GOAL IS WINNING MARGIN

Defeat Rangers 1-0 Before Capacity Crowd in Gardens

New York, Nov. 15.—(CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs took their first victory of the new National Hockey League season and the New York Rangers their first defeat, 1 to 0, before a near-capacity crowd of 15,- 000 Tuesday night. A fine third-period goal by "Buzz" Boll broke up an evenly contested battle and kept Toronto's two-game record intact. The defeat Leafs drew 5 to 5 with New York Americans in their first start last Saturday.

Checked for 50 minutes by a hard-working, though crippled New York defence, the Leafs capitalized upon two lapses in the middle of the final period to gain the decision. Boll going down with Art Jackson in an angle pass from Billy Thoms, circled Ott Heller on the defence and then outguessed Goalie Dave Kerr with a low shot to the inside corner of the cage. Kerr moved just far enough toward the opposite side to let the puck slide between his pads and the post.

Both sides played hard and often rough hockey, many of the usual early-season faults of weak passing and inaccurate shooting. Harvey Jackson, playing his first game since he decided to sign his Toronto contract, was frequently poor shooting form.

The high spot of the battle was a typical Red Horner outburst in the second period. The fiery defence man attempted to charge Ching Johnson, when the Ranger veteran went down on a raid. He made an even wilder charge at Referee Bill Bell when the arbiter handed out a penalty, and was assessed an extra 10 minutes for misconduct.

Murray Murdoch, durable Ranger forward who suffered a chest injury in Tuesday's game at Montreal, kept his continuous service record intact by serving his full share of time on the ice. Although avoiding the hard bumps, Murdoch devoted most of the evening to keeping Chuck Conacher, Maple Leaf scoring ace, covered so well that he could not score, and got few chances to shoot.

Leafs got along without Frank "King" Clancy on defence, using Handy Andy Blair. He has not Clancy was in uniform, but did not take part in the game.

"BOBBY" COULTER VARSITY QUARTER SOON TO RETIRE

(By DeCourcy H. Rayner.)

Old Man Time will start to write "finis" to another colorful football career when Captain J. R. ("Bobby") Coulter trots out upon the gridiron tomorrow afternoon, for the sturdy little quarterback informed the press yesterday afternoon that he has no intention of an active football career after he graduates as a high school teacher from the Ontario College of Education next June.

It is well known that Coulter has been offered several lucrative positions as a teacher-coach, and he hopes to devote himself to training ambitious to play the game he likes so well.

An Illustrious Career.

That Bobby Coulter does like football, with a boy's passion for clean, good sport, is apparent to all who know him. He has played for four years on vacant lots and for school teams, and even after he became quarterback of the University of Toronto senior he was also seen regularly in the odd neighborhood scrimmage out Runnymede way.

His career has been an illustrious one. For four years he played for Runnymede Collegiate. His first season at university he called the signals for the Blue and White junior team that won the Dominion championship, and for three years he has done the same job for the senior squad, as well as being one of the best backfield men in the sport.

All this despite the fact that he is only five feet eight inches in height and at best weight only 152 pounds. Incidentally at the end of a brilliant career he has just reached the legal voting age.

Versatile Athlete.

The lad who climbed the football ladder from the vacant lot league to the capability of the crack University of Toronto senior team can find his own in lacrosse, hockey, baseball and other sports, too.

Last fall when the college team was battling short-handed in the hitherto lucky box lacrosse league, Bobby took time off from football practice to handle a lacrosse stick, clad in football uniform. He was goalkeeper, a position he had never played before and he not only saved the day for the rival team, but ran the length of Hart House stadium to do it. Then he joined the squad, football uniform, goalkeeper's pads and all. And he had fun doing it, too.

Shot is Bobby Coulter, one of the most daring and colorful players in intercollegiate football history, and at the same time one of the most gentlemanly and modest lads ever to wear a University of Toronto sweater. All fitting people will have a teacher on whom they may well be proud.

ART JACKSON MITE KELLY

Toronto Maple Leafs, who for the last two seasons have finished atop the National Hockey League only to be ousted from the Stanley Cup play-offs, are starting the season with almost the same team which sported their colors in the 1934-35 campaign. Nick Metz and Pep Kelly will be sent over the boards as the third line again. The trio started but was broken up last winter while Jackson and Metz both served a few games with Syracuse Stars for added experience. Reunited, they are expected to give a good account of themselves as a regular Leaf line.

HAWKS AND WINGS IN GOALLESS DRAW

Detroit, Nov. 13 (AP)—Brilliant net guarding featured a fast, well-played hockey contest here tonight through which Chicago Blackhawks and Detroit Red Wings battled on even terms before 9,000 fans in a National Hockey League match.

"Mike" Karakas, playing his second game in the majors as a sub for injured Lorne Chabot, regular Blackhawk ace guardian, gave a great exhibition, floating on his feet across Bailey Hall was equally good stopping 28 Chicago shots.

Both teams had chances to clinch the game in the overtime stanza. After trailing fairly evenly through the three regulation periods, the extra one opened with Vic Ferrell being called for slashing Johnny Gottselig.

Paul Thompson got two hard shots before Ferrell was back, Carl Gross Morris was sent off for tripping Goodfellow. Aurie, Howe, Ferrell and Hines formed the puck at Karakas, who did everything but stand on his head to keep the tomato from his net. When Morris came back, Levinsky, Red defenseman, was penalized for tripping Aurie, but the Hawk held him off and the game ended with Levinsky still off the ice.

Katelmach's Record Intact Defeating Ali Hassan Easily

Local Matman Loses to Jim Wilkins in Torrid Bout

Joe Katelmach, 210 pound Winnipeg wrestler, continued his string of undefeated victories in a local ring, when he won the main bout of last night's wrestling card show at the Arena by taking two out of three falls over Ali Hassan, the Turkish strongman. In the semi-final affair, however, Chief Lynx, the Rama Reserve Indian mat villain, hauled and pulled, grunted and groaned to a draw with George Richards, the Jewish grappler, each contestant winning a fall and the time hell finally ending the affair before a third and deciding fall was registered. In the opening bout of the evening, which saw plenty of action throughout, Jim Wilkins, the Toledo rough-house grappler, practically pounded Irish Harry Taylor into submission before pinning the local boy's shoulders to the mat and taking the final decision.

The card was sparsely attended only about 500 fans being on hand. Despite the lack of attendance, however, those on hand showed with a bang at the polls as flowed freely during the main attraction.

Brute Strength Best

The main bout between Ali Hassan Joe Katelmach was a real strongman and Joe Katelmach the Winnipeg Express, Hassan relying on a tussle of brute strength with Hassan winning the initial fall of the bout by applying his favorite hold, the "sniper". This particular hold has to be applied by a man of super-natural strength, but once properly engineered, spells the ruckus. The Turk applied this punishing hold after 1:46 minutes in the first round. Katelmach returned to the squared circle none the worse for the first round defeat and administered several punishing arm-locks to eventually win the round after Hassan failed to complete another snipes' hold and Katelmach rolled over upon the Turk to pin both shoulders to the mat with a hard body press. Katelmach battered Hassan around the ring and with several misplaced elbows drew blood from the Turk's nose in the final round, the fans howling with glee. Katelmach won the third and final fall with a spread eagle hold and retained his undefeated local mat title.

Semi-Final a Draw

The semi-final match proved to rather one-sided despite the fact that Geo. Richards, the Jewish lad, held Chief Lynx to a draw and showed a beautiful block-arm in the bargain. The Rama Reserve Indian seemed to purposely let Richards apply various holds in the initial round and then delighted in wiggling his way out. Richards, however, applied a punishing sun bonnet hold and won the first fall after 14:18 minutes of exchanging punishment. The second round saw Chief Lynx open on the aggressive and continue to punish Richards until he beat him into submission and eventually forced the Jewish youth to concede the fall as the Indian applied a severe arm-lock hold. Despite the fact Chief Lynx was the aggressor in the third round, Richards finished strongly to have the timer's bell terminate the hostilities, the bout being declared a draw by Referee Bert Wells, who capably handled the match show despite the frantic howls of irritated fans to the contrary.

Jim Wilkins, the Toledo, Ohio, mat villain, proved too heavy and too rough for Irish Steve Taylor, the local exponent of the grunt and groan, racket, and pinned Taylor's shoulders to the mat with a body slam after softening the local youth with a series of torrid body slams. Taylor battled at even terms with the villainous Wilkins for over 12 minutes before the tide of battle turned. Wilkins used all of his ring generalship to subdue Taylor and the bout proved the most bitterly fought and most interesting of the night.

During the matches it was announced, that it has been unable to get wrestlers had been booked for the Belleville Arena in the future and that new faces would grace the local ring starting next Thursday.

GARY PASSES—Herb Schreiber, on plain of the St. Mary's college eleven, hands off to here'ns the pigskin to a mate.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

Just how the Peterboro sport scribe figures that the Orfums will be very much in the running of the Lake Shore O.R.F.U. group with a victory over the locals here on Saturday, somewhat puzzles. The Orfums have already lost three games, while Belleville have two losses and Oshawa only boasts of one. If the Littlock City scribbler thinks that Oshawa is going to lose their remaining two games, well, we sincerely hope he is right, but our doubts are grave in the matter. The only two teams in their credit the Quinte squad are capable of saying, that the "Iron Duffs" will drop just one game, but in the meantime the Oshawa five-piece aggregation still are facing tough opposition here on Saturday. The Peterboro Orfums are in a marked winning streak these days and are coming to Belleville to make the express purpose of trying to take the locals into camp. Belleville have yet to come into camp to the tune of 8 to 6 in Peterboro and have a mental sized chip on their hands Saturday. "This Peterboro squad is tough and they always must extract the performance of a possible defeat and battle as they were discussed at the meeting in all likelihood, he added, the junior series would be resumed after the difficulties had caused abandonment this year had been threatened out.

Boston Braves' Troubles To be Ironed Out Today

Boston, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Boston Braves, who have had several deadlines imposed on them since their financial affairs became muddled, will arrive at another one tomorrow, Fred Frick, young president of the National League, comes here then to confer with Charles F. Adams, Mayor Francis P. Murphy of Nashua, N.H., and several other important stockholders.

Frick will probably be accompanied by Bob Quinn, former Red Sox owner, who is reputed to be on the point of severing his Brooklyn Dodgers' connections to return to Boston as general manager of the Braves.

Babe Ruth Rides In Police Wagon

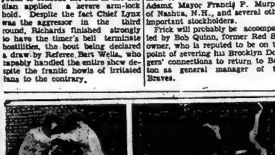
New York, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Babe Ruth was arrested at gunpoint and held at a police station for a short period Thursday night before being released after coming to an agreement over a minor traffic accident.



A patrol car stopped the former baseball star and he was taken to a police station. Before he sat around swapping yarns with detectives until complainants, Max Katz of Lauriston, owner, and Harry Ruppert, driver, of the other car involved in the accident, arrived.

Ruth left after promising to have Katz's car fixed.

LITTLE WORLD SERIES TO BE RESUMED IN '36

Montreal, Nov. 15 (CP)—Hector H. Hacker, president of Montreal Royals, in the International Baseball League, said Thursday he was convinced the little world series between the International and American Leagues would be resumed in the 1936 season.

Hacker, head of the Montreal delegation to attend the baseball convention at Dayton, Ohio, next week, said a new playoff plan for both organizations leading up to a little world series for next season would be discussed at the meeting. In all likelihood, he added, the junior series would be resumed after the difficulties had caused abandonment this year had been threatened out.

NOW THE MAGIC EYE WATCHES JIU JITSU

Kimon Kudo, the Japanese champion, in attempting to popularize Jiu-Jitsu in the United States, comes within the scope of the magic eye, which analyses the front and back drop (Tonoi Nage in Japanese, in case you're interested), with Murray Brayin, trainer, as the other party. 1. They spar for an opening. 2. Kudo firmly grasps Brayin's collar and starts falling backward. 3. Kudo, though flat on his back, is far from disadvantage. He raises his right foot against Brayin's abdomen. 4. He straightens his leg and Brayin goes over. 5. Here is Brayin in mid-air. 6. The landing! Kudo quickly regains his feet after this last action and forces his opponent to capitulate with a choice finish. Pictures read from top to bottom LEFT, and top to bottom RIGHT.

Canada May Not Send Hockey Team to the Olympic Games

Toronto, Nov. 15—The outlook for Canada's participation in the Olympic hockey games is not bright to say the least. The break-up of the Toronto Maroons, nightly winners of the trip to the Olympic games as Canada's hockey representatives has created a situation which may force the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to abandon participation in the games in Germany next February.

The Halifax team, minus five of its players who won the Allan Cup last spring, is in no position to make the Olympic trip. Officials of the Halifax club assured the C.A.H. A. last spring that the team would stick together and represent Canada at the Olympic games. This has not been the case and now the C.A.H.A. is in the predicament of not having sufficient time to collect enough players to bolster the weakened Wolverines and develop a team that will uphold Canada's prestige on the recognized world championship amateur series.

In the opinion of W. A. Hewitt, O.H.A. Registrar, it would be folly to send a Canadian team over to Germany but for the fact that is being represented at the games without any hope of successfully defending the Olympic title that Canada has held since hockey became a part of the Olympic program. This feeling is held by other members of the C.A.H.A. executive favor either for there is so little time left between now and Jan. 17 when the Canadian team should embark for Europe to gather together an all-star aggregation that could develop team play sufficiently good enough to become a serious contender.

A definite decision will have to be made next week when the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada holds its annual meeting at Halifax. This meeting will be attended by President E. A. Oliver of the C.A.H.A. and President G. N. Dudley of the O.H.A. who will represent amateur hockey interests. They will confer with officials of the Halifax club and if it is determined then that the remaining Wolverines, with the addition of three or four players can be welded into a strong team to give Canada, good representation at the Olympics the team may be sanctioned. Otherwise it is off and Canada will have to forego the trip to ski back and ice some other nation capture Olympic honors.

BEAUTY AND THE V-8 ENGINE

The New Ford V-8 Tudor Sedan

THE beauty of the New Ford V-8 was not achieved by chance. It grew out of Ford's purpose to bring every feature of the car up to the standard of the Ford V-8 engine.

That was a real undertaking in an automobile priced as low as the Ford is priced. But the many luxury-class features in the Ford V-8 for 1936 show how successfully this purpose has been carried out.

The lines of the New Ford are much more beautiful. The hood is longer and sweeps forward over the new radiator grille, giving the car new length and grace. Fenders are larger with a wide flare. Rooms are concealed behind circular grilles beneath the headlamps. Steel wheels are of new design. Upholstery, fittings and finish are rich and impressive.

Your Ford dealer will gladly arrange for you to drive the New Ford V-8 far enough to get the "feel" of V-8 performance. Then check the wealth of features that reflect this same standard of quality and value — in style, comfort, driving and braking ease, and safety. Your enthusiasm for this car as an outstanding value will equal ours.

It takes eight cylinders for modern performance. The Ford gives you the finest type of eight-cylinder engine — the V-8. Tried and proved in actual service by over two million motorists — its performance, reliability, and economy are bywords.

"CHAPERONED"

— by —

Virginia Sullivan

She found herself walking rapidly along the deck as though to escape. Down the short ladder leading to the Promenade Deck below. Her heart pounding wildly, the roaring of her own pulse in her ears. "I'm getting morbid on the subject," she muttered with a small shaky laugh. "Not ch, I'm so morbid—so subconscious."

There was the sound of hurrying footsteps coming behind her in the dark. Janie slipped swiftly into the darkness of an adjacent corridor, beyond the glow of lights thrown from the boat-deck above. "Lay you odds that Janie won't tell me—but let's find her anyway and see!" Gregory Stewart's confident voice, sounding almost in her ear. Terror, clutched at the girl's heart; she pressed tightly against the dark wall, as his big shadowy form, the gleam of his white shirt-front went by, She could feel his bold eyes peering about, seeking her through the gloom. He was looking for her, was he—well, let him look. Darn ships, anyway, she moaned savagely; you couldn't get away from people no matter how much you hated them.

Warily Janie slipped from her friendly haven, feeling her way toward the far end of the deck. Her eye had caught the gleam of something bright, a chain, hung across the opening to a short flight of steps. In the centre of the chain swung a small brass plate, bearing the words: "Steerage Passengers Only. No Admittance."

Steerage passengers! They would never think to look for her there.

On the impulse, born of panic, Janie lifted the chain, slipped past it and hooked it lightly back into place. Then, noiselessly, she dropped the narrow ladder into the darkness of the deck below.

CHAPTER X

THE MAN IN THE STEERAGE

Janie walked gingerly, conscious at once of the steps upward and the ones asleep on a closed hatch at her feet. Steerage passengers, seeking escape from the insufferable heat of their quarters below. Quietly she walked forward, groping in the dark for the short flight of steps that led to the forecastle. Donkey engines. Heaps of chains. The dim bulk of something white lying on the deck. Then the forecastle rail—with the gleaming black and silver sea just beneath her feet, stretching away on endless mile under a star-spotted sky. Slowly the girl walked toward it, half conscious of her surroundings. It was so beautiful, so still and yet so entirely unreal. Like another world, almost, a world set apart, framed in a whispering wind.

Without warning something gave way suddenly beneath her foot. She pitched forward and would have fallen, had not an arm shot out of the surrounding darkness. "I'm sorry—don't let me startle you, please."

A man's voice, sounding close by her side. Deep, rich, curiously resonant. And, swimming in the darkness before her startled eyes, a man's shape, slim, glimpsed palely through the gloom.

Janie was never entirely sure afterwards how she had met Anthony Fane. He had been sitting, a dark silhouette against the horizon, quietly smoking on a coil of rope by the rail. Waiting into the surrounding shade. She had walked straight into him; across crowded hatches; across heaps of tangled chains, swept along by the pent-up emotions within herself. After the first startled moment of contact, he had indeed seemed merely part of the unrealness about her. Moving quietly to give her his seat on the coil of rope. Leaning as quietly against the rail, his eyes on the sea. A tall man, clad in a rough brown shirt and trousers thrust into rough heavy brown boots; and holding in his hand a small brown pipe. Her eyes, accustomed to the gloom, could see him now.

At first he had made a tentative move to depart. Something within the girl, some instinct, cautioned her to put out a detaining hand. "Please.... Oh, I can't drive you away, you know! I'll have to go back myself if you go; after all, these are your quarters—"

"My— Oh, yes, of course; my quarters. Well, if you're sure you won't mind my staying for a bit—" His smile, a disarming flash of white, broke up the dark and stern grim expression of his dark face. "After all, though the world seems to have grown fairly small, there's probably still room enough out here for us all."

Janie sat still, and, after a reluctative second, the man settled down again, his back against a hatch. It was quiet down here. Unbelievably, achingly still. No throb or roar of the engines reached them, only a faint, far-off pulsation. Janie, twisting about, found to her surprise, that not even the Promenade Deck was visible from where she sat. Except for the tops of the huge funnels, the bridge, masts and rigging, they might have been alone on a desert island, in the middle of a waveless sea. It was difficult to realize that only a few yards above them, behind that shadowy barrier, was the world she had just left. The dances, Mildred—and that cheap, oily stranger—

Janie spoke abruptly into the darkness, "Why is it, do you suppose," she said softly, speaking as much to herself as to the quiet figure by the rail, "why is it that people act so differently when they get aboard a ship?"

The man turned swiftly to regard her and she met his keen gaze. She could see his face quite clearly now. He was dark, "a dark tan," she thought irrelevantly. His jaw was lean and his eyes held a metallic gleam between the fringe of their thick-set lashes. The hair that contrasted so oddly with his small black moustache was brown too; as were the hands cupped about the small brown pipe. Big, brown hands.

The girl went on, after a moment, still talking to herself, because his quiet presence seemed so natural, so undisturbing: "Something seems to get into people at once," she said gloomily introspective. "Have you ever noticed it? They go crazy—especially the women. Women who at home are staid matrons get skittish notions about gyrations and monkeying and langour. And men, known to be cautious, clever members of the Rotary Club, sprout out over-night in baggy golf pants and collegiate hats!" She brought this last out in a little vicious rush.

The man threw back his head and laughed. Softly, thoroughly, wholeheartedly. Then, because scorn of the unhappiness and distress that had been troubling her most have shown in her face, he said quietly, still in that deep, vibrant voice: "You wouldn't care to begin at the beginning, would you—and tell me about it?"

His name, Janie learned, was Anthony Fane, and he was an engineer—lately of Singapore, Straits Settlement. But more recently of Havana, Cuba. His story, it appeared, took him on occasion down strange trails. Janie gathered that he was off on one now.

His talk was of deep violet nights, reeling with the white fire of stars. Of hot, breathless winds that withered and shook one; of storms and gladiola and insects and dust. Of the wash of gold, the slant of blue in the high cup of a tropic sky. Of his bungalow on a little hillside above Singapore Harbor; of the picturesque Malay craft slipping between the islands against a dying sun. Of the heart-clutching beauty of an Indian sunrise and its moon of silver and blue.

Janie, in her turn, found herself talking with this man in an odd sort of intimacy she had not felt before. Found herself telling him briefly, and a deeply loyal silence, something of Mildred's odd behavior since they had come on board ship; something of what this voyage had meant to herself. And as she talking, she told him a great deal more about herself than she knew. Life, he told himself interrogatively, might one day tame this small dark girl; but it would never break her....

Janie had been rather breathless as she talked and she was glad she had been vividly aware of the small oval face with its fluctuating expressions of the trick she had of regarding him with her grave, unwinking glance that was still and expectant as a child's. Of the determined set of a rebellious chin, swept along by the pent-up emotions within herself. After the first startled moment of contact, he had indeed seemed merely part of the unrealness about her. Moving quietly to give her his seat on the coil of rope. Leaning as quietly against the rail, his eyes on the sea. A tall man, clad in a rough brown shirt and trousers thrust into rough heavy brown boots; and holding in his hand a small brown pipe. Her eyes, accustomed to the gloom, could see him now.

At first he had made a tentative move to depart. Something within the girl, some instinct, cautioned her to put out a detaining hand. "Please.... Oh, I can't drive you away, you know! I'll have to go back myself if you go; after all, these are your quarters—"

"My— Oh, yes, of course; my quarters. Well, if you're sure you won't mind my staying for a bit—" His smile, a disarming flash of white, broke up the dark and stern grim expression of his dark face. "After all, though the world seems

AT THE BELLE

"Three Musketeers" Gains High Realism on Sound Screen

All the thrilling ramifications of romance and deadly secrecy which attended Cardinal Richelieu's Matecraft, combined with the brilliant pageantry of one of the most dramatic periods in French history, are seen as the background for "The Three Musketeers", famed Dumas romance which has just been faithfully adapted to the talking screen by RKO Radio as a Rouben Mamoulian show special, but which will be presented at the Belle commencing tomorrow at evening entrance in prices.

Realizing that it must meet the exacting demands of millions of filmgoers to whom the great classic is as familiar in action and atmosphere as a personal experience, unusual care was taken to adhere to the essence of the novel and faithfully recreate its historic setting.

And now d'Artagnan swaggers to the screen in a superb performance by Walter Abel who adds to his Broadway stage distinction in a role which promises high film ranking. Equally impressive as the immortal musketeers, Athos, Porthos and Armais, are Paul Lukas, Akim Tamiroff and Onslow Stevens. The feminine trio who inspire the intrigue and swordplay of the classic are alluringly portrayed by Heather Angel, Margot Grahame and Rosamond Pinchot as Constance, Milady deWinter and the unhappy Queen Anne respectively. Able support is given by Ian Keith, Miles Mander, Nigel de Brulier, Samuel Hare, Ralph Forbes, Murray Kinnell, John Qualen and Ralph Faulkner, every part from key characters to the least constituency bit, being done with skill to maintain the romantic mood and story drive.

Settings and costumes richly recreate 17th Century France, with spectacle highlights being provided by the grand ballroom in the palace of Louis XIII, the gardens of the Luxembourg as the scene of duels between the Musketeers and Richelieu's guardsmen, the docks of Calais, the d'Artagnan lodgings in Gascony ,the streets and taverns of Paris and the Musketeers court-yard.

Since the sword plays such an important part in the tale, the actors were put through many weeks of intensive coaching with the rapier by Fred Cavens, well-known master-at-arms. The picture contains, as a result, some of the most exciting duels ever filmed. Rowland V. Lee directed.

Adding final grace to the picture's emotional strength, spectacular action, fierce clash, dangerous love making and high suspense, is Max Steiner's music, which includes not only the score but a bravado song of the musketeers.

Popeye in a clever and very funny cartoon "Hyp-Nut-Ized", and the Belle Latest News of the World will be exhibited on the same program. At the Saturday matinee performance the further adventures of "Tarzan" will be exhibited.

Two Grand Features

Two grand feature attractions will be exhibited at the Belle tonight for the last times in "Hands Across the Table" co-starring Carole Lombard and Fred MacMurray and "Annapolis Farewell".

AT THE CAPITOL

Christmas Toy Matinee Christmas Spirit Will be Largely in Evidence at Firemen's Toy Carnival

Only a toy, broke or whole, used or new, will be necessary to gain admittance to the Capitol theatre on the Capitol theatre special matinee Saturday morning at ten o'clock.

The procedure is to take the toy to No. 1 Fire Station when an admission ticket will be issued for the show.

The firemen will repair and redecorate the toys and make them the new to brighten the lives of children at Christmas who otherwise might find little else but holes in their stockings.

A special program of comedies and shorts will be provided —laughs and thrills for the kiddies, and happiness at the end of the road when the Christmas toys are revamped to new life. The matinee will begin at ten o'clock Saturday morning.

"The Last Outpost"

A worthy successor to the famous "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," Paramount's newest contribution to the courage and loyalty of British officers in the face of grim warfare in the Libian desert and jungles during the World War, "The Last Post," which opened today at the Capitol theatre bids fair to becoming one of the most spectacular cinemas of the season.

Claude Rains, in one of the leading roles in this courageous and magnificent drama in the fascinating Sudan country, delivers a vivid, outstanding performance as a British secret service agent. A notable portrayal as his brother officer and rival for the affections of the same woman whose love for one breaks up their friendship only to reunite them in a new bond of comradeship, is given by Cary Grant. Gertrude Michael as the woman both men love is laudable and appealing in her part.

The story is an impressive, undeniable dramatization of the conflict arising between the Turks and the British army in Mesopotamia during the World War. Two British officers, one in the British Intelligence Service, the other attached to the armored car division, find, by strange circumstances, their adventures lead them into many dangers, dangers touched with thrills and romance. Unaware that he has fallen in love with his friend's wife, Gertrude Michael, who acts as his nurse in a Cairo hospital, Grant takes steps to find the man she does not love and hasn't seen or heard from in three years. Rains resolves to track him down and kill him. The quest again in a deserted fort in the interior, and there, in a tense, dramatic scene, Rains discovers whether he should leave his friend to the mercy of the natives or to die in a seething forest fire, to avenge the memory of his wife. Kathleen Burke and Colin Tapley are in the cast. Charles Barton directed.

Leaving two warriors to guard Le. Abu Bain gathered up the few black servants that remained in camp. These he forced to prepare loads of camp equipment. While this was going on, the sheykh ransacked the tents of the Europeans.

He found in Zora's tent a box containing a considerable amount of money, though by no means the great quantity that he had expected, a fact which was due to Zverin's foresight. He had personally buried the bulk of his funds beneath the floor of his tent.

Zora met with unexpected success in her hunting, for within a little more than an hour of her departure from camp she had come upon antelope, and two quick shots had dropped as many members of the herd. She waited while the porters skinned and dressed them.

Then she returned leisurely toward camp. Her mind was occupied to some extent with the dignified attitude of the Arabs, but she was not at all prepared for the reception that she met when she approached camp about noon.

BALDWIN WINS IN ELECTIONS

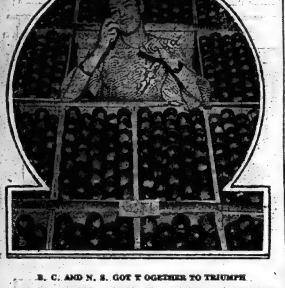
Has Two to One Lead And Holds Control of Commons

(By George Hambleton)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Nov. 18.—(CP)—Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's National Government stands unshaken with more than twice the strength of the Opposition, as the first day's count of yesterday's general election.

Labor scored considerable gains; the Liberals lost heavily.

Despite losses, which doubled the Labor representation in urban constituencies reporting early this morning, the Government was assured of a working majority in the next parliament. Rural constituencies reporting today were expected to increase the lead, as they include many Conservative strongholds.



Prime Minister Baldwin and his colleagues appealed to the country for a mandate to support the League of Nations, to fill the gaps in British Defence Services and to continue a policy of gradual reconstruction at home.

VICTIM'S WATCH IN POLICE HANDS

Toronto, Nov. 15 (CP)—It was unofficially reported that police had in their possession a wrist watch of Miss Ruth Taylor, whose battered and criminally assaulted body was found in an east-end ravine, Nov. 5. Police declined to confirm the report, although they previously announced having found three of the watch bracelet links near the scene of the crime.

The final of Harry O'Donnell, charged with the murder of the 30-year-old stenographer, which has been searched a number of times since his arrest, was to be subjected to another examination, it was learned.

Rawdon and District

Rawdon—On Tuesday evening, November 12th, over four hundred people enjoyed an appetizing fowl supper at Springbrook. The male quartette of Thurlow Hill near Port Hope with Mrs. Foster as pianist and Miss Helen Foster, elocutionist put on the programme consisting of quartettes, vocal duets, musical duets, cornet and saxophone and readings of a humorous nature.

Rev. H. A. Foley was chairman and brief addresses were given by Rev. H. Lachie, Ivanhoe circuit, Canon Swayne, Bonarlaw and Rev E. W. Rowland, St. Paul's, Stirling. The proceeds amounted to over one hundred and fifty dollars and the Sunday offering was two hundred and fifteen dollars.

Miss Frances McKeown spent the week-end with Miss Myrtle McKeown who was home from O.S.D., Belleville and attended Sportsbrook anniversary.

Mrs. John Wescott and Mrs. Russell Wescott of Shannonville are holiday with Mr. and Mrs. Burton Bateman.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Bedford attended Springbrook Fowl Supper on Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McConnell and Betty, Mrs. Moore, Mr. Marsen McConnell, Mr. and Mrs. Earl McAdam, Vera, Billy and Lois, Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Murray Scott, Billy and Shirley, Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Eileen and Ormel, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest White, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Montgomery, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Simpson, Miss Edna Thrasher, Mr. and Mrs. John Hudson, Messrs George Smith, Lester Hay and John Coggins of Mount Pleasant, attended the oyster supper at Wellman's on Tuesday evening.

Mr. George Bailey of Toronto celebrated his birthday on Armistice Day at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Bailey.

Several of the farmers journeyed to the Island on Tuesday and brought their young cattle home.

The heavy sleet storm early Tuesday morning snowed trees, wires, etc., in a heavy coating of ice which remained until Wednesday morning. The ice on the wires put several telephones out of commission and it also destroyed several branches on the shrubbery. The wires are rapidly filling with water and this will be a great boon to those who have been compelled to go long distances to water their stock.

Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Sine were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. Murphy.

Mrs. Moore is holidaying with her granddaughter, Mrs. Percy McConnell.

Mr. and Mrs. John Morrison, Mrs. Wm. Brodsworth and Arthur, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Coverdale, Messrs. Fred Martin and Alex. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McMullen, Lauretta, Jessie and Elda of Bethel attended Wellman's oyster supper.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Sine attended the Variety Show in Campbellford on Monday evening under the auspices of the Legion. Mr. Jim Redmon we understand was fortunate in winning a radio as a prize.

Wellman's L.O.L. 172 catered to a good sized audience on Tuesday evening, November 12th, when their preserit enjoyed a delicious feed of oysters and other delectable food.

Promptly at eight p.m. Mr. John Bateman, District Master was introduced by the pastor, Rev. Beckel and the programme began.

The Stirling orchestra composed of Misses Lenora, Ruby and Pearl Shapley and Messrs. Kenneth and

"WOMAN OF ICE"

Vera Birney Steely bloods secretary in one of the Gebbhardts firms, who is alleged to have admitted shooting to death Dr. Frits Conrad, well-known New York internist, will be played by Miss Ruby Lee Conrad in the role of "Woman of Ice" because she refuses to talk.

Douglas Shapley with piano, banjo, guitar and violins respectively furnished several musical numbers during the evening.

Mr. P. Cary of West Huntingdon contributed three humorous numbers, Mr. John Coggins and Miss Edna Thrasher of Mount Pleasant, sang a duet with guitar accompaniment "Down the River of Golden Dreams".

The County Master Brother W. J. Colbrill, Marmora, gave a splendid address on "The Union Jack" and told of the spiritual sentiment which go towards it origin The Red is symbolic of sacrifice, the white of purity and cleanliness and the blue reminds us of heaven. The Union Jack stands for the true teaching of Jesus Christ.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen of Mount Pleasant contributed two humorous readings with local hits.

The Misses Staple, rendered two musical trios, guitars and piano.

Rev. James E. Beckel welcomed the guests to Wellman's and paid tribute to Bro. Fred King, Master of L.O.L. 172 of his arrangement of such a splendid event.

Mr. John Coggins sang two comical songs and Brother George A. Reid of Belleville, delivered an illuminating address on "Separate Schools". He discussed the new bill from various angles and pointed out that Protestant people should study this subject. He invited all to come to Bellevue on July 12th, 1936, for a monster celebration.

Messrs. Thomas McMullen, Fred King, and H. V. Hoover, tendered thanks to all who had assisted to make the evening a success and Brother Colbrill replied.

The National Anthem closed this very entertaining and educative programme.

THE DOOR IS OPEN FOR ALL WHO WISH TO ASSIST . . . .

Many enquiries have been received by officers and members of the Belleville Rotary Club as to whether citizens not members of the Rotary Club can assist in the Campaign for Crippled Children by donations of money, or otherwise.

The answer is YES.

The Rotary Club will be pleased to accept cash donations or other aid in its work for the sick and crippled children of this city and district now or at any time. Men and women of good will can help the sick and crippled children back to health and happiness and start them on their way to perfect citizenship.

Black Squirrel Acts as Robber

Toronto, Nov. 15—A bushy tailed black squirrel caused an uproar in an apartment on Dundas Crescent, Monday, when he broke into the premises and sent a would-be benefactor to the hospital.

Ching, a diminutive Peke belonging to Mrs. Angus Lebarr, was shooed for the incident but then no self-respecting Pekingese could be expected to stand by unprotesting while his mistress fed cookies to a window ledge intruder who was plobably cowered with fleas. Anyway Ching barked and the squirrel ran up the wall and across the pipe and down to the kitchen roof and with a second attempt was made to pacify him with cookies bit the finger of Mrs. Angus Lebarr.

Even this might have been excused in the excitement if he had treated it like a gentleman instead of making another tour of the room and landing on the shoulder of Miss Marion Lebarr when she was only trying to get him out with a broom. Miss Lebarr screamed and the squirrel made his escape by way of the window but not until he had grabbed another cookie from the table.

Ching retired in disgust and disgrace under the table. Miss Marion Lebarr recovered her composure and Mrs. Lebarr repaired to St. Michael Hospital where the kitten finger was treated.

London's Most Celebrated House

Number Ten Downing Street Has Passed Second Century Most Interesting Building in World—Heart of British Empire Diplomacy — Minus Bathroom For Quarter Century.

One of the most celebrated houses in London—Number Ten, Downing Street—recently completed two centuries of use as an official residence.

This home of the English Prime Ministers, the modest exterior of which never fails to surprise the foreign visitor, had Sir Robert Walpole as its first occupant and its history in brief, as given by a London correspondent is as follows:

About the year 1698 Downing Street—named after Sir George Downing, a former Secretary to the Treasury —was described as "a pretty open place, especially at the upper end, where are four or five very large and well-built houses, fit for persons of honor and quality; each house having a pleasant prospect into St. James' Park, with a Tarras walk."

"Number Ten," as known today, was part of the forfeiter property of Lee, Lord Lichfield, who retired with James the Second; to whom he was Master of the Horse. The house thus belonged to the Crown; King George the First gave it to Baron Bothmar, the Hanoverian Minister, for life; and, on the Baron's death, George the Second offered the house to Sir Robert Walpole.

Sir Robert, for whom it was rebuilt, accepted it only for his office of First Lord of the Treasury, "to which post he got it annexed for ever."

During the last two centuries "Number Ten" has passed through fifty-five different periods of tenancy. Sir Robert Walpole might still recognize his house, in spite of the inevitable alterations. The present Prime Minister's bed-room is the chamber in which Lady Walpole died in 1736; and Sir Robert's parlour is now known as "Secretary's Room B."

The house has cost a great deal in repairs—an expense which William Pitt, who lived at "Number Ten" for seventeen years, attributed to the "bad foundations."

Incidentally it was during Pitt's tenancy, in 1776, that Robert Smith wrote to Wilberforce:

"The butcher's bill only is £96. Can it be possible that 3 families of men could be dressed in 28 days? The poulterer's, fishmonger's, and, indeed, all the bills exceed anything I could have imagined. The meat is sent in great quantities, without particulars being mentioned. On a Saturday there is generally three or four hundredweight."

After Earl Grey's resignation in 1834 Prime Ministers did not use the Downing street house—although it was still an official residence—until 1877, Then Disraeli took possession, moving from Whitehall-gardens. Since that time the Prime Minister has always been found at "Number Ten."

One occuuant described it as "the most uncomfortable house in London", and until a quarter of a century ago it had no bath-room.

The Country Church

By Helen B. Anderson

A modest little country church, it stands beside the way,
A mecca for the rural folk on every Sabbath day;
'Twas built oh! many years ago by zealous men and strong
Men who in spite of heavy odds made war against the wrong

Year after year the Saints of old assembled at its door,
Year after year these ardent souls would God's sure help implore;
And preaching from the Holy Word were men with grace endowed,
Who guided sinners in the way that Christ Himself had trod.

The builders of this little church have long since passed away
And strangers now (their numbers few) meet at its door today;
But ah! the folk on pleasure bent heed not the Master's call,
Know not the power that once prevailed within these Sacred walls.

Prevailed, I said, nay, still 'tis there—the spirit's power of old,
Still thrills the hearts of worshippers who dwell within the fold;
O little church! what joy and peace have filled my weary soul
When in sweet fellowship divine I felt my life made whole.

O city folk, look not in scorn upon this humble church,
Where unassuming country folk the Holy Scriptures search;
A Father's blessing there they seek, their sins humbly confess,
For with the two's and three's He meets, and that to own and bless.

Once Hidden in Garrets Now Bathed in Sunshine

Barbarous Practises of Ancient Times Contrasted With Kindness of Present

A hundred years ago, crippled children were often destroyed. Fifty years ago they were hidden in garrets mostly. Today they are brought out into the sunlight and given treatment for their recovery. Most crippled children have to be sought out. Fearful or ignorant parents often hide them away. For the past few years, the Ontario Society for Crippled Children has conducted radio programs which the public has been asked to report cases. Sixty-one cases were reported as a result of one series of broadcasts. Once discovered, children who are crippled will be brought to principal centres where the best surgical treatment awaits them.

The chief crippling diseases are Infantile Paralysis, Tuberculosis and Rickets. Four out of five crippled children owe their disabilities to one or more of these causes. Not more than fifteen per cent. of all cases are born crippled and this fact affords a hopeful outlook in the realm of prevention. Another encouraging feature is that the major crippling diseases have proved themselves subject to control and will eventually be stamped out altogether.

Infantile Paralysis

If children stricken with Infantile Paralysis are promptly brought to the attention of an orthopaedic surgeon, there is no reason in the world that he can be mater'al-ly improved. If not entirely restored. It is sure that he will not have a resultant deformity. The same thing applies to other cases of crippling.

It was pointed out by the Ontario Society for Crippled Children that to meet the problem in this field of work would comprise the following: prevention, discovery, clinical examination, transportation, remedial treatment, follow-up service, convalescent schools, vocational training, employment and public education. Some of these items are already been organized and have been carried on a fairly extensive basis. Others have been almost entirely neglected. The work which has been conducted by service clubs all over the province, under the direction and with the co-operation of the society, has been restricted by reason of lack of funds. With additional funds, however it is hoped that every crippled child in the province will be able to have immediate treatment.

Prompt Action Necessary

The first step must be done is to discover every one of these helpless children whose bodies are crippled and the people of Ontario must be educated to the fact that the only hope that these children are brought to hospitals and clinics for examination and treatment, the more chance there is for a complete restoration.

There are in Ontario some 5,000 crippled children who are maimed with all sorts of defects of legs and body. It is the duty of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children and the existing service clubs and organizations to locate these children and see that they are brought to the hospitals and clinics for examination. This is best done by a comprehensive survey of the territory which is considered within the local service club. Following the survey, a clinic is held at which one of the most able orthopaedic surgeons of the province is at the disposal of the children. It is then the duty of the service organization to follow up the recommendations of the surgeon so far as funds will permit.

The surgeons, by their generous expenditure of time and energy make this whole work possible. Their ability to clinics at not considerable loss of time to their practice. Therefore, we would urge the people of this district, when learning of a crippled child who has not received adequate care or treatment, to get in touch with the Rotary Club of Belleville.

"Weigh not so much what men say as what they prove;—truth is always and ever the best advocate to apparel her adroitly."—Sir P. Sidney.

Service - Above - Self

This is a message of appreciation to those whose splendid co-operation has helped so materially to make this "Rotary Edition" a success, financially.

While we of "Rotary" believe that as an advertising medium this "Edition" is worthy of your generous support, we likewise believe that the motives which actuated your participation were far higher, finer and nobler than those of a commercial nature, knowing as you do that the surplus funds accruing to us from this undertaking will be held "In Trust" to be employed in our work for Crippled Children.

And so on behalf of those children — now suffering under great physical handicaps — who through our united endeavour will be restored to their rightful heritage — health, strength and the happiness of childhood — I extend, in the name of BELLEVILLE ROTARY CLUB,
Grateful Thanks.

J. B. BOYCE,
President.

Rotary Day Is Tuesday Nov. 19th

A clarion call has gone out to all Rotarians in Belleville and District to observe Tuesday next as Rotary Day, the close of the present campaign in behalf of the sick and crippled children of Belleville and the Bay of Quinte District. The call includes Kiwanians, Kinsmen, Y's Men, and all members of service clubs who have the welfare of the unfortunate at heart, and who delight in co-operating with Rotary in a drive to raise money for this particular object the treatment, care and cure of sick and crippled children.

Members of the Belleville Rotary Club have worked hard to make this campaign a success and have met with splendid co-operation from members of other service clubs, businessmen and citizens generally, in and out of Belleville.

Rotary Day, Tuesday, affords all Rotarians and their families and friends, besides members of associated service clubs, an opportunity to patronize Belleville merchants who have responded so generously in helping to make this Rotary Special Edition a success. Buy in Belleville Rotary Day and make a special note of the advertisers herein to return the compliment whenever possible and especially on Tuesday next, Rotary Day.

All for one and one for all—and all for the sick and crippled children that they may through the help of kindly folks the world over attain perfect health and strength.

Anyone wishing to assist in this campaign, financially or otherwise, will be welcomed. Just get in touch with President J. B. Boyce.

J. O. HERITY. HARRY HILL.

Two Rotarians with 100 per cent attendance records for a period exceeding ten years.

THE LATE E. GUS PORTER, K.C.
First President Belleville Rotary Club.

DEAN J. RYMOND
Chairman of Belleville Rotary Crippled Children Committee, and a member of Executive of Ontario Society for Crippled Children. Rotarian Symons has been at the head of the Belleville Rotary Club's work for crippled children since its inception.

ROTARIAN SANDY BURROWS
Song Leader of Belleville Rotary Club, and a lover of all sports—a brightener of meetings, and a jolly good fellow who has meant much in keeping the spirit of music and good humor alive in the local club. Rotarian Sandy is ably assisted by Rotarian Les Riggs, at the piano, another valuable cog in the local Rotary wheel.

From Prison Cell to Bright Lights of City

Man of the Bush Trails After Fifteen Years in Pen, Meets a Friend—King's Jubilee Brings Liberty And First Acquaintance With Many Wonders.

Fifteen years behind prison bars at Kingston, while the world stood still—inside those grim, grey walls, where life is so much like death that any spoken word above a whisper seems like thunder.

This King's Jubilee and Lifer Convict No. 34765987, or some such silly number, was among those favored ones, permitted to return to civilization and view the wonders which had been created while they remained stagnate or disintegrated behind prison walls—contingent, of course, upon the paroled one reporting to the nearest police headquarters every so often.

Fifteen years in "Stir" is a long time, measured by any man's tape-line, and much may happen on the outside during that time—but nothing changes inside, the same deadly monotony and fierce silent fighting to obey the rules and maintain sanity.

Lifer Convict—Numberless now—on parole pending good behavior—sniffed the air of freedom, and it smelled good to the starved lungs which had been accustomed to the pine and balsam of the north, for this is now a new citizen, put back in circulation with the government dare to go straight and make good—a harder task than before for now the prison taint would ever shadow his future, human nature being what it is. As a matter of fact he was checked up sharply in Toronto within a few days of his realease for failing to report to the right official at the correct time to the minute, and he was brusquely ordered to leave the city within the hour.

His did not leave within the hour, or within the day, for he had a friend in high places who was not afraid of common police officers, and could even tell them where to get off at.

However, life suddenly leaped from the cold, dry, deadening gloom of prison life to the great outdoors with all its many elusive beckonings and promises.

This New Citizen, as we will call him henceforth, was unfortunate. He was not a criminal, nor was he bad at heart, at any time before his rest home was made in evil and he awoke to find himself charged with attempted murder.

New Citizen was a lumberjack and a good one. He could cut down wood on de shanty in de winter, and by gar go for de beer drive in de spring—and what for complain if a leetle whiskey blanc spills down de throats of dose husky bateaux men when on holiday.

There was a dance at night, habitant, Canadian dance which began before sunset and lasted until dawn, when the wonderful spirit of the participants showed in their unfailing energy. Whisky blanc was there a-plenty and some gin too, and as sometimes happens there was a free-for-all fight one morning. Some pretty little French gal's ankles, no doubt, had started the ferment which resulted in explosion.

When the smoke cleared away there was a body on the floor which did not move. Death had come to the dance.

No death, surely, no one dreamed of such an outcome.

Death it was and what's to be done about it.

Ingrained fear of the law led to the rushing of a man to the scene disporting of the body, and New Citizen helped to hide.

The body was found and the culprit was the arrest of the subject of this narrative.

He was convicted and sentenced to be hanged.

The gallows were erected just on the eve of execution he was reprieved, and sentenced to prison for life.

The King's Jubilee made him a new Citizen.

He was met by pre-arrangement at the station in Toronto by a former employer, one of the leaders of the north wood, now living in Rosedale, Toronto, and taken to his home as honored guest. For several days he was entertained—taken to movie theatres and the legitimate. Shown the wonders of radio, the advance in automotive making and all the wonders which had transpired while he was taking his daily broadcast or man and lock step—in that gloomy Bastille on Lake Ontario.

Then when the wonders of 1935 palled upon him he was sent back to the north woods, he loved so well and put back at the old familiar work—but as if the intervening years had not, now the grinding fallows tree just a weird nightmare, and the gaunt faces army with its mute lips, shuffling along day after day at uninteresting tasks, as some hideous, which had never existed.

New Citizen has escaped from the hell of the city, responding to the call of the wild, and is he one happy man?

But the brightest and warmest spot in New Citizen's heart is reserved for that old shanty boy who knew Jean Baptiste Trudeau intimately, had murder in his soul, and was one good man, on de bush, on de drive, everywhere, except on those rare occasions when de debil whiskey jar.

So this being a true story, without names, means that it is good enough to excite a little brightness in Uncle Ben's eye, starts to pull his ear, and everything seems humorous.

1936 DIVIDEND SEEN IN WALKER'S

President W. J. Hume Discloses Plan For Debenture Sale

Windsor, Nov. 16—(CP)— Announcement that consideration would be given to the question of placing the common stock on a dividend basis early in 1936 was made by W. J. Hume, president of Hiram Walkers-Gooderham and Worts Limited, to the shareholders at the annual meeting today.

Mr. Hume also disclosed arrangement had been completed for the sale of $8,000,000 par value unsecured debentures to a New York firm. The debentures, dated Dec. 1, 1935, will bear yearly interest of 4 1-2 per cent and will mature Dec. 1, 1945.

"Earnings of the past two years have been at a figure which might appear to warrant dividends on the common stock, but the fact is that not only earnings but bank loans as well have been necessary to finance our undertakings," said Mr. Hume, referring particularly to the operation of the plant at Peoria, Ill.

"You will be interested to know that our investment to date in the United States is approximately $19,- Increase as we add to our inventor- 000,000, and that this figure will be," continued the president. "Even with the proceeds of the debenture issue, we expect will require bank loans from time to time... The directors feel, however, that early in the new year they should be in a position to consider the question of placing the common stock on a dividend basis."

Conversion of Debentures

The debentures, he said, may be converted at any time within the 10 year period into common stock of Hiram Walker-Gooderham and Worts, Ltd., on the following basis: At $40 per share for common stock: so long as more $6,000,000 principal amount of debentures remain outstanding; at $45 per share for common stock so long as more than $4,000,000 remain outstanding; at $55 per share so long as more than $2,000,000 remain outstanding and thereafter at $90 per share.

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 16—(CP)—If the proposed trade agreement between Canada and United States is carried through H. C. Hatch, chairman of the board, Hiram Walker-Gooderham and Worts, Limited, expects it will result in a reduction of $2.50 per gallon on Canadian whisky entering the United States he told shareholders at the ninth annual meeting today.

WHALES THREATEN FISHERMEN'S BOAT

5 Mammals Gambol Around Boat Giving Occupants The Jitters

Stonehaven, N.B., Nov. 16—(CP) A vicious attack by five whales, while a sixth, trapped in the anchor cable, threatened to pull their 35-foot boat beneath the surface of Bay Chaleur is described by James Daley and two other fishermen of this community.

After the men anchored and threw out a line, the boat began jerking from side to side as the bow lowered. The water seethed when five whales, estimated by Daley to measure between forty and fifty feet in length, came to the surface.

"One after another these fellows began charging the boat and kept at it for about an hour," he said. "As soon as they got close to us they divided under. Several times I could feel them brush with all their might, and blowing, they pretty near drowned us.

"They were coming closer each time they charged, and I knew that it would only be a matter of time before they would strike the boat. I decided to cut the cable, and we got up to the bow. Right then it was about eight inches above water level.

"We gripped the cable to pull it around the side to get us it to cut it, when we felt something slide off, and the bow came up with a jerk. The five whales charged once or twice more, and then disappeared. It was the toughest spot I was ever in in all my thirty years' fishing."

A seventh whale much larger than the others appeared further from the boat, but did not join in the attack, said Daley.

Other fishermen said such an attack was very rare, but most admitted they wouldn't care to arouse the monsters' anger.

Husband: "I don't see why it was necessary to call the doctor when the baby had only a trifling cough."

Wife: "Well, dear, I asked the doctor, and he said I did right."

CENTENARY

A very pleasant and sociable time was spent at the spacious home of Mrs. Walton Rogleton on Thursday when about twenty-six of the members of the Centenary W. A. and of the W.M.S. met there for the November meeting. At noon a bountiful dinner was served by the hostess and the ladies to which ample justice was done. We were delighted to have as guests Mrs. John Sargent, of Christ Church; W. A., Mrs. Angel Eastwood, Mrs. Arthur Bunnett, Mrs. Wm. Rose and Mrs. Richard Rogleton of Adolphustown. Proceeds $7.08.

Mrs. Roy Thrasher, President of the W.M.S., used as her opening hymn 275 and Mrs. Rogleton led in prayer. The minutes were read and approved she then handed the program over to the group leader, Mrs. J. Kelley. Opening hymn 256 and Mrs. J. Bedford followed with prayer. The Scripture lesson, 1 Corinthians 13 chapter, was read by Mrs. Clinton Vanderwater and hymn 347 followed The topic for November was "Africa" and Mrs. Jas. Ray read a letter from Miss Vera Ray written on board the "S.S. Duchess of Bedford," to her mother, telling of her voyage across the Atlantic, the lady in her journey to Nigeria as a missionary. Mrs. Douglas Rose on read the letter written at Liverpool during her short sojourn there. It was full of interest and much appreciated, and our prayers are with her on her seventeen days' trip to Lagos, Africa.

Miss Anabel Adams sang "The Old Rugged Cross." Miss Helen Starr read a description of Nigeria being done in the homes of the natives of Africa. Hymn 276 closed by Mrs. Collins, who is now home on furlough.

Miss Anabel Adams also gave a short account of how difficult it is to learn the African language. Mrs. Kelley read a poem by Paul Laurence Dunbar, the negro poet entitled "The Lil Brack Sheep". Mrs. Harold Garrison gave a splendid reading on Armistice Day and Rev Mr. Plant closed with prayer.

The Women's Association also held its meeting in the afternoon with Fred Aikens, president, in charge. She used "Praise God from whom all blessings flow" for the first hymn and Mrs. D. Hollon led in prayer, followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. "O God our help in ages past" was sung in memory of those who gave their lives in the Great War. Minutes were read and approved and much business done. The ladies, during the day, quilted on a very pretty quilt of a floral pattern. Rev. Mr. Plant closed with prayer. A hearty vote of thanks was given Mrs Rogleton for her kindness in entertaining her home and for such an enjoyable day spent.

Mrs. Richard Hanley and daughter, Mrs. Fred Adams, Trenton, called on Mrs. W. H. Anderson and Emmett Mar. on Saturday. They were accompanied by their guest, Miss Mabel Brisbin, Trenton, and friend and Miss Vandervoort of Trenton.

POLITICAL RIGHTS TAKEN FROM JEWS

Cannot be Citizen, Vote, or Occupy Public Office

(By Louis P. Lochner, Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Berlin, Nov. 16 (AP)—All political rights were taken from Jews in Germany by an official decree defining closely the citizenship and racial laws promulgated by the Reichstag at its Nuremberg session during the September convention of the Nazi party.

"The Jew cannot be a Reich citizen; cannot vote or occupy public office," ruled the decree, published in the official Gazette.

"Jewish functionaries of the government will be pensioned December 31, 1935."

Another decree, dealing with the Jewish blood laws, forbade marriages between Jews and "quarter Jews" or between "quarter Jews" themselves.

Aryan domestic servants may remain in the service of Jews, the decree ruled, if they are 45 years of age or over.

PARTY CONVENTION PLANNED

Toronto, Nov. 16.—(CP)—William H. Ireland of Trenton, President of the Ontario Conservative Association stated today he expected to arrange with executive members shortly to fix a date for the party convention. Selection of a Provincial Party leader will probably be a point of discussion at the convention.

STORY OF ROTARY INTERNATIONAL

The Progress of Rotary

A Brief History

THE Rotary movement took form, after five years of study by the founder, on the evening of February 23, 1905. Paul P. Harris, a young Chicago attorney, met with three of his friends to discuss the organization of a club for business and professional men, the purpose of which would be mutual helpfulness. Within a few weeks when the club had nineteen members, officers were chosen and the Rotary Club of Chicago began its career.

Inspired by the enthusiasm generated in this first club, the founder began efforts to organize Rotary clubs in other cities. It was three years before the second club was organized in San Francisco, but within five years, sixteen of the largest cities in the United States had Rotary clubs.

Within the Chicago Rotary Club there were developing some of the ideas and principles which were to become familiar to Rotary clubs everywhere. Paul Harris gave to the club the name "Rotary", based upon the early custom of holding the meetings in the offices of the members in rotation. The founder also devised the classification principle, restricting membership in the Rotary club to but one man in each distinctive line of business or profession. Later the clubs were encouraged to include as members the junior partners or assistants of their members as "additional active members" in the club.

When the Chicago Club grew too large to continue in members' offices, it was proposed to meet at luncheon, or occasionally at dinner. From it came the name "Rotary" and the thought of rotation among one's friends, came the inspiration for the Rotary emblem which was designed as a simple wheel, in 1905, and after passing through various stages evolved as a cog wheel which was officially adopted in 1924.

In an address at the Rotary convention in Portland, Oregon, 1911, Arthur Frederick Sheldon of Chicago used the expression: "Best profits most who serves best" and this was adopted as the best expression of the principles of Rotary. Some years later the phrase "Service Above Self" was coined and the two expressions were limited in 1915 to the Rotary motto of today.

When there were sixteen clubs in the United States, the founder felt that there should be some co-operation between them. The chairman of the committee of extension in the Rotary Club of Chicago was Chesley R. Perry, young librarian and teacher. These two brought together in Chicago the representatives of the sixteen clubs in August, 1910, and the National Association of Rotary Club was founded. Paul Harris was the first President and Chesley R. Perry, chairman of the convention, was persuaded to do the secretarial work.

In January of 1911, Secretary Perry published part of a lengthy article on Rotary written by Paul Harris as the first issue of a magazine named "The Rotarian". Six months later a second issue of the magazine was published, at the Portland convention (1911) authority was given to make the magazine a regular monthly publication. There was still a need for a more specific statement concerning Rotary. Rotarian Guy Gundaker of Philadelphia already known as the author of codes of standards of correct business practice for trade associations, prepared "A Talking Knowledge of Rotary" which was the first of a series of pamphlets on Rotary's purposes and activities.

Soon after the formation of the National Association of Rotary Clubs, Rotary took root in Winnipeg, Canada. On visits to London and Dublin, American Rotarians launched the Rotary clubs there and at the convention in 1912, the name International Association of Rotary Clubs was adopted. This was shortened to Rotary International in 1922.

Cuba was the first non-English speaking country to welcome Rotary. The Havana Rotary Club was chartered in April, 1916. On the continent of Europe, the first club was founded at Madrid, Spain, in 1921. In South America, the first club was founded at Montevideo, Uruguay in 1919. In Asia, also the first club was formed at Melbourne in 1921. In Asia the first club was formed at Shanghai, China, in 1919.

This extension of Rotary brought increasingly difficult problems. The 1920 convention at Atlantic City authorized a committee to draw up a new constitution, but the preliminary draft was rejected by the next convention, at Edinburgh, Scotland, and a new committee of thirty-one Rotarians was authorized. This group met in Chicago in November, 1921, and after seven days of deliberation drafted the constitution which was adopted at Los Angeles in 1922. At the same time, the committee revised and reworded the objects of Rotary into six objects. At the Mexico City convention these were reworded to form four objects relating generally to club service, community service, vocational service, and international service.

One of the earliest activities of the Rotary Club of Chicago, and doubtless of most other Rotary clubs, was a share in community service. Some began to think that Rotary was growing into a benevolent movement and appeals for assistance sometimes became uncomfortably pressing. At last there came a time when the leaders saw the danger that Rotary might become merely another philanthropic organization and the St. Louis convention in 1923 there was adopted for the guidance of Rotarians and Rotary clubs, a statement of the policy of Rotary toward Community Service. Without fixing limitations upon Rotary club activities in community service, this statement asserted that the primary objective of the Rotary club is to train its members in service.

By this time there were innumerable essays and addresses on Rotary and its purposes. There were viewpoints as different as the customs of the fifty countries in which Rotary clubs had then been established. Club activities and objectives had gradually been centered under the categories of club service, vocational service, and community service. Later international service was added. There was possible a lack of harmony between these four branches of service, and a lack of co-ordination which might result in overemphasis upon one or more to the neglect of another. To meet this need, the Aims and Objects Plan was created and titled out for 5 by

Chesley R. Perry
Secretary, Rotary International

Chesley Reynolds Perry of Chicago, Illinois, U.S.A., is Secretary of Rotary International, and as such is the active managing officer of the entire international organization. He joined the original Rotary Club in Chicago while it was still the only Rotary club. He served on numerous committees of the club and in 1910 was chairman of its extension committee. With Paul Harris, he formulated a plan for a National Association of the dozen or more Rotary clubs then in existence and arranged the details of the first convention which was held in Chicago in 1910. The convention unanimously chose him as its presiding officer. After the organization of the Association and the election of Paul Harris as its president, Harris and the board of directors prevailed upon him to take the job of secretary for a couple of months, so that the proceedings of the convention might be gotten out, the constitution and by-laws printed, the association made to function, etc. He has been secretary ever since. He created "The Rotarian", the monthly organ of Rotary, and was its editor and manager for 17 years.

He was born in Chicago, received grammar and high school education, worked as newsboy, janitor, clerk, buyer and manager in stationery and tobacco stores. He was a leader in all high school activities. For about nine years he worked at the Chicago Public Library and taught in the public evening schools. Some years later he was newspaper and magazine work. He served as an officer in the U.S. Army in Cuba during the Spanish American War. At the same time he acted as 'war correspondent' for the Chicago Times-Herald.

On his return to civil life he resumed his library work and school teaching and became Secretary of the School Extension Society of Chicago, an organization in favor of playgrounds, gymnasiums, etc. He resigned from his library and school work to take up first fraternal and then general insurance, and later was western representative of a cement-brick machinery company.

He has traveled extensively in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, the British Isles, and Continental Europe. He has attended every Rotary convention and every meeting of the Board of Directors of Rotary National and International.

WHAT ROTARY DOES

Our Rotary Club has provided and continues to provide a common and regular meeting place where leading members of all races and creeds meet on an equal footing; and are given an opportunity to discuss, understand and appreciate each other's difficulties and problems so that by goodwill, mutual understanding and friendship the general well-being of the country in which we live may be promoted.

MEET ED!

Ed. R. Johnson

President, Rotary International, 1935-36

Ed. R. Johnson is president of the Virginia Supply Company and the Roanoke Securities Corporation, and is an officer or director of several other business and financial institutions in Roanoke, Virginia. He was born in Aurora, Illinois, and received his education at Allegheny Institute of Roanoke and at Purdue University.

He is a director of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce and a past committeeman of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. He is a past president of the Roanoke Chamber of Commerce, a past president of the Y.M.C.A. in Roanoke, and a past president of his local Boy Scout council.

He played an important part in the organization of the Roanoke Community Fund, acted as chairman of its first campaign, and is now vice-president of the fund. During the World War, he served first as captain and later as major in the United States army.

Ed has been a member of the Rotary Club of Roanoke since 1920. He has served as chairman of a number of club committees and was a delegate of the Roanoke Rotary Club to four conventions of Rotary International. He served as first vice-president of Rotary International for 1933-34, and as chairman of the convention committee for the Mexico City (1935) convention, where he was elected president of Rotary International for 1935-36.

W. W. Emerson.
Winnipeg, Canada
Director of Rotary International 1935-36

W. W. Emerson is advertising manager of the 'Country Guide' of Winnipeg, Canada. He was born on a farm in Hastings County, Ontario, and was graduated from the University of Toronto—Faculty of Agriculture, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

He was district representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture in Lanark County, and has been in the rural magazine publishing business since 1912. He helped to organize and is a past president of the Agricultural Publishers' Association of Canada. He is a member of the board of directors of the Winnipeg Federated Budget, and a member of the Provincial Executive of the Manitoba Boy Scout Association.

Mr. Emerson has been a member of the Rotary Club of Winnipeg since 1922 and was president of that club in 1930-31. He was governor of the 4th district of Rotary International in 1933-34, and was a member of the club service committee for 1934-35. At the Mexico City convention he was elected a member of the board of directors of Rotary International for 1935-36.

District Gov'r Stan Forbes Rotary Dynamo

STANLEY C. FORBES,
Brantford, Ontario, Canada.

Stanley C. Forbes is in the automobile distributing business in Brantford, Ontario, Canada. He was born at Port Lambton, Ontario. He was educated in the public and continuation schools of Comber, Ontario. In 1913 he became interested in the Bell Telephone Company, Tilbury, Ontario. In 1921 he entered the automobile business, organizing Ford agencies in Tilbury and St. Thomas. He moved his business to Brantford in 1924. He has been active in many community organizations; president of the Y.M.C.A. for 1934 and 1935, and president of the Brantford Golf and Country Club in 1935.

He joined the Rotary Club of Brantford in 1926, was a member of the board of directors for the years 1927-29. He has served his club on many important committees, and was elected to the club presidency in 1933, during which term the membership of the club increased twenty-five percent. He was elected governor of the 27th district of Rotary International for 1935-36.

ON THE AIR

The Ideal of Service

— by

Chester R. Perry, Secretary
Rotary International

THE ideal of service as we conceive of it in Rotary is merely an intelligent attempt to be helpful to others, or, we sometimes say, thoughtfulness of and helpfulness to others. We believe the world will be better for it. We believe it is the fundamental motive, really, of human existence so far as human beings have been able to work it out in their limited scope.

This ideal of service is set forth in the six objects, but ordinarily a Rotarian expresses his adherence to this ideal of service in four ways: First, by his service in the club to which he belongs. No man can belong to a Rotary club without agreeing to give real service in the club. First of all must service service by being present at the meetings to contact with his fellow Rotarians. Then he must, of course, participate in the programs and in the exchange of ideas and in the committee work, and so on.

Next is his opportunity to manifest his adherence to the ideal of service in his business or profession. He must conceive of it as an opportunity to serve society, not merely an opportunity to make money for all, the thing that is animating him in whatever he is doing is that he is rendering service through his business or his profession to mankind, helping to lift the level of human achievements a little bit higher.

The third opportunity that comes to him for service is naturally in his community or his neighborhood, his opportunity to be neighborly with his fellow man, what we call community service. There are as many possibilities, of course, for a man to be a helpful member of his community as there are human beings and organizations of society in his immediate vicinity.

His fourth opportunity is what we call international service, a realization that we are living today in great big tribes which we call nations, and that the world as a whole is composed of all these nations, and the fellow over the water or across the land and ocean on the other side of the earth are just as good fellows as we are and just as much interested in making this world a better place to live in and a better place in which to make a living, as we are, so reaching out to contact with them and establish an international acquaintanceship which has not hitherto existed to any great extent.

Those are the four ways in which as Rotarians, we try to manifest our adherence to the ideal of service, and thereby foster and encourage understanding, good-will and international peace.

Rapid Increase In Rotary Membership

Rotary International has shown a phenomenal increase in membership throughout the world in recent months. While this may be taken as indicative of the general upturn in business, it is still more suggestive of the growing consciousness among business and professional men of the need of understanding among private citizens of the various countries.

During the last year there has been a net gain of 10,000 members and 158 clubs. For the past twenty-five years Rotary clubs have been chartered on the average of three every week. In three decades the pioneer movement has grown from one club starting with five members to 3,859 clubs in more than 80 countries with 163,000 members. The following figures from the current Rotarian Magazine indicate the spread of Rotary since the first club was founded in Chicago in 1905:

| | Clubs | Members |
|---|---|---|
| 1905 | 1 | 30 |
| 1915 | 186 | 20,000 |
| 1925 | 2,903 | 108,000 |
| 1935 | 3,859 | 162,000 |

One of the objectives of Rotary is the advancement of international goodwill. While Rotary has not been able to stop war, yet through fostering fellowship among men of many nations, centuries old barriers are being broken down. Walter D. Head, past vice-president of Rotary International, cites a few examples in The Rotarian Magazine:

"Rotary is no miracle-working organization", says Mr. Head, "but there is drama in the fact that when R. L. Hill, immediate past president of Rotary International, visited the Rotary Club of Jerusalem last year, he found Arab, Jew and Christian sitting side by side, and listened to speeches of Rotary welcome in Arabic, Hebrew and English."

"In Singapore, Straits Settlements, 29 nationalities are represented around the Rotary luncheon table. Here meet Europeans, Parsees, the Hindus, Chinese, the Japanese, Americans—and many more. For those whose religion prevents eating certain foods on the day's menu, special orders are filled. Where because of religious prohibitions will eat nothing. But there they are associating in fellowship at the only place they can in the city."

"These instances," he continues, "may be unusual, but in scores of inland North America and elsewhere precisely the same personal Rotary technique is being applied to bring men of foreign birth into understanding and friendly relations with the native born."

Another example of bringing men of many nations together was the annual regional conference of Rotarians of Eurasia, Northern African and Asia Minor, in Venice, Italy, September 16 to 18. More than 1,500 men from this region met to discuss Rotary matters and to mold friendships. Such gatherings serve to increase understanding and promote goodwill among the prominent business and professional men participating.

WHERE IS THE HONORS

The question is not, will men honor you for your work, but will you honor your work? Your concern is not with men's praise or profits for yourself, but to make that which will profit many besides yourself.

THE RIGHT ROAD

If your Rotary club and your training Rotarians so it will always have within it a leader with a far enough vision so when the club comes to the cross-roads it will have leaders who will step out and say this, this is the road to take.

WHY FIFTY PROTESTS

Much like one who has been reprimanded is the action of Italy in presenting such or rather nation with an individual notice that-Italy is offended at sanctions and will reconsider. Does Duce think that fifty individual protests are more powerful than one to the League, the source of sanctions? Indeed he is very much the individualist and has not the cosmopolitan outlook of his great model Julius Caesar, who would not have made so great an error.

Mussolini knows the League machinery. Why did he not look forward to this as an eventuality?

He says imposition of sanctions may retard recovery, or ever be fatal to it. Was forced duty to see that nothing be done, even by Italy, to retard that revival? Why does he stay in the League and tacitly accept sanctions and yet protest against them?

The whole action is like much of the Mussolinian, boasting, high-flying, grandiloquent talk which has been poured out to the world after it has entered Fascist ears for the first time.

EQUALITY

Jean Batten is the first woman to fly the South Atlantic. Women have proven their right to be known among the world's greatest aviators.

The new age has shown a change in woman status with the greater freedom which began with athletics. Time may come when there will be the equal opportunity. Today no one would dare to tell Amy Mollison, or Jean Batten that flying does not become a woman, for they have blazed the way. Had it not been for them, who knows what would be the present state of flying, for it must be admitted that women have stirred men fliers to emulation.

Now in the realm of aeronautics, no one thinks of inequality of man and woman. It does not exist.

The sooner it ceases to exist in other realms of endeavor the better for the world and the happier the world will be to have thrown off the prejudice of man's superiority which is a myth which men accept, and women have acquiesced in.

THE AIR WE BREATHE

Man lives on the product of the earth and he also lives by the grace of the composition of gases which constitute the air. So much for the mystery of the world we live in.

Excursions like those of Stevens and Anderson into the stratosphere to a height of 74,000 feet cannot but have brought back facts of value, at least they increase the total of knowledge and that is what science is after. For all the arguments and inferences which can be derived are after all proven or disputed by facts where the facts are revealed. It is another case of the truth making men free—their minds free.

In this flight for the first time continuous conversation for eight hours was maintained with the earth. Man on earth was kept in closest touch with the development as the flight continued a mile after mile into the heights of air.

Such things as the amount of the earth's brightness, sun brightness, sky brightness, composition of stratospheric air, cosmic rays were studied. The earth bright-ness is believed to be six times that of the moon. The aeronauts measured it at 200 candlepower.

SMALLER TURKEY

A smaller turkey is on the way. That does not mean that turkeys once large are to grow smaller, for that is not nature's way. But it means that the whopper of a turkey wobbler is too large and that a medium-sized bird is desired. Ottawa fowl experts are working to this end and soon they say in the near future the smaller bird will come forth with all the smell of the condiments and savory and spices to the Thanksgiving, the Christmas and the New Year's feasts.

The main drawback to the serving of huge turkeys does not concern the taste and the texture of the meat of the fowl but the capacity of the ovens. Ovens are not so large as the old kitchen range ovens and smaller pans are necessary and if smaller pans, then smaller fowls.

The situation is at present: Makers of stoves are being urged to make bigger ovens, and fowl experts are trying to limit the size of the fowl. Which will win?

IT IS SPEED

The world is recognizing that it is speed that kills most. Out of 32,000 violations of the motor laws in New York state last year ninety per cent were for speed.

This is what feeds the cavernous maw of death its grisly harvest.

To escape from evil we must be made, so far as possible, like God; and this resemblance consists in becoming just, and holy, and wise.—Plato.

"GOOD MAKES ROTARY" SAYS ANOTHER TINY TIM

My legs were crooked—born that way—
I couldn't move around;
I'd serve, ride or walked. Sometimes
I'd crawl upon the ground.
They called it "Act of Providence,"
Which has to be endured,
And, anyway, the neighbors said,
Such cases can't be cured.

But not my soul! She used to say
That rich folks found a way
To straighten crippled children's legs,
So they could run and play.
"It don't seem fair that there's no cure
For my affliction, dear,
Cause they are poor!" And then one day,
She heard about the Rotary.

The Rotary doctor saw my legs.
He shook his head.
Like most folks did. "We'll fix you up
As good as new," he said.
"We've awful poor," said ma. "It's hard
To pay for food and rent."
"Give us that boy," the doctor said,
"It won't cost you one cent."

He didn't ask about what church
We went to, or if any.
Or if we were Rotary Ins.
His questions wasn't many.
They took me in. And then one day,
The doctor said, "Well, son,
Let's try those new straight legs of yours."
And see how well you've done."

I don't know how they did it—
I'm not much on doctor's talk,
I only know I used to crawl—
And now! See! I can walk!
I wonder why my mother cried
When I went home to see;
But through her tears I heard her say—
"God bless the Rotary."

CHARLES DICKENS TINY TIM PERSONIFIED THE CRIPPLED CHILD OF ALL TIMES. A crippled child who despite physical handicaps can see the silver lining on the cloud of care and trouble. The above poem written and sent in to a Rotary Club in New York State shows an appreciation of the work of Rotary. Rotary's finest contribution to the world will no doubt be found in the last analysis to be the efforts for crippled children, dispelling pain and woe with health and happiness, and paving the way to better and more useful citizenship. Is it any wonder that many children, now grown up, prefaces their daily prayers with "God Bless Rotary."

X X X X

HAPPILY MARRIED, HOMES OF THEIR OWN. The treatment, care and cure of sick and crippled children by Rotary does not end with the last visit of the doctor. Crippled children are considered as Rotary children, even after childhood, on into mature life and greater personal responsibility—Rotary is always waiting to advise or help. One in close touch with Rotary work for crippled children in Belleville told the conductor of this column that he got the greatest thrill out of the AFTER, although the BEFORE was very interesting. The AFTER, he meant was the girls and boys who had been treated through the efforts of Rotary, and had grown up as young men and women taking an important place in the work of the world. Girls, apparently hopelessly crippled, restored to perfect health and strength by the efforts of Rotary—modern miracles—and now happily married, some with children. Young men now taking their share of community and home life, rescued from the threat of crippled helplessness—some married and bringing up families—all happy and the best of citizens. Is it worth while?

X X X X

BELLEVILLE ROTARY CLUB HAS CERTAINLY JUSTIFIED ITS EXISTENCE BY ITS WORK FOR COMMUNITY AND HUMANITY. Belleville Rotarians have given freely of their time, talents and money for the betterment of community life in Belleville, better health, better citizens and a better place to live in. For the first time in its history Belleville Rotary has inaugurated a campaign to provide additional funds for the extension of its crippled children's work—open to all citizens of good will. With characteristic energy the Rotarians to a man have neglected their own business to put this campaign over as an outstanding success, and in such a way that everyone participating in it will feel it a privilege to work with Rotary in behalf of the treatment, care and cure of sick and crippled children. Any dollar given grudgingly would be out of place in such a grand work and would not earn the dividends of blessings from the Fount of All Good which are showered upon those who give thought to the little children of whom the Master said OF SUCH IS THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

Looking Backward

NOV. 16TH, 1915

The rugby match between teams representing the Belleville High School and the Peterboro High School which was played on the Albert College campus resulted in victory for the latter team, the score being 21 to 5. Although the score was one sided, it does not indicate the class of play that was put up by both sides and in no way is it disparaging of our boys. The following composed the Belleville team: Bullock, Beck, Johnson, Green, Allen, Bartlett, H. Rogers (Captain), Phillips, A. Rogers, Clarke, Brown, Simpson, Wells and Redner. The attendance at the game was over 300.

30 Years Ago

NOV. 16TH, 1905

The Belleville Bankers' Hockey Club held a very successful meeting at the City Hall last evening and organized for the coming season. The following officers were elected: Hon. President, Mr. H. Corby, ex-M.P.; Patron, Henry Corby, ex-M.P.; Patron, Henry Corby, ex-M.P.; Patron, Henry

Paul P. Harris
Founder and President Emeritus Rotary International Chicago, Illinois

Paul P. Harris, founder of Rotary, was born April 19, 1868, at Racine, Wisconsin. He was educated in the public schools and academies in Vermont, the University of Vermont, Princeton University, and the University of Iowa, receiving the degrees of Ph.B., LL.B., and LL.D.

After completing his law course in 1891, he spent the following five years in seeing the world and learning to know his fellows by actual contact with them under all sorts of conditions. He worked as a reporter on daily papers in San Francisco and Denver, rode the range in the cow country, picked oranges in southern Louisiana, sold marble and granite, crossed the Atlantic twice on cattle ships, and made a third trip to Europe on business.

In 1896 he felt he had gained sufficient practical knowledge to be of service to his clients and opened a law office in Chicago. He had neither friends nor relatives in that city. He had much time for reflection and pondered much on conditions of life and business in a large city. In 1905, as a result of his studies and reflections, Paul had formulated a definite philosophy of business relations. Calling together three of his friends, each of whom was engaged in a different line of business, he expounded his theory to them. This group was the nucleus of the Rotary Club of Chicago. Through the propaganda of Paul Harris, this novel organization soon had counter-parts in other cities in the United States. In this extension work the acquaintances made in college and in his travels were of material assistance to him in the establishment of new clubs.

After a few years the necessity for some organization to bind these different clubs together became apparent. Thereupon Paul Harris, Chesley Perry and others organized the National Association of Rotary Clubs in America in 1910. Later through the extension of the movement into Canada and Great Britain, the International Association of Rotary Clubs was formed. This later was renamed Rotary International. Paul was the first President of the National Association and the First President of the International Association of Rotary Clubs and is President-Emeritus of Rotary International.

Paul was married to Miss Jean Thomson of Edinburgh, Scotland, on July 2nd, 1910, who, during the last twenty-five years, has assisted Paul in entertaining scores of Rotary friends from throughout the world at their suburban home, "Comely Bank." His friendship garden is one of the features of "Comely Bank."

While Paul has devoted much of his time to Rotary, he has also tried to do his full part in civic and professional work. He is honorary vice president of the International Society for Crippled Children and has served as chairman of the Committee on Professional Ethics and member of the board of managers of the Chicago Bar Association and representative of the Chicago Bar Association at the International Congress of Law as ed as a member of the Inter- the Hague. He has also servnational Commitee of the American Bar Association. He was one of the two recipients in 1934 of the Silver Buffalo Award of the Boy Scouts of America.

Suffer The Children To Come Unto Me

In presenting this Special Rotary Supplement to the citizens of Belleville and the Bay of Quinte District the Belleville Rotary Club is confident that the publication will meet a cordial reception and be a worthwhile contribution to the literature of this district inasmuch as it relates the work done in behalf of the sick and crippled children of Belleville and district by the Belleville Rotary Club.

Particulars of the crippled children work of Belleville Rotary Club is given herein in no spirit of boasting but with humble pride in being privileged to participate in such a wonderful work attended as it is with such rich Divine Blessings.

Rotary history, international and local, is also given here in the belief that readers will find much of interest therein.

Rotary objects and Rotary news the world over provide articles of general interest to all readers.

Over five hundred sick and crippled children have received treatment at the hands of the most skilled medical specialists of Canada through the efforts of the Belleville Rotary Club. One child has been under treatment for over two years in Toronto and others for varying lengths of time. Most of the burden of expenses has been carried by Rotarians themselves, but it is desired now to greatly extend the work, hence the doors are thrown wide open and all people of good will and kindly hearts can assist, whether members of any service club or not.

The businessmen of Belleville are helping materially this campaign by taking advertising space in this Supplement a substantial part of the price thereof going to the Rotary Crippled Children Fund.

Belleville Rotary Club is perfectly willing to carry on and give their time and money to the cause, but the door is open to all who may wish to assist in any way, financially or otherwise, and their co-operation will be welcomed. Just get in touch with President J. B. Boyce.

The Master said: "Suffer the little children to come unto me for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

The Progress

year among the clubs of Great Britain. It provided for an alms and objects committee which should keep the club program carefully balanced between the four forms of activity. The Ostend convention in 1927 adopted this plan, which has since become effective in almost all Rotary clubs.

Thus Rotary has developed in its first quarter century finding spokesmen and leaders as the need arose, receiving guidance along its original course as viewpoints varied, gaining strength and recognition in country after country until it can truly be said that Rotary encircles the world.

It was the founder's purpose to bring together some of his friends and their friends in a club designed primarily to encourage fellowship among the leading business and professional men of a community. Rotary in all its growth and expansion has held steadily true to these fundamentals. Leaders set an example of business and professional standards. Leaders set an example in improving their communities, commercially and socially. Leaders guide the thought of their fellow citizens toward a better international understanding. These are the obligations of a Rotarian.

Rotary begins with the individual and his responsibility in his own vocation which is the subject of greatest concern to every man. Outside his vocation, a Rotarian has his duties as a good neighbor and citizen. Beyond this, the Rotarian develops the international viewpoint. Nations are now such close neighbors, their daily life is so closely woven together through dependence upon each other's products, goods and services, that the international mind is one of the most important characteristics of a leader in business and the professions. War is not prevented by some spectacular effort at the eleventh hour but by a gradual education of the people and their statesmen.

There is today a chain of more than 8,800 Rotary clubs encircling the world. In each of them the Rotarian visitor is greeted with a friendly handclasp. There are more than 160,000 Rotarians in these clubs, each of them extending his influence in his own small circle, each inspired by the thought of "service above self."

WOMAN CAN LIVE ON $2.25 WEEKLY

So Far as Food Is Concerned, Decides New York Nutrition Bureau

New York, Nov. 16.—It is possible for a woman in the city to live well nourished and healthy on a food allowance of $2.25 a week, was declared by the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, according to the Herald Tribune.

It was said the headquarters of the association that its nutrition bureau has instructed hundreds of persons in the art of preparing nourishing and attractive meals to cost from $2 to $2.25 daily. At this rate such men are eligible to receive minimum-cost food instruction as well as women, Miss Mary E. Gillett, head of the nutrition bureau, said that so far fewer than a dozen had appeared for lessons.

Robert E. Bondy, general director of the association, pointed out that thousands of persons on relief, or having jobs paying low wages, face health impairment here because of malnutrition. Instruction in marketing and cooking, he said, would enable them to prepare their food at home at a weekly cost of from $1.35 to $2.25.

"While the meals are not equal in quality to those served at first-class hotels," said Mr. Bondy, "they are means possible on this limited budget have ample variety and the food is sufficient to maintain health. Girls agree that the food they prepare themselves is better than it is possible for them to buy in restaurants for so little money."

ANOTHER WOMAN SLUGGED ON HEAD

Only Meagre Discription of Assailant is Given Police

Toronto, Nov. 16.—Toronto police were investigating a mysterious attack against a young woman, Miss Phoebe Hanna, who was slugged on the head on Tyndall avenue when she was on her way to her home a few doors across home shortly before o'clock last night.

Miss Adams could give police only a meagre description of her assailants, a man and a woman, whom she had never seen before. The victim said she knew of none who would have cause to attack her, and believes that the incident was a case of mistaken identity.

Walking home from the Edison Lamp Company on Dufferin Street where she is employed, Miss Adams reached Tyndall. She heard a step behind her and turned to see a woman walking behind her. She paid only casual attention to her follower. The attack was launched as she stepped into a bright well-lighted shrine from an apartment house.

Assailants Escape

Dazed, Miss Adams turned around to see the woman and a man hurrying from the scene. They ran across the street up to King Street.

The victim of the attack walked to the office of Dr. Bruce Barnes on King Street, had an inch cut dressed, and then returned to her home.

Dr. Barnes notified the police and a squad of men under the direction of Sergeant Henry Gillard and Patrol Sergeant Albert Lee commenced a rigid search of the district.

BIRTH SHORTAGE WORRIES FRANCE

War And Inclination to Smaller Families Blamed by Experts

Paris, Nov. 16 (CP)—France's declining birthrate is due to take a sharper drop during the next decade, it was declared today at the Sorbonne—because of the Great War. There were 2,000,000 fewer births in France than there would have been normally in those years, it was estimated, between 1914 and 1918.

Babies born in that period have now reached marriageable age, or are nearing it. Their paucity is expected to be reflected in fewer marriages and fewer births in the coming decade.

The expected new population gap is pointed out may result in another, though less marked gap 30 or 35 years hence, carrying the effects of the low war-time birthrate many years into the future.

It is the general tendency toward smaller families rather than the war baby shortage, however, that is giving the most concern to those striving to raise the birthrate in France.

Fernand Bouvenet, leader of the organization which favors larger families, is warning the country that if the present tendency continues, a sharp population drop, followed by the loss of freedom by a foreign power, will come shortly.

ROCKEFELLER JR. WITHDRAWS AID

Finds Denominationalism is Obstacle to Religion

New York, Nov. 16.—Speaking the resolutions adopted by the trustees of his father, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has terminated his annual monetary subscription to the Northern Baptist Church, it was learned today, "because denominationalism is the best sacrifice of Christian religion."

In a searching letter to the Northern Baptist Convention, written on March 1 but not released until tonight, the son of the founder of one of the world's greatest fortunes informed the Church that henceforth any gifts he could be only to specific agencies of the church.

"I have long felt," he wrote, "that this denominational emphasis is a divisive force in the progress of organized Christian work and an obstacle to the development of the spirit and life of Christ among men."

To hold young people, Rockefeller said, who are largely unconcerned with denominational distinctions, the Church must work with them in "the field of relegating the matter to a place of secondary importance, and stand with them for the fundamentals of Christian duty."

Rockefeller, the largest individual donor to the Church, was in the past made annual donations ranging from $500,000 to $1,000,000 to the general budget of the Northern Baptist Convention.

NEWSPAPER PLANT GUTTED BY FIRE

Stratford Beacon-Herald Suffers Heavy Loss to Machinery

Stratford, Nov. 15—(CP)—Fire gutted the offices of the Stratford Beacon-Herald Friday night with loss unestimated. Water damage to machinery in the composing and linotype rooms is believed to be heavy, but high flames could not be learned.

The blaze is discovered in the basement shortly before nine o'clock. Firemen fought the flames desperately, working in heavy smoke. The fire broke through the main floor in several places, spreading upward to second, and third storeys at the front of the building.

David McKean, a carpenter, was discovered lying in a hallway opening from the basement. He was overcome by smoke after the fire had been under way for half an hour. He was taken to a hospital and revived.

Escapes by Stairway

F. F. Gibbs, chartered accountant, was working in his office on the second floor, unaware the fire was in progress until someone shouted to him from the street. He escaped by the stairway a few minutes before the fire broke through part of the staircase.

The blaze must have been smouldering for some time, for when Deputy-Chief Ferguson arrived the entire basement was in the large stock of newsprint paper in the basement. The business office and office of the job plant superintendent on the main floor were completely gutted. Immediately behind the job plant office is the job plant proper. The stock was damaged and the machines damaged considerably, principally by water.

Back of the job department is the mechanical end, including the linotype machines and the big press. The linotypes were damaged somewhat, while all the composition rollers on the big press melted away and r.n through the machinery.

Water and Smoke Damage

On the second floor are located the editorial and reportorial staffs of the newspaper and the office of F. F. Gibbs, chartered accountant. Damage here was principally by smoke, water, smoke and heat. The filing cabinet with many card units, escaped with slight damage, while it is believed only one or two newspaper files were lost.

Offices on the third floor are occupied by Walter Imprie, importer and J. Carrotte, stamp collector. The Thameside Girls' quarters are also on this floor and it is believed considerable scenery used in plays was damaged.

Late last night the management was considering steps towards publishing on Saturday. The plant will be incapacitated for several days and a limited plant will be made to publish elsewhere.

Thousands of persons thronged about the scene and Boy Scouts assisted police in keeping order.

The building is located on Ontario Street, one of the main thoroughfares. Residents on either side and both had to close early in the evening due to smoke filling their premises. Residents of apartments east of the burned building moved much of their belonging, fearing the fire might spread. Such did not occur, but a number of residents had to sleep out as smoke seeped into their dwellings.

JOSEPH DONOVAN JOHN McDADE ARE BOTH ACQUITTED

Death of Hotelman at Brockville Still a Mystery

JUSTICE AGREES

Jury Instructed to Acquit McDade After They Were Locked Together

Brockville, Ont., Nov. 16 (CP)—The death of Victor Johnston, boniface of the well known Grand Hotel on the Thousand Islands shore of the St. Lawrence River last August, remained a mystery today following the acquittal of Joseph Donovan and John McDade on charges of manslaughter.

Dr. H. E. R. Frankish, Provincial pathologist, gave evidence that Johnston died of a brain hemorrhage and a blood clot at the base of the brain, the trial on Saturday before Mr. Justice Chiles MacTague here did not reveal what brought on the hemorrhage, or how Johnston's body happened to get into the river. It was established, however, that he was dead before his body entered the water.

Donovan and McDade were tried separately. When the jury brought in its verdict of acquittal Donovan was at 8.15 o'clock last night, Mr. Justice MacTague said he was "entirely in agreement" with the jury's finding.

After the jury had retired in Donovan's case, late yesterday, attorneys for the defence, Harry McDade, He pleaded not guilty. Donovan and McDade were by Fergus of Toronto, then declared that he did not believe the jury could be convicted McDade.

Judge Instructs Jury

His Lordship instructed the jury to bring in a verdict of acquittal and the prisoner was discharged.

Donovan, who described himself as a trainer of steeplechase horses and who has a wounded war veteran, took the stand in his own defence yesterday. Earlier in the trial Leo Landry, a crown witness, had testified that he heard Donovan say he had drowned a man "for the price of a bottle of liquor." Holding him under water until the bubbles began to rise.

Donovan told of meeting McDade and Johnston in a beverage room, of how the three obtained a bottle of rye whiskey, went to Johnston's summer cottage on the St. Lawrence River outside the city. There they had a drink of rye each and decided to go for a swim. Johnston, who said he was feeling "pretty drunk," did not go swimming, according to the witness.

The Donovan case and his, he said, he was sitting on the wharf while he and McDade swam out from shore. Donovan said he came back to shore, put on a pair of shoes and some clothes and remembered nothing more until he awoke in Brockville the next morning.

He said another man called at the home of Mrs. Hazel Fryfer the next morning and it was there, that Landry said he heard the statements he testified Donovan made.

ETENDINAGA EAST W. I.

The regular monthly meetine of the Tyendinaga East W. I. met at the home of Mrs. S. Winters with a large attendance. A large number of ladies were dedaied for a basaar and sold at the meeting. The roll call was answered by a wholesome menu of sames for an evening meeting. After the minutes of last meeting were read and approved a discussion took place about how to dispose of a quilt. Correspondence re-legislative grant was read, it being decided to send for the grant. Mrs. A. Waddingham gave an interesting address on Belleville, followed by a reading by Mrs. C. Arey. A lengthy discussion took place by those who attended the lantern slides in Shannonville. Mrs. H. Tucker gave a reading "Australia's Remembrance Stone" followed by one by Mrs. R. McGrath. After a hearty vote of thanks to the hostess for her kind hospitality the meeting closed with singing God Save The King. A dainty lunch was then served.

TINTS FOR SPRING ALREADY IN SIGHT

Sand-drift and Teal Are Among New English Shades

London, Nov. 16—Is spring too far away to think of what you're going to wear? The fashion-seeking folk may like to know that several new colors forecast at Bradford for next season include all our old friends in the shades of the soft type, expected to be one of the chief colors in the spring season.

There is also sprig, a pale green slightly deeper gold. A new color is Medici blue. New beiges are sand-drift, fawn and toast. These are a slightly deeper shade for lightweight fabrics in the spring. There is a new grey at Bradford. It is the grays the leading shades will be opal and steam.

POSTCARD TOOK LONG TIME

A postcard which had taken seventy-eight years to travel 400 yards has been delivered to Mrs. A. A. Blackman of Warleigh Road, Brighton, England. It was posted in February, 1857, by Mrs. A. Rose-Richards, of Golden Terrace, Mulley, Mrs. Borwarra died eighteen years ago.

SOPRANO HURT IN COLLISION

New York, Nov. 16. — Queena Marlo, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, suffered injuries received when a taxicab in which she was a passenger collided with another automobile she was riversity cut about the head.

EAST SEYMOUR

East Seymour—Hurst's United Church W. M. S. held a meeting in the church on Thursday evening, November 14th. The church was appropriately decorated and at the back of the church was hung a banner "In Flander's Fields".

Miss A. Hume, Hon. Pres. of the W. M. S., presided and after the Call to Worship, Hymn "O God of Love, O King of Peace" was sung, followed by the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison. Psalm 46 was then read by Miss Hume with a few comments thereon. After briefly welcoming the assembled people, she called upon Mrs. Jno. Thompson for a reading, which she entitled "In Flander's Field" not only reciting Jr. McCrae's famous poem but also stating what incident incited him to write the poem. It was when seeing numerous rows of graves in which was the boll of the Second Battle of Ypres, In July, where Rev. J. A. McMillan through the death of some relative Mrs. W. A. Hume gave a prayer for peace. All were happy in having Capt. Mrs. Hoskshaler of the Salvation Army Corps, Campbellford, with them and they rendered a very pleasing vocal duet. The Capt. accompanied them on the guitar. Hymn "God of Our Fathers Know" or Old" having been sung, Mrs. Hume then took charge which amounted to approximately an hour. Reading from Leaves of the remainder program giving an address bearing on the effects of war. After another hymn 685, Capt. Housekeeper favored with a cornet solo which was much appreciated. A pageant entitled "Disarm the Hearts" was put on. Cast—Mary—Miss Mildred Heagle. Clara—Mrs. Carmen Gidning. Cicberty—Mrs. C. Heagle. Violet—Mrs. Beals. Hazel—Mrs. Robt. Perry. Ethel—Jean Oddie. Hazel—Dorth Rannie. Florence—Viola Parr. Rose—Rita Rannie, substitute for Jean Remington who at the practice was obliged to resign through illness in her family. Aunt Judith—Mrs. John Rannie.

Aunt Judith entertained eight girls who have attended a concert in which all were foreigners and gradually became conscious of the many needy foreigners referder to the welfare of Canada and that only by the best sermon on International Fellowship and World Peace. Aunt Judith said she was reminded of a poem she learned as a little girl, the last two lines of "Let Child Love Child and Birds Will Cease, "Disarm the Hearts for that is Peace". We cannot have peace till our hearts are emptied of self-sufficiency, race-prejudice, patriotic-conceit, indifference, diffrust and hatred and are filled with love and appreciation of the other people of the world. This can only be, when, in the humility of the Prince of Peace we acknowledge our debt to the other people of the world.

A two minute silence was then observed in honor of those who paid the supreme sacrifice, Capt. Housekeeper playing the "Last Post". The singing of the National Anthem brought this impressive service to a close.

A delicious lunch was then served which was enjoyed by all. Mrs. Hazel Heagle was the hostess of the evening. Mrs. W. A. Hume was the Directress of the Pageant and they all deserve great credit. A vote of thanks was tendered Capt. and Mrs. Housekeeper.

Whooping cough, mumps and measles are in the neighborhood and one case of scarlet fever is reported to be of a mild type.

Miss Fern Wetherell spent the week end in Brantford.

Mr. Don Craigheal, B. Sc., of the staff of Norwood High School spent the holiday in Toronto.

Misses Jean and Emily Craighead of Belleville spent the holiday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Craighead.

Miss Alice Hume and Miss Edith Wallace spent Sunday as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Will Hutcheon.

Mrs. W. L. Anderson and Miss Margaret Anderson are spending this week with Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hume.

Mrs. Alex Hume is spending a couple of days with her sisters, Miss Mather and Mrs. Shaw at Alnwick.

Miss Margaret Anderson, Reg. N., spent Wednesday with Miss Eva Hume.

Mrs. (Rev.) McMillan received word of the death of an uncle near Peterboro on Nov. 12th and Rev. and Mrs. McMillan left for Peterboro Nov. 13th.

Rev. J. A. McMillan and wife, Roy and Marianne were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Hume on Armistice Day.

Mrs. Chas. Hutcheon won a car in the drawing contest sponsored by the Legion in Campbellford on Nov. 11th and Mr. Jas. Eagleson won a radio.

WOMEN INJURED

BY PET SQUIRREL

Alvinston—A tame squirrel which had escaped from a cage at Alvinston, Hampshire, attacked the ladies who attempted to recapture it, and bit the head badly of Mrs. Isabel Drew, biting at her face and lacerating her arms with its claws. Mrs. Drew's son, Lloyd, went to the rescue, and she had pieces of flesh torn from each shoulder and received severe cuts on the head which, women had to be medically treated.

The squirrel was shot in a tree.

SEA BIRDS KILLED BY OIL

Thousands of sea birds have been destroyed this month by Cunard liner Aniriun casts, particularly near Lazca, Cleinarm and Donaghadee, in the result of large quantities of oil in the sea. When their wings are covered with oil, the birds cannot fly, sent die of starvation on the beaches.

People living near the shore have made efforts to save hundreds of the birds by washing off the oil.

Speaking generally, no man appears great to his contemporaries, for the same reason that no man is great to his servants—both know too much of him.—Collon.

Belleville's Busy Business Men

(Written by "Believe It or Not Dipley.")

The Rotary Club here, as elsewhere, has a membership that has been recruited largely from the city's leading business and professional men. The club contains some very big men, and like most clubs, some lighter weights too. As a matter of fact the biggest man there, a man who can write his cheque any day for $100,000, (although the Bank would not pay it, of course) weighs about 225. All classes of the community are represented, so in discussing them, the average business man of Belleville is included.

Business Men may be divided into three classes, The Pseudo Business Man, The Hard Boiled and The Genuine. All have their place in this world unfortunately, and it is to be hoped that some of them will have a place reserved for them in the next. The Pseudo business man is the kind who is always busy attending conferences or directors' meetings, or maybe both customers have arrived in the store at once. He is always so busy that he never gets anything done, and whether it be canvassing for the Church, the Y.M.C.A. or the Chamber of Commerce, he will gladly accept his quota of calls, but he will never finish them. He is a sort of public nuisance, but his intentions are good, and of course the road to Hell is said to be paved with those things.

Song in G Flat

The Hard Boiled variety is always busy when it comes to giving, or doing anything for the community. He laughs at the men who give their time or money to building up the community, and sits back watching the cash register. The only song he knows is the one about "I never done nothing for nobody, no time" and he sings it well, although it sounds rather flat. In this class we have the Light Weights, but fortunately not many of them. These fellows would tip the scales—if they ever tip anything or anybody—at round 110. They are opposed to nearly everything including One Hour Parking and Daylight Saving. To the former because they believe that the way to encourage business is to have their door step cluttered up with cars belonging to the offices upstairs. To the latter because store and office clerks, and school children would have an hour's sunshine and fresh air, and be able to play games.

Saga of Seven Children.

The Genuine business man fortunately is in the majority. He is really busy because he looks after his business properly and is willing to do his share of the community work. Give him some canvassing to do and the calls are promptly made and a full report handed in, in a business like manner. He is the mainstay of the Churches, the Clubs and other local organizations and is never too busy to lend a hand in a good cause. This is the kind of men who have made Belleville "The City Beautiful" and who will make it busier and more beautiful. After all the man who is so terribly busy, is in reality a bad manager. If his business is any good he will be able to employ help to run it for him. If it is not any good, he is a fool to be chasing himself all day for nothing. J. P. Morgan, Mitch Hepburn and Andy Davis are all very busy men, but they find time to eat three meals a day, get eight hours sleep, and sometimes talk—or listen—to their wives for hours. This idea of being busy is purely mental. Many a mother can take care of seven children much better than the seven children—when they grow up—can take care of her.

The past twenty years have amply demonstrated that there are no supermen. Whether it be Belleville, Toronto, New York or London, you will find that men (and women) everywhere are much alike. We have been looking for six years for some super man to show us the way out of the depression, but none has appeared. As each war hero's memoirs are written, we find that he and his contemporaries were wooden men. No less an authority than Theodor Wolff, editor of the great "Berliner Tageblatt", tells that when the leaders of Germany finally found themselves in the war, they had not the foggiest notion what to do about it. Mussolini appears to be in much the same position today.

World Rotary

The three Rotary clubs at Erfurt, Halle and Leipzig, Germany, organized a summer holiday camp at which 104 young men from five middle European countries spent two weeks together. The young men were chosen by the Rotary Clubs of the various countries.

It is a rule in the Rotary Club of Tsingtao, China, that when the sergeant-at-arms observes two members of the same nationality sitting together at meetings, he has the authority of the president to fine the members $1.00 each. There is a sufficient variety of nationalities in the Tsingtao club so that no two of the same nationality need to sit together.

The Rotary Club of Liberty (Mo.), formed last May through the activity of Rotarians from Kansas City (Mo.), has received a fine section of a Rotary library as a gift from Mrs. Gladys Havens, who has selected a number of useful volumes from the library of her late husband, Raymond M. Havens, Past President of Rotary International. The Kansas City Rotarians took the gift over to the new club at Liberty.

The Rotary Club of Munich Germany, is developing a program of entertainments through the scholastic year for the sons and daughters of Rotarians studying at universities in Munich. The first event was a tea dance in November. In many ways the Rotarians of Munich endeavor to look after the interests of the children of Rotarians who are students in their city.

Let the real business man of Belleville continue to work together, as they have done during the past fifteen years, and we will one day have as pretty and pleasant a place to live in as you will find anywhere in the world.

HELPING OTHERS

Do you realize the power for good that you can become by using your influence to help others? A clear understanding, sound judgment, justice, charity, mercy, a strong good will and pity for the weaker brother can, in a certain sense, make you your brother's keeper. All men can be kind, from the humblest mill worker to the executive, for kindness speaks from the heart of one man to the heart of another. The fundamental rule of dignity be they between neighbors, partners in industry or nations, is a lack of understanding and knowledge of the other party's reason and situation. It is essential, therefore that we become better acquainted, that we endeavor to put ourselves in the other's place.

SKIBO CASTLE PIPER ARRIVES TO PLAY IN FETE

Musician at Steel Man's Castle in Scotland for 21 Years Still Serves

IN FULL UNIFORM

New York, Nov. 16—Pipe Major Hugh Grant of the Fourth and Fifth Seaforth Highlanders and bag-piper at Skibo Castle for the last twenty-one years, arrived from Scotland on the Anchor liner Caledonia. He was met at the pier by Roswell Miller, son-in-law of the late Andrew Carnegie, with whom he will stay for six weeks at 9 East Ninetieth Street.

The piper has come to America to take part in the Andrew Carnegie centennial celebration, which will be held in this city and Pittsburgh from Nov. 25 to 27.

Wears Kilts Dress Uniform

Grant, who served two years in the World War, wore the private dress uniform of the bag-piper of Skibo—a glengarry cap with silver badge, black dress tunic with tartan sash over left shoulder, sporran with silver buckle, and kilt and a dirk on the same side mounted in silver, plain leather shoes and silver buckles. Over his right shoulder were slung the bagpipes of Skibo, more than forty years old, of black oak with silver and ivory mountings, and draped with silk tassels of the same color as the tartan.

On the black cloth tunic, with open front, worn with dress shirt and stand-up collar, the piper wore four medals—one for general service, one for 1914 with four stars, another for "victory" and the last one the silver jubilee medal bestowed by King George V.

Pipe Major Grant is a well set-up man 47 years old; five feet ten inches tall, with ruddy, cheeks, blue eyes, gray hair and a waxed gray military mustache. He speaks like a Scot and looks like one.

From his account, the job of bagpiper at Skibo Castle is not a very arduous one. When Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie and the family are not in residence, Grant spends his time looking after the game on the estate and teaching the youth in the nearby villages to play the pipes.

"Mr. Carnegie was fond of hearing the skirl of the pipes in the morning," he said, "and liked to have me go out in the grounds before his window and walk up and down playing for half an hour or more, in the forenoon. I used to wake the guests at the castle up in the morning with rousing Scotch songs and marches from 7.15 to 7.45 a.m., which has become a traditional custom. When Mrs. Carnegie is here in the summer I play the pipes from 7.30 to 8 p.m. while she is at dinner with her guests."

Always Welcomed Guests

Grant said Mr. Carnegie liked to have his guests welcomed to Skibo according to ancient custom by the stirring notes of the Highland piper.

"I remember one time when the late King Edward VII paid a chance visit to Skibo and was observed from one of the castle windows as he approached and I had barely time to get into my kilts to be ready to play the King in through the gates with the official Skibo welcoming ceremony," he related.

Grant did not play publicly on the voyage across in the Caledonia as the ship has a band of six pipers on board, but he played for them down below four or five times.

One of them was asked what the thought of Grant as a piper and he replied "fair." Asked for an opinion on the Skibo pipes, the ship's bandsman replied: "They're a sweet, mellow tone but not much volume."

The first part of the Carnegie centennial will be held on Saturday at Carnegie Hall and will be a choral and musical program at which it is expected the pipemajor will make his first public appearance. The performance will be conducted by Walter Damrosch who conducted the opening performance at the hall on May 5, 1891.

Richest Woman in Britain Devotes Time to Kind Deeds

Lady Yule Lives in Quiet With Her Only Child, a Daughter

The richest woman in Britain is also one of the least known, writes C. A. Lyon in the London Sunday Express. She is Lady Yule, who was left $45,000,000 seven years ago by her husband, the Anglo-Indian merchant prince, Sir David Yule.

Lady Yule ranks with Sir John Ellerman, Britain's richest man, in love of the simple and quiet life.

She is a handsome woman in the late fifties with steel-grey hair. She has lived alone with her daughter, Miss Gladys Yule, who is thirty-two, since her husband's death.

In these seven years the public have heard very little of her.

Her residences are at Hanstead House, Bricket Wood, St. Albans, and in Scotland.

At Hanstead House she does everything possible to secure seclusion.

She is described as an extremely likeable person, but she receives only a selected number of friends.

Love of Animals.

Four influences dominate her life. They are:

Her love of animals;
Her wonderful yacht;
Her love of her daughter; and
Her desire to be left alone.

Although Miss Yule is devoted to hunting, Lady Yule will allow no hunts to pass over the estate, nor are any strangers allowed to walk on it.

She caused two other dwelling houses on the estate to be demolished — one a country house worth about $25,000. Cattle graze on the site of one, and there is stabling where the other stood.

When at Bricket Wood Lady Yule spends most of the time on her own land. She walks around the gardens and paddocks in heavy boots and a raincoat, carrying a hunting-crop and surrounded by dogs.

She has original ideas in running the estate, and no one time had a staff of women gardeners.

Her energies find their greatest outlet in her love of animals.

She is reputed to have a little corps of women who go about the streets looking for old or infirm horses. When one of them finds one she buys it from the owner. The horse is then sent to a home for animals which Lady Yule bought.

She came upon the home on her travels, decided it was not being run on the proper lines — and took it over.

She has kept many animals on the estate, including bears. There is a seal pond, and she also has a large stud of racehorses.

Her love of animals is such that when they die they are buried on the estate. The graves of some of them are marked.

This trait is demonstrated again inside the house. Large numbers of stuffed animals are to be seen. Bears, monkeys, tigers, and horse-foot door-stops. There are hundreds of animal photographs on the walls.

But she does not always stay in England.

Her passion for seclusion is balanced by her passion for travel.

To gratify this she built the yacht Yahlin after her husband's death.

This is one of the most luxurious yachts that has ever sailed the seas. Its tonnage is 1,574, its cost was $1,250,000. It is in every respect a miniature ocean liner, complete to the latest gyroscopic compass.

It is capable of travelling to any part of the world. Lady Yule went to New Zealand in it.

On the voyage she spent much of her time doing needlework. At times she took a turn at polishing the portholes and other brass fitments.

Lady Yule is not a conventional traveller. When she went to Africa on one of her journeys she took with her two bicycles, one for herself and one for her daughter.

Yule daughter, her only child, is her constant companion.

"Lady Yule once said," a friend told me, "that she really lives only for her daughter. I believe she has no other near relatives."

Miss Yule, who is the richest heiress in the country, is a popular person.

She is a keen agriculturist, addresses farmers' meetings, loves horses. She wears heavy boots and jerseys.

She has inherited some of her father's financial flair. A friend said that she sits up sometimes going through the accounts.

LIFE IS NOT SOLITUDE

If a man could go off and live by himself, life would be so much simpler. But that is not the world's way that way. Everybody is tied up with and more or less dependent upon everybody else and living is a highly complex business. It requires considerable tact and finesse.

In the struggle for existence and the pursuit of happiness a lot depends upon our relations with our fellow men and a man can possibly succeed in any worthwhile undertaking who cannot work along smoothly with other men. And so it follows that the gentle art of making friends and keeping them is the most important.

YOUNG FARM GIRL MAKES LEAP INTO TRACK SPOTLIGHT

Fulton, Mo., Nov. 16. — Helen Stephens, a long, lean, lithe 17-year-old first-year student at the William Woods college for girls is a candidate on the speed ticket for a berth on the 1936 American Olympic team, and right now it appears she is as good as elected.

Tricked out outside her own community a year ago, Miss Stephens, whose parents live on a farm five miles from Fulton, leaped—or rather sprinted — into fame overnight with a spectacular victory over Stella Walsh in a race at St. Louis last March.

Since then she has run in two big meets — the national women's A. A. U. in New York and the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto —and in numerous exhibitions. She lost but one race—and in that her opponent had a 15-yard handicap.

For Fulton's young girl is a "natural". She has the natural ability to stand out as an athlete, although training and coaching have added polish to her performances and made her a poem of motion from the moment she leaves the starting marks until she breaks the tape.

She is looking forward to winter indoor competition. Her development into the sprinting marvel she is today came by easy stages. It began in her sophomore year at Fulton high school. The manner in which the tall, calm, matter-of-fact girl outclassed her schoolmates in all branches of athletic endeavor attracted the attention of the school coach, Burt Moore.

Moore taught her the fundamentals of good racing form and entered her in several exhibition races. She won easily. He gave her little attention during her junior year, but in her senior year he decided to see if she really had the ability to run in "big time". He coached her carefully, and when he believed she was ready took her to the indoor meet at St. Louis.

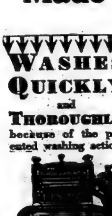
The result of that 50-metre race against Stella Walsh was a mental upset.

Flashing away from the mark the Fulton girl led Miss Walsh to the tape in 6.8 seconds, which constituted a new American clay track record.

That is not her favorite distance, however. Her favorite distances are the 100-yard and 100-metre events. In the Canadian National Exhibition meet she bettered the world record of 100 yards with a time of 10.8 seconds. In the national A.A.U. as well as in an exhibition race at the Missouri Valley district meet, she was timed in 11.8 for 100 metres. The accepted world record, held by Miss Walsh, is 11.4.

Miss Stephens herself is a loss to account for her sudden ability. She is an exceptionally tall girl — five feet, 11 inches — and she weighs 155. Her long, rounded legs give her a seven-foot-six-inch stride.

In action she has the grace of an antelope. Her stride is effortless, and combines all the elements of perfect sprinting form. As a matter of fact, her technique can be traced to Brutus Hamilton, University of California track coach. Oscar Hurt Moore was a quarter miler at Westminster College here when Hamilton coached there, and the track tricks Moore learned then he has passed on to his protege.



Miss Stephens is genial and frank in her conversation. She speaks in staccato phrases, her face lighting up with quick smiles as she catches the humor in various remarks.

To Offer Transatlantic Ship Hunt

Lewes, Del., Nov. 16 (AP)—Hampered by long stretches of rough weather, rainstorms, numerous delays, the grappling for wreckage of the ancient British sloop, De Braak, believed to contain gold and silver bullion, valued as high as $10,000,000, will be discontinued in about ten days until next Spring. "Our daily quota of operation is enormous", said Charles N. Colstad, one of the engineers. "However, we have been encouraged in what we have accomplished and believe we are on the right trail."

Looking Backward With Rotary

A Brief Review of Belleville Rotary Club History

(Written by Past President O. H. Scott.)

The Belleville Rotary Club came into existence at the beginning of 1920, and was the sixth club formed in Ontario. Its Charter Number was 645. The organizing club was the Toronto Rotary Club, and the organizing Chairman was Norman Tovell. He gathered about him W. B. Deacon, E. Gus Porter, Gordon Moffatt, Sandy Burrows and Bill Doyle.

After several conferences at which the idea was explained a meeting was held in the Hotel Quinte at which twenty-four invited citizens expressed their desire to be members of such an organization.

First President

E. Gus Porter, K.C., M.P., was elected President, and the club was started on its way to strive to attain the high ideals of the organization and adapt their individual lives to the Rotary Ethics governing business and social life.

The Belleville Rotary Club early in its history started the work of organizing other clubs, and fathered clubs in Peterboro, Trenton and Campbellford, as well as assisting in the formation of the Lindsay Club.

Rotary Boys' Camp

The first major activity undertaken by the Belleville Rotary Club was for Boys Work, and the purchase of a camp site at Moira Lake in 1921 was the beginning of a camp which has been of great benefit to many Belleville boys. This year the members of the club were active in improving the conditions at the camp.

As there were other organizations for taking care of the boys the Belleville Rotary Club early decided that the major activity would be Crippled Children Work. This meant the raising of considerable money and various ways have been tried to obtain the necessary funds. The first method tried was the Minstrel Show which proved very successful for a few years. Two years ago a Rotorado show was put on but in spite of a splendid performance it did not get large houses. In addition there have been many concerts, etc., when the musical talent of Belleville assisted to raise funds for the worthy cause.

Taming The Buffalos

The Belleville Rotarians have always been anxious to keep Belleville in the forefront and arrange meetings with other clubs and sent their members to address other clubs. An outstanding meeting was held by the Belleville Rotary Club in Buffalo in April 1924 at the time of the District Conference. The Belleville Rotary Club had charge of the luncheon on the second day of the Conference and they had as guest speakers, Col. W. N. Ponton and as guest soloist Rotarian Knight McGregor, of New York, assisted by Belleville talent. The program was broadcast and was the first occasion for Belleville to go on the air. The meeting put Belleville "on the map" and the members brought back with them a bell which was won as the attendance prize and which has been used by the presiding officer at the Belleville meetings since.

Across The Water

Meetings were held at Carthage and Watertown, N. Y. State, which did much to make a friendly feeling between Belleville and these centres.

It has been the custom of the New York Rotary Club to present a flag of their country to Clubs in other countries. In 1924 when Mr. W. B. Deacon was visiting the New York Rotary Club he received on behalf of the Belleville Rotary Club a lovely silk Stars and Stripes which the Club uses when ever the occasion permits.

The members of the Belleville Rotary Club have given their services to nearly every organization in Belleville. They have also taken office on various committees of Rotary International. In looking over the list of the speakers who have been brought to the city by the Rotary Club one is struck by the breadth of their experience and the wide variety of subjects spoken on. These included Lt. Governors, Premiers, Cabinet Ministers, Clergy, Doctors, Lawyers, Professors, Industrialists, as well as all the local speaking talent.

Charter Members

IOWA CORN HUSKER IS U. S. CHAMPION

Picks Record 41.82 Bushel in An Hour and 30 Minutes.

Newton, Ind., Nov. 16.—Carlson of Audubon, Iowa, won the national corn husking contest near here today with a world record-breaking 41.82 bushels.

The 26-year-old, 175-pound Iowan became champion in his first try for national honors. To him went a $100 cash prize and the applause of 100,000 persons who tramped fences and tore down cornstalks in an effort to see the competition between the nation's eighteen best huskers at the Leslie E. Mitchell farm.

To Carlson it was just a warming up for real work to come. He will return to the home of his father in Iowa to husk 150 acres which, await his championship hands.

The winner turned in a total weight of 2,965 pounds, from which was deducted 48.69 pounds for gleanings and husks left behind or thrown into his wagon.

The previous record was 38.9 bushels, established in 1932 by Carl Ballor of Oneida, Ill., at Galva, Ill., but it was broken by several participants in today's contest.

Tevis Bateman of Woodford County, Illinois, was second with 39.06 bushels husked in the one-hour-and-thirty-minute contest. Lawrence Pitzer of Newtown, Indiana's champion, was third with 38.84 bushels; William Rose of Henry County, Illinois, fourth with 38.12 bushels, and E. H. Hendricks of Grundy County, Iowa, fifth with 37.80.

Ted Balko of Minnesota, who won the national title a year ago, finished sixth with 36.84 bushels. Other money prizes were $50 for second, $25 for third, $15 for fourth and $10 for fifth.

Under the bright sun which forced spectators to remove their topcoats, the event was one of the most colorful in its history. Despite months of preparedness the Hoosier country folk were unable to cope with the gigantic crowd and its demands for food, drink, gasoline and oil. The spectator who was able to drive his automobile to within two miles of the field was lucky.

Honk! Honk! Do You Drive?

(Not written by Jack Miner or one of the Minor Poets.)

"Honk" according to the dictionary is the cry of the Wild Goose, and is frequently heard around Belleville. Almost any day and any hour, day and night, you will hear the cry of the Wild Goose driving a car, and honking to advise all concerned, and some not concerned, that he is completely out of control and running wild. Just watch any day at our main intersection light, if it happens to be working. Coming from Trenton for example, these drivers are either going straight east or north, in which case they should take the lane near the middle of the road, or they are going south and should be in the south traffic lane, if there was one. What actually happens is that the goose going south takes the centre and has to cut right in front of the line of traffic, and similarly many on the south are going north and have to stop the other traffic lanes until they get in their proper place. A traffic officer is badly needed there and a little paint would be a great help too.

Big Mule's Foot

When the light changes the fellow in front feels that nobody else matters but himself, and he very leisurely moves across, so leisurely that often the cars behind have to wait for the next change of light. The 1936 models should be brought out with a nice big mule's foot in front, so you can give these fellows a good kick in the tail light. Some day sooner or later it will be necessary to use West Dundas Street and the south C.N.R. bridge to relieve this congestion, and plans should be made accordingly.

Council Nearly Did Something

Belleville district is becoming quite notorious for car accidents. There are only two places in Ontario with a worse record, and Toronto is one of them, according to Insurance circles. No limit parking on Front Street is responsible for a great many minor accidents, much delay in delivery and bus service, and is totally stultifying to the tourist, the shopper and the fire brigade. The City Council very nearly did something about it last month, and we feel sure that before another five years, they will actually pass a by-law. Whether they will ever have the courage to enforce it, we cannot at the moment say.

FIANCE QUIZZED IN GIRL SLAYING

Hospital Attendant Was to Have Married Victim in Two Days

Mt. Rainier, Md. — Police rallied upon a few wisps of dark brown hair, a man's glove, and a paper napkin in hunts which solved the brutal garrotting of 21-year old Corinna Loring.

Her fiance, Richard Tarr, 28-year old hospital attendant, was taken into custody Saturday night after investigators said was subjected to a barrage of questioning through the early morning hours.

Miss Loring disappeared last Monday night, two days before her impending marriage. Her body, battered about the head and with wrapping cord tightly knotted around the throat, was found in a brushy clump to please her home in this suburb of the national capital.

Eugene Plumer, Mt. Rainier chief of police, said Tarr had been unable to throw any light on the case during early questioning. No charge has been placed against him.

Crowds coursed through the south yesterday. Plumer posted a special guard at the home of the girl's grief-stricken parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Loring, to prevent intrusion. Tear was there helping console them when he was taken into custody.

Dr. Conor Levins, acting coroner, said Miss Loring "undoubtedly" went to the wooded section with a person or persons she knew well.

The paper napkin found near the body, indicated, Dr. Levins said, that the girl may have eaten a barbecue sandwich shortly before she was slain. Her stomach contents were to be analyzed. A man's glove also was found at the scene.

GIFT OF A MILLION

On the occasion of the 25th birthday of T. G. Masaryk, president of Czechoslovakia and honorary president of the 25th district of Rotary International, Rotarian Vaclav Klement of the Rotary Club of Vidnava Rotatary, Czechoslovakia, made a gift to his city of lots and gardens valued at 350,000 crowns, provided 1,000,000 crowns in cash to be used for the construction of an orphanage, and an additional 1,000,000 crowns in bonds, the income from which will be used to defray operating expenses of the institution.

He has also provided 200,000 crowns for an endowment fund which will be used to assist orphans in getting a start in life after their training in the orphange is completed.

A Challenge!

A Message of Inspiration and Appreciation from a Veteran Rotarian

A veteran member of the Belleville Rotary Club and one of the most enthusiastic for Rotary ideals of service is Rev. Dr. Ed. Baker, Principal Emeritus of Albert College, and a Minister of the Methodist Church of Canada who has filled many important pulpits in his many years of active service for the Master. Rotarian Ed. Baker pens the following message to his brother Rotarians the world over as well as all those who have the welfare of the sick and crippled children at heart, as well as undernourished and underprivileged children, all of whom come under the special care of Rotary:

Yes—that is what Rotary is, a challenge to business and professional men, irrespective of creed, condition or nationality, to unite in fellowship with the object of helping the underprivileged, especially the underprivileged boy.

It gives primacy to the human and spiritual, rather than the material values of life. It gives a place to the material when it is enabling the person to provide for himself. THE REWARD IS SERVICE, and for Service HE PROFITS MOST WHO SERVES BEST.

The lesson of all history summarized and made concrete is just this, that there is no security for any human order, church, or state, except that it shall function for the general good, and that it shall hold itself a channel by which external forces may pass in and out to bless the world.

Belleville Rotary Club quietly but faithfully has gone on from year to year giving this great and good service.

The Great Objective of Rotary could not be better expressed than in the following lines of which the late Rev. Percy Ainsworth was the author:

Something kindlier, higher, holier,
All for each and each for all,
Earth at last a warless world,
A single race, a single tongue.

Every tiger madness muzzled,
Every serpent passion killed,
Every grim ravine a garden,
Every blazing desert stilled.

Robed in universal harvest,
Up to either pole she smiles;
Universal ocean softly
Washing all her warless isles.

Rotarily yours, ED BAKER.

Noted Author, John Vandercook Relates Experiences in New Guinea Among the Cannibals

Says Cannibalism of Today Almost Always a Part in Ceremonial Rite

NATIVES HOSPITABLE

Their Guide Disappointed Because He Only Got a Finger of Missionary

There are in Kingston at the present time a man and woman who have travelled among cannibal tribes of New Guinea and who have discussed cannibalism with those who have participated in the rite. They are Mr. and Mrs. John W. Vandercook of 13 Gramercy Park, New York City and they declare that the life of an explorer in a wild land is just about the safest existence one could hope for. The trials and hardships of explorers give them a good laugh.

A reporter interviewed Mr. Vandercook recently and asked the 32-year old ex-newspaper man, ex-sailor, author and explorer what it was like to invade a land without railways, steamships, roads, resturants, hotels, tourist cabins, or the conveniences and safeguards to travel which, we enjoy on this continent. He was received by a slight man of unassuming manner and modest bearing.

The reporter plunged right in to the think of the story at once and asked Mr. Vandercook to describe the most exciting experience in his life. The Kingston visitor smilingly complied.

"It was on one occasion when my wife and I were 'lost' for six hours in a dug-out canoe in the wilds of Papua, while the looming rain threatened to swamp our craft at any moment," he said.

With a native corporal named Des as a guide, plus a crew of natives, Mr. and Mrs. Vandercook travelled by canoe 370 miles along the south coast of Papua in the Pacific Ocean before turning to the swamps of the interior. The coast journey took five days and with no charts or markers it was a hazardous trip.

At night a hook would be thrown out and the 52-foot canoe, a hollowed-out log, would rock alarmingly in the swells of the south Pacific. The canoe was vividly painted with abstract designs according to native custom. Ten boatmen were hired to ply the paddling and they would work six hours a day, standing up for five cents daily, payable in tobacco, which amounted to one cent. Although it was not necessary, the Vandercooks paid for the food supplied by the natives at the rate of ten cents for seven men per day. For equipment they carried two canvas chairs, a folding table, hammocks, rubber bath-tub, tarpaulins, blankets and other vital articles.

Highly Picturesque

"Papua is highly picturesque," Mr. Vandercook said. "It is the most intensely alive primitive country I have ever seen, absolutely untouched by civilization. The natives still make their own stone hatchets and fashion their own spears. This is unlike the Fiji Islands and other beauty spots of the tropics which have become highly-spoilt for tourists.

"You have no idea of the beauty of the scenery we saw while making our way through the swamps of Papua. It was absolutely uncharted territory and how Corporal Des, who was loaned to us by the British Government, managed to guide us through the maze of turnings and swampy undertrush is a mystery to me. The cockatoos of the birds of paradise added immensely to the enjoyment of the voyage."

Lost in Storm

Des lost the little party one night and that was when the Vandercooks experienced the most thrilling experience of their adventurous lives. The party should have reached a certain point by mid-afternoon but by night they were still nowhere and Des had no idea of his position. There was no place to land so there was no solid ground anywhere, just soggy, cocoa mud in which the tropical plants had their roots far under the water.

A terrific storm broke loose to add the misfortunes of the group and the rain pelted down in unbearable torrents. Soon it was necessary to bail out the canoe in order to prevent the craft swamping. Still the canoe was pressing forward, with everyone feverishly taking turns to bail. The streams were filled with crocodiles ready to snap any or all of the party should they be dumped into the water.

By midnight the little group was thoroughly drenched to the very marrow and chilled. Still the boatmen paddled away with the Vandercooks helping to bail. "At last," said Mr. Vandercook, "we made out by the long-boat.

"We were received most hospitably by the natives and everything was done to provide for our comfort. Since long-houses are purely for masculine habitation, the women being housed in shacks near by, they were somewhat reluctant to note that one of the party, my wife, was a woman. After a brief consultation, however, they decided to allow her to remain and we were made most comfortable.

"Out of all my wanderings that one incident sticks out as the most exciting," said Mr. Vandercook. "I will never forget how thankful we were to see those two lights shining out of the dismal dark."

The natives bearing flaming torches as they rushed down to meet us made a most picturesque setting and it was wonderful to get out of the canoe after being lost in a strange land for so long.

Only Got Finger

"Corporal Des, a native guide, was a nice old man, quiet and well-mannered, who had served a sentence in jail for murder. The majority of the police force of Papua is composed of ex-murderers, most murders being cannibalistic.

"Looking back on the trip Mr. Corporal Des had one chief regret. It seems that in his youth he had partaken at a feast where the main dishes was a native, plump, white missionary. As a son of the chief, Des accepted that he would receive a tasty portion, but all he got was a little finger. Des recalled the incident with real disappointment, feeling that he had been treated shabbily.

"Cannibalism, as it is practised in the tropics today is almost always a ceremonial rite," said Mr. Vandercook. "Few tribes anywhere in the South Seas kill fellow beings for meat, although all have a strong liking for human flesh. Cannibalism is usually practised after enemies have been killed amid great ceremony, as part of the native custom.

Nose Highly Prized

"When an enemy is badly wounded in battle, it is the custom for the death-blow to be administered by a comrade of the man who struck him down. As a reward for this service, the despatcher is given the nose which is regarded as a most tasty morsel.

"One day a patrol officer noticed two native men in a canoe who were paddling on the far side of the river as if to avoid as much attention as possible. The officer crossed the river and found the men had the torso of a native woman in the bottom of their canoe. Asked for an explanation, they said the body was the remains of a woman who had been attacked by a crocodile. The officer was satisfied with the explanation and went away.

"Shortly afterwards, however, it suddenly occurred to him that no crocodile would bite the arms and legs off a person, without mashing up the body to some extent. He realized he had been duped and set out after the culprits. After a search of several months, he located his men and brought them back to the English post where they were punished. It was brought out at the trial that the men had killed the woman themselves and were peddling the body as meat.

Punishment Varies

"The punishment for murder varies according to the distance from civilization the crime is committed. For example, if a boy at the age of ten murders he hangs for it. A native living some distance from the station might get ten years and the hardened the culprit might escape with six months.

"The idea is impressed on the natives that they are not being punished for a crime as, according to their lights, such practice is quite legitimate. They are being taught that murder is outlawed by the British Government and will not be tolerated. If they behave themselves they have nothing to fear. After they have served their prison term most of the natives are incorporated into the police force and that is why the force is composed largely of ex-murderers. Most of these men are 'well' back in their native villages even in the interior to enforce law and order. As a man might have 40,000 natives in his district, the task is gigantic but it is remarkable the strides that are being made to civilize the country," said Mr. Vandercook.

The Governor, Sir Hubert Murray, is doing an excellent job in spite of many difficulties.

New Guinea

Papua is the southeastern part of the island of New Guinea, second largest island in the world, and has a population of roughly a quarter million natives and less than 1,500 white people. New Guinea is situated 80 miles north of Australia and much of the interior has never been seen, much less charted, by any white man. In fact, there is unexplored territory larger in area than the whole of France.

There is much danger to explorers from natives as long as the intrusion comport themselves with civility common sense, said Mr. Vandercook. As long as the explorer party does not get on side or display any sense of superiority or arrogance, it will be treated well by the natives. If the boatmen are treated as equals and not molested there is little trouble.

"Any time I heard of an explorer getting into serious difficulties I wonder what he is like and what he had been doing," said Mr. Vandercook. "Sometimes trouble is unavoidable, of course, but more often it is not. For example, if you were to walk into one of their villages and suddenly decide to snub a pig running loose because you fancied fresh pork, you would probably run into all sorts of trouble. More than likely you would discover that the pig was being kept for the ceremony of a chief's funeral or something of that nature. You wouldn't be able to pay for the pig for money means nothing to these natives.

No Hardships

The young man scoffed at the reporter's suggestion that this exploring business must be filled with hardships. He said the Papuan trip was the most comfortable travelling he ever had. He and his wife sat on canvas chairs at the rear of the canoe while the boatmen crew did all the work. "It beat all the pullmans and all the Normandies in the world," he claimed.

"My main difficulty was to keep my sun-helmet from falling into the water. I would fall asleep and the hat would slide off."

Mr. Vandercook also refended the popular idea that native women do all the work. "I never knew any primitive people whose women worked any harder than the present wives of any civilized country," he said. "There is a fair division of labor. The women do the lighter chores but the men bear the heavy burdens."

In Papua community of ownership is a characteristic of the native. The native houses are built on stilts and there is no village security on the ground. Consequently there is no difficulty with the stealing of valuables. Most natives build their houses over the water as a protection against mosquitoes. Sago and taro are the main sources of food. A white man finds it much more difficult to live in the tropics than he does in Papua. He is also more because of the lack of refrigeration.

Some of the natives of Papua have never tasted fresh water, he said. There is no such animal being found in the streams. Instead the natives eagerly drink salt water and like it," he said. "The ordinary water is heavily laden with silt and mud and tastes brackish. Climate is moderate, however, never climbing above 95 degrees nor dropping below 65 degrees above zero.

Unremarkable Job

One of the jobs that falls to the lot of the women is that of catching eels. They stand in the mud in the streams with the water flowing just under their chins and grab the eels as they strike against their naked breasts.

Mr. and Mrs. Vandercook have been travelling for the past twelve years, mostly in the tropics. During that time they have visited South Africa once, South America twice and the West Indies three times. They have travelled around the Mediterranean Sea by Ford and tramp and Ask. Their last trip was made into the South Pacific visiting Fiji Islands and New Guinea.

Wrote Several Books

Mr. Vandercook is the son of Margaret Womack Vandercook, well known author of girls' stories. He married Margaret Mahar, Manager of New York City in 1933. He was an novelist and newspaperman in turn, holding down several jobs, and also served in an editorial capacity on various magazines. Among his books are "Turn-Tom," "Black Mutiny" and "The Book Parade."

"Murder in Fiji," his latest novel, was published in Kingston, and has been since submitted for publication. Mr. Vandercook finances his trips with the money he receives for magazine and other articles about his explorations, but he considers himself primarily as an author.—Kingston Whig-Standard.

CHAPTER 5.

JANIE MAKES A FRIEND

Mrs. Charles Newton Cramer had taken the trip through the Panama Canal four times. Never, she confided to Mrs. Frederick Kent, had she been so scandalized and surprised. Her husband, Colonel Cramer, had traveled all over the world....."in every known country in the world," she stated tensely, "and my dear, he told me last night that never had he seen or heard of such actions—"

Mrs. Cramer broke off her speech, sinking forward in her deck-chair with an aborpteous wiich all but buried her face in the sea.

A girl in a green and orange sweater was walking slowly down the deck. Her white skirts whipped in the breeze from the rail, and each flaunting red curl on her decidedly bare head stood challengingly aloft. At her approach old Mrs. Monds shifted slightly in her blanket, her sharp nose upraised after the manner of a fire-horse smelling the odor of smoke. Simultaneously the impatient tick of Mrs. Kent stiffened to attention, her knitting falling in an unheeded drift across the desk.

"Ha! It's that Moore girl! The one I've been telling you about." Mrs. Kent's facility for hissing out of one side of her mouth when emotionally aroused would have done credit to a radiator. "Look, Mrs. Cramer, look at her feet—"

Mrs. Cramer, however, was already looking; as were the occupants of every other chair on the upper deck row. Not at the vital, buoyant figure of the girl herself; not at the brilliant eyes, the amazing red hair, the scarlet laughing mouth; but at the white-linen sandals which bore that figure along. Sandals that were little more than a bright green heel, a strip of fragile sole and two criss-cross ribbon straps. Sandals which displayed with shameless candor two small naked feet and ten small tanned toes; the nails of the latter enamelled a vivid shade of red which exactly matched the red of her scarlet mouth.

"Painted toe-nails!" Mrs. Cramer's whisper was tinged with hysteria. "Shocking!.....I really really ought to speak to the Captain. If the Colonel were here I'd know what to think—" Her wavy hands shook with the intensity of her emotion.

"Where's she gone now?" Enwrenched behind her knitting and the rampart of her respectable brown poplin coat, Mrs. Kent threw out the question without turning her head an inch.

"She's talking to someone—" Mrs. Cramer craned forward. Her three tiers of chins vibrated in sympathy with the trembling of her voice and hands. "She's stopped—she's talking to the doctor!" she announced with a triumphant crow. "There's someone else with them, I can't see—man's—who—" Then leaning back in her chair, she drew a long pleased breath. It was the meeting those of Mrs. Kent. "It's that little Madden girl. The quiet one—you know—says she's a librarian!"

"Hm." Mrs. Kent raised her eyes; then shifted them. She moved a little closer to the chair of Mrs. Cramer.

x x x

Clad in the big white coat and the small white hat which perched so like a snowy bird on the dark sweep of her hair, Janie had come on deck early today, and wrapped in blanket and book; only to find Dr. Barr awaiting her before making his usual rounds of the ship. Whether or not this pleasant, friendly meeting was aware of her own social ostracism by the other passengers, Janie never knew. What she did know was that ever since the day she had taken tea with the lady in the dining-salon Dr. Barr had been her friend.

Without the least seeming to do so, he managed to see a good deal of her about the deck. And, as the days were monotonously on, she had been increasingly glad of his companionship. There was an amusement in his eye, a sympathetic responsiveness in his deep kind voice that had its own appeal for the lonely, bewildered girl. His mild monotone, his discursive comments on the foibles of their fellow passengers, his impersonal friendliness formed an oasis of oddly comforting. He talked amusingly; and she was able to answer in kind.

"Well, well, good morning, Mona my dear." The doctor stood up, laughing into the impudent face of the girl, standing before him now in the sun. Janie smiled a shy greeting and Mona, with a careless nod, seated herself promptly on the footrest of Janie's chair holding out one small foot for her delighted inspection.

"Odd I, or did I not make those old gals back there sit up just now?" she demanded with a wicked grin. "Say, doc, you're a wiz, Doc, still snarling and mumbling against the fall of Troy? Yes like Janie, of us all, Miss Madden!" she asked innocently. "It's called 'Heart-Trouble.' A friend sent it to me from Paris." She inspected her toes with a critical eye. "Got a bad job at that. She finished contentedly, "even if I did have to sit up half the night writing the —— stuff on straight! Oh, I say, Miss Madden, I've just discovered that we're practically neighbors. I've got the stateroom across from yours; not drop in and have a visit whenever you're lonesome?"

"I will," Janie said; a wave of some emotion, warm, friendly, strangely akin to tears, welling up in her heart. "I'd like to." Then, after a little pause she said: "Weren't you planning a while back on getting up a ship's concert, Miss Moore? You know I've been looking forward to that."

"The ship's concert," Mona said brightly, "has had to be postponed; until after we get to Panama, at least. Somebody—rumor has it that it was young Mr. Gregory Stewart—poured champagne over all the piano keys in the lounge the other night. And you know the custom, you know. But if there's one thing you can't do to a piano—"

"Oh, Gregory Stewart!" Janie felt herself flushing in spite of herself at the contemptuous vehemence in her own voice.

"Yeah, I feel that way about him, too," Mona said calmly. She leaned forward and with some difficulty lit a cigarette in the wind. Chanting, between puffs, in a confidential voice: "And the old man said, 'Thou art my son!' and the heathen did say 'He is his father's son!' and the old man saith, 'We will fill the fatted calf!' and the old elder brother answered, 'Why the calf?'"

"Mona, you're incorrigible!" Doctor Barr wiped the helpless tears of laughter from his eyes, standing up to make room for a steward bearing a tray of crackers and bouillon cups.

"No thanks, Giles," not any." Mona waved the steward away. "I've my figger to thing of, my man. Well, children—" she stood up, smoothing the white skirt with complacent hands, bestowing a last critical glance at her scarlet toes. "I'm off—to give the rest of my little shipmates their morning thrill."

"Why, I take it, being your work for passing out thrills!" Dr. Barr passed his empty cup back to the obviously enchanted steward. He moved reluctantly away. "I told you, Miss Madden, that Mona usually broke out like this about the second week at sea. And the things," he mended carefully, "that she can think of to annoy her simple shipmates! Your great-grandmother's to be continued, addressing Mona, "undoubtedly rode on a broom in her day and was chased by agitated villagers with a broom."

"My great-grandmother," Mona retorted "was the author of the popular ballad of the Nineties, 'Always Leave Them Laughing When You Say Goodbye'." And she was off down the deck, her incredible red hair catching the morning sun-light like a blazing, defiant banner.

"Yes, the hair is real." The man had caught Janie's wondering glance. "And Mona's real, too, appearances to the contrary notwithstanding. In this rocking unreal world of today it's a blessed relief sometimes to find a person who is."

"I like her," Janie said with soft fervor. "But she puzzles me, too. You get the impression that underneath that reckless, audacious pose she's really playing a part—acting some thing—"

"Most people are; are they not?" the doctor said quietly. "You know the old adage: 'Half the men in Hell are there because of a woman; half in their wives; the other half because there was no woman in their lives.'"

For a startled instant Janie was given to speculation as to whether she had not perhaps stumbled on this man's own story. But his next words dispelled the idea. He said thoughtfully: "I don't suppose, really, that there's any particular secret about Mona's story. Most of the Conan Kents I've known with the singer. What is known in the States as a 'Conan Kent' is to exist—in the swankiest cabaret in Havana. What she was in the beginning of things, nobody knows or cares. She says herself that nearly Cholly knew good and bad, forgot a lot. When I first knew her, however, nearly five years ago, she fascinated for a moment—she was a ballet mistress."

Janie's startled exclamation. "The man seemed not to hear. "A nurse," he went on, "in a big New York hospital; and a — good one, mind you, not a quitter. She was—well, fired—from the hospital because of some silly prank. There was a man mixed up in it, of course. There usually is those cases." His piercing eyes, which could be so satirical, softened with an odd gleam. "As I get the story, Mona was given her choice between leaving the hospital and shielding the man. And being Mona, she chose to leave. That's all."

"Did she love the man?" Janie asked in a small whisper.

"That was just it," the doctor replied gently. "She only thought she did." He added philosophically: "Perhaps, at that, it's just as well. She has a really beautiful voice and I'm beginning to think she may be coming into her own at last. She's going on to New York right now to take a position with a radio concern—some network or other, and I'm more glad about it than I can say. She's had a hard life the good Lord knows, and it's time she had a little cheddah occasionally, even if I did have to sit up half the night writing the —— stuff on straight! Oh, I say, Miss Madden, I've just discovered that we're practically neighbors. I've got the stateroom across from yours; not drop in and have a visit whenever you're lonesome?"

Born in Chicago And Blossomed In Belleville

Brief Story of The Birth And Growth of An Idea

(Written by one who has watched Rotary grow with amusement and admiration).

It has been well said that every great movement has originated in the history of the world has been by the lengthened shadow of a single man.

That statement is particularly true when applied to Rotary International and its amazing conquest of the civilized world.

To the mind of Paul Harris, a young attorney in Chicago, who was oppressed by the utter loneliness of a huge city, there came a vision. He saw the through about him, indifferent, irresponsive, often unfriendly or antagonistic. Lacking cohesion or common impulse, with no thought of unselfish enterprise or human brotherhood.

Visitor of Paul Harris

That was thirty years ago and then Paul Harris brought together a little group—five men in all, to "Chicago" to them the cold and brutally unconcerned human wilderness where they were endeavoring to gain a livelihood. Then he told them of his vision and asked his companions if there was not some better way than the law of the jungle, should not the world be made a better and happier place to live in? If subscriptions, good-will and service to one's fellow-men were made to replace ruthless competition and callous indifference?

The answer to that question gave the first impulse of life to the cosmic Rotarian movement. The date of that momentous meeting is the twenty-third day of the month of February in the year 1905.

Rotary Reaches Belleville

Fifteen years later the movement reached Belleville. Very few of the city knew anything about it beyond the name. Its aims and ideals and gospel of service were alike unknown to our people. To many it was just another branch of organization where idlers could put in their time. But when the leaders in our business and professional life, the men who were not in the habit of wasting their time, became the principal sponsors of the local club questions were asked about this strange association with its weekly luncheons in its cozy choruses and its queer talk about service above self.

President Our Porter

Oddly enough, the man chosen to be the club's first president was E. Gus Porter, the local manager of the House of Commons, a brilliant lawyer whose office commanded the largest legal practice in the city or district, and therefore, perhaps, the busiest man in the entire community. Those who knew him best, Mr. Porter was not an idealist or a sentimentalist. He was bluntly practical and saw life as it is. He entered into the duties of his position with all the force of his commanding personality and soon She club began to do things.

Growing Pains

The first year in the history of the Belleville Rotary Club saw the club established on a firm basis, the way to organization in Trenton and Picton, which became the first auxiliary unit of Belleville Rotarians. The local field was canvassed to discover opportunities for service in the way of restoring crippled children and other worthy objects of efforts. The new club came to be understood as a serious effort to do good by cooperation and by the promotion of friendship and kindness in the community.

Since that first formative year the Belleville Rotary Club has had the advantage of outstanding leadership upon the part of a succession of presidents, each of whom has striven to add the record of his predecessor and to extend in every direction the helpful influence of the profits most who serves best."

Long Story in A Few Letters

Her First Dollar in Thankfulness to Belleville Rotary

Interesting sidelights upon the work for Crippled Children done by Belleville Rotary Club are contained in a sheaf of letters from parents, children, clergymen, doctors, and others expressing appreciation for Rotary efforts in behalf of sick and crippled children. Here are some samples, the originals of which are on file with Mr. Chas. J. Symons, Chairman of the Rotary Crippled Children Committee:

A letter from a Mother, dated November 10, 1930, at Toronto, said: "I should have written you before but have been very busy so please excuse me this time. Joe is coming fine. His boots cost $7.50. I gave them five dollars, was that all right? I will send you the receipt that Miss Drury gave me. Joe is going to school and likes it fine. I am to call at the Hospital for Sick Children in six months time, being in April. I have no job yet but looking every day in the newspapers till I see one that appeals to me . . . .

Yours sincerely,

The following letter explains itself:

Dear Sir—As secretary-treasurer of the Bannockburn and Eldorado Women's Institute I am requested by our branch to inform you that there is a child in our community which if not attended will become a cripple. The parents are not in circumstances to pay for the case but have consented to have it looked after by the Belleville Rotary Club, if you decide to give it attention. The parents are Mr. and Mrs. ——. The child is around two years old and the big foot is not right. Hoping to hear from you as to what may be done.

Yours truly,
Mrs. Kenneth Bateman

This call from the north was answered favorably at once, and the child given the best medical attention with favorable results.

Her First Dollar

Here's a letter that expressed in marked degree the value of the Rotary work for crippled children and this appreciation of those who have directly benefitted. It is a letter from a beautiful young girl, who was saved by Rotary from a life-time of misery through a defective foot. She was given medical specialist treatment, the most skilful that could be obtained, and the cost in dollars and cents not counted—the result a complete cure and the happiest girl in the world. Here's her letter:

Dear Sir—It has always been my intention to donate my first earned dollar to the Rotary Club Crippled Children's Fund, as I feel I owe to the club and its members my life today. I have not easily forgotten what they have done for me and hope I never will. I am working at the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company at Corbyville, and will, as long as I can, donate to the Crippled Children's Fund, hoping my little savings will do for some poor child what the Rotary Fund has done for me.

Faithfully yours,
Your Little Friend.
Belleville, October 17, 1926.

Sixty-Two Miles Away

Dear Sir—. . . . . I would be grateful if you would kindly help me to procure assistance for a poor family here who have a bright little boy who is suffering from enlarged tonsils and adenoids very severely. His parents are quite respectable hard-working people and really have not the means to pay for this operation on their child. If you could help me . . . . both I and the parents would be grateful.

Rev. J. Woods,
St. Ola Mission,
St. Ola, Ontario.
September 10, 1934.

This case was attended to at once.

Helping a Student

Rotary does not pick and choose, wherever there is a want brought to its attention which does not seem to fit into the field of other organizations of helpful nature, Rotary is glad to take hold and help to the best of its ability. A recent letter received from the head of an educational institution in this province shows the scope of Rotary work for the Belleville Rotary Club was only too glad to lend a hand and help a deserving young man over the hard places and the hurdles of ill health and lack of immediate relatives. Says the letter:

Dear Sir—Here is a matter I would like to lay before you in confidence. It is about a young fellow from your district who is trying to put himself through with a profession in view. He has neither father or mother and is working and studying at the same time.

A fair student and splendid chap, and a real hard worker. He needs medical attention and possibly an operation. If not able to procure such in the near future he may be permanently disabled. I am writing this without his knowledge — that is why I have not gone into the matter with you fully. But the question I wish to ask is: DOES ROTARY HELP SUCH CASES? Would it, provided they deemed it worthy after investigation,

Sincerely,

Belleville Rotary Club was only too glad to extend all the assistance required to meet this case.

The above are but examples of many letters received and are printed to show the wide range of work undertaken by Belleville Rotary Club. Neither distance nor expense is considered when the call comes, and if the call under investigation turns out to be in the Rotary jurisdiction, the work of no other organization being invaded, Rotary will do its best to solve the difficulty where human need is concerned.

THE ROTARY SPIRIT

Rest room for the living, and handclasp warm and true,
A heart that's bound to giving, and strength to dare and do;
The sound of human laughter, the joy of honest toil;
For those that follow after, to leave a finer soil;
All this has been and ever will be the Rotary plan,
A man's sincere endeavour to serve his fellowman.

A little job well assisting, a little more for men,
Less bitter in our speaking, more kindly with the pen;
A little part of deserving from pulpit of truth and right,
A little more of serving and less of dollar might,
More peaceful with our neighbors, and staunchier to our friends,
For this all Rotary labors, on this its hope depends.

. . . smooth the way for others, to make of life the most,
To make the phrase "our brother" mean more than idle boast;
To praise sincere endeavor, when praise will spur it on,
Withholding kind words never until the friend is gone;
This is the Rotary spirit, this is the Rotary dream,
God grant that we may near it, before we cross the stream.

McMASTER GIRLS TURN TO NEEDLES

Knitting Becomes Popular With Co-eds at Hamilton University

Hamilton (CP)—Co-eds are plying the knitting needles in a revival of the past and drop that flirtatious to revolutionize campus styles. Many McMaster girls make all their clothes, while others content themselves with making wool outfits.

One girl knitted a skirt for a dress in her spare time in less than a week. Two others have knitted dresses for themselves, and are now working on Angora wool bedroom slippers. Some of the co-eds have reached the stage where they are doing needlepoint work and knitting finger gloves.

The increased popularity of knitting has the blessing of male students many of whom are wearing sweaters, mufflers, ties and socks made by co-educational friends. Other co-eds are said to be preparing hope chests.

CORNISH MINERS GO TO RHODESIA

Twelve Selected For Work in South African Gold Fields

Redruth, England (C.P.)—Twelve Cornish miners have been selected to go to Southern Rhodesia to work in the gold fields. The party is an experimental one, and the men have been chosen by S. M. Lanigan O'Keefe, High Commissioner to Southern Rhodesia, who interviewed them in this Cornish town.

He was accompanied by a mining engineer and said that the qualifications of the applicants were so high that he had some trouble in making a selection.

The men selected are young, but have worked in the Cornish tinmines, where the technique is similar to that practised on the Rhodesian gold fields. If the experiment is a success it is proposed to develop it.

Three Small Boys Four Elephants True Dreams

Elephants, Hyers and Everything Walked Right Into Their Lives

This is a story of elephants.

A story of small boys.

A story of a man, and one woman, who was not afraid of elephants or men, or anything on top of the earth or under the earth.

Above all this is a true story in every particular, illustrating the old adage that truth is stranger than fiction and that the day dreams of boyhood often come true.

Then there is the story of three boys, three men, one woman and four elephants.

One sunny afternoon some years ago three boys leaned on the banks of the Moira river, near the old mill at Consecon, two miles from Belleville. It was the long, lazy midsummer vacation and fishing, swimming and picking berries had palled on them. Hence the adage was apt for day dreaming and wishing and hoping, attempt to peer through the veil of the future and see what was in store for them. Who can forget the day they were 16 and left the Old Swimming Hole when the very air seemed to be dazzling at the mention of doing nothin', nobbin' doing. Organizing the fishing party, with the drowsy hum of bees, the song of the water rippling over the stones?

Three boys on the banks of the Moira dreamed great dreams of the time when they would be big men and important in the world of affairs, and folks would point and say in awed whispers:

"That's Ellis!"

Strangely enough all three boys expressed a desire to be circus men. He, not so strange perhaps, considering that a circus had always in Belleville just a few days before, one great and glorious day of many wonders for the street parade was an institution then and any circus daring to show without a parade would not get a "corporal's guard" of paid attendance.

Just three boys sitting on a log in the shade of a great oak tree, Billy Power, Thomas Ellis, and Teddy Brentnall.

"Gee, but I'd like to join the circus and ride a fine horse in the parades," said Billy Power, son of Chief W. W. Power, proprietor of the Cannifton hotel.

"Ah," said Tommy, "I want to be a great actor and travel all over the world."

"Shily Gee, Did you see that man in the cage of lions in the circus parade last week?" said Freddy . . . "that's what I'm going to be, a lion tamer . . . and look 'em straight in the eye and you got em scared."

Three boys with that single thought the great world which would be theirs when they grewed up.

* * * *

A few years later, Grounds of the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto, Treasurer's office.

Three men and a typist; each face wreathed with smiles, and each was thinking of that day, just as long ago, measured by memory, when three boys sat on the bank of the Moira and dreamed of being "Big Shots" some day in the entertainment world.

Three men inside, four elephants outside resolving the dreams of the ages of the small boy.

Over in Billy Power the Powers Elephant Act, the highest paid act in vaudeville; gave Tom Power another big cheque for his Belleville Ellis Band concerts. Said Fred:

"Well boys do you remember that day when we sat on a log by the river and dreamed big dreams of being "Big Shots" in the entertainment world?"

Did they remember? How could they forget? The day they launched their fleet which was the acme of dreams . . . and their dreams came true.

Tom Power and Billy Power came to Belleville where they took over the Queen's Hotel and the Cannifton Queen House. Billy naturally gravitated to the box office while Tom looked after the stage. One day a circus came to town and Manager Power was short a treasurer. Also a bunch of money which often is the curse of the treasurer. Billy Power joined the show as treasurer and stayed with it until age compelled him. Many times caused the show to give up the struggle for the year or two.

Billy Power came out of the fun and made a name. Starting with three performing elephants, later increased to four by the advent of a baby elephant. Wonder but Billy Power showed any desire to have a herd of elephants at his hands and so Billy became elephant owner and trainer, and he did develop that elephant act. The changes and the New York Hippodrome came in view. Billy Power secured an engagement for his elephant act . . . and remained the headliner for eighteen seasons.

Billy Power is dead.

His wife took over the elephant act and carried on. At this moment Power's Elephants are somewhere in Europe, still the highest paid act in vaudeville, and the greatest elephant act ever. Berlin, Paris, London, Madrid, all have looked upon Billy Power's elephants and marvelled. London, Edinburgh, Dublin, and other cities of the British Isles have also been invaded by best, and under splendid supervision and leadership.

Some four years ago the Elwenia Club of Belleville assisted the Camp Committee greatly by providing screened sleeping cabins. The equipment at the Camp has steadily improved—docks, boats, archery, handicraft, sanitation, etc.

The great need was for a better dining hall, a kitchen and administration office. Recently the members of Rotary decided to meet this requirement and at a cost of nine hundred dollars, placed a fine new building on the slope overlooking the lake.

In October members of the Club went out to the camp site in groups and did excellent work in aiding the contractors erect, finish and paint the building.

The Building is 32x56 feet, and provides a kitchen, dining hall and administration office for Camp Director under the one roof.

The building has metal roof, with 40 ft. verandah 8 ft. wide, and screened windows. The new dining hall is a credit to the community and will be a decided improvement in the service, comfort and administration of the camp work.

The Camp in turn serves the boys and girls of this community in a progressive and thoroughly equal to the best of Camps.

Its field will no doubt be now extended to serve a greater number and at greater length of time.

The Camp Committee which is representative of the Y.M.C.A., Ministerial Assn., Retail Merchants and all Service Clubs extend sincere thanks to the members of Rotary for this splendid gift.

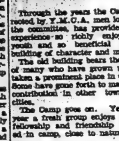
Build Dining Hall at Boys' Camp at Moira Lake

(Written by an Amateur Carpenter.)

The members of Belleville Rotary Club have always had an interest in the Boys' Camp Work of this Community.



Some fifteen years ago the Club purchased a site of several acres on the shore of Moira Lake twenty-four miles north of Belleville, placed therein a plain building to be used as dining hall and turned use of the property over to the Boys' Camp Committee for use in serving the teen age boys.

Through the years the Camp, directed by Y.M.C.A. men loaned to the committee, has provided the opportunity so richly enjoyed by youth and so beneficial in the building of character and manhood.

The old building bears the names of many who have grown up and found responsible places in our city. Some have gone forth to make their brotherhood in cities, towns and cities.

The Camp goes on. Year after year a fresh group enjoys the fine fellowship and friendship developed in camp, close to nature at its best.

these beasts of almost human intelligence, and just how they are "Rogers" of the show" making a good living for the little woman who was left with a herd on her hands on her hands, but carried on just the same.

Tom Power, what of him? The triumphant tour of the world with his Belleville Ellis Band answers that question.

Fred Brentnall, last of the three boys who realized their day dreams, for many years handled the money for the Greatest Show on Earth, educational, enthralling and enlightening, the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto.

COLORS RUN RIOT IN BATHING GARB

Swim Suits Are Dressier And Some Have Three Shades

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 16.—(CP)—Imagine a chiffon bathing suit in Spanish red—backed with green, or of course—you'll get an idea of one of the possible new color-matter-of-fact combinations to be seen at smart winter resorts this season. Designers have sounded a dress-up note.

Almost every bathing ensemble boasts three bold colors. Flower's eye blue, psuedonym, Spanish fiesta red, verging on orange, dusty pink and dark dubonnet are top colors this season. Pimmberry used with dusty pink and turquoise forms one fashionable combination. Others are Spanish and green; dusty pink with two shades of blue.

Flower printed silks, with back grounds of brown, black or navy blue appear in the dressmaker type of suit. And here is the planetary design with constellations and zodiac signs against black or midnight blue. The more tailored models will use silk jersey, and cotton suits in large floral designs will be popular.

At an early showing of beachwear the mallot, or skirtless suit, appeared in greater numbers than ever before. But alike every mallot this season has its detachable skirt of the flared affair no longer than the trunks, which can be dispensed for beach lie pic before and after swimming.

Swim suits, too, some are scalloped.

Novelty necklines feature the 1935 some are heart-shaped, others have a V-shaped front and now in front, the straps turning into back straps.

The practical beach pyjama will be seen again, but the skirt is threatening to overwhelm it.

1,279,000 Acres of Fens Create Problems in Britain

England And Wales Low-lands Contain Some of Richest Lands

It is estimated there are some 1,279,000 acres of reclaimed and low-lying land in England and Wales, which are protected by artificial banks from inundation by the sea or flooding from the rivers conducting the surplus water to the sea. All of this land is in the areas of the Catchment Boards and it is probably no exaggeration to say that it includes some of the richest agricultural land in England. The lowlands problem as regards defence against water may, in the first place, be divided into two parts:—(a) Their protection from inundation from either the tidal rivers and upland floods. (b) The evacuation of the water in their own areas so as to avoid internal flooding.

Considering (a), in several cases these areas have been reclaimed from tidal influence and protected by means of sea-wall embankments and barrier banks from the year 1600, and two examples may be cited, namely, Romney Marsh and the Bedford Level. The latter covers a large area of fenland of about 850,000 acres extending into the counties of Cambridgeshire, Norfolk, Huntingdonshire, the Isle of Ely, and other counties. The Bedford Level is now divided up into the North, Middle and South Levels, the first two levels being separated by the River Nene with the River Ouse runs between the Middle and South Levels.

About 1631, Vermuyden, the Dutch engineer, was commissioned to convert the Bedford Level area into a "summer lande" and he constructed several barrier banks, new cuts, etc., but it he anticipated the shrinkage of the newly protected land, which was mainly composed of peat, he did not provide sufficiently for this. As all crowds, it must be recognized that although he made some mistakes in the light of present-day knowledge, his work was a great undertaking. The barrier banks which he constructed have stood the test of time, although the materials available for them were only clay, silt and gravel. The artificial bypasses or short cuts which he made for the rivers were intended to conduct the flood waters from the upplands through the low-lying fenland areas to the outfall. It is just possible that if his works had been properly maintained and improved from time to time, the condition of the main rivers and their outfalls would not have presented such a problem as it does today.

To many cases the state of the river is due to the ill-conditioned state of the estuary. It may be that its efficiency could be put in order and training walls carried out to deep clear water, the tidal portion of the rivers would not become silted up at night in the course of time be self-cleansing.

In flood periods the rivers reach their peak discharge, and it is necessary to consider whether it is sound policy to make the rivers larger in order to accommodate the peak flood in view of the long drought periods that occur. Such a course is worth considering providing works so that relief may be given during peak periods of flood, permitting in this way more nearly the summer and winter run off by a system of washlands or reservoirs above the tidal section of the river.

(b) It will be realised that the fenland or lowland areas protected by the barrier banks have, in addition, to consider how they are effectively to drain their area and convey their surplus water to the main river, which, either discharges into the tidal section of the river. These fen areas are near the outfalls of the rivers and are well-level main tide level. In several parts of Fenland the present level is farthest from the outfall sluices and often the low land is found to be shrinking more than the high land, so that the problem is to drain the low land through the high land. As the level of the land varies considerably in these areas they are generally bisected by internal high-level main waterways or drains, the area being subdivided into small internal drainage districts. The main internal waterways are often confined to a single high-level conduits to the outfall sluices which are in many cases under tidal influence and control. The minor districts in each evacuate their surplus water into the main waterways, generally by pumps, and each district is self-contained.

Vast sums have been expended on these areas in the past, but it is evident that in the future there will be very considerable expense to be met; it is doubtful however, whether much can be done without State assistance. Naturally, the expense of protecting and draining these fen lands is heavy. In some areas the flood water is pumped twice or even three times before it discharges to the sea. Prior to the passing of the Land Drainage Act, 1930, the bulk of the drainage rate was based on acreage, but now it is based on annual value so far as agricultural land is concerned and one-third the rateable value for houses and other hereditaments. During the past 12 years the Middle Level Board have spent over $500,000 on new works and maintenance. In the past twelve years, the State has contributed liberally to drainage works on the recommendation of the Land Drainage Branch of the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries. It would be a national disaster if these large foodproducing areas of fen and low lands were not maintained and protected. It may be argued that it is to the national interest to encourage schemes of magnificent way of grants, which incidentally provide work for large numbers of men, and render these areas safe from inundation.—Major R. G. Clark, O.B.E., M.Inst.C.E., — Engineering, (London).

Nellie McClung Tells Authors In-dians Story to Illustrate Point

Toronto, Nov. 16.—(CP)—41 takes Nellie McClung to make a crisp speech and rid on an amusing note: At the Authors Association dinner in honor of Robbie-distinguished members, she spoke of the sharing of "equipment" by the senior and junior writers. "All here is a story I leave with you.

"A tourist in the West saw an Indian jogging on his pony, followed by a very heavily laden squaw. 'Is that your woman?' cried the tourist.

'Why don't you do something?'

"The Indian turned and regarded her as if seen for the first time. "She hasn't a horse," he said, and scuttled on."

PEACE HOPE SET IN ENGLISH RACES

Col. Abmond Foresees Better Day For World in United Action

New York, Nov. 16.—United action by the English-speaking peoples of the world to prevent future wars and the "inter-dependence" of the United States and Canada were urged by Colonel Victor Abmond Archdeacon J. M. Almond of Montreal, director of chaplains of the Canadian Corps in the World War.

"We are told to forget and to go on to better things," Colonel Almond said. "We can go on to better things, but we cannot forget. Sacrifice has a meaning and I feel that we are coming into a better day because of the sacrifices of those men."

"There are four principles by which we in the United States and Canada should be guarded toward everlasting peace. They are qualifications of principles that already exist. The first is patriotism, but patriotism without provocation. The second is liberty, but liberty without license. The third, commercialism, upon which our lives rest, but commercialism without materialism.

"Policy of Inter-dependence

"And the fourth is interdependence. Instead of independence. We are akin to each other and in our interdependence lies great strength. Let us have interdependence from the Pacific to the Atlantic and from Hudson Bay to the Gulf."

More than 300 persons attended the luncheon. Other guests of honor were Vice Admiral the Hon. Sir Matthew R. Best, commander-in-chief of American and West Indies station, and staff; Sir Gerald Campbell, British Consul-General in New York; Rear Admiral Yates Stirling Jr., commandant of the Brooklyn Navy Yard; Captain Thomas J. Cheevers, Ship-fitter Cavalry Division of the United States Army; Douglas S. Coe, Canadian Command Trade Commissioner in New York, and Major Charles R. Redgrave of New York, president of the British Great War Veterans of America.

Illness Arrales to Fellow Force

Admiral Stirling declared that we could no more think of abolishing the army and navy than "the police force." Sir Gerald warned that members of the army and navy would have to go to another war if the people "too old to fight continued to create the atmosphere for it." He suggested that wars might be avoided if each nation "would make its machine guns on its own bisinesses."

Lieutenant-Colo. Rice, Canadian soldier of Toronto who composed Mademoiselle from Armentieres, sang several stanzas of this ditty and others of his war songs over the radio for the benefit of war veterans in hospitals in Canada and the United States. He was assisted by Phil Dewey, American baritone.

The guests were whisked by Rev. Dr. Newton Wesley Appleby, president of the club. There was a moment of standing silence in commemoration of the war dead. Toasts were drunk to President Roosevelt and King George and the anthems of both nations were sung. Victor T. Goggin presided.

JEWISH SERVICE TO EUROPE SEEN

Played Great Part in Fostering Civilization Says Dr.

The fact that, following the breakup of the Roman Empire, the Jews were declared social outcasts by the Christian Church, enabled them to play a most important part in the spread of Western civilization, Dr. Abraham A. Neuman, professor of history at Dropsie College, Philadelphia, told a meeting of the Jewish Adult Education Society in the auditorium Hall of the Shaar Hashomayim Synagogue, Kensington Avenue, says the Montreal Gazette.

From the standpoint of civilization, he said, there had been nothing to compare with the Roman Empire at the height of its glory. Within a short space of time, however, approximately 100 years, it had been shattered into bits and a period of decentralization and devilization followed known as the era of feudalism. Economic chaos resulted, political unity disappeared, and a period of intellectual darkness settled on Europe.

In that age of feudalism the serf was tied to the soil; the Jew was free to move about, the continued to carry on his commerce with the East and thus maintained the economic integrity of the world. Moreover, the speaker continued, there was great need of capital in Europe. Serfs, nobles, the king, and even the church had little; the Jews alone had funds to lend, to help build up cities, harbors and other projects requiring large capital.

A much more important contribution of the Jews however, was the impetus they gave to the building up of the national spirit of the great nations of Europe. Dr. Neuman declared. What held the world to sanctity was the existence of a strong central government; nobles could defy the king. The spirit of the First Crusade was agitating Europe at the time. As the church consisted of the French and entered Germany they thought it was discovered the sword had been filed off the statue of Lord Roberts in his city.

To Rotary and Fellow-Citizens of Belleville

With the Harvest Season now over, and Christmas approaching, we must all be impressed with the goodness of a beneficent Providence, and our responsibility to those about us who are less fortunate.

The Campaign instituted by Rotary on behalf of the Crippled Children of the Province of Ontario needs no commendation on my part. Rotary as an Organization is but the spear-head of that good influence originated for the best purpose, and should be supported by every charitably-minded citizen. Social Clubs, Church Organizations, and Governments throughout our country, have the cause of Crippled Children upon their programme. At this season, above all others, to those who have been most bountifully blessed, this appeal is now made. All can rest assured that each deserving case will be thoroughly investigated, scientifically treated, and every endeavor made to rehabilitate our children, who otherwise would be a charge on society.

In making this appeal to each and every one who may be able to give, no matter how little, I feel that I am given the privilege of co-operating with one of the greatest causes that stands for the relief of humanity.

UNUSUAL GROUNDS FOR ANNULMENT

Protestant Husband Wants Marriage Declared Illegal Though Performed by Own Minister

Montreal, Nov. 16.—The unusual spectacle of a Protestant husband objecting that his marriage, performed by a minister of his own faith, was illegal because his wife was a Roman Catholic, confronted Mr. Justice Forest in the Superior Court lately. While a number of audiences have occurred in the course of annulments being granted in mixed marriages performed by a Protestant minister, in every instance they have been applied for by the Roman Catholic party to the case.

To Hear Arguments.

Before rendering judgment, His Lordship indicated that he would like to hear further arguments on the question as to whether the husband, being a Protestant, was entitled in invoke, on his own account, an impediment to the marriage which properly belonged to the Roman Catholic wife, who had failed to appear in the case.

Incidentally, His Lordship found somewhat jarring the practice in vogue at the Archbishop's Palace of issuing annulment decrees on purely documentary evidence and without requiring the attendance of either of the contracting parties to the marriage. From Rev. Lawrence Patrick Whalen, vice-chancellor of the archdiocese, His Lordship gathered the information that in the present case the ecclesiastical decree of annulment was granted on the production of three documents and without either husband or wife being examined.

"You mean to say that you annulled this marriage without seeing the parties?" queried His Lordship. On being told that such was the case and that the documents were considered sufficient, His Lordship commented: "I wouldn't do that in the Superior Court."

In the case before the court George Griffiths, Protestant, asked to have his marriage to Evelyn Riggs of Ottawa annulled. The ceremony had been performed in August, 1926, by Rev. L. A. Maclean, then minister of St. Matthew United Church. On September 3, 1935, the husband said, he had the marriage annulled in accordance with the canon law of the Roman Catholic Church.

At the outset, His Lordship was doubtful whether the husband had any right to question the marriage, which had been performed by a minister of his own faith. "You can't play with the sacrament of marriage like that," he said. "You are now complaining of a marriage performed by a minister of your own faith. If the wife, who is a Roman Catholic, had made the complaint, it might be a different matter, seeing that such a marriage is recognized by canon law of her church. I fail to see how the man can invoke the canon law of a church to which he in no way subscribes."

Invalid For Husband.

Charles Coderre, appearing for the husband, agreed that if the marriage was invalid for the wife, it must also be invalid for the husband. While it appeared that the husband had not intended to enter into the marriage, the wife was prohibited by the canon law of her church, and she therefore did not have the necessary capacity for marriage, in such circumstances. It was impossible, he argued, to have the marriage set aside insofar as only one of the parties was concerned.

His Lordship inquired as to who had gone to the Bishop's Palace to secure the ecclesiastic annulment and was told that the proceedings there had been taken at the instance of the wife.

Another problem at once was raised by His Lordship, if the ecclesiastic annulment had been obtained by the Catholic wife, could the Protestant husband come into the Superior Court with the decree she had obtained and produce it in support of his claim for a civil annulment? No satisfactory answer was given.

After Rev. L. A. Maclean, officiating clergyman, had identified the marriage certificate, issued by him at the time of the wedding, Rev. Lawrence P. Whalen, vice-chancellor, was called. He explained that he had not seen either the husband or wife when he issued the annulment decree, he had based it on three documents produced before him. These documents were to the effect that the wife was a Roman Catholic, proof that the marriage was performed by a functionary other than a Catholic priest, and proof that the marriage had since been validated by a Catholic priest. These documents, he said, were considered sufficient for an annulment decree by ecclesiastic authorities.

Heard of Cases.

To questions from His Lordship as to whether an annulment decree was ever issued by ecclesiastic authorities at the request of a non-Catholic, Father Whalen said that he had heard of such cases, but thought that he had never himself issued a decree in such circumstances. He could not recall any case which the ecclesiastic annulment was issued to one party to the marriage and the civil annulment applied for by the other party. In all cases before him the same process applied for the annulments.

His Lordship considered that the mere production of documentary proof was not sufficient for the issuing of an ecclesiastic decree. In the future, he declared, he would not take into consideration any such decree granted on documents alone and without the parties being seen.

ROTARY CELEBRATES PEACE IN THE CHACO

The cessation of hostilities between Paraguay and Bolivia in the Chaco has been celebrated at the meetings of Rotary clubs throughout the world. Outstanding among these meetings was that sponsored by the Rotary Club at Montevideo, Uruguay, at which there were present 130 Rotarians and invited guests.

Guests of honor were the Ministers of Bolivia and Paraguay and other diplomatic representatives and educational leaders of the two countries.

Representatives of both countries thanked Rotary for what it had done in caring for the wounded and in bringing about an armistice, pointing out that this was a practical application of the fourth object of Rotary.

Doctor in Auto Located by Radio, Dashes to Patient and Saves Life

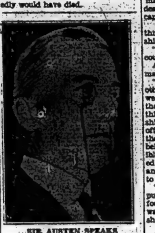
New York, Nov. 16.—Leaving his brother, Max, alone in his office at 125 Prospect Park Southwest, Brooklyn, shortly before 2 p.m. a few days ago, Dr. Morris F. Wiener left by automobile for Manhattan, where he had an appointment to meet a friend at First Avenue and Fifty-second Street.



A few minutes after the physician had driven away the brother received a telephone call that a woman patient was seriously ill and in need of immediate aid. The brother, who realized it would be impossible for him to overtake the physician himself, called Brooklyn Police Headquarters and explained the circumstances to Patrolman Harold Cameron, on duty in the telegraph bureau.

Obtaining a description of the car and license number, the patrolman notified the radio dispatcher at Manhattan headquarters. At 1:30 p.m. a city-wide alarm went out on the police radio system, instructing all radio cruves to be on the lookout for Dr. Wiener's automobile and to watch the Brooklyn entrance to the Manhattan Bridge and both ends of the Brooklyn Bridge.

Among those who noted the Alarm were Patrolmen, Edward Schuster and Alfred Zimmerman of the Poplar Street station, who were in a radio car on Flatbush Avenue near Nevins street, Brooklyn. They sped up Flatbush avenue and Flatbush avenue extension to the entrance to the Manhattan Bridge, where they waited near the main roadway.

At 1:35 p.m. the patrolmen saw Dr. Wiener's car. Sounding their siren, they drew up alongside and ordered him to pull over to the curb. Dr. Wiener, who at first was afraid he had violated a traffic regulation, identified himself and was informed of the emergency.

Escorted by the radio car, Dr. Wiener drove to his office, obtained the name and address of the patient and went to her home. There he found that the woman, whose name was not made public, was suffering from an abscess in her throat which threatened to cut off her respiration. The physician performed an emergency operation, which, he said later, saved the patient's life. He praised the police for their quick action and said that without immediate medical aid the woman undoubtedly would have died.

CAPTAIN RECALLS LIFE IN U-BOAT

Captain Hild, of German Freighter Talks About War Experiences

By AUSTIN F. CROSS
(The Montreal Star)

Montreal, Nov. 16.—Laying ashore from a German submarine off the Nova Scotia coast in 1916, sinking ships in the English Channel, gasping for breath in a submarine on the ocean bed, Captain H. Hild, master of the North German Lloyd freighter Koln now in port, had a most exciting life during the war. Two years ago, when he was here, he gave an illustrated lecture before a number of Germans at a local club, and now he needs only four or five more months to finish his book which will be illustrated with snaps taken during the war, and which have never been published.

Started in 1891.

Skipper Hild started his career when he took a sailing ship out of Hamburg in 1891 for Australia. He stuck in the seven seas and then as an officer in the naval reserve, was sent to the German fleet with the outbreak when the war broke out.

"After two years, I was sent to sea, and I liked it better," said Mr. Hild. "In the trenches, there was always the danger of injury—losing a hand, or a leg. On a submarine, either you had a quick death and it was all over, or you came out safely."

Captain Hild told of crawling through the deep, with the ocean thin as paper.

"We could not see them, but we could hear them," he said.

Asked about life aboard the submarine, he said:

"We were a lot better off than others. When we captured a ship, we always helped ourselves to all the good food, the wines, and anything we wanted before we sank the ship. The men we captured were often afraid. Once a man got into the water and we threw him a lifebelt. He swam away from it. Forcibly, we brought him back. We asked him why he wouldn't take help, and he said: 'I thought you wanted to shoot me.'

"We didn't shoot anybody. We put them in boats, and gave them food, water, medicine, supplies. It was war, and we had to sink enemy ships, but we tried to spare lives."

Big Submarine.

"What submarine were you on?"

"On the U-155, a big one. It was known as a 'greaser.'

"Once we captured a Norwegian ship. I took a look at the master, and asked him if he did not sail out of Hamburg in 1891 on a sailing ship for Australia. He said he did. I asked him if his father did not run the post office in Arundel. More bewildered than ever he said: 'Yes.' Then I told him that he and I had shipped together, he the little Norwegian boy, and I, the German boy. Now we met again."

Lying on the bottom of the ocean, in the air pockets and when it is the hardest part of submarine routine.

"Once," he said, "a British destroyer sighted us, and hovered over us. We went down and stayed down. The air got worse as the hours went on. The men started to get groggy. Everybody was tired. Our eyes got sore. Men would fall from exhaustion, not knowing what was happening. Finally, the only thing to do was to blow into a new compartment. Then, trying to move as little as possible.

"After 23 hours we simply had to have air, for there were 73 of us breathing in that submarine, and risk coming to the surface. We had been moving, and seemed to have got away from the British destroyer. We listened, and everything was calm, so we came up to the surface."

"That air must have felt good?"

"Good! After 23 hours. It was wonderful. After we got into the submarine, the men started to stir around, and we were soon all right again. That is the longest I was ever under water."

Theatre Story.

Captain Hild finished up the war off the coast of Nova Scotia and Newfoundland.

"They'll still tell you down there that we went to the theatre in Halifax, but that's nonsense," said the captain, and he laughed. "But I'll tell you how the story started. You know, the summer we went aboard a ship, we always seized all the papers, and we saw ship, and seized some theatre tickets for Halifax ahead. Then, when I seized another ship in Halifax, I found I had been beaten, and had been to a show in Halifax.

"Sure, I said, and produced the Halifax theatre tickets. He was convinced, the ship went around, and it is still believed in Nova Scotia.

"Captain, did you ever take to shipping with Fred The Star.

"Yes, I did, but war was war. I cried once when we destroyed a sailing ship."

Support of League Seen In Re-Election Baldwin's Conservative Gov't

Seat May be Found For Former Premier Mac-Donald

SAMUEL DEFEATED

Liberal Strength Cut But Lloyd George Group Intact

London, Nov. 16.—Interest shifted today from the general election to the seat to the make-up of the cabinet with which Prime Minister Baldwin will face parliament when it meets again November 36.

With only 15 seats unreported, the government was returned to power with a majority larger than the most optimistic of its supporters had predicted. Its 429 seats against the 171 which the opposition held gave it a majority of 258.

Political circles expressed the belief MP. Baldwin would seek to find a seat for Ramsay MacDonald who tasted the bitterness of defeat at his Seaham constituency but gained revenge for what they termed his "betrayal" of the Labor party in the dark days of 1931.

Defeat of Mr. MacDonald who left the Labor ranks to form the National government in 1931 and who was Prime Minister until the cabinet shuffle last June, and of his son, Malcolm, Colonial Secretary, and retirement of Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, Secretary for Air and Sir Kingsley Kyrsd-Mcneill, First Lord of the Admiralty, left several cabinet vacancies for Mr. Baldwin to fill.

Saltzer to Resign.

Lord Halifax, Secretary for War, also will resign, it was predicted. Gossip has been rife as to what position Anthony Eden, present Minister for League of Nations Affairs, would hold in the reconstructed cabinet. He is considered the most logical successor to Lord Halifax.

Whether Winston Churchill would receive a cabinet post remained in doubt. He has held a series of offices in former cabinets but was not included in the National government ministry after the 1931 election. Reports he was assisted to re-enter the cabinet, political circles said there was no evidence Mr. Baldwin intends to include him.

The government's victory in terms of seats than on the basis of the popular vote.

Government candidates polled a total of 11,044,000 votes with all but 20 constituencies reported. The opposition vote was 4,960,000.

At dissolution the government had a huge majority of 413. In 1931 its popular vote was more than twice that of the opposition groups.

Hold Majority.

Conservatives hold the vast majority of the government seats, 385. The Liberal National group took 32 and the National Labor representation dwindled to six. Others on the government side are four Nationals, one Independent and one Independent Conservative. Labor candidates will number 149 in the new parliament with 12 Liberals on the opposition benches, four Independent Liberals, four Independent Labor party members, one Independent and one Communist.

Diplomatic circles foresaw in the re-election of the government a continuance of its vigorous support of the League of Nations and a continued endeavor to find a peaceful and honorable settlement to the Italo-Ethiopian quarrel. Mr. Baldwin made during campaign any settlement must be satisfactory to all three parties concerned — Italy, Ethiopia, and the League itself.

Emphasis would be placed on the need for continued harmonious relations between London and Paris, some quarters predicted. They said Britain considers an Anglo-French understanding essential to the functioning of the League and the maintenance of the collective security principle to which the government is pledged.

It was learned on good authority that Sir Samuel Hoare, Foreign Secretary, has instructed Sir George Clerk, British Ambassador to Paris, to renew his talks with Premier Laval in an effort to find a solution of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute.

Trumpet notes to build up Britain's defence forces—the navy, the army and the air force—also were expected to sound. Darling back to the early days of the nineteenth century this congregation has had a record of importance in the Methodist Church and latterly in the United Church.

The occasion will be marked in a special manner. Rev. Dr. F. B. Malott of Brockville and formerly of Winnipeg, and at one time minister of the Bridge Street Church will be the special preacher of the day. Dr. Malott has many friends in Belleville who will be pleased to see and hear him again.

Rev. Dr. James Semple, minister, will preside over the services. Special music will be sung by the choir.

NOTED BARRISTER DIES

London, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Sir Edward Aspinall, 74, noted barrister practicing in Maritime arbitrations, and chairman of the British and American Joint Arbitration Board in 1930, died today.

He was counsel for the Board of Trade in the Titanic inquiry, and represented the Cunard Company at the inquiry into the loss of the S.S. Lusitania.

He also served as Wreck Commissioner to inquire into the loss of the S. S. Vestris in 1939.

captured Spen-Valley with a majority of 841. Walter Elliot, Minister of Agriculture, had a majority of 6,189 in Glasgow Kelvingrove, although on the first count he had an advantage of only two votes.

Labor's gains brought back a number of the leading figures who were swept out of the Commons by the 1931 landslide. Among them were Herbert Morrison, chairman of the London County Council; J. R. Clynes; A. V. Alexander the former First Lord of the Admiralty, who criticized the government's contention that the navy must be strengthened; H. B. Lees-Smith and Thomas Johnston.

Karl Marx and the Communists

The Nature or Capitalist Crisis by John Strachey—Strachey has just issued a worthy adjunct to his now famous 'Coming Struggle For Power' in the book. It will be found particularly interesting as a sequel to the book that have made the recently released 'Social Planning for Canada' which was reviewed in this column a few weeks ago.

The purpose of this work is to make a study of the cause or causes of crisis or periodic economic depressions and to study the only known cure. The book starts out with a scholarly resume and study of the various causes put forth by the different orthodox professional economists as well as those monetary schools of thought including Major Douglas and his Social Credit theory and the so-called monetary reform which are represented in this country by Hallell of Toronto and Mayor McGeer of Vancouver. The chapter on Social Credit is also of interest to Canadians due to the Aberhart version of the Douglas theory which the present Alberta government is committed to attempt to put in force.

Strachey, the self-styled philosophic Communist and Marxian disciple, presents a thought-provoking refutation of each of these theories of cause and cure and proceeds not only to expound the economic philosophy of Marx but endeavor to prove that its application is the only remedy for present distressing conditions. The dividing line between the Socialists and Communists he defines as the belief on the part of Socialists that their system can be instituted and maintained in a democratic country by purely constitutional means. On the other hand the Communists hold that one economic system becomes so deeply entrenched that it can only be removed by force and the establishment state properly conducted by a dictatorship of humanitarian intellectuals.

The book is, to say the least, very readable. The reasoning proceeds by easy steps and a profound knowledge of economics is not assumed on the part of the reader. Nor is the text burdened with unintelligible economic jargon. A brief resume of contents at the end of each chapter as well as frequent references to preceding arguments prevent the reader from becoming lost in the maze of conflicting economic proposals. All in all we can't hesitate to recommend this book as one of the most worthy of study.

BRITAIN PLANS TO SUPPLANT MALTA

Great Britain, according to observers, is permanently abandoning the Isle of Malta as a naval base and grooming Alexandria, Egypt, as a permanent base for the gigantic British fleet. The observation was given credence to proceed immediately with enlarging the harbor. The Egyptian government has allotted $5,000,000 to start work. The abandoning of Malta, it is believed, will occur because of its proximity to Italian Libya and Sicily. Britain is also said to be fortifying the island of Cerigo.

PORT BEING RELEASED FROM PHOBIC PRISON

The marriage of 58-year-old Professor William Leonard, poet eccentric at University of Wisconsin, to a 28-year-old pupil is said to be having the desired result of releasing the poet from his "phobic prison". Previously, Professor Leonard was unable to travel outside an area six block square. The marriage attracted world-wide attention.

Divided Skirts Quite Popular

By RACHEL GAYMAN

By The Herse News Agency

Paris, Nov. 16.—(CP-Herse)—The tendency to narrow the feminine silhouette from the hips down has caused skirts to become tighter and more clinging than ever. As a result, divided skirts have become very popular for practical daytime wear about town as well as for sports.

The new collections present a great many specimens of the "sculptured silhouette" as created by supple bias draperies, tightly fitting the lines of the body. By means of clever manipulation of the waist and hips the masters of design faithfully to the figure, setting off the best curves, and correcting the ones that need it.

Last fall and winter the narrow skirt was slit at the side and back to allow freedom of motion. In sports and practical dresses, but this was soon found to be not enough for golf, or even for running for the bus. Today it is not unusual to see a smart young Parisienne doing her morning's shopping in a suit whose skirt is quite frankly divided.

This idea was far too good to be left only to the sports type of clothes. By modifying a few details it has been adapted to any circumstances.

40,000 Gifts Received For Rogers Memorial

New York, Nov. 16.—More than 40,000 letters with contributions and suggestions for a memorial have been received at the national headquarters of the Will Rogers Memorial Commission, Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, director of the campaign to perpetuate the humorist's memory, announced. Contributions have averaged $4 a person.

As yet, only scattered reports have been received from 15,000 banks and 1,946 city committees assisting in the campaign, and no final figure can be announced.

Most of the letters have contained suggestions for a type of memorial, varying from homes for the aged and hospitals for the injured, to aid airways and a flying school.

120th Anniversary At Bridge St. Church

The one hundred and twenty years of the congregation which is now Bridge Street United Church will be celebrated on Sunday, Nov. 17th, with special services. Dating back to the early days of the nineteenth century this congregation has had a record of importance in the Methodist Church and latterly in the United Church.

The occasion will be marked in a special manner. Rev. Dr. F. B. Malott of Brockville and formerly of Winnipeg, and at one time minister of the Bridge Street Church will be the special preacher of the day. Dr. Malott has many friends in Belleville who will be pleased to see and hear him again.

Rev. Dr. James Semple, minister, will preside over the services. Special music will be sung by the choir.

ITALY SPEEDS UP ITS PRECAUTIONS

By GEORGE JORDAN
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Rome, Nov. 16 (AP)—Italy speeded up to wartime tempo today its precautions for repelling League of Nations economic penalties for the invasion of Ethiopia.

Premier Mussolini summoned the Fascist Grand Council meet at midnight, tonight—on the very eve of imposition of economic sanctions—to review Italy's course.

Orders for the Fascist fight against the League measures, delivered by Starace in a secret session of the Prefects of the 92 provinces went throughout the kingdom.

The government was made into a war organization, were directed to see the economic control desired by Rome were applied everywhere to counteract the efforts of the League boycott and Key Products embargo, going into operation Monday.

Party Provincial delegates were ordered to coordinate their work with Fascist organizations, whose millions of members reach into virtually every home.

The call to the Grand Council meeting in the historic Palazzo Di Venezia, seemed to reflect Italy's discipline and harmonize its opposition to the economic siege increased on all sides.

New taxes were decreed on imported coffee, tea and nickel. Such imports, which must be licensed, will pay an additional 2½ per cent if they are subject to the usual business turnover tax, and 10 per cent if exempt from that charge.

School children began to bring contributions of iron, copper and similar articles to their teachers as donations for the Fatherland in time of crisis.

PEACOCK HUNT ON FIFTH AVENUE

Full-Winged Fugitive Struts Upon Select Roofs

New York, Nov. 16.—A full-grown, full-winged blue peacock flew over the fashionable shopping district on Fifth Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street yesterday morning and alarmed three patrolmen, three men from the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, two attendants from the Central Park Zoo and reporters and photographers on a chase that lasted three hours and ended on top of the Plaza Hotel.

The bird was first sighted about 9 a.m. feeding with pigeons on the roof of a five-story building at 46 West Fifty-eighth Street. It was chased from building to building until it finally flew to the third mezzanine in the southwest corner of Central Park and remained there with the parks' four peahens.

Captain A. C. Short of Central Park Zoo said he thought the peacock probably belonged to some near by penthouse resident. The more birds are all females and their wings are cut to prevent flight.

The three patrolmen who led the chase were William Burke, John Leonard and John Duffy. Burke climbed to the roof where the bird was first seen. The others climbed to nearby roofs. But the peacock flew higher, descended by fits and flew straight to the top of the Berg-dorf-Goodman nine-story building at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street.

The policemen climbed after it, but another flight took the peacock to a window sill on the thirteenth floor of the Pickering Building, 28 West Fifty-seventh Street. Again pursuit was futile, for the fugitive took wing for the third and highest stop, the top of the eighteen-story Plaza Hotel.

It stayed there almost an hour with its pursuers trying to coax it away by throwing small pellets. By that time the streets were fairly congested with onlookers. Finally at noon the bird started for Central Park.

Captain Short said the park would try to keep the bird there until some one claimed it.

125 PERSONS DIE U.S. RAIL WRECKS

Accidents Off From 27 to 73 From Last Year

Washington, Nov. 16.—The number of fatalities in railway accidents was shown in reports of the Interstate Commerce Commission to have declined in the last fiscal year. Accidents which resulted in death or serious injury were cut from 27 in the fiscal year 1933-34 to 73 last year, while the deaths dropped from 141 to 125. Injuries, however, increased from 782 to 961.

Failure on the part of railroad employes to perform their duties properly accounted for the major percentage of the accidents, it was said, with thirty-one attributed to this cause in 1933-34 and twenty-seven last year. Malicious tampering cases increased from two to four while in each period autos, trucks or buses were involved in six accidents.

Many of the accidents occurred in cloudy or foggy weather. In one instance, cattle on the track brought about an accident which took five lives. In another, "failure of the engineman to know the reserved ties" caused a head-on collision between a freight train and a light engine, killing one person and injuring three.

Roses for Ink Greet Dr. Hind

But Rips Tomatoes Received Spots Says Canadian Writer in London

Winnipeg, Nov. 14 (CP).—Dr. Cornish writer from London to The Free Press: "If there is one article in a hotel bedroom for which I have no use it is the teapot or the writing table. I'll be either in the spooning fountain pen would seem."

She had one on her hotel writing table but the chambermaid retrieved it, thinking it was thus everything sat down to type a few notes before turning in. All went well for a time when suddenly a dull thud, and there on the blue and fawn carpet in the middle of an overwhelming pool of ink lay that thrice-accursed object. Just then Big Ben boomed midnight, no time to be calling sister maid or housekeeper, so I mopped up the mess as best I could, finished the notes and went to bed too mad to sleep, for I had prided myself on never having accidents in hotels.

"Next morning, before rushing to keep an early appointment, I summoned the maid, pointed to the trouble, asked to have the housekeeper notified. She came and mopped up and the bill brought to me. Had visions of having to replace at least a width of that carpet.

"When I returned late in the afternoon I looked for the stain. It had disappeared. Presently the chambermaid arrived and before I even thought of the bill I said 'How did you do it?' 'Ripe tomatoes and plenty of them,' was the reply. 'I see we could have got it last night you would never have been able to find it,' spot.' Housekeepers, please take note.

"I said, 'that's splendid. How much do I owe?' The manager says nothing, and for part of my worth and he sent you these.' There were six lovely pink roses. 'There's manager for you.'

SCOTS MEMORIAL CALLED GREATEST

'Most Perfect Thing Ever Wrought' Rev. Dr. Kerr Declares

Montreal, Nov. 16.—Describing the Scottish War Memorial that crowns the hill-top at Edinburgh as "the master of them all," and its inner shrine as "the most perfect thing ever wrought by the hand of man," Rev. P. W. Kerr, D.D., told a vivid story in addressing the monthly meeting of the Scottish Schools Club of Montreal, in the Mount Royal Hotel Monday night, on the memorial erected in Edinburgh Castle to more than 100,000 Scotsmen who gave their lives in the Great War.

It was on the anniversary of the Armistice that they performed some such service as was described by Scott in "Old Mortality" in referring to the character who went about clearing away the moss from the Covenanters graves and renewing the inscriptions.—"Trimming the beacon lights that might guide the future generations and lead them to defend their faith unto death," that sketch of Scott's, Dr. Kerr said, reminded him of the vast detail that went to the making of the memorial —"the greatest war monument ever erected on earth."

There was a tradition that for some centuries after Thermopylae the Greek school children were called upon to repeat from memory the names of the immortal three hundred. "So ought we to be true to that line which runs 'Their name liveth for evermore.' Armistice Day furnished us with the opportunity to take the time to set ourselves into a spirit of remembrance of those who gave their lives that peace might reign.

Dr. Kerr declared that not alone its location, but the symbolic art with which the memorial was adorned, made it unique. It expressed completely the Scottish character as contrasted with the Whitehall Cenotaph which so characterized the austerity of the Englishman in the face of danger.

MAN IS GIVEN TO UNDERHAND TRICK

Miss Mackenzie at Montreal Speaks on 'Getting Away With It'

Montreal, Nov. 15—"Getting away with it," is a principle of the lives of many people lasting through the seven ages of men (or women), judging from the comments of Miss C. L. Mackenzie, principal of the High School for Girls of Montreal, made to the Montreal West Women's Club yesterday afternoon in the Town Hall.

Taking the expression as her subject she described how from the cradle to the grave people were "getting away with it," and others not. I snapped up the mess as best I could, finished the notes and went to bed too mad to sleep, for I had prided myself on never having accidents in hotels.

"Next morning, before rushing to keep an early appointment, I summoned the maid, pointed to the trouble, asked to have the housekeeper notified. She came and mopped up and the bill brought to me. Had visions of having to replace at least a width of that carpet.

CAT IN CHIMNEY FREED BY LASSO

Police Act as Cowboys to Save Pet, Hunters' Smoke Trick Barred

New York, Jan. 14.—The practice of "smoking out" bears has long been an American pastime, but when spectators suggested smoking out Mrs. Flynn's cat, which fell down a chimney yesterday from the roof of an apartment house at 221 East Ninety-first street, a representative of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals vetoed the idea.

Rusty, a mature tom whose name describes his color, is the property of Mrs. Marie Flynn. His failure to appear for lunch caused Mrs. Flynn to send her two boarders, Frank Dranch and William Brynes, to find him. The expedition finally reached the roof, where Rusty was perched on the edge of the chimney, engaged in meditation.

At Mr. Dranch's call, Rusty gave a nervous leap, lost his balance and disappeared down the chimney, which was fortunately not in use.

"Call the police, call the Fire Department, call the A. S. P. C. A.," shouted Mr. Dranch, who was fond of the animal. Mr. Brynes decided the police and the A. S. P. C. A. would be plenty.

The arrival of Police Emergency Truck 2 was the signal for considerable excitement in the neighborhood, and within a few moments the roof of the apartment house was crowded.

Hooks, poles, scaling ladders and other pieces of equipment were brought into play, but Rusty remained in his chimney. Finally, a member of the emergency squad, a lasso in one hand and a Washington in the other, announced that he had "roped" Rusty, and headed him into the waiting arms of Mr. Dranch.

"Christmas," said Mrs. Flynn when nearly everyone had gone, "I wish I didn't have a cat."

Old "Rackets" With New Frills

Wise Salesmen Will Help Public Fight Present Methods Gain

The Unwary

(By Alvin E. Dodd)

Secretary, Association of Commerce, Washington, D. C.

The telephone rang. The Doctor picked up the receiver and spoke: "Hello, Brown?" "Yes." "This is [illegible] calling." A pause. "Jim's sciatica, please, I'm busy." "Oh, yes, I'm glad you called to speak with you." The pleasantly feminine voice changed to the very bristly voice of a man, and said, "You are Dr. Brown?" "Yes."

"This is J. B. Jaybee, editor of the Blankton Times. I have an editorial about you—a boy from our town. Mind if I read it to you—before you shoot."

"Mr. Jaybee" proceeded to read a most flattering write-up, in which "authenticity" he asked upon finishing it,

"Sounds fine to me, young man. Now about the advertising rates—this is a small-town newspaper. You ought to be on a big daily. What's the charge?"

"Oh, no charge, chap, that is—we're running the editorial. Just send me my twenty dollars for setting the type, and make that out to 'Cash' or 'Bearer,' please."

Dr. Brown, being no piker, said it was all right.

There are several interesting things about this episode. One is that the charming feminine voice sometimes called itself the "advertising manager" and the wife of "Mr. Jaybee". Another is that the "new discovery" was put through from an apartment about two blocks from Dr. Browns office. A third is that the editorial about himself which Dr. Brown thought so flattering, was a boiler-plate affair about any doctor, that could be, and was, used regularly on any other one in other cities. A fourth is that the editorial was not printed in the newspaper, for which money was mentioned, but by another one located in the next town, Hickpen. A fifth is that according to United States postal laws, Blankton Times up is paid advertising. A sixth is that no less than $1,200 worth of such editorial was printed about business men in Madison, Wisconsin—at the rate of twenty dollars each.

And the seventh is ....it was a "racket" pure and simple.

The near-criminal mind seems to be specially active thinking up clever ways to separate people from their money (and not always from his by (or very little) in return. The trouble with many of these "rackets" is that they are so much like other commercial activities. The only real difference is "why" they are done. If it is to sell merchandise from business men, housewives, the unemployed, or consumers at the consumption—money that should go into the tills of local merchants. There is an annual loss of eight dollars for every man, woman, and child in the United States from rackets and promotion schemes, the National Better Business Bureau says.

There is, for example, the scheme to sell. It is old enough to be familiar to everybody; but there are always new ones to be taken in by it. I know of three concerns, located in Tyrone, Ohio, and Indiana, which, it is claimed, make this particular racket their specialty.

Here's how it works: The promoter comes to a likely town. He hunts up the officers of some church or parent-teachers association—organizations that can make a nice lump of money—and says: "Would you like to have $500 for your organization without any work on your part?"

That's a pretty big temptation. The promoter pays somebody in the selected organization as much as three dollars a day to go along and call on business men. Of course, the promoter, client, and solicitor are talking.

"We," says she, "are from such-and such a church. Our church is getting out a cook-book. Will the [illegible] man do?"

In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, he will. You can quadruple the probability—or good faith—of his reaction.

This particular racket has been worked year after year in many communities. Every cent of the total business man's money goes out of town, except the three dollars a day paid to the honest "come-on" who solicits the ads. The solicitor keeps 30 per cent of the money collected, and the balance goes to the printer out of town. The church gets 30% of the books to sell—the dollar each. Few of the collectibles would give a penny for a book, because if they knew the real truth.

Rackets thrive on human gullibility. Most people are honest. Racketeers promote upon this and upon the fact that most people consider themselves exceedingly.

Many of the unemployed have been, and are being, gulled "in their eagerness for jobs." A recent one, perhaps, happened in the newspaper. The man who wants a job is told to call at a certain hotel room. Often the catch is that those answering are required to deposit cash. The sums may range from $25 up to $100. The deposit may be for the purchase of an outfit"—or for some other plausible purpose. "The job-hunter soon finds that there is no such concern as the one that 'hired' him—or the goods he put up for are worth only a fraction of their cost.

I know of a so-called detective bureau which offered many men several months' work by corn cribs. Each one "hired" was required to put up $100 for a "bond." One of the "bonds" accepted out of the cribs was signed by a man named Jones. Jones came to us and found out the "bonding" company was a sort, aside from the "bond" of Jones' liability, in a committee of legitimate local business. Publicity is the prompt remedy. And a strong Better Business Bureau or anti-racket department in the Chamber of Commerce is a powerful if the small city or town to be kept in check. Even then the list of rackets should be referred to this central body.

The magazine racket is another that takes thousands of dollars out of communities. Quite frequently, a good-looking boy calls on your wife, or daughter, or mother, and says she can get, say, eighteen magazines for [illegible] dollars. Of the list of eighteen, six will be the worst kind of shoddy.

There is also the high-school racketeer. "I usually turn to 'orient-als' rags, "important" rags, and so on. The salesman may be a "sailor," or somebody supposed to have been. "I was aboard the good—whisper it!—came in forty free." What's the racket? Magazines are the cheapest sort of trash. One woman I know of paid $60 for four "orient-als" which she could have gotten for $3.00. The "Persian" who sold the rugs was arrested, tried, and convicted of counterfeiting.

The number of rackets is almost limitless. Shoddered merchandise may be sent. Many charity appeals are bunkum. Some are based on so-called "railroad magazines" and other publications. Radio-log directories, and shippers' guides.

Free town-list, so-called, are nothing else but a racket. Nearly always have a catch. Cripples with insurance phoning you to buy tickets from them that specialize in forgeries. Employment or home rackets is common racket that victimizes those who can least afford to lose hard-earn. collected, and sometimes cause a lot of rocket grief to families and professional men who trust them with bad accounts. Any man who sells work" general—is found to be running some kind of a racket.

Most of the worst of all racketeers is the "beans chaser". Hundreds of widows are paying good money in large amounts for "prospects." Others they have "letters" of introduction to "very rich men" who are "looking for a wife." Necessary may be paying for goods which they are falsely told their husbands ordered before they died. The insensitivity of the racketeer is matched only by his utter lack of scruples when money is to be gained.

The racketeers are sometimes so close to the border-line of legality that it is impossible to prosecute them. They are a threat to all business. It is an obligation, not merely to be on guard against being victimized, but to see that others are not taken in.

There is one safe rule. If everyone followed it, it would cover the whole case and make the life of parasitic racketeers. It is: Investigate first.

Tweed and District

Tweed—The annual meeting of the Religious Education Council of Centre Hastings, comprising the townships of Rawdon, Huntingdon, Hungerford, Marmora, Madoc, and Elzevir was held in Tweed United Church on Wednesday, afternoon and evening. Delegates were present from the majority of the thirty-eight Sunday Schools of Centre Hastings.

The afternoon session, which was presided over by Mr. Geo. Ketcheson, Madoc, County President, was opened with a worship service conducted by Rev. I. E. Kennedy of Madoc. Rev. R. R. Nicholson, pastor of Tweed United Church, extended to the delegates a welcome on behalf of the officials of the church. The President in his short address brought greetings from the Provincial Council.

The opening session was devoted in part to receiving reports from the various county superintendents as follows:

Children's Work—Miss Ida McCue.

Girls' Work—Mrs. Albert McTaggart, Tweed.

Boys' Work—Mr. Arthur Wilson.

Young People's Work—Mr. H. V. Hoover.

Adult Department—Mr. W. S. Gordon.

Home Department—Mr. Hector Wood.

Teacher Training—Mrs. H. Rollins.

Missionary—Mr. Phillip Carr.

Temperance—Mrs. J. McCaffery

The convention was fortunate in securing Rev. Dr. W. P. Fletcher of Odessa, Provincial Representative of the C.R.E. as guest speaker. Dr. Fletcher drew a parallel between the conditions which surrounded children born into the world years ago, and those born in the present day of scientific advancement and enlightenment. "The background of one's birth exerts a far-reaching influence upon one's life" said Dr. Fletcher. "Children today possess characteristics unlike those of a former day never dreamed of."

There is great cause for rejoicing in the unfolding of the lives of our girls and boys in the light and understanding which we as teachers and parents have found. The church today is more interested in them than it formerly was, and strives so much to meet their needs as to keep them from failing out. The church today throws out a challenge to "leaders" and teachers to bring into the church those girls and boys who have not come in.

"The homes of today must have a sense of their spiritual responsibility, so that the boys and girls may live in a spiritual atmosphere. Parents are too much concerned about material needs to give much thought to the spiritual life. Today there is a great need for more Godly goodness parents, and the family life where each member of family may have a share. The situation as it exists in Canada today cannot be solved by a better Christian understanding of children, by better lessons, and better teachers, but by better parents and better men and women," concluded Dr. Fletcher.

Tweed—At the interesting meeting, which combined Thanksgiving Day and Remembrance Day we held on Monday night by the Young People's Union of the United Church, under the direction of Miss Christina Gilmansenbh Department. The program was arranged by Evelyn Drinkwater, Dorothy Barker and Lola Grant-Shorty, and was featured by a Remembrance Day Pageant.

During the Worship service Dorothy Barker read from the one hundredth Psalm. Miss Dorothy Sager sang with deep feeling "O Valiant Hearts". Two fine readings "Meaning of Thanksgiving" and "The Vision of the Cross" were given by Grant-Shorty and Lola Erickson.

The Pageant which followed the later reading, was introduced by a solo by Miss Sager "There is a green hill far away", Mrs. Margaret Moffat, representing "Peace", entered at the conclusion of the solo and took her place in the middle of the platform. She was followed by Dorothy Barnett (Germany); Vera Drinkwater, (India); Evelyn Drinkwater (Canada); Enid Connor (France); Jean Sills (Italy); Marlon Hammon (Japan); Alice Hammon (United States) and Marjorie Tammon (Canada), who took their stations on either side of "Peace".

Peace in the pageant urges the nations of the world to give up their nationalism and live together in peace and goodwill. One by one the nations voices their willingness and intention to renounce war as a medium by which international differences can be settled.

At the conclusion of this impressive scene Miss Sager sang "Peace, Perfect Peace".

An interesting programme, sponsored by the Young Men's Class of the United Church Sunday School, was given on Tuesday evening, Rev. R. R. Nicholson, in the capacity of chairman, explained that the young men were planning to carry on some benevolent work during the winter and had arranged this concert with that purpose in view.

A brilliant exhibition of club swinging was given by Mrs. Alfred Davis as the opening number. Miss Enid Connor played a piano number "Tan O Shanter" ( G. W. Warren).

A splendid address dealing with some interesting war experiences was given by Capt. (Rev.) M. O. Price of Actinolite. Major Price was a member of the Princess Pats Canadian Light Infantry, enlisting as a private in the machine gun corps. Interesting facts concerning life at the camp at Niagara-on-the-Lake were related, including an encounter with Indians while in Dar Ravine. It was stated that they were introduced into this part of the Niagara frontier in 1812 as part of the defence scheme to keep out the American troops during the war of that period. The Atlantic was crossed in an old herring boat, the Northland, and many pleasant memories of that trip were recalled, including a swim in the Gulf Stream near the Bay of Biscay.

Arriving in England the contingent was placed in quarantine on Caesar's Hill near Aldershot, where remains of old Roman fortifications may still be seen. For five weeks prior to leaving for the continent they trained at St. Martin's Plains. Major Price very modestly told of the success at target practice where he won a watch, and a pair of Mackleker rifles by scoring 117 bullseyes in 120 rounds in a rifle tournament. There was considerable leisure time on the hands of many of the men which they spent in various ways which had little to do with military training such as "kidnapping" of military pickets and dumping them into the English Channel.

In Rouen, France, they saw a number of places of historic interest, including a Joan of Arc's monument and a bronze plate set into the pavement with an inscription to her memory.

Mr. Price dealt chiefly with the lighter phases of the war, referring but briefly to the more serious features. He drew parallels between Mussolini and Julius Cesar, Hitler and Bismarck, Stalin and Peter, the Great (without "the Great") expressing the opinion that the war of 1914-1918 had ended about six months too soon, as Germany had not suffered any of the destruction of property and loss of life, among non-combatants that Russia and France had sustained. They had not been taught the lesson of the awfulness of war. The speaker referred to Mussolini as holding a light ed match to the powder-keg of Europe, with Japan biding her time until the match should fall, giving her the opportunity to seize upon China.

The splendid address was followed by a vocal solo "Little Pearly Boy Blue" by Miss Dorothy Sager, who also sang "Down in Lovely Garden" with Miss Lois Richardson acting as accompanist. Mr. Wallace Hall contributed two fine contrast solos "One Fleeting Hour" and "A Perfect Day".

Mr. R. W. Sullivan, teacher of the Young Men's Class, in a few words, expressed his appreciation of the interesting address. He referred to the splendid attendance of parents and friends and the generous offering which they made to aid the boys in carrying on their projects.

A unique and exclusive set of lantern slides depicting scenes of the Great War, shown in The Salvation Army Hall, Tweed, on Remembrance Day attracted a large crowd. The slides were developed from pictures taken from various countries, many of them being official photographs. They were much appreciated by those who had the privilege of seeing them. Capt. Arthur H. Rawlins, assisted by Lieut. D. Church, displayed the slides.

Mr. Walter R. Dark, bandmaster of Tweed-Sulphide Band, contributed two cornet solos at the annual concert and supper held on Monday night by St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc.

Rev. Chas. T. Lewis Retires To Make Home in Belleville

Was Rector of Tweed From 1903 to 1909 Latterly of Bury, Que.

TRIBUTE

The Rev. Charles T. Lewis, who was rector of St. James Church, Tweed, from 1903 to 1909, recently retired as Rector of Bury, Quebec, after twenty six years service, and has come to Belleville to reside.

The Shebrooke Daily Record in a recent issue made the following reference to the retirement of Mr. Lewis.

"Forty-four years ago it was when Rev. Charles Thomas Lewis was ordained by Archbishop Lewis, in Brockville. He had been accepted in London, England, after an education at King's College, in London, and a special course at Keeble College, Oxford.

This was the training of the rector, who will ever be fondly remembered by his congregation in the Eastern Townships, particularly in Melbourne, which was but a mission during his pastorate.

In January, 1910, Mr. Lewis was appointed to Bury, then a mission with a large field on the new Church, which he soon obliterated and Bury became a self-supporting parish.

Many expressions of sincere regret, coupled with memorial gifts, have been showered upon their beloved pastor since it became known that ill-health had laid its heavy hand upon him and that it was an enforced retirement which compelled him to lay down his office and seek a long rest, free from care and exempt from the need of love and sympathy which a country pastor at times always have in reserve and in abundance with the parish. When Mr. Lewis was called to succeed Rev. C. R. Washer, there were two thriving mission churches, St. Thomas at Bown and St. John's at Brookbury. The reverend pastor, turned well past the three score and ten, has looked after the welfare of these splendid fields, and his people have given tangible appreciation of his services.

Within Bury where, Mr. Lewis has lived a friend, there was a demonstration which will ever remain with the sorrowing pastor, as he sadly bade his departure. Some 240 citizens of Bury proudly affixed their autographs to a joint address from the three churches and the people.

From St. John's Guild, came to him a most acceptable gift, accompanied by the unanimous resolution, passed on motion of Mrs. S. Clark, seconded by Mrs. R. B. Cook, and forwarded by Mrs. H. P. Leonard.

All the clergymen in the Deanery presided to him their collective sorrow at the departure of a dear colleague and on motion of Rev. D. F. O. Nichol, seconded by Rev. F. B. Cooke, the resolution was autographed by the above two and by Arthur M. Tutt, R.D., by Reverends A. T. Vibert, Arthur J. Oakley, Charles E. S. Bown, George Robins.

The ladies of the St. Thomas' Guild in the Bury parish also presented an address and a valuable gift, conveyed on their behalf by Mrs. Nellie A. Parsons.

Also did St. Paul's Guild, the home parish, present their good-will, and their warm appreciation of their pastor as a friend, and as one who ever gave good counsel. This was signed by the President Ad. R. Cummings; Secretary Helen E. McClintock."

SOIL DRIFT CONTROL ACT GOES INTO FORCE

While individual effort is usually very effective in controlling soil drifting, and every farmer should adopt the best known control measures on his own farm, the most successful results, says the "Soil Drifting Control in the Prairie Provinces" bulletin issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, will undoubtedly follow the adoption of community action. The importance of this community action will be readily understood from the fact that an area of unhindered drifting soil usually expands very rapidly. Moving particles of soil are not always brought to rest by collision with stationary soil particles, and in many cases the latter are caused to join in a general movement under the influence of high winds.

The most carefully planned and executed control measures may be entirely ruined if the soil has to withstand the combined action of wind and drifting soil from adjoining unprotected areas. These facts show the necessity for community action if a maximum degree of success in the control of soil drifting is to be obtained. While the control of drifting on any farm is primarily the concern of the individual farmer, his success may be aided or hampered by the action of immediate neighbours.

In order to prevent losses to neighbouring property by unprotected summer-fallow, the Legislative Assembly of the province of Alberta passed an Act in 1935 known as the "Control of Soil Drifting Act." This Act carries certain penalties for failure to provide proper protection to adjacent property. No claim for damages may be made by any person, however unless the claimant is complying with the Act in regard to soil drifting control measures. The Act comes into force on the 1st day of March, 1936.

MERCY DEATH VIEWS BY CLERGY

'Gloomy Dean': Inge And Others Behind Movement in England

Chicago, Nov. 16—Endorsement of England's "mercy murder" movement by clergymen, including the famed "gloomy dean," William Ralph Inge, was reported by the London correspondent of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"To most possible objections on religious grounds," the former Dean of St. Paul's Cathedral signed a statement that 'what is proposed is not contrary to Christian principles,' the Journal correspondent said in this week's issue.

Other signers, the correspondent said, were Dean Inge's successor at St. Paul's, the Very Rev. Walter Robert Matthews; Canon H. R. L. Sheppard, and W. T. Rhododa Will-liams, chairman of the Congregational Union.

Additional "influential support" for the newly formed "Voluntary Euthanasia Legislation Society" which seeks to give physicians legal power to terminate suffering from incurable disease if the patient so wish is—was listed as follows:

The Rev. Prof. J. M. Creed, Cambridge University; Sir Humphry Rolleston, former president of the Royal College of Physicians, Sir George Beaton Buchanan, vice president of the British National Health Committee, and Prof. Julian Huxly, biologist and author.

The Journal correspondent said the plan sponsored by Lord Moynihan, president of the Euthanasia Society, was in drafting a bill for the House of Lords, included an application form to be filled out by the patient seeking death.

A relative would see the patient and decide whether permission for the voluntary death should be granted. After that, the patient would have seven days to change his mind.

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal, would not comment on the article except to confirm its authenticity.

Ottawa Clerics' Views

Ottawa, Nov. 16—Ottawa clergymen are varied comments on a despatch reporting the London correspondent of the Journal of the American Medical Association as saying many British clerics approved the "mercy slaying" idea of the Voluntary Euthanasia Legislation Society. Anglicans, however, refused to discuss the question.

Rev. H. W. Mullins, of McPhail Baptist Church, said he found it hard to reconcile such proposed legislation with Christian teachings. "In my opinion", he added, "the acceptance of such legislation would open the way in a great many instances for legalized suicide and murder and would be subject to widespread criminal abuse."

Champion of the proposal was found in Rev. Norman Rawson, of St. James United Church, who surprised many two years ago with a sermon in which he advocated some such measure. Said Mr. Rawson:

"I am quite in favor of the plan providing adequate safeguards are maintained. Some of the most tragic experiences I have had in my ministry occurred where I came in contact with people who were suffering without any hope or recovery. To make them suffer in such a way quite inhuman. I do not believe it (the proposal) is contrary to the spirit of Christianity."

Rev. William H. Leathem, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, rejected the proposal offhand. He said: "The taking of human life on compassionate grounds seems to me contrary to the age-long faith and teaching of the church."

"Mercy Death" Condemned

Chicago, Nov. 16—Mgr. George Casey, Vice-Chancellor of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago, condemned "mercy deaths" as "cut and dried murder". Outlining the views of his church on the movement in England to permit physicians to dispatch persons suffering "incurable" maladies, he said:

"It is contrary to natural law. It is wrong intrinsically. The end never justifies the means if the means are intrinsically wrong. For a person to request death in contemplation of suicide. God is the creator of life and is the only one who has absolute control over it."

Only one exception is recognized by his church, said the monsignor. That is the right of the state to execute the guilty. But, he added, not even the state can take an innocent life.

Even Benjamin Franklin:—"We are taxed twice as much by our silliness, three times as much by our pride, and four times as much by our folly—and from these taxes the government cannot ease us."

SHORTAGE OF OIL IS NOT SEEN NEAR

Head of Federal Institute Optimistic Over Supplies

Political Bread-Line

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 16—The shortage of petroleum is caused by the natural industry controlled the petroleum industry in the United States, declared Dr. Ralph J. Ryles, president of the American Petroleum Institute, said here today in an address on the conserving of that body.

He declared there is no power under the Federal Constitution for the Federal Government to control the production of oil, this power being reserved to the States. Already, he said, six oil-producing States had entered into an interstate compact for the conservation of petroleum and natural gas, a method which he intimated a Federal control distinguished from the bureaucratic the economists as distinguished from the political way of solving our problems."

The industry's producing, refining, transporting and marketing branches is serving the nation well as the following of demand, indicate the day of oil shortage is even more distant than two years ago, Mr. Ryles said, and there is no present reason to believe the industry can meet all requirements for a quarter-century or longer.

In the event of a shortage, he said, the supply gradually would be proportioned between oil and coal-burning devices.

Advance in Recovery Plan.

Generally, through improved methods of oil discovery, development and production, it has been found possible to convert vast amounts of oil from sands that under the techniques even of a decade ago would have remained unrecoverable.

Contributions to the petroleum conservation by the oil-producer have been paralleled by those of the refiner, Mr. Ryles said. The cracking process he declared has reduced the amount of oil necessary for public demand by 6,000,000 barrels in the last decade. A recent development, polymerization, is making possible the manufacture of gasoline from refinery gases and from natural gas without using crude oil, he said.

Oil Industry's Outlook

No national crisis caused by a shortage of petroleum products now impends or is probable, according to re-examination of the report of the economic committee of the directors of the American Petroleum Institute in a survey of the position of the petroleum industry and its outlook. The conclusions of the committee follow:

"There is every reason for confidence that the requirements for petroleum products to meet national needs and the demands of the operating public will be met.

"Production may be no more than 10 per cent larger than those produced two years ago. These increases should be withdrawn at a rate which will insure maximum recovery. Thus managed, the reserves, together with new discoveries, would relieve us of any possible apprehension regarding our position over the next twenty-five years.

"Beyond this period there is no real ground for apprehension as to shortage of petroleum supplies. The enormous resources that certainly exist in large reservoirs from abandoned fields, and in widely scattered deposits will make available, together with the development of new, unlimited, potential reserves present in our coal and oil shale supply.

"The price of crude oil should be such as to insure profitable and sufficient quantities at a reasonable profit.

"The industry has developed a complete, articulated, economical and independent transportation system.

"This system perfectly meets the present demand, but it has no possible usefulness to any other industry. Therefore we insist that no part of our transportation system should be removed from the body of the industry. Such severance would impair efficiency, add to the expense of the organization and increase the cost of products to the consumer."

PARENTS' GROUP LEADS STRIKE

Approves Children as They Play Hookey in New York

New York, Nov. 15—When Huckleberry Finn or Tom Sawyer fail like playing hooey from school they played sick or played hookey at the risk of parental punishment. In some ways why youngsters are better off as was demonstrated this week in Brooklyn when more than 2,000 pupils of Public School 138, Linden Boulevard and East Forty-eighth Street, not only played hookey, but clamored in before the eyes of their teachers with the approval of their parents and the protection of the police.

A few of the 2,200 pupils of the school, situated in one of those sections which grew faster than any one dreamed it would when P. S. 138 was built in 1923, what with the boom years and the completion of a new subway, called their classes. The majority, however, preferred to join the strike called by the Parents' Association to force an improvement in the school.

Strikers Carry Banners

Parents and children went about the strike in as businesslike a fashion as any trade union. They picketed and they marched, carrying banners and placards, chanting their grievances to the world, or such part of it as was on hand to see. Some of the children booed their school-mates who "scabbed" by attending classes.

The demonstration began a little before 9 a.m. when about 700 children and their parents fell into the line and began to parade around the block. Within an hour the number of striking children had increased to more than 1,000. Many of the other children in the school were kept at home because of the rainy weather. Mrs. Betty Koplin, president of the Parents' Association, said that the strike had been a success.

As the parade started, Lieutenant Fred Fleischmann, on hand with a sergeant and ten men in a key car, asked if the marchers had a permit. Mrs. Koplin said they had and produced the document while the children laughed. There are samples of the banners and placards which the marchers bore:

"The City Slogan—Modern Buildings for Animals—Dilapidated Build ings for Children" and "Treating Drinking Water — Freezing Classrooms in Portables Are Poor Aids to Education."

"Good Aids to Sickness."

The strike had been threatened for some time. The school was built in 1923, a brick structure, and at the time was sufficiently large to handle all the children in the section. An increase in population, however, led to overcrowding and complaints to the Board of Education. Eight years ago portable buildings were placed near the main structure. According to the Parents Association, these portable buildings were unhealthful and insanitary. Ink was frozen in the wells during the Winter because there was insufficient heat, Mrs. Koplin said.

Fear Began to Sag

A few weeks ago the floors of one of the buildings sagged and it became necessary to construct a brick foundation for it. The Parents Association decided to call a strike.

Mrs. Koplin, who said the picketing would be continued, announced the receipts of a letter from Rufus G. Morkan, Director of the Budget, which said in part:

"It is hoped that the Board of Education will be able to select a suitable site, which will have our prompt attention." Mrs. Koplin, however vents a definite statement and definite action.

The teachers were in the school as usual. Miss Mary Starkey, principal, declined to comment. Miss O'Neill, District Superintendent of Schools, also refused to make any statement, referring all inquiries to the Board of Education.

At the offices of the board it became known that members of the building and sites committee were inspecting two possible sites for a new building and that their report would be submitted to the board. These sites had been selected last June, but two were found to be encumbered and the two now under consideration were submitted to their stand, it was said.

7 Million Persons Get $44 Average From Christmas Club

New York, Nov. 14—Distributions by Christmas clubs throughout the United States during the next two weeks will amount to $313,000,000, with New York State heading the list with a total of $79,000,000, it was estimated yesterday by Herbert P. Rawll, president of Christmas Club.

This annual payment will be made to some 7,000,000 depositors by about 8,000 banking institutions and organizations with an estimated average of $44.70 for each Christmas Club member.

Although most of the residual savings banks and many commercial banks in the nation have reported increases averaging 17 per cent over 1934, the total is below that of a year ago. This is said to be due to the fact that some banking institutions, in curtailing promotional activities on account of abnormally low money rates, did not offer the Christmas Club service by depositors this year.

This is the twenty-fifth consecutive year in which Christmas Club checks have been mailed in annual March 1, which is $5,000,000,000 has been accumulated through this type of savings in the quarter-century and the average annual distribution amounts to 123 a depositor.

Christmas purchases as usual will take the chief share of the money, it is indicated by a questionnaire sent to members of the Christmas club.

Mr. Rawll said an analysis of the replies showed that 42 per cent, or $131,500,000 of the $313,000,000 will go for holiday shopping with $78,750,000, or 25 per cent, going back into the banks in the form of permanent savings.

Year-end commitments, taxes, mortgage interest, insurance premiums, scholarships, travel and charity make up the remaining items.

Eskimo Jokes Are Recorded

Paris (AP)—Songs, jokes and conversation of the Greenland Eskimos—recorded on 250 phonograph disks have been brought to Paris by Dr. Jean Charcot, leader of the expedition.

The linguistic records are the chief trophy brought back by the renowned 28-year-old scientist from a year's voyage in Arctic seas in his ship the Pourquoi Pas.

Dr. Charcot, who has spent a large part of the last thirty years in Polar regions, north and south, also brought back photographs of Baffins life and more than 3,500 articles, ranging from small utensils to tents and hats, and a vast amount of hydrographic, oceanographic and meteorological data.

Dr. Charcot was accompanied by nine scientists from various French institutions, some of whom, he said, were "young men of 80, full of fire."

His first expedition was to the Antarctic in 1905, which explored the region now known as Charcot Land. Since then Dr. Charcot has taken out an expedition almost every year.

WOULD ABOLISH OUT OF WEDLOCK BIRTH RECORDS

Organization Makes Effort to Remove Stigma From Some Nameless Babies

New York, Nov. 16.—"At present a child born out of wedlock is stigmatized for life. The grave injustice in the child is apparent; the increasing acceptance of the viewpoint that there may be illegitimate parents, but there can be no illegitimate children."

Mrs. Otis Rahn, chairman of the division of child welfare of New York City Federation of Women's Clubs, appealed to every affiliated club in support of a program dealing with the rights of children to health education, social equality and employment in a safe age.

"A nation-wide move to abolish all records of illegitimacy of children born out of wedlock was started, in Milwaukee at the American Public Health Association convention last month in a resolution adopted by the vital statistics section. Members of this section stated that there were about 80,000 babies acknowledged as born out of wedlock annually in the United States, but that the true number was closer to 160,000.

"The action was based on a report by the committee on birth out of wedlock, of which the chairman is Dr. J. V. Depara, director of the division of vital statistics of the New York State Department of Health."

A committee will present to the next convention of the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs the recommendation that there should be elimination from official birth records of all references to legitimacy of the child.

FRUIT CANNING GROWING INDUSTRY

European Products Are Not Important Factors on World Trade

Fruit is canned in a large number of countries, although there are unfortunately no statistics for the majority, says the Imperial Economic Committee's report on fruit. The United States and Hawaii (pineapples only) undoubtedly provide the bulk of the world supplies, and these two countries probably account for more than the remainder of the world put together. Australia and British Malaya (the latter producing canned pineapples exclusively) are the most important Empire producers, but the canning trade in India and South Africa is of growing importance. Canning is also carried out in Fiji, Cuba, and Jamaica, and factories have been started in Jamaica, Mauritius, Fiji, and Rhodesia. In Formosa pineapple canning is assuming considerable proportions, although most of the output is shipped to Japan for consumption in that country. A certain amount of fruit is also canned in Argentina, Brazil, and Chile, while Japan has recently developed an important orange canning industry.

Taking these countries as a whole, the principal fruits canned are apricots, peaches, pears, pineapples, and grapefruit, although many of them are important quantities of other fruits, including raspberries, strawberries, loganberries, apples (mostly canned in water), plums and cherries. These fruits, however, are the principal products of the industries of the United Kingdom and Continental Europe. A further distinction may be made in that the products of the European canning industries do not play an important part in international trade; fruits are generally canned for bottled for home consumption, and exports are small.

An important industry is being built up in Russia where apples, apricots, peaches, pears and cherries are canned. In Germany strawberries are an important item, while the chief Italian product is cherries, with certain quantities of pears and apricots. Apricots, peaches, plums and cherries are canned in small quantities in France, also in Spain, with the addition of strawberries and pears. Belgium produces canned cherries, plums and pears, and the output of the Netherlands also comprises these fruits with the addition of peaches. However, in the Netherlands very little fruit is canned, production consisting mainly of bottled fruit. As in the case of other European countries, some of the raw material of the Netherlands industry is probably imported. There is also canning industry in Switzerland where small quantities of a variety of fruits are preserved, including strawberries, raspberries, currants, cherries and plums, with apricots, pears, and apples. Supplies of home-grown fruit are sometimes insufficient for the needs of the industry and imported fruit is used.

LONGEVITY RECORDS

Bridgnorth, England—(CP)—The seven surviving members of the family of E. W. Wood, of Stableybury, on his father's side, claim a record for longevity, having a total of 594 years. The ages of these six surviving on his mother's side total 481 years.

AFTER 38 YEARS

London—(CP)—Robert Nutley, with a record of 38 years' uninterrupted bus driving was fined $10 and 25 costs for the careless driving of his own motor car.

HIS THRONE RETURNED

King George who is expected to be re-crowned as King of Greece shortly, is leaving his hotel to attend the wedding of the Duke of Gloucester at Westminster Abbey. His daughter, Princess Marina, is married to the Duke of Kent, another son of the King and Queen of England.

SMALLER TURKEYS MORE IN DEMAND

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—While not prepared to call their product "streamlined", officials of the agriculture department revealed they had for a long time been working with some success to produce a smaller-boned turkey.

Their efforts which started years ago across out of a demand, both domestic and export, for smaller birds, says. It was considered desirable to retain as much meat as possible for the consumer and the desire was to reduce the proportion of bone and offal in the birds.

Methods followed in obtaining the desired results were not indicated, but officials said a considerable degree of success had been achieved all over Canada. The demand for very large turkeys had fallen off greatly, they added.

CHILDREN'S PICNIC

More than a hundred Chinese boys and girls enjoyed the second in a series of children's summer outings sponsored by the Rotary Club of Shanghai, China. The children ranged in age from seven to fourteen, and were selected, for the most part, from those chosen to take competitive examinations for scholarships awarded by the local schools. The outing included a trip by boat down the Wangpoo River, games and other entertainment provided by the guests themselves, and refreshments provided by the club. Prizes furnished by the club committee were presented to the schools giving the best performances, and the individual performers received rubber balls for their reward. A visit to the Botanical Garden at Jungfew was the educational feature of the trip.

INDIAN ORIGIN STILL IN DOUBT

Dr. Hrdlicka Disputes Mel-anesian or Australoid Traces

Washington, Nov. 16.—Theory of Melanesian or Australoid origin of the American Indian was contradicted by Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, anthropologist of the Smithsonian Institution, after an examination of all available evidence.

Dr. Hrdlicka, who personally examined more than 10,000 crania of North and South American Indians, as well as a large number of Australian skulls, said he could find nothing that represented the true Melanesian or Australoid in New World remains. A type of skull crops up occasionally, he said, which might be mistaken by an amateur, but which on expert inspection represents one of the distinct cranial types of both the Indian and the Eskimo.

Type, he said, skulls sometimes are found that seem to fit into a Melanesian mold but they are not beyond the normal variation of members of the yellow-born race of which the Indian admittedly was a part.

The theory of a Melanesian settlement of the New World is inherently self-contradictory, said Dr. Hrdlicka. According to various indications, he said, the spread of the Melanesians into the Pacific Islands longed essentially to the last millennium before the Christian era. It was almost an historic event. By that time the New World had been populated for several thousand years.

Judging from the reception given the first contingent of whites," he says, "what chances would there have been for a small stray group of any other people, and especially one not superior to the native Americans?

"To leave any trace of their type, and especially any plain trace, the Oceanic blacks would either have to reach America in respectable numbers of both sexes, which, considering the distances they would have had to cover and their means of transportation, appears impossible, or they would have had to reach the continent before the Indians did, which borders on the fabulous."

The idea of an Australian colonization is even more absurd, Dr. Hrdlicka said. There is reason to doubt whether Australia itself was peopled at the time of the earliest Asiatic colonization of America. If they came here, how did they get here? It has been proposed that they came along the shores of Asia-erica and the Antarctic islands at a time when that land was much warmer than at present. But to have done so they would have had to come to America before there is the slightest trace on earth of human beings.

2000-Year-Old Bones Found Near Jerusalem

Jerusalem, Nov. 16.—Receptacles for human bones, made several centuries before Christ, have just been uncovered in a number of tombs outside Jerusalem, Dr. Eliezer Sukenik, professor at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, announced recently.

The receptacles bore such inscriptions in Hebrew and Greek as "Martha, daughter of Annias; Salome, Jonathan and Simon." Well-preserved were found.

The discovery is expected to shed light on the problems of the Jews of the period, Dr. Sukenik said.

DEPRESSION COST OVER 26 BILLION

U.S. Commerce Department Says Sum Taken Out of Savings

Washington, Nov. 16.—A staggering $26,631,000,000 was tabulated by the United States government as the depression's cost to this country's business.

The Commerce Department reported this sum had been taken out of savings to make up the difference between expenses and the value of goods and services produced. It noted that a marked improvement in 1934 failed to prevent another loss.

Last year's production of goods and services was valued at $49,561,000,000, a gain of $6,673,000,000 over 1933.

This value, however, was insufficient for expenses, Business had to draw down $1,638,000,000 from surpluses and other savings in order to meet wage, dividend, interest and other outlays.

The two figures together represent national income "paid out" or $50,199,000,000.

The following table shows for depression years, the income produced, or value of goods and services; income paid out or dollars actually distributed, and business losses, or the amount business drew from savings to make the "paid out" total, the billions of dollars):

| | 1930 | 1931 | 1932 | 1933 | 1934 |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| I. Pro. | 67.9 | 53.6 | 39.5 | 41.9 | 48.2 |
| B. Los. | 5 | 8.1 | 7 | 3 | 2 |
| I. P. O. | 72.9 | 61.7 | 46.5 | 44.9 | 50.1 |

In 1930, Income produced was greater than income paid out by $3,402,000,000.

STANDING OF QUEBEC PARTIES

Quebec, Nov. 16.—Following are details of the standing of parties in the Quebec Legislature at dissolution October 30 last as compared with the result of the provincial election, August 24, 1931:

Dissolution, October 30, 1935 — Liberal, 80; Conservative, 9; Independent-Liberal, 2; Independent, 1; vacant, 19; total, 90.

General election, October 24, 1931 —Liberal, 77; Conservative, 11; Independent-Liberal, 2; total, 90.

Bombay—(CP)—It may be news if a man bites a dog, but in this case a brassware hawker, Chela Saran, had a piece of his nose bitten off by Dada Ram, another hawker. The aggrieved party after medical attention went back to the scene to retrieve the missing piece but it could not be found.

IN CONFERENCE... though miles apart

A Conference Telephone Service is now available which permits discussions by telephone between business associates on the same premises, or in the same city, or in widely separated cities.

The convenience of such a service is apparent to persons whose business requires group conferences. The advantages include greatly reduced expense, speedy decisions, elimination of errors, and stimulating of activity. It is of particular benefit to firms having widely separated plants and branches.

A folder entitled "Like Sitting Around a Table" explains this Conference Telephone Service. A copy is yours on request. We suggest you ask your local telephone Manager for one.

In a spirit of grateful appreciation we strongly commend the Rotary Club of Belleville for its excellent work in behalf of the Crippled Child.

Apart from the truly humanitarian aspect of this work, its more material or economic value to the Community must be evident to all. May Good Fortune attend your efforts, Rotary.

Cloud Color in Day Skies

What we are tolerably familiar with the range of hues within certain confunctions in the clouds at sunrise or sun the passages of world magnificence or inexpressible delicacy seen when the source of light, near the horizon, is shaded by the medium of the earth-base; but perhaps only those who are accustomed to watch the hourly changes of the sky from dawn to night are aware of the many variations of cloud-colour, always beautiful as they are often unaccountable, apparently unaffected by any changes in the quality of the sun's light, to be seen in the broad illumination of noonday.

All clouds, except the highest fields of cirrus, know as "mackerel" or "mare's-tails", have a light and a shadowed side. In the case of the lower fine-weather formations, the fleeces which sail across the blue, the light quarter is of an intensely pure, but never dead, white; the dark side may vary, according to thinness or solidity of its substance, with fine-sun fringes or rounded contours, from the softest slaty grey to a deep and slaty purple. The whiteness, which under low sun turns to rose or crimson, can at noonday take on strange gradations of warmer tone, ivory or cobwebby, deepening some times to a fulvous brown, a spectacle often confined to a restricted quarter of the sky, which might almost lead a casual observer to surmise the existence of local colour, independent of the incidence of light.

The shadowed sides of the thinner and feeder vapours, as distinct from the heavier masses of the cumulus, are, generally speaking, of a grey, best described as neutral; but there are times when they assume, under clear daylight, purplish or bronzed tones, the source of which may pleasurably exercise the speculations of the curious observer.

After The Storm

When the clouds are moving in open order, and their drift is mainly at one level, they seldom occult each other's daylight; but when they lie at varying altitudes, and the forms of, cross currents, shadows may be cast from one to another, and little profiles one of the most striking effects to be seen in English weather. Sometimes the upper body and the cause of its eclipse may be made out; but as a rule the interference is too complicated to be disentangled. White mist, as in substance they are, clouds can cut off the sun as effectively as if they were solid matter.

The greatest depth of darkness in a daylight cloudscape is due to the massing overhead of enormous volumes of vapour, usually in electric conditions. When a storm has spent itself and vast system drifts away from the zenith we get a sight of the mountain-ranges lately heaped above us, still black as night at the level base, but their flanks now dazzlingly white against the clear blue. Under full sunlight the curled volutes of the cumulus, piled like battlements against the towering height of the central mass, show a notable feature in the darker sides outlining the immensely complex contours, and enhancing the vivid impression of rock-like solidity given by the whole.

There is another aspect, visible when a system of cumulus cloud is between us and the sun, when its crests and shoulders become half transparent, like alabaster seen against the light, and so reveal their true character as mere exhalations of mist, akin; for all their colossal forms and vast energy, to the thinnest trails which form over moist meadow-bottoms after summer rain. In extreme contrast with these are the sombre-hued masses of thunder-clouds may be set a somewhat rare spectacle, in the highest canopies of "fish-scale" cirrus, when each cloudlet is fringed with a faint prismatic suffusion, like the "shot" iridescence of the nacre of a shell.

DRUNKEN SPEEDER GETS $700 FINE

Court Imposes Stiff Sentence on Driver Seized in 82-Mile-an-Hour Chase

Bayonne, N.J., Nov. 15— James Spillane, 26 year old, of 32 Van Nostrand Avenue, Jersey City, who led Motor Cycle Policeman Charles Nolan a two-mile chase and attained a speed of eighty-two miles an hour while intoxicated at the wheel, was fined an unprecedented amount by Recorder Daniel J. Murray in Police Court on Monday.

Spillane was fined $500 for drunken driving, the maximum allowed under the law, and $200 more for speeding, reckless driving and driving without a license.

Meadow Lewis, 19, of 122 Bayview Avenue, Jersey City, was also found guilty of drunken driving by the same trial and was fined $200 on that charge, besides $25 for not having his license in his possession. After Spillane had been apprehended and ordered to drive to police headquarters, Lewis, it was alleged, slipped in behind the wheel.

Also in the machine at the time was its owner, James O'Neill, 21, of 49 Neptune Avenue, Jersey City, who was fined $200 for permitting drunken drivers to operate his car and $99 for resisting an officerand $50 for drunkenness.

Spillane received an alternate of four months and twenty days in jail and the other alternatives, of forty days. The three men were arrested about midnight Saturday after a chase along Avenue C, a busy thoroughfare. Rev. Franklin L. Artley, pastor of Christ Presbyterian Church, who witnessed the pursuit, went to police headquarters to volunteer testimony against the driver.

"The speed was comparable only to a streak of lightning," he said on the witness stand. "It overwhelmed me. I offered a prayer that the motorcycle officer would come out of it alive and prayed that the officer could save the lives of those drunken fellows."

Dr. L. E. Norwich, assistant police surgeon, who examined the drivers was absent when the case was called. After Recorder Murray had threatened to issue a warrant, the doctor appeared, with the explanation he had been in a compensation court and detained.

"These men," declared the recorder in imposing sentence, "were potential murderers. This is the most flagrant violation of the law that has yet come under by jurisdiction."

Foreign Names Arouse Fascisti

Rome, Nov. 15—Foreign names as well as foreign merchandise aroused the Fascisti scorn as the campaign of counter-sanctions spread throughout Italy.

The newspaper Giornale d'Italia complained that of every 100 Italian given names forty are corrupted to sound English, French, German or Spanish. The alien corruptions were charged to foreign-born nurses and domestic servants.

The time has come, the paper said, to cease the submission of Mary and Marie for Mark, Nelly for Elena, Nancy for Anna, Flo for Florence, Rita for Alice and Peg for Margherita.

Fierce Jungle Lions Cowards, Natives Bluff Them Easily

Missionary at Rochester Says He Saw Two Beaten Off

Rochester, N.Y., Nov. 16—The lion put his tail between his legs and scooted as fast as he could get away," said Rev. Ernest F. Stewart, missionary of French West Africa, telling how unarmed natives beat the king of beasts in his play in the African cattle country.

He was attending here his mission station, said Mr. Howard, when two natives drove a herd of cattle down to the pond from the opposite side. There was sudden commotion, the herd divided and the cattle stampeded in opposite directions. On the ground was a cow, with a big lion poised on it. The lion started dragging the carcass into the brush.

Without a second's hesitation, the two herdsmen, armed only with a shepherd's stick apiece ran after the lion and beat him unmercifully as if he was no more than a dog. The retreat of the lion, as he dropped his burden and rushed for cover, was one of the most comical sights he had ever seen in Africa, said the missionary.

Lions, according to Mr. Howard, are stupid brutes, greatly overrated. At times they wander into narrow motor roads and refuse to get out of the way. Mr. Howard's wife has been obliged to shoot lions that were too dazed or too dumb to give his car the right of way. Truck drivers, he said, crash right into the beasts.

Mr. Howard is attending the annual conference of missionaries in Meigs Street Christian and Missionary Alliance Church, Rev. Cloyd O. Kennedy, pastor.

Mr. Howard's station is in pioneer mission territory in what is known as the San Circle of French West African Sudan, not far from Timbuctoo. He has served two terms of five years each and is returning there with his wife and son.

Students Wail For Their Dimes

Rochester, N.Y. Nov. 16—"Brother can you spare a dime?" was a legitimate query in two University of Rochester fraternity houses on the River Campus.

Six students lost most of their immediate funds to a mendicant prowler who raided the two houses and took sums approaching more than $80.

Time of the visit was set at about 3.30 a.m. by Edward Parkin, member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity, who said he heard someone in the corridor as he was studying algebra that time. He thought it was another member of the fraternity, he said, so paid no attention to it.

Yesterday morning however, Walter Scanlan, Rodd McBain, Warren Daly and Edward Palmer, all members of the fraternity, reported small sums of money missing from their rooms. The total was about $14.

At the Delta Upsilon fraternity house the thief crawled in through a basement window and entered the rooms of Elmer Bedell and William Webb, and took about $16.

TWAIN MEMORIAL MODEL IS SHOWN

Author And His Characters To Be Depicted in Sculpture

New York, Nov. 16— The New York public will be able to meet Mark Twain's most famous characters in sculpture embodiment next week when a large sandal of the Mark Twain Memorial, to be erected in Hannibal, Mo., his boyhood home, will have its first public showing in the Grand Central Art Galleries.

The model for the memorial has been created by Waller Russell, New York sculptor, and has been sponsored by Mary Twain's daughter, Clara Clemens Gabrilowitsch. The author's granddaughter, Nina Gabrilowitsch will attend the opening of the exhibition next Tuesday. Preparations are being made to transfer from Mr. Russell's studio at 444 East Fifty-second Street a working plaster model of the memorial twenty-one feet in length, memorial twenty-one feet in length, consisting of the main model, seven feet six inches and about twenty bronze or fabrikoid characters and groups depicted in the memorial. The actual memorial itself is to be sixty feet long and contain twenty-eight figures, all more than life size, drawn from Mark Twain's four favorites among his books, "Joan of Arc", "The Prince and the Pauper," "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn."

Early next Spring a national campaign will be begun to raise funds for the erection of the memorial in granite and bronze in Hannibal. Mr. Russell estimates that $500,000 will be required. So far the entire expense has been met by Thomas D. Watson, patron-founder of the memorial, who became interested in it after seeing the original model several years ago. Another year and a half will be necessary for the execution of the memorial in granite and bronze.

Mr. Russell, who for many years was a painter of children's portraits, has drawn on his own recollections of Mark Twain for the portrait statue of the author, which will be the central figure in the memorial. In a line to the right and left of it, author, as if emanating from him, stand the familiar characters from his books. At the spectator's extreme left is depicted the trial of Joan of Arc. At the other end is a scene from "Huckleberry Finn." The figures will all be of bronze on a granite pedestal.

SAND BUILDING BOOM

Johannesburg—(CP)—All records for building plans in this city were eclipsed in September. More than $4,000,000 worth of plans were approved during the month, up about $300,000 from March, 1934, the previous highest month.

MARBLE FOR KING'S HOUSE

The Joy of Living

Just One of Those Incidents Which Help to Make Life Worth While.

A few years ago while looking on at a dance, a beautiful young girl, one of the most graceful dancers on the floor, smiled and spoke to me as she glided by. I asked who she was and was told her name. My eyes followed her around the hall in gloating in wonderment at the grace of her movements and her smile which fairly beamed with the joy of living.

My expression was noticed, and I was asked why I was gazing such a glorious thrill out of this particular girl. I explained with delight that she had grown out of my recollection. The last memory I had of her was as a little helpless, crippled child, unable to take a step, watching with a wan expression the other children at play, but unable to join them, and apparently doomed to grow up a pitied creature, with nothing but suffering and unhappiness in her future.

Her case was made known to the Belleville Rotary Club who gladly took her in hand. She was soon comfortably placed in the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto, under the treatment of outstanding specialists and after operations and treatment for many, many months, she returned home a normal child.

This was the fine looking healthy, happy young lady who smiled as she danced by.

There are many such cases on the Rotary list, but this one case made me but proud of my membership in the organization that made this transformation possible.

YOUNG INDIAN WALKS IN FIRE

London University Council of Research Walks on a Burning Charcoal

A demonstration of fire-walking, which is still practised by natives at religious ceremonies in India, and elsewhere, provided an unusual and exciting spectacle in the garden of a private house at Carshalton, Surrey, last week, recently. The fire-walking was done by a young Indian, Kuda Bux, in the presence of members of the University of London Council for Psychical Research and other scientific observers.

The fire was contained in two trenches about 12 ft. long, both trenches being 6 ft. wide and 8 in. deep. The materials used in preparing the fire included seven tons of oak logs, a ton of firewood, a load of forest-burnt oak charcoal, and 10 gallons of paraffin. When the demonstration was given the fire trenches had been burning for about eight hours and the charcoal, which had been put on the top was fanned by a high wind to intense heat.

Bare-footed Kuda Bux walked twice along the length of one of these 12 ft. fire trenches, his feet making contact with the burning embers for some five seconds each time. After both walks his feet were examined by Professor Fermet, Director of the Surgical Unit at St. Mary's Hospital, who found no scorching or other trace of injury. Under the arch of Kuda Bux's right foot Professor Fermet had previously placed a piece of court plaster, and even that was not scorched. The records of temperature of the mats had immediately he had passed over the fire was the same as before he started.

Rogers Leaves Horses to Hays

New York, Nov. 15—Two days before Will Rogers took off on his final plane trip to Alaska he promised to send two horses to his friend, Will Hays. Mr. Hays has received the word here that Mrs. Rogers had sent the horses to his California ranch.

"On my last visit with Will," Mr. Hays recalled, "he decided to drive me out and educate me on barns and fences for my ranch. Before we left he insisted he was going to send me "just the animals I want you to have." I was handling the infinite details of getting away he could not have bothered about the horses. But he had bothered. He had spoken to Mrs. Rogers."

MAKALE MART IS SALT CENTRE

Red Sea Coast Competes in Salt Enterprise With Makale

Makale, Ethiopia, Nov. 15—A big prize fell into the hands of Italy when her troops occupied Makale, because it is the principal salt market of Ethiopia. Salt is of great economic significance here, being not only the principal currency of Northern Ethiopia, but also a commodity which brings huge prices, according to the distance it is carried. There are no salt mines in Ethiopia. All the salt comes from Lake Assale, one of the deepest depressions in the world, 275 feet below sea level in the region of Danakil.

Once a month a big caravan leaves for Danakil. Salt which is on the surface is mixed with sand and this is left lying in huge layers by mountain streams when they are dry. Inhabitants of Danakil cut it into blocks weighing about 2 1-2 pounds each. These are loaded on camels and transported to Makale. At Makale salt costs roughly a dollar for three to four hundred blocks. On the Makale market it costs a dollar for thirteen blocks, and when it reaches Dessie it costs a dollar a block.

For some years now the salt workings on the Red Sea coast of Eritrea and French Somaliland have been connected with Danakil for the Ethiopian salt trade. In fact salt is one of the principal products of the Italian colony.

APPEAL DISMISSED IN CARGO CASE

Ottawa, Nov. 15.— (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada today dismissed appeal of Paterson Steamships Limited, Fort William, from decree from $137,684 to $69,297 its total liability for loss of cargo to the Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers Limited and Universal Insurance Co., Insurers for James Richardson and Co., Ltd., Winnipeg.

Both shipments of grain involved were severely damaged when The Paterson Company's vessel "Earlindoo" was stranded and became a total loss on Nov., 1920, on Main Duck Island at the eastern end of Lake Ontario.

Boy is Shot by Father In Mistake for Animal

Owen Sound, Ont., Nov. 15 (CP) - Shot in the abdomen in mistake for a wolf or a bear Woodland Vail, 19, of Tobermory, is in Owen Sound General and Marine Hospital jocey with slight hopes held for his recovery.

The rifle was in the hands of the boy's father, C. C. Vail, Tobermory fisherman, who thought the boy was at least 10 miles away. The arrangement was for the boy to meet his father late on Thursday on a sideroad. He went earlier, however, and the movement in the bush was taken by the father to be an animal.

After the shooting the father carried the wounded boy a distance of two miles on his back to the nearest house.

Never a Failure

Belleville Rotary's Proud Record of Success in Crippled Children's Work.

Written by Chas. J. Symons, chairman Rotary Crippled Children Committee.

"There is not a doubt that the greatest contribution we could make to the cause of the cripple would be to devise means of preventing those conditions which are the cause of crippling. If we could, at a stroke, write out all the causes of crippling diseases, what a lift that would be to the sum total of human happiness".

The number of crippled children in any community can be conservatively estimated at 2 per cent. and of the general population. This means that there are probably approximately 36,000 crippled children in Canada.

It is estimated that 50 per cent. of this army of crippled children should never have been crippled. The deformities of most of them come from diseases which should not exist and in spite of this the vast fund of human sympathy which is at least being tapped to the end that the crippled children problem may be dealt with has been utilized largely only to alleviate the suffering which already exists rather than to ferret out ways and means whereby crippling may be as far as possible banished from the face of the earth.

The fact of the cripple is obvious everywhere. The cause of the cripple has not yet been eliminated by medical science nor safety, first campaigns; therefore, the problem of the cripple is unescapable.

A cripple is a person to whom something untoward has happened. They may have been smitten by a wandering microbe, or a mismanaged mother, or an unguarded machine—but that is not all—their hopes of independence are blighted. What must be done?—The surest way to help these poor unfortunates is to mend their bodies.

That is what the Belleville Rotary Club has been doing for years with wonderful success—case after case reveals the splendid work that is being carried on for the benefit of crippled children; showing the willingness of this club to assume the initiative of this work for the community.

Over Five Hundred Cases

It may be of interest to know that among that many cases, numbering well over Five Hundred—that we have had the privilege of assisting, there are included children who have shown exceptional brilliance in school work and who give every promise of a succ[illegible] life once their physical han[illegible]s have been overcome.

The Rotary Club of Belleville is second to no Club in Ontario for work done for the crippled child and while they have handled over 500 children, many of these children have been on their hands for several years.

Three Years in Hospital

One boy was in Hospital for Sick Children at Toronto for 1,161 days—Cripples have been in bed for 103 days at a time, others have been in casts as long as 317 days.

It is estimated that 3,500 children are under the care of Rotary Clubs all all times.—This may seem a large number, but, when you stop to think that we have over 80,000 cripples on the North American Continent alone and about 80,000 added to that number every year. This work is only commencing.

Principal causes—36 per cent. injury; 21 per cent. rickets; 18.5 per cent. Infantile Paralysis; 9.5 per cent. amputation; 5 per cent. Tuberculosis; 5 per cent. malformation; 5 per cent. miscellaneous.

Sixty-three per cent. (63) of these unfortunates are crippled before they reach the age of 16 years.

Fifty per cent. (50), can be cured. Seventy-five per cent., (75), can be made self-supporting

Eighteen per cent. (18), have to remain in a hospital for any length of time.

Never a Failure

The Belleville Rotary Club are happy to state that they have had many one hundred per cent. cures, several 90 per cent., and have always helped a great deal every child we took on. We are more than pleased to state, that we have never had a failure.

Too much praise cannot be given to the doctors and nurses for the great service rendered by them to our crippled children, but what we need more than anything else today, is a greater understanding of the problem as a whole—the co-operation of all agencies, clubs, pub-

Dog Stops Liner In Mid-Atlantic

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Nov. 16 (CP)—The captain's dog stopped the ship in mid-ocean.

Romping on the bridge, he fell overboard from the Royal Netherland liner Costa Rica as he leaped for a flying rubber ball.

The 4,600-ton liner, bound from Europe for Trinidad, was stopped. A lifeboat scrabbled into the sea, and a half hour later its shocked a squirming bundle of dog-fish from the waves for astern.

Sheer Silver or Napoleon

New York, Nov. 14 (CP)— The bronzers Napoleon wore and the box of silver he pawned to buy food while a prisoner on the Island of St. Helena, may be seen in a collection of exhibition at the Gallery for French Art in the Rockefeller Centre.

A portrait of Napoleon in his coronation robes is significant in contrast to his unhappy days in exile. A case of memento is devoted to Marie Louise and her unhappy son.

He, private and professional—working is a common end—of bringing these children back to health and happiness.

This work is not a charity; but it is an opportunity of which thousands of Rotarians are availing themselves.—Why not You?

SHORT STORIES BY POPULAR WRITERS

Old Love's Allure

By N. Florence Leech

CAROL GRAY stood absently fingering the soft folds of a heavy velvet curtain.

"Dewey—or no Dewey!" was all she mumbled aloud, partly, and Carol started.

"No," she answered sharply, and with nervous fingers began rearranging the graceful drapery disposition of the long frame. The girls cried to the shot.

Carol was excited and expectant as she heard Dewey's motor in the lane brook. She anxiously examined the treacherous-eyed girl in the mirror, seeing that her perfectly natural bob, thick, beautifully panelled eyebrows and flushed cheeks.

"I don't look a day older than I did five years ago," she told herself, but the thought brought no comfort. She had suffered and worked and served, but it was loneliness as much as her youth. She was confessing to Dewey Ring, the boyish lover who sat across the table from her, that she had thought of him always as an ordinary small-town lawyer, but now he was handsome, perfectly tailored, and he talked better than any man she knew.

"He's not only kept up with me, but he has passed me," she thought, beautiful jealousy of the unknown friend made her cheeks crimson and her eyes bright.

Ronnie—sixteen; they had discovered the same birthday heavens in crime; the advance in tolerance; the future of women; and that had not found what was upper-most in her mind. He finally rose to go.

"I hope you may be very happy—in the home of the bill," she said, and was puzzled when her mood changed—oh.

Ronnie looked at her curiously. There was a strange light in his eyes. "That," said he, "depends on you."

Mutely she looked at him.

"I built the house for you," he admitted. "It is waiting—and I am waiting."

Carol began to cry, tears of bewilderment, surprise, and relief. "Why—didn't you say so?" she pleaded.

He put his arms around her. "I was afraid you would refuse me again," he said, humbly.

In a flash Carol understood many things. Ronnie had found out about Dewey, and this was his last attempt to win her. He himself had not changed his tactics; he wasn't a clever lawyer for nothing. He had just realized that he could win him by letting her think she had lost him. And she did love him; she had loved him all the time.

"I'll be glad to leave Ridge Crest," she heard herself saying. "I want to be with you."

Knights of the Road

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

THE young man who had just driven up in the smart red and tan roadster stepped briskly into the cool interior of the old-fashioned village waiting room and wiped his forehead with a white silk handkerchief.

"Whew! It up, buddy," he called to the attendant, "and dump in about ten of gas. Check the oil, too."

The attendant, the colonial pillars, the young man slid gratefully into a big wicker chair.

"Not weather for driving," he remarked aloud to the middle-aged man who sat in the chair opposite. The middle-aged man, neatly dressed and well groomed in spite of a day of driving glove, produced his own handkerchief and nodded in competent fashion. "Comes Lent" he added, his tone that of one fellow traveler who recognizes a like veteran of the open road.

"Quite a ways," the youth answered. "Old boy out there says he's from Buffalo. How far is it to Buffalo from here?"

"Not a hundred miles. I just came up that way. You ought to make it by dark."

The young man snorted in good-natured indignation. "Not by dark! Say, I could be there before six. How are the roads? Pretty good?"

"Yeah, fairly good. The roads they have up in York state, though—"

"Those that I come over today aren't any to brag about," the youth agreed. "I sometimes wish folks around here could see the fine highways we have in our western states. Make them blush for shame."

"Right you are there, brother. Ride for miles at the middle-west and never see a hill or a curve."

"Gets monotonous though, sometimes. After a day or two of it you're glad to get into the mountains. I'll never forget the last trip I made across the continent. Boy, it seemed good to see a hill for a change."

"I know how you feel," the middle-aged man agreed. "I guess everyone who's driven out to the coast has had the same experience. How'd you go, northern or central route?"

"Northern going out and southern coming back. Say, there's a country for you! Texas! Boy, I like that climate. Sun—it isn't so good, but the climate makes up for it."

"Been years since I've been there. Fact is, I've been thinking of taking a trip down that way for some time. Can't do it for a month or two, though. On my way to Canada right now. Expect to do the whole country this summer."

The younger of the youth advised. "Canada covers a lot of territory. Ought to plan on two summers."

The middle-aged man looked doubtful. "Well, that's funny. A man was telling me the other day I ought to see all there is to see in about six weeks."

"Never been there, has he?"

"No. Fact is he got all his information out of a catalogue put out by various companies."

"Those things are the bunk. I wouldn't depend on them for a trip into the next county. Your best bet, friend, is to talk to someone who's actually done Canada, and done it right."

"Been there have you?"

The youth smiled, slightly patronizingly, slightly indignantly.

"Just came from there, friend. Left Montreal this morning . . . expect to make Buffalo by midnight and drive through to New York before noon tomorrow."

"You don't say! That's some driving. Believe me I like to do it alone, yes more country."

"Not always," the youth said, "when you've seen all the country once or twice before there isn't much new to look at."

The youth stood up, restored his handkerchief to his pocket, glanced out into the yard and turned to the middle-aged man with a congenial smile.

"Glad to have met you, friend. It's good to meet and talk with a fellow tourist occasionally. Makes a change from shop talk. Maybe we'll run across each other again somewhere."

"Hope we do." The middle-aged man stood up and offered his hand. "I've certainly enjoyed our little talk. I remember what you said about Canada."

They shook hands and the youth stepped out into the sun. He slid into the behind the wheel of the roadster, moved in leisurely fashion and then shifted and let the traffic.

The middle-aged man stood in the doorway and watched him.

"Good youngster's traveling a good and for a kid," he said, addressing the attendant. "Seem around a bit."

The attendant looked up curiously. "Yeah . . . Around town. . . That's as much around as he'll get."

"You mean he's never been outside of here to any knowledge. He's a clerk at the drug store. That's the best we've brought up here to get groceries at."

The middle-aged man's face suddenly broke into a smile. The smile broke into a chuckle. The chuckle into a laugh, and then into a roar of laughter. He paid, in a good one, and. It's too bad, Jim, you can't appreciate a joke."

"It's probably is," agreed the attendant mechanically. "How'd you know my name was Jim?"

"Oh, nothing," said the middle-aged man," they told me at Bolton to call you Jim."

"Thank you're the new assistant they were sending up?"

"I sure am. Just came on the same train you did. The middle-aged man stared off toward the drug store and smiled again. "I wonder, he said to himself, "what that kid will think over the next time he brings his car up to be greased and I tell him I've never even set automobile in my life?"

Just a Heart Fantasy

By Rowena M. Devine

IT lay under the copper letter-opener on his desk. Carefully cut out from last evenings' newspapers was a wedding announcement. Sarah Stone's Heart Talk column. She picked it up curiously and read:

Sarah Stone:

What am I to do? Married, fifty, and in love with a woman much younger than myself. Is it fair to continue this marriage farce when it means suffering. My wife knows nothing of it.

—Troubled Husband

Mary Fulton barely glanced at the answer. It was the customary platitude of established husbands, "other women," and a strong rebuke to "Troubled Husband" . . . but she hesitated before the secret chair, the clipping held tight between cold fingers. So this was what it had come to. And yet why be surprised? When Helen Donovan's charming cousin had come to visit Carol for a visit . . . and her wife in Colton had tightened the domestic reins. Beautiful, blond Mary Fulton, long her friend, had captured the attention of every man in the community. There had been a very ardent Stile flirtation—John Fulton had his share in them; but gradually, the other men had realized that fools they were making of themselves and had dropped from the race, leaving the chase to the younger men.

Not so John. Mary Fulton's elegance tightened round the clipping. Evidently time had caused his hair to increase instead of wane, and—she glanced at the clip—was graying again. Type blurred before her to the end of life was to be left unperturbed by the Blonde Lure. Rejected!

Mary picked up a snapshot on the desk among the clutter of jewelry, bankers, tax bond, a wisp of hair standing on end, trying so hard to be unobtrusive. A tear trickled down her cheek and mingled with the smile on her lips. Abruptly she rose from the desk.

"It probably is," agreed the attendant mechanically. "How'd you know my name was Jim?"

"Oh, nothing," said the middle-aged man," they told me at Bolton to call you Jim."

THREE WISE MEN

By Hal Harvey

TOM Wilson, Dick Jarvis and Harry Page were three of a kind. Occupying three very similar desks they performed very similar duties for Jared Trenton, Inc., and as is seldom the case in offices they became an inseparable trio. It just wasn't the old jingle of Tom, Dick and Harry that caused the office quest; it was their attitude in general towards life—and especially women. "Tom, Dick and Harry" was and forgot 'em" was their motto, and if they didn't bear grown ties too heavily on the "feed 'em" it is understandable since their average salary was thirty-five a week.

Tom was wells, rumpled of hair and affected a careless and jaunty whenever possible. His was the armed indolence of a man of limited towards the so-called weaker sex. Dick was blond, his thinnish hair plastered closely to a round head. He was the man of the world of the group, places and doers only. Woman ceased to be a mystery when she came to Dick—he admitted it.

Harry was the weakest of the trinity. He was a little fatter than her short, neither blond nor dark. But he had a nice grin and steady brown eyes. He didn't pretend to know' all about women—he was just fascinated by 'em. And Dick would take turns warning him.

"You're too easy, Harry, old man,"Tom would say. "You'll better watch your step or before you know it some bright-eyed handful will have you roped and hog-tied And then what'll you do?"

And Dick would add his advice.

"That's right, fellow," sagely. "Women are all alike after all. Don't gotta be careful, or first thing you know, you'll be married and then where will you be?"

And Harry would usually grin and say pathetically in Bronx slang, "It's—" Margy beginning to mean up his apartment on his salary.

Then there was Mary Hunt. Tom and Dick found out that Harry had subscribed to a correspondence course. They were very much amused and slapping of knees.

"Him Mrs. Grey, I've got the job." Dick would howl, derisively. "You'll never over last after a year and then the book's nephew will breeze in with a new diploma and take the office management."

But Harry just grinned, good-humoredly and said it gave him something to do of an evening. All in all, the boys had a pretty good time of it. Dick would take them to two or three times a week; Friday nights were about the only ones for fights. And very often Tom, Dick and Harry together with three girl friends made a party of it to the operatic way. But never—never did they take any of the girls seriously. Never, that is, until Harry really fell from grace.

It was on a Tuesday morning they noted the change. Harry, who usually devoted himself concentrated the work at hand spent long intervals pasting into space. Tom and Dick exchanged winks and grins. At all lunch time, then pounced on him. The conversation was interrupted.

"Harry was in love—of all things— and it was demanded that he defend himself. Harry did, sheepishly.

It seems that the night before, defying their fate, Harry had stayed overtime to finish up some work, work which could very decently have waited until the next day. But with the decreed streak he sometimes displayed, Harry had insisted on staying, and so, had left the office unaccompanied. As he passed through the revolving door he had collided with a girl—

Here a chorus of "Ah" greeted

"The pupil who goes through sand modern school or series of schools is better prepared for the business of life than his grandfather was, as the terms of his health has been safeguarded, provision has been made for enriching his leisure; as an individual he is in a position to get more out of life. It is believed also that provision is rapidly being made in all modern school systems for the training of the child in the society along lines that will enable them to fit easily into their proper niche in the professional, industrial and commercial structures, which are possibly the most remarkable features of the present-day civilized state. Something more, however, is needed and it is to provide this essential that educationists must direct their thought if they are to justify the time, the money, the opportunity that a generous and hopeful public has given to them so unstintingly. The youth of to-day is not only a creator doing his share of the world's work, but now, more than ever before he is a social being, a citizen of the world. He must develop a social consciousness. This does not come to him automatically because he has a cultured mind and a well-attuned body; it does not come by prayer and fasting; he must be trained, to be a good citizen just as he must be trained to become a good mechanic. To be a good citizen he must first of all fit into the social unit, the family. It is a curious commentary on our social organism that while we require girls and boys to receive professional training, pass examinations and obtain certificates before they are allowed to undertake the teaching of children in the mass, any young girl with no training as a housekeeper, or any young man without understanding any moral or physical laws may found a home and rear a family. The common result of such neglect in training is an unhappy home and a disruption of the social unit the results, in extreme cases are divorces, or imbecile offspring, or both. Thus this social unit, the family, is sound and unbroken, the nation will perish. Until education is in a fair way to accomplish what was expected of it when the franchise was extended to the people as a whole, the world is not safe for democracy.

Take good citizens that the modern school must bend its energies. This does not involve a change in the programme but only a change in emphasis. Social studies have for years occupied a place—a somewhat unimportant place,—in the curriculum; they must in future occupy a more prominent place even if this means the sacrifice of some of the well-ornamented and traditional courses of study that we teach because we've always taught them and without which we scarcely believe a school can function. The public will need to be educated up to the point where they will recognize some of the so-called "fads and frills" are actually the essentials of a modern school programme."

EDUCATION

by

G. F. ROGERS, B. A.

Dewey was waiting to drive her home. "I have theatre tickets," he told her, as he helped her into the expensive car. "We'll have dinner,

"Not a thing," she said, "I'm all right."

"I'm sorry, but a friend from out of town is waiting in my office and I've got to keep my appointment," she added, apologetically.

Dewey looked put out, but finally said:

"That's all right," he remarked. "I'll give you my theatre, and go to the show."

Carol was excited and expectant as she heard Dewey's motor in the lane brook. She anxiously examined the treacherous-eyed girl in the mirror, seeing that her perfectly natural bob, thick, beautifully panelled eyebrows and flushed cheeks.

"I don't look a day older than I did five years ago," she told herself, but the thought brought no comfort. She had suffered and worked and served, but it was loneliness as much as her youth. She was confessing to Dewey Ring, the boyish lover who sat across the table from her, that she had thought of him always as an ordinary small-town lawyer, but now he was handsome, perfectly tailored, and he talked better than any man she knew.

"He's not only kept up with me, but he has passed me," she thought,

"Thank you, I'll be there." He gave her hand a quick squeeze and turned away.

After he had gone she called herself a fool. She was going to marry Dewey Ring. She'd have a home in Palm Beach and travel abroad. Why should she care whom Ronnie married? But all day she was feverishly excited, alternately happy at the thought of seeing Ronnie again, and at intervals remembering the dreary house on the hill. At the first opportunity she telephoned her partner and asked when she always called on in an emergency.

"It must be the best dinner possible," she instructed.

"Boy, I'm going to drive her home. Ride for miles at the middle-west and never see a hill or a curve."

"Gets monotonous though, sometimes. After a day or two of it you're glad to get into the mountains. I'll never forget the last trip I made across the continent. Boy, it seemed good to see a hill for a change."

HEAD AUTHORS

Strength in both Kenogama and Sigma was quickly reflected in Head-Authors. At the time of writing Kenogama is quoted at $1.30 and Sigma $1.35 bid. The asset value of Head-Authors is $2.35 if shares in shares of their interest in Pitt Sigma, which, by the way, officials state have not been sold before, and exclusive also of their cash on hand.

An official report from Dome Mines by Read-Authors states that at the Sigma Mines the shaft has been completed to a depth of 830 feet and two new levels are to be opened up immediately, at 300 and 475 feet below surface. On the latter level it is planned to drive northwest to the "215" zone about 900 feet from the shaft and where a rich section has been disclosed on the upper level. An all steel headframe has been erected which can be taken as definite proof that the Dome management intend to erect a mill at the Sigma. However, the rumour that started in Toronto this week to the effect that a 300-ton mill is to be erected immediately is untrue. There will be no decision as to mill or size of a mill before next Spring, although it is safe to say that a mill will be put up next year.

Officials of Dome Mines and Read-Authors are very enthusiastic on the prospects and outlook for Sigma as well as Lamaque.

CENTRAL PATRICIA

Based on a recovery of $22.40 a ton from an average daily mine production of 175 tons of ore, allowing for overall costs of $10.40, including taxes and depreciation, net profits of approximately $750,000 annually, equivalent to 30 cents per share, are indicated for Central Patricia Gold Mines Limited, an analysis of the company's position, recently issued by J. R. Ormsett & Co. points out. Estimated earnings of Central Patricia are based on the results of operations to date.

OPTIMISTIC ON COPPER OUTLOOK

At the annual meeting of Noranda Antelope Copper Mines Ltd., Chairman A. H. Beatty, stated that in view of the agreement reached representing the production of copper, the industry today is in the best position it has occupied for a considerable number of years.

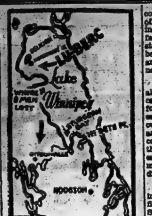
There is every prospect, said he, for the increased consumption of copper. With the general trade recovery and continuance of expansion of electrical, automobile, building and other industries which use copper, consumption of the metal should continue to increase.

There is good reason to be pleased with the position of the industry, he stated, because the outlook for the copper market is better than at any time since the beginning of the depression in 1929. Production is regulated, consumption is increasing and stocks are falling.

No abatement of the bullish trend has taken place. The public is in a decided buying mood and all groups meeting a rise are being taken in hand and moved upward. As is to be expected, in an appreciable forward movement of wide proportions, many rumours are being heard.

Most of these rumours have little or no foundation and should not be taken as authentic. In connection with the reciprocal trade treaty with the United States it is advisable to wait definite information about the terms before any definite conclusion can be reached.

Canadian Industrial Alcohol has been a very active and strong feature the past few sessions. This company with its large inventory, stands to benefit very appreciably from a substantial lowering of the American import tax on liquor. A reduction in this tax would not only facilitate shipments by the company to Schenley under the recent contract, but would enable the company to dispose of the balance of its valuable industrial liquor holdings in rapid fashion at a satisfactory price. The buying of the stock for the past week or so has been of most persistent character and has carried the price up to a new high for 1935.



International Nickel and Noranda also sold up to new highs. In the case of the former, the earnings for the third quarter were consistently above expectations and the outlook for the balance of the year as well as for 1936 is excellent. The comeback of Nickel since the low of the depression has been phenomenal and the stock has all the earmarks of again leading the Canadian upward movement.

The improvement in the building industry in the United States is reflected in the announcement by U. S. Gypsum of an extra dividend of 50 cents a share on the common in addition to the regular quarterly of 25 cents. Gypsum, Lime and Alabastine in this country is also experiencing substantially improved business and with the prospects of residential building showing a very material increase for the immediate months ahead, the prospect for the company have changed for the better.

The market rise of the past month lastly has released a considerable amount of "frozen" cash and it is this money that is finding its outlet in the general list. The higher stocks go the more purchasing power is created and it is heartening to note that in the present instance the public is not over-extending its position. As a result, a very sharp break does not appear in prospect unless the current rise is carried beyond reasonable limits.

INTERNATIONAL NICKEL

Further strength in International Nickel has been the feature on the London, New York, Montreal and Toronto Stock Exchanges the last few days. The main force behind the strength in the shares is undoubtedly the sharp rise in earnings. The quarterly report which has just been published is excellent reading for the shareholders.

QUEBEC ELECTION RECALLS DAYS OF STORMY POLITICS

Execution of L. Riel Cause of Defeat of Other Governments

MANY DISPUTES

Montreal, Nov. 15.—(CP)— Prevailing political winds in the province of Quebec are not favorable to general election campaign's now in progress have not always been identical. While it is necessary to turn the political clock back nearly four decades to find a Conservative success in power, Quebec nevertheless has decidedly of Conservative complexion at Confederation and the first administrations were Conservative.

The change in political disposition was associated with two violent political storms. One was a prolonged controversy in 1878 during the regime of the lieutenant-governor, the other was the violent quarrel that surrounded the execution by death of Louis Riel.

In 1887, Hon. P. J. Chauveau had 48 supporters among the 65 members in the Legislature, a majority when he formed the first Quebec government in Confederation.

was followed by Hon. G. Ouimet and Hon. C. E. B. Galer (Sir Charles de Boucherville, both of whom had comfortable majorities.

The constitutional issue arose in 1878 when Premier de Boucherville, ignoring a request by Hon. Luc Letellier de Saint Just, the Lieutenant-governor, that railway legislation be submitted to him first, had a bill respecting the North Shore Railway passed in the House without consulting him.

Incensed, Letellier abruptly dismissed his ministry although de Boucherville remained undefeated in the House, and called on R. G. Joly, Liberal leader, to form a government.

Joly, a French Huguenot, who later took the picturesque name of Joly de Lotbiniere on knighthood, served a term as lieutenant-governor of British Columbia, accordingly set up the first Liberal administrations in the official records must be taken as nominal, because the records show the new House composed of 35 Conservatives, 36 Liberals and two Independents.

The controversy over Letellier's dismissal of an undefeated ministry caused for several years and became a major issue in the Dominion Parliament. Advice of the Colonial Secretary in England was sought. Eventually Letellier himself was dismissed on the ground he had exceeded his powers.

Joly was defeated after 16 months in office and four Conservative administrations followed, the last of which held power for perhaps shorter period than any ministry on record.

It hardly compelled the retirement of Hon. J. J. Ross in 1897 and his colleague, Hon. L. O. Taillon, was called upon to form a government. A general election was held and both parties boasted victory.

Louis Riel had been executed two years before and a fierce dispute had ensued that for a time threatened to set different groups at each others throats. The Conservative government of Sir John A. Macdonald at Ottawa had refused to reprieve Riel, who was partly of French blood.

Taillon, not sure how many followers he could muster, faced the ordeal. He was defeated the day it opened. Officially, his administration lived from Jan. 25 to Jan. 27,1887.

Hon. Honore Mercier, the magnetic Liberal leader, demonstrated he had the support of the Nationalists in a closely divided House and he was called on to form a government.

After his defeat in 1890, three Conservative regimes followed. Then on May 11, 1897, Hon. F. G. Marchand led the Liberals to victory. Since that day all governments in the province have been Liberal.

HEAT OF THE SUN IS GUESSED AT

Estimates Vary From Billion to Millions of Degrees of Temperature

Washington, Nov. 15.—(AP)— When Dr. H. N. Russell, of Harvard, told the world and the American Electrochemical Society that the internal temperature of the sun averages star and by the same token that of the sun, of the order of 2,000 million degrees he knew that he was doing some pretty scientific guessing. Very high and very low temperatures are not read off on thermometers but derived in devious ways. There is no way of sending down 6,000 miles into the sun's interior after the eye has pierced 93,000,000 miles of blistering space. So life physicist must devise and use what Eddington calls "an analytical boring machine". Highly arbitrary assumptions have to be made about pressure, gravitation, radiation, states of equilibrium, flows of energy and a dozen unknowns and variables. No wonder that estimates of the sun's internal heat vary from billions to millions of degrees. The subject is even worse off than was Columbus. There is more wild guessing about what makes the stars and sun shine than there ever was about America.

Questions about the stars are often answered in the light of scientific categories. Sir William Herschel, foremost telescopic observer of his time felt himself "authorized upon astronomical principles to propose that the sun is an inhabited world." In his eighteenth century it was permissible to speculate about the sun as if it stood apart. Today hardly anything can be postulated about a planet without also postulating something about the sun. When the geophysicist tells us that the earth is at least three billions years old—and this on the strength of the helium ratio at which radium decays in the rocks—it is obvious that the sun, father of planets, cannot be younger. So the physicists rack their brains to make the sun very old and active. They seize upon the atom and proceed to show that by annihilation of its substance or by building up new matter hitherto unknown of energy may be radiated for billions of years. The exigencies sigh with relief. Only Sir Jeans has told us that they are as wildly romantic in their astronautics as Jules Verne. Perhaps Shakespeare was as scientific as the best in his reference to the "heaven's glorious sun that will not be deep-searched with saucy looks" — New York Times.

UNIVERSITY WILL STUDY PLANNING

Four-Year Program Designed to Curb Foolish Suburban Housing

New York, Nov. 15.—A four-year program of town-planning and housing research, with a budget of $94,000 from the Carnegie Corporation of New York, will be undertaken at the Columbia University School of Architecture, it was announced by Professor Harold Ansand, chairman of the school's committee on administration.

The work is designed to fit the architect for leadership in community development, according to Professor Ansand. It will be directed by Professor Wheeler Williams of the American Institute of Architecture, and Professor Henry Wright, of the construction and research.

"Our present community setup, again toward a new suburban spread, carries with it the possibility of repeating the foolish practices in urban housing," Professor Ansand explained.

"On the other hand, we can begin with the best that technical facilities available and to develop them in our university courses, as well as in the construction of government-promoted communities, so that the temporary attractiveness of new suburban developments will not inevitably be supplanted in the near future by unimaginative and hastily built speculative areas.

The new course at Columbia will be somewhat differently organized from existing planning courses in other universities. Emphasis will be placed on the study and appreciation of the social and economic side of building masses and community organization.

All students in the third and fourth years of the course will be required to take some of their studies and other elective work in the New York school of Social Research, Professor Ansand said.

Mr. Wright is the town-planning consultant for the Shipping Board during the war and was chief architect and site-planner for the communities of Sunnyside, Queens; Radburn, N. J., and Chatham Village, Pittsburgh.

Feeling Stirred by Plan to Move 1633 Windmill at Cape Cod

West Yarmouth, Mass., Nov. 15—Cape Cod raised its collective ire in apparently unanimous resentment at the proposed removal from this historic section, by Henry Ford of Jones's oldest windmill.

J. Frank Syme, a director of the Village Improvement Association, announced that Mr. Ford had purchased the old landmark, built in 1633, and would remove it to his Wayside Inn in Sudbury. However, Mr. Syme said the had been informed Mr. Ford planned to dismantle the structure and take it to his Dearborn (Mich.) museum.

When Mr. Syme's statement reached the hamlets and towns from Bismarck Bay, on the canal, to Provincetown, on the cape's tip, natives and summer residents went into action.

Petitions were put into circulation in nearly every section, while representatives of various organizations said they would act within the next few days.

There appeared to be no objection to having Mr. Ford buy the mill, but his plans to move it were not approved.

The mill was sold by Dr. Edward P. Gleason of Hyannis, former Boston surgeon. The price was not disclosed.

Likewise, the Cape Cod Association, comprising many prominent summer residents, will act to keep the old windmill where it is, Franklin P. Cleverly of Brewster, their president, declared.

Mr. Syme asserted that he had been informed $2,000 Ford and many employees had contributed to the purchase of the old landmark as a gift for Ford's museum, which fondness for antiques has long been known.

To the native Cape Codder the old windmill is second in sentimental importance only to the Provincetown Monument, whose tall tower serves as a guide to mariners throughout the year.

The mill, of Dutch design, was built thirteen years after the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth.

ARMISTICE EVE SKY IS REVEALED

Planet Mars Found in Same Position in America it Occupied in France

New York, Nov. 15.—The stars as they shone on Flanders Field on the night of November 10, 1918—the last night of the World War—shone again for 6,000 men, women and children who flocked to the eighth special performance at the Planetarium of the American Museum of Natural History.

On that night, it was shown, Mars occupied the same relative position in the skies of America as it now occupies in the skies of New York, being located in both instances in the constellation of Sagittarius, the Archer . . .

"It is just after sunset," the voice of the lecturer spoke from the darkness, "on November 10, 1918, we are looking at the sky exactly as it was over France seventeen years ago, the drama of the skies as it was presented on the last night of the war.

"The red planet in the southwestern sky is Mars, banned after the Roman god of war. In this flatback over 6,000 yesterdays we find Mars ruling the sky as it ruled the earth that night. It even seems to be surrounded by the smoke of battle, but that is because it is in the midst of the Milky Way.

"It is in the constellation Sagittarius the Archer, who has been shown on our sky for many years with his bow drawn, ready for battle. Mars and the Archer move across the sky and finally sink below the western horizon out of sight.

"When the light of day comes into the eastern sky and the sun rises, the planet Venus appears. Venus is the brightest of the planets and is named after the Goddess of Love. To-day today this morning star brings a light as bright as hope itself, hope for peace, for the living and for those who died.

"Let us not forget those who rest today in Flanders Field, under the eternal canopy of stars. Let us remember the lines of the poem:

To you from falling hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders Field.

Claims Title of Strongest Woman

Toronto, Nov. 16—(CP)— Mary Mahrynka, who claims to be the strongest woman in the world, gave a physical culture demonstration at the Public Alliance Hall here recently. Her husband, Whadik Mahrynka, who accompanied her, also claims a title—that of Europe's strongest man.

Natives of Poland, the two champions left for the United States two years ago and have spent the last six months in Montreal. They will also make Toronto their permanent home.

WIVES' SHORTAGE INVOLVES ESKIMO

Canadian Mounties Head Nails Some Popular Idea About Polygamy

New York, Nov. 15.—Major-General Sir James MacBrien, commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, is a judge at the National Horse Show in this city, but his interests are chiefly in the law enforcement and the Eskimos.

"They are a peaceful, law abiding people," he said. "The only time we have to go up there is when there is a murder over a woman. The Eskimos are cursed, or should I say blessed, with an astounding lack of wives."

Sir James viewed the Hollywood conception of the "Mounties" with indulgence. "It helps to inspire the rookies," he said. One thing he did object to was the stage showgirl "Rose Marie," of some years ago. "I'll never forget those dancing chorus boys dressed up as the Royal Canadian Mounted Police," he said. "It was dreadful".

Sir James said that the phrase that the mounted police "always get their man" was not true, but he liked it as an American tribute to the "Mounties".

"On occasion we have missed and do miss our man," he admitted, "but it is true that we never stop trying. There is no such thing as a 'dead one' on our files. We have men right now working on crimes that were committed forty years ago."

Regarding the "American tribute" angle he said that annually he received more letters from Americans asking about the history, training and organization of the Royal Mounted than he did from the rest of the world.

'WHITE ELEPHANT' SOLD FOR $2,000

Toronto, Nov. 15.—(CP)— The "Caledonian Market", an affair which realized $2,000 from "white elephant" goods donated from all sources wound up, with a jolly celebration by the women who had spent their days in the booths.

One of these women, after telling of the varied character of the wares, told of one, which has risen somewhat since the 1929 crash, a pair of vases for 50 cents apiece and, on the last day, three pairs for 15 cents."

Eat Less Pork With Price Up

United States Going In For More Mutton in Last Few Months

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 15—(CP)— Pork and lard consumption in this country has decreased 38 per cent. and with the result that this year less pork is being served on American tables than in any year since 1917. Beef and mutton consumption are estimated to have declined 19 per cent. On the other hand, more lamb and veal are being eaten, the volume of consumption of these two meats increasing by about 18 per cent. this year compared with 1934.

This information will certainly not come as a surprise to the average housewife. She runs her table on a fairly restricted budget which cannot be enlarged except as the family income may be increased. Hence when the price of this food staple that goes up she naturally buys less of it. And meat prices have been going up. This is especially true of pork, which has risen something like 118 per cent in price in the last two years.

THE WEATHER

Strong northwest winds; cloudy and cold today and Sunday with some light snow or probably part-sleet chiefly in southern districts.

SHUFFLING OF NATIONAL CABINET FORECAST

Eden Expected to Occupy High Place in Ministry, May be War Secretary

Defeat of Ramsay MacDonald Complicates Nationalist Situation

PLACE OF LABOR

Churchill's Recent Open Criticism of Germany Factor

London, Nov. 16 (AP) — Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin undertook the task of remaking his cabinet today, secure in the knowledge he would be backed by a heavy government majority in the House of Commons. In the rural peace of his official residence at Chequers, the Prime Minister had a number of weighty problems to solve, among which how to succeed the defeat of his lieutenant, former Prime Minister MacDonald.

Nationalist Aspect.

With the failure of both MacDonald—Ramsay the father, Lord President of the Council, and Malcolm, the son, Colonial Secretary—in Thursday's general elections, J. H. Thomas, Secretary for Dominion, remained the only successful Labor member of the old cabinet. Veteran observers, said Baldwin, must change this situation to maintain the National aspect of the government.

Spokesmen for political circles said freely Baldwin undoubtedly hoped to retire from politics and devote his time to writing, and the former Prime Minister was determined on this course, informed sources said, but he also felt he should be asked to find a safe National Labor seat and return to the cabinet.

Reduced Ministry.

The general view seemed to be the re-shuffled cabinet would be smaller, numbering 16 instead of the former 20.

Anthony Eden's post as Minister Without Portfolio for League of Nations Affairs might be one of those abolished, leaving Foreign Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare in sole charge of foreign affairs.

Some sources expressed belief Eden would go to the Dominions office while others suggested he might be the next War Secretary, replacing Viscount Hailsham, generally believed to be anxious to retire.

Churchill's Position.

Former First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill was still expected to be a cabinet recruit although further he proved himself to the admiralty became doubtful in the light of his recent open criticisms of Germany. His verbal attacks on the new German Nazi Reich were said by some sources to have evoked the disapproval of Conservatives coalescing the government.

McGEER ELECTED BY LEAD OF SIX

Recount Gives Him Small Plurality Over Webster

Vancouver, Nov. 16.—(CP)— And now George Cleveland McGeer—"Gerry" for short—goes to Ottawa—to take up the good job he recommited ballots of Vancouver-Burrard, Unless, of course, present court attempts to upset the recount are successful.

He has been going many places for years and never quietly—since the day 43 years ago that he arrived with infant cries out of his Winnipeg birthplace to begin life in Vancouver.

Mayor McGeer was declared elected by Judge J. M. Sullivan when recounting proceedings on the Vancouver-Burrard balloting ended yesterday. Previously the seat had been awarded Arnold Webster, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation candidate.

Giving Mayor McGeer a plurality of six votes on the official count, he showed—McGeer 10,215; Webster 10,209; N. J. McDonnell, Conservative 9,562; Dr. H. L. W. Turnbull, Reconstruction 1,902; and W. A. Pritt, Social Credit, 532. When the Returning Officer announced his recount, Mr. Webster was given a majority of four.

Liberals Number 19

The result increased the Liberal membership in the House of Commons to 171 and reduced the C.C.F. forces to seven.

In just two years "Gerry" has risen successfully to the British Columbia Legislature, the Mayoralty of Vancouver and now to the House of Commons.

MAKE CONCESSION TO VARSITY CO-ED

Women Allowed to Visit Undergraduates Unattended in Rooms

Oxford, England, Nov. 16—(CP) —Chaperon rules affecting women at Oxford University have been relaxed.

Hitherto an undergraduate could not entertain a woman undergraduate in his room without a chaperon. Such women are now no longer forbidden to go to undergraduate's rooms, whether in college or lodgings, during daytime.

The notice adds: "They may go in the evening up to 7:15 p.m. without there being a second woman with them."

A woman undergraduate said: "I think the notice announcing the concession ought very well have been issued without the reminder that such permission is intended to cover occasional visits only."

"It is a step in the right direction, however, and we are looking forward to the time when the ridiculous rule that a woman may not go out with an undergraduate in his car without permission, and then only when a second woman is present, will also be a thing of the past."

BRITISH PROBE REPORTS AGAINST THE 'WATCHTOWER'

Study of Labor Trouble in Rhodesia is Analized

PRACTICES CHARGED

Movement Must be Taken Seriously in Attack on Governments

London, Nov. 16 (AP)—The religious organization and "true Watchtower Movement" which developed in the United States, was termed "a dangerously subversive movement" by a British Commission today.

The British body, under the chairmanship of Sir Alison Russell, was appointed by the Government to inquire into the Labor disturbances in the Northern Rhodesia copper belt which were climaxed May 29, when six persons were killed and 80 wounded.

The committee reported: "The Watchtower Movement originated in the United States.

"The Commission finds that the text and literature of the Watchtower Movement bring civil and spiritual authority, especially native authority, into contempt, that it is a subversive and seditious movement, that it was an important and predisposing cause of the recent disturbances.

"All the European witnesses who gave evidence as Pentecostal, the Watchtower—administrative officers, police officers, officials of mines, missionaries, traders, native chiefs and their representatives—unhesitatingly condemn all the elements of the Watchtower alone found anything good to say of it.

"The Watchtower in Northern Rhodesia has developed indecent practices such as community wives among the faithful and the provision of allowances for the use of travelling teachers."

The Commission reported that it felt the movement was "to be studied most seriously in Northern Rhodesia, primarily because of its attacks against all forms of government."

GASOLINE PRICES UNDER REVIEW

Tariff Board to Meet on Monday to Discuss Question

(Ottawa, Nov. 16 (CP)—Gasoline prices and all that goes to make them, will be under the eye of the tariff board when it resumes a full-dress hearing of the Tariff Board, which opens public session on Monday. The Board and all interests concerned in the gasoline industry and its tariff have been preparing for the hearing.

Applications for a lowering of duties on crude and on fuel oil have been partially made by the executive of the Co-operative Trading Associations of Saskatchewan and was supported by farmer organizations in Alberta.

Alberta, Nova Scotia and British Columbia governments will be represented.

The Board spent two days visiting the oil fields of Southern Ontario and the large refinery at Sarnia.

All leading oil companies defending the tariffs and likely some of the smaller companies which use fuel oil such as the railways and shipping companies are expected to take part in the discussion.

War Pensioner Found Dead on Street

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 16—(CP)— Police started an investigation today into the death of James Mitchell whose body was found lying on the street shortly after midnight.

Mitchell, a Great War pensioner, left his home early last evening and his movements until the finding of his body have not been revealed. His face was fatally lacerated but whether by a fall or from a blow he is unable to say, Dr. H. R. McCallster, coroner, has declared an autopsy.

Flying Will be Given Fillip If Ocean Service Develops

Canadian Government And Aviation Officials See Possibility

EUROPE-TO-ORIENT

Ottawa, Nov. 16 (CP) — Next week's conference on proposals to establish a trans-Atlantic air service is regarded by the Canadian Government and its aviation officials as of great importance.

Should a decision be made to launch the service in the near future a considerable spurt in aviation activity in Canada is looked for. A good start has been made towards a trans-Canada airway with a service across the Atlantic in operation, a trans-Canada service would be needed if the maximum benefit were to be derived from the ocean service.

100 Landing Fields

More than 100 landing fields along the line of the trans-Canada airway have been constructed and the provision of radio facilities and beacons could be pushed ahead on the basis of surveys already made.

For some time an inter-departmental committee of government officials has been working on the Canadian end of the proposed trans-Canada route and its relation to possible aviation developments in Canada. When the British and Irish officials arrive in Ottawa next week for the conference this committee will have a mass of useful information to contribute to the discussion.

Wilson to Take Part

Proposals under consideration contemplate non-stop transatlantic flights between Ireland and Newfoundland.

Defence Minister MacKenzie will welcome the delegates and among the Canadian experts likely to take part in the conference will be A. A. Wilson, Director of Civil Aviation.

If the service goes through the shortest air route from Europe to the Orient would lie across Canada. Planes started from London to Chicago would lie across Hudson Bay. Similarly the shortest route from Chicago to the Orient lies across Western Canada.

Although Elected, Two Refuse to Sit in House

London, Nov. 16 (CP-Havas)—An unusual result of the British general elections reported today was the victory of two Ulster candidates whose principal campaign pledge was a promise never to set foot inside the House of Commons.

Dr. Fermanagh and Tyrone in Ulster, Patrick Cunningham and Anthony J. Mulvey were swept into office on huge majorities as "National Abstentionists," a party peculiar to three counties of Northern Ireland. Mulvey secured more than 20,000 votes, almost unanimous.

"We will not set our feet down parliament at Westminster" was the rallying cry of Messrs. Mulvey and Cunningham.

Their defeated opponents were Conservatives.

After Signing Treaty, Premier Leaves For Hyde Park

By CLYDE BLACKBURN

Washington, Nov. 16 (CP)—Canada's reciprocal trade agreement with the United States was an accomplished fact today and it only remained for the experts who formulated it to put it in shape for simultaneous signature by the two countries at Washington. That will come tomorrow afternoon.

Yesterday afternoon at the White House in the presence of President Roosevelt and members of the United States cabinet, Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Secretary of State Hull signed the treaty as plenipotentiaries for their respective countries.

Duration of the treaty, its effective date and a few non-essential items still lacked which there has been the widest speculation, remains closed in official secrecy. Proclamation by the governments is all that is required to make the agreement effective. Both administrations had all the powers necessary to negotiate the treaty without reference to Parliament or Congress.

Reliefs in duties ranging upon a general 50 per cent decrease by the United States in the tariff rate on a wide range of Canadian natural products, particularly lumber, cattle, farm and dairy products, several metals and fish, the treaty is expected to carry its benefits into every province of Canada.

Motor Cars Not Figured.

Concessions Canada will make to the United States are expected to be the intermediate tariff on a wide range of manufactured goods, semi-manufactured articles, particularly heavy machinery and mills, household utensils, seasonal vegetables and fruit, and possibly radios and other electrical appliances. Motor cars are not expected to figure at the moment.

With his work on the treaty now completed, Mr. King will leave tomorrow or Monday for the Georgia coast where he will take a much needed rest. He is expected to be away from Ottawa for about two weeks. He is a guest at the Canadian Legation while in Washington.

Accompanied by Rume Wrong, Charge d'Affaires of the Canadian Legation, and by members of the Canadian Trade Mission who worked out details of the Treaty with United States experts, Mr. King went to the President's circular office in the executive wing at the White House yesterday afternoon and signed the Treaty. The President, the Prime Minister and Secretary Hull all made brief statements voicing great hopes in the value of the treaty as a means of economic recovery and a lesson to the world in the value and the peaceful way of solving problems.

WEATHER

Toronto, Nov. 15—(CP)—Synopsis—Pressure is high from Northern Ontario eastward to the Maritimes and over the northwestern portion of the continent, and relatively low in the centre and over the Great Lakes and from British Columbia southward. Lake Superior—Moderate to fresh winds; mostly cloudy and cold; probably snow-flurries. Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Manitoba — Fresh southeast to south winds; partly cloudy and somewhat milder with some light show, chiefly in more northern districts.

Saskatchewan — Fresh southeast to south winds; mostly cloudy and somewhat milder with light snow, chiefly in northern districts.

Alberta — Cloudy with some light snow chiefly in northern districts; somewhat higher temperature.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Quincy, Mass., Nov. 16 (CP)— What follows must be some sort of a record.

About three weeks ago the police department was given 10,000 rounds of ammunition for target practice—only to find it had only 25 rifles issued.

A week ago the city fathers proudly inspected a modern gleaming new ambulance for the city hospital—only to find they had no garage for it.

Yesterday tax collector N. Gerson discovered that 5,000 tax bills ready to mail—only to find the funds to buy stamps were exhausted.

Washington, Nov. 16 (CP)—Officials chuckled today over a banker's refusal to accept a government cheque drawn on the United States Treasury.

The bank is located in a foreign country. The Department of Agriculture decided to buy some special farm stock and send the cheque abroad.

Then when the cheque was presented at the foreign bank it was refused. The bank said politically the American Treasury was not on its standing list of safe credit risks.

Worried negotiations followed. Finally the bank agreed to cash the cheque—but only after it demanded the essential it be regarded as "officially certified" it.

New York, Nov. 16 (CP)—Lynn Fontanne, actress, is no spinster let, which proves to her satisfaction that she is 33 years old. Miss Fontanne of theatrical biographic listed her as born in 1902.

"I was born in 1887," children said Tu the youngest," she explained to callers. The youngsters weren't around then and my father and mother were married in 1881."

Her real age? that, she says, is her own business.

Nelson, B.C., Nov. 16 (CP) — James A. Cullinane of Rossland, owner of the Wilcox Mine at Ymir, and his 19-year-old son, Maurice, who left several days ago on a hunting trip into the Kettle River country, were found drowned in the Kettle River yesterday.

Philadelphia, Nov. 16 (AP) — General Hugh Johnson declared today that Roosevelt "can't rid himself" of some "brain-trusters" to "get the job done."

General Johnson, addressing the Sales Management Association of Philadelphia, said nobody in general is above reproach in the New Deal and today." That figure, he pointed out, was "an estimate a year ago."

Tokyo, Nov. 16 (AP) — Prince Kinmochi Saionji, the Emperor's last surviving adviser, died today at Premier Keisuke Okada today.

"Drink less liquor. Attend to your duties."

The elderly Prince's good counsel was delivered in person to the rival fro the Premier as the latter was concluded a review from the army manoeuvres at Kyushu.

Premier Okada's convivial habits have often been the subject of jests in the Japanese press.

Hollywood, Nov. 16 (CP)—Tom Mix is going to be brought back to America—he calls it the last frontier—dwelling.

Mix has been getting so many bum steers in Hollywood, I'm going where they have some cowboys," he said.

Mix, a real cowboy and sheriff before he got into films, made his roles in the movies, said he planned to visit New York by Dec. 10, for Rhoda Mix, with his wife and her sister. Irma Ward, both circus acrobats.

Tired of easy living, Mix says he has concluded to go back to how that country looks to me."

"I'm gonna keep on traveling," he said. "I want to see some real undeveloped country again, some real wild and woolly and anyone who have to work for a living."

ITALY TO BUY 13,000 CAMELS

Suez, Egypt, Nov. 16.—Italian Government is going to buy camels from the Saudi Arabian Government for purchase of 13,000 camels at £18 per gold per head for use in East Africa. It was believed the camels will be used in the expected Italian advance across the waterless plains of Ethiopia.

CAIRO RIOTING STARTS AFRESH, SHOTS ARE FIRED

Ras Nasibu Has Orders to Hold South Front For Month

VICTORY AHEAD?

Governor Foresees Italians Weakened by Fever in 3 Months

Cairo, Nov. 16 —(AP)—With six already dead, another student riot broke out in Egypt today, resulting in injuries to eight.

The government stated in an official communique police and students had clashed at Zagazig and two students had been sent to the hospital after police opened fire at their legs.

It was stated six policemen were injured by students who attacked them with stones before the disturbance was quelled.

There was also a demonstration in Cairo which was broken up when the police fired into the air.

Cairo, Nov. 16 —(AP)— Two persons were killed and several in a clash with police Thursday died today bringing to six the number of deaths arising from anti-British demonstrations.

The city remained quiet, however, after the two days of rioting and demonstrations after the resignation of Premier Tewfik Nessim Pasha and an end to British influence in Egyptian affairs.

Influence on South

Addis Ababa, Nov. 16—(AP)—Ras Nasibu, assuming personal command of the southern front, has had directive from Emperor Haile Selassie, authoritatively learned today, to remain on the defensive against the Italians for at least another month.

He left before leaving his Provincial capital of Harar for Jijiga yesterday, this source said. He also telephoned the King of Kings and expressed the opinion the Italians would be so weakened by sickness and lack of supplies within three months they would be at the mercy of the Ethiopian army.

Victory Forecast

"If we can resist so long a small army against so large one we will be victory" Ras Nasibu was quoted.

The Harar Governor hastened to Jijiga to take direct charge of the defense of that vital point after authoritative reports expressed fear that the advance forces of Italy's southern army might soon be within striking distance.

Enraged Bull Drives 'Stagehands' to Rafters

Boston, November, 16.—(CP)—An enraged bull was the "star" attraction of a breath-taking drama at a Boston slaughter house, while the "stagehands" hung from the rafters awaiting the arrival of the "hero."

It was an unscheduled production with no admission charge except your life, if you lost your grip.

The 1,700-pound bull ran amuck while being led from his pen and forced the 10 attendants to flee to the rafters. Then, as a police lieutenant district policeman, with a few well-directed pistol shots ended the drama.

SCHOOL HOLIDAYS DEC. 20 TO JAN. 6

Shortest Meeting of Year For Educational Board Held

Members of the Board of Education held the initiation meeting of the records of their minutes at the regular meeting of the Board last evening.

In one half hour several recommendations of the committees had been approved and adjournment made.

Public schools and the local Collegiate and Vocational School following the Christmas and New Year's holidays will return to their classes on the morning of Monday, January 6, it was decided following a request made by Principal P. C. MacLaurin to set a date. In his report it was pointed out by Principal MacLaurin that James Moon, student in the Upper School had won the $100 cash scholarship prize known as the First Carter Scholarship, which is awarded annually by the Department of Education. A letter of congratulation will be sent by the Board to the brilliant scholar.

Exams in December

Fall examinations in the Collegiate will commence on December 11 and will be concluded on December 20, the date set for the closing of schools for the mid-winter holidays. It was announced.

Application by Mr. Bowerman for the position of Supply Teacher, recommended by the Committee on School Management received approval of the Board. Mr. Bowerman's name will be added to the list.

Miss Dallas Legris will also be engaged temporarily to fill the position of Mr. Archibald.

Tender for the supply of one carload of lump coal heeded at the Collegiate was awarded the Consumers Coal Company at a price of $6.70 per ton. Nova Scotia coal was specified.

In order to cover expenses of their out-of-town trip next week the school rugby team was granted the sum of $26.00 by the Board.

Needed cabinets to be used by the school nurse in the various schools, which could not be purchased for less than $11 each can be made in the Vocational School at a total cost of $10 for the four. Board members were told by Rev. Harold Reid, chairman of the Nurse's Committee. Approval of this recommendation and the recommendation that extra lamps be purchased for the offices was given.

CHICKEN THIEFS STILL CONTINUE

Henhouse of Percy Jackman Rawdon, Stripped of 150 Birds

To an alarming degree the thief of fowl in Hastings County is increasing of late. Last night fifteen thieves swooped down on the hen house of Percy Jackman, sixth concession of Rawdon and successfully made off with approximately 150 prize birds. The provincial police were notified at an early hour today and are probing all high ways in hopes of apprehending the culprits.

The night previous the fowl thieves stole 50 turkeys from the farm of Robt. Matthews, Rawdon, while previously this week the efforts of the night prowlers were centred south of Rawdon. Although provincial police patrolled highway and side roads in the vicinity of Rawdon township earlier in the night, no signs of suspicious persons were in evidence. The chicken taken from Mr. Jackman's farm in the night included a large number of Plymouth Rocks and White Leghorns.

Although no great amount of disturbance was noted by the Jackman family during the robbery certain clues were unearthed by the authorities this morning that are hoped to lead to the apprehension of the culprits, provincial police announced today.

CONSERVATIVES HOLD MEETING

More Than 200 Gather To Discuss Political Situation

For the purpose of discussing the political questions of the day over 200 Conservatives gathered in the local Conservative Club rooms last evening, when numerous speakers were heard. Owing to illness in his family W. F. Thomson ex-M.P. for South Hastings, was unable to attend, but other prominent speakers were present.

Jas. Hill, M.P.P., for East Hastings, spoke on the question of Provincial matters and also on the selection of a new leader in this province. This is to be the first Provincial-wide Conservative meeting for the choice of a leader in the near future, but I firmly believe that it might be better to wait until the termination of another session of parliament before making this choice. Mr. Hill at last night's meeting stressed the point of making too hasty a selection for this important office.

Frank McKeown, ex-president of the Belleville Conservative Club, occupied the chair, while the minutes of previous meetings were read by Secretary, R. H. Ketcheson. Charles A. Payne K.C., president of the South Hastings Conservative Club, then left an important message with the gathering in Belleville, ship to re-organizing within its own ranks. Frank Cushing spoke on the coming enumeration while George Stokes, Harry Rathbun and Alderward chairman spoke on the progress being made in their respective departments. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

NAME DIRECTORS OF COUNTY CLUB

Will Meet at Later Date to Appoint Their Officers

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Bay of Quinte Country Club Limited proved highly successful, when a banquet and the election of nine directors for the ensuing year, was held at the Queen's Hotel last evening. Retiring president, Dr. J. Thompson, was the chair, while the year's reports were submitted by H. M. Aylesworth, secretary-treasurer of the club.

A marked increase in revenue in all departments was shown over previous years, while the president's report stated that the club had enjoyed its most successful season since inauguration. The golf course was reconditioned during the spring months with the result that many keen inter-club matches were held, inter-city play predominating at the city of Quinte Golf and Country Club. The directors intimated that the club-house would be occupied during the winter months by the repeatedly organized Bell Club, headed by Dr. Jas. Thompson.

The nine directors elected to serve the club in 1936 were: Dr. J. Deacon, Jr., Jamieson Bone, R. J. E. Graham, R. G. Mafford, J. S. Burtown, H. W. Ackraman, Dr. Dr. Stobie, R. C. Parker and R. H. Martin. The above directors met for president and vice-president will be elected at a subsequent date. A meeting of directors at which time a secretary-treasurer will also be named.

WARRANT RANKS A.I.F. SERGEANTS HOLD BANQUET

Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, D.S.O., V.D., Was Guest Speaker

LADY GUESTS PRESENT

Traditionally successful in their annual effort, Warrant Officers and Sergeants of the Local Argyll and Sutherland Infantry excelled all previous attempts at their annual banquet and social evening held in the Armouries last evening.

In striking contrast to the plain khaki of the ranking officers was the more colorful attire of the lady guests present, who helped swell the total attendance to well over one hundred.

Unusual decorations all of military atmosphere lent glitter and sparkle to the tables and spacious rooms of the carpeted floors, where the tastefully arranged banquets was served by professional caterers.

Col. Vanderwater Speaks

As honored guest of the evening, Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, D.S.O., who was accompanied by Mrs. Vanderwater, and following his introduction by Sergeant Major T. Gill, chairman proposed the Toast to the King. In his brief remarks, which followed, Col. Vanderwater congratulated all present, wearing the stripes and crowns of office upon their excellent effort which had resulted in the finest annual event recorded. "Only through efficiency, the efficiency and the unity of close co-operation could this have been accomplished," he stressed.

Singing out many of the individual officers, Col. Vanderwater recalled other amusing occasions when such repeats and conviviality had been enjoyed in the background while grim war went on space. "It was on those fields of France and carnage we learned our first lesson of the necessity of that unity and co-operation," he declared.

"A year succeeds year let us keep that lesson in mind and strive ever harder to keep the same spirit alive."

Padre Payne Heard

Blessing the food following the address by Rev. Padre Beauchamp Payne, chaplain of the Unit, was later followed by a brief but stirring message for those present to recognize the duty that lies on the part of the khaki brotherhood to recognize the responsibility of keeping peace time social evenings, if only for the purpose of maintaining and fostering, the comradeship which existed in the days, when they went unfalteringly in answer to the call to civilian life, perhaps, we are bound to lose some of that spirit of brotherhood. Padre Payne declared, but soldiers can never feel that comradeship, which has been so close and so ably evidenced by those who have come "back", could ever be forgotten. This same spirit of comradeship had extended to all branches of the service, from the last staff car to the turrets of the battleships to the dock boards in the trenches.

Plenty of Entertainment

Soldiers' choruses, a social circles had such a galaxy of entertainers been secured as that provided for the entertainment, which followed in a larger adjoining room. With professional skill, Sergeant Major Wibberley of the Royal Canadian Air Force Camp contributed several witty numbers, the last of which was "The Radio Four" comprising James Bamlier, Jack Greene, Stan. Howard and Harry, Moorman. In the Radio Four Sketch, Jack Greene, (Tootsie) Clarke executed the difficult Sword Dance and the Highland Fling. Sergeant Major Wibberley selections upon the musical saw and Sergeant Major Jack Greene, the Sid Hector, soloist, Jack Greene, cornetist and James Clarke who played the piano for Scottish tunes. During the evening, Mr. Leo Riggs of Belleville, accordianist, and pianist accomlied two difficult piano specialties, while Mr. James Bamlier also gave a request solo.

Guests Welcomed

Welcome to the guests was extended Lt. Col. E. A. Geen, officer commanding the Regiment and regret at his inability to attend was voiced through proxy by Col. W. N. Ponton to whom a special welcome had been extended. Col. Ponton previously was Padre present at the meeting of the Board of Education.

During the evening the lucky draw prize, a silver dollar, which ticket was collected by Mrs. Vanderwater, was won by Mr. Cecil Pratt.

Following the vote of thanks to the entertainers proposed by Sergeant Major G. Lancaster, and seconded by Band Sergeant Leo Belanger, dancing until a late hour, concluded the evening.

STEAMER BARELY ESCAPES SHOALS

Navigation Nearly Completed For Season at Local Harbor

With propellors thrashing wildly and grey spray cascading from the sterns, the oil tanker, the Acadia-like pride of the lake line of Imperial Oil Company's boats and the burdened Sandland, carrying a cargo of coal for the local Schuster Company veered up the bay late yesterday in a dogfight to make port first.

Carrying over 300,000 gallons of gasoline for the Company's local tanks, the Acadiaville made port minutes before the second craft had rounded the dock. The arrival of the boats will mark almost the finish of the navigation season locally, although two weeks yet remain before hurricane rages on the lower lakes will rise.

Entering harbor, the Sandland barely escaped shoaling on a bar which has formed due to low water. She was reported to have left Kingston port one hour before the larger and heavier engined Acadia-

Captain Christie, Kingston, the channel pilot of the line, whose years of service on lake carriers enables him to know accurately the position of every shoal, marked and unmarked in the channels who brought the massive carrier in said the low water had bothered the boats for days. The question of whether the low water cycle was advancing was a not commended upon by him.

Current Attractions at the Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings"

AT THE BELLE
"The Three Musketeers"
Romance and Adventure Blend in Action Film

Impressively produced and superbly enacted, RKO. Radio's roadshow special, "The Three Musketeers," is now at the Belle Theatre with the full enchantment of Alexandre Dumas' age-old romance to take its place among the season's outstanding pictures.

Against an authentic background of 17th century France with the intrigue-ridden court of Louis XIII, the dark streets of Paris, the duelling grounds behind the Luxembourg, the ambushed road to Calais, the story, familiar to millions, rushes to its powerful climax in a series of thrilling escapades.

The adaptation of the tale by Dudley Nichols and Rowland V. Lee and Lee's direction have followed the unrestrained swelling pattern of Dumas. The swashbuckle, the heroics and comedy, the love affairs, intrigues, the furtive and tempestuous love-making, the adventure, comedy, and the immortal loyalty of the musketeers—all these ingredients, which have kept the romance popular for ninety years, are preserved in perfect balance.

The lead, coming as a new personality to the screen with a distinguished stage record as Dumas' swashbuckling portrays d'Artagnan with fiery conviction. His initial interpretation of the role fulfills completely its requirements of chivalry, reserved tenderness, and flashing spirit. Out of his Gascony chateau he rides to challenge high adventure and offer his sword to his King. In London womanship with the three best blades in France, Athos, Porthos, and Aramis he plunges valiantly into the affair of the queen's honor, threatened by the powerful Cardinal Richelieu.

The skill of Cliff Reed's production guidance is manifest in every detail of the picture, from the appropriate musical score, Louis Van Den Ekker's technical direction, Walter Plunkett's costuming and exceptional good photography maintain high quality.

Your old friend, Popeye the Sailor, in his new joy laugh-feature "Popeye Tests" and the Belle Latest News of the World including the wedding of the Duke of Gloucester and Lady Alice Montagu-Douglas-Scott, also intimate scenes of President Roosevelt lauding Canada-U.S. Trade Pact, and other interesting happenings.

"Way Down East" Next

Fox Film's "Way Down East," coming to the Belle Theatre next Wednesday matinee and evening, is a moving and revealing picture of simple country folk in the throes of love and presents Rochelle Hudson and Henry Fonda in the leading emotional roles. In the supporting cast are Slim Summerville, Andy Devine, Edwin Trevor and Spencer Charters.

Laughs, romance and gay adventure are revealed in "Music is Magic" featuring Ted Fio Rito and his Band. Frank Daniels and Mitchell and Durant announced as the second feature attraction on the same program.

"Truth has no fondations; nothing which admits of question. Truth is its own evidence, and it is, as truth is."—Johnson.

"The love of truth is the stimulus to all noble conversation."—Orville

AT THE CAPITOL
"The Last Outpost"
Superb Acting by Cary Grant and Claude Rains

A story of desert warfare, love, hate and tense moments, "The Last Outpost" offers you the most interesting and absorbing picture since "Lives of a Bengal Lancer". Cary Grant soars to new heights in his portrayal of a British officer of the Royal Dark Corps, who falls in love with Rain's wife (Gertrude Michael) who is a nurse in the hospital in Cairo.

Rains also is outstanding as the sinister secret service agent of the British, who has not seen his wife since he enlisted, in 1918.

Owing to the fact that Rains had saved Grant's life in the desert Grant is deeply indebted to Rains, but does not know Rains is the husband of the girl he loves.

Whilst Rains is home on leave in Cairo he learns that, with no small amount of resentment. He is immediately called back into service. As soon as possible he learns where Grant's detachment is situated.

He comes over the hills in abandoned fort in the desert and has a show down with Grant.

During an attack from the African tribesmen Rains is cut off from their regiment, Grant orders Rains to start out across the desert to warn the British Cavalry who are advancing to their aid.

Rains is killed by Bedouin but as he breathes his last breath he forgives Grant.

Which brings to end the most romantic adventure story that any patron could wish to see.

Shows, at 2.30, 7:00, 9:18. Be sure and see it.

527 Killed by Autos in Ontario in Year

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—A total of 1,108 persons in Canada were killed in automobile accidents in 1934, and 17,986 were injured, according to a revised report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Property damage in these crashes amounted to $1,284,413.

Ontario had the largest number of fatal accidents, in which 527 persons were killed, in Canada. Quebec had 374, British Columbia's list was 81, Alberta's 47, Nova Scotia's 57, Saskatchewan's 30 and Prince Edward Island's 2.

Of the killed 437 were pedestrians and 670 occupants of motor cars. Motorcyclists, bicycle riders and others made up the total.

Among those injured were 9,781 occupants of motor cars, 6,066 pedestrians, 1,042 motorcyclists and the remainder made up of motorcycles and others.

ASHES IN THE CHANNEL

Alderman Charles Bryant, Brockley road, Brockley, a former mayor of Lewisham, who died recently, left 100 pounds.

"If there is sufficient money," the will stated," I desire to be cremated and that my ashes be thrown in the English Channel from one of the cross Channel steamers between Folkstone and Boulogne, over which route I have traversed many times in my younger days to seek happiness and knowledge."

Inquisitive people are the funnels of conversation: they do not take in anything for their own use, but merely to pass it to another.—Steele.

Hibernation

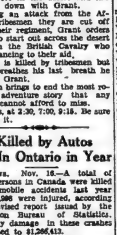
The Wisconsin lumkeeper who has just retired to bed till April says that he learnt the habit from the bears. There are climates, not to many one wishes, which do not deserve the compliment of being risen for every morning. Men go to sleep in the presence of bores and nobody thinks the worse of them. When the winter is being a great bore, should the same conduct be thought eccentric? Yet hibernators have to fight for the right to hibernate, and must suit the long cloaker with their contented heads in order not to hear the names that come their way.

At first glance nobody could seem less offensive than to spend six months in bed giving much less trouble than when awake. But the gesture is not admired. In the main women are hostile since it deranges all their nice plans for turning out different rooms on different days of the week if there is one room which must be tidied past till the great day comes when it can be spring-cleaned at long last and is trend-end. Men are cursed, their sole commercial interest is against it, and invents furnishing words like refrigerators and apathetic collapse. When so many millions are being spent annually to make people more and more alive to the indefinite character of health, it is indeed able to think of great comfortable men asleep alike through the Christmas shopping exhortations and the January sales.



If only it could be made much more expensive, staying in bed would have the merit literally. But the Worshipful Company of Bedstead Makers are alone in a world full of hungry authors, who expect the winter to be devoted to their fat work, and dislike upstairs and parlour-game inventors, all of whom have calculated on a dressed and watchful public, rather bored and eager for occupation. Opinion is much divided whether life is shortened by too much time in bed. One school says that the human being was made to fight mastodons and brontosaurus and only himself when in peril and stress. The other says that every thing lasts longer by being kept carefully, as the human body as much as anything else. Neither party brings conviction and both are wrong. But the latter is the more misleading hibernators, who have only in chaque the nightmare habit and they need few additional to mend each.

VOYAGE OF ABUNDANT LIFE

Fellow-students are wondering what Rudy Greisheimer does with his spare time. The Associated Press, A Miami University Junior, he works fifty hours a month for Uncle Sam through the National Yeouth Administration, puts in twenty-four hours as an assistant in the Department of Physics; spends five or six hours a week grading papers; acts as office boy for a cub journalism frat house; and finds carries twenty hours of classes, which enables another twenty-hour course; plays in the university band—and habitually makes straight "A's" in all his studies.

Mrs Art Wilson and son David, of Rochester, N.Y., are visiting Mr. Wilson's parents, of Queen Street.

Mrs. John McIntosh, Sr., left yesterday for Montreal, where she will visit her daughter, Mrs. H. M. Zimmerman, for a short time.

Miss Marjorie Doolittle, nurse-in-training at Belleville General Hospital, returned yesterday from the Alexandra Hospital, Montreal, where she will taking an additional course.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fleisher of Belleville were recent guests of Mr. and Wesley Rochester, Campbellford.

Mrs. Dr. Moore, of Belleville, a visitor at the home of Rev. . . . O. E. and Mrs. Reddick, Campbellford, during the past week.

The condition of Mr. Ray Arnott, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at Bellleville General Hospital this week is satisfactory.

Word was received in the city today of the critical illness of Mr. James G. Elliott, Tweed, at his home. Mr. W. R. Tummon, ex-M.P., is a son-in-law of Mr. Elliott.

An enjoyable and well attended euchre past was held last evening at St. George's Sunday School under the auspices of the Sunday School teachers. Prize-winners were: ladies' first, Mrs. Ellis; second, Mrs. Neale; third, Mrs. Mott; men's first, Mr. A. Rayner; second, Mr. Chicknore; third, Mr. Young. Delicious refreshments were served after the games.

BUTTER PRICES LITTLE HIGHER

Dunnet Fowl, However, Principal Item on Local Mart

A considerable surplus of produce in cellars and root houses and barns throughout the rural sections and a willingness on the part of local residents to buy advantage of the steady prices at present combined to make Saturday's market a largely attended one.

Prices were firm and little increase or decrease over those asked one week ago was noted. Butter, however, showed an increase of 2c per pound in price, a few cases of creamery going the hood at 35 cents for the two pound roll, or 30 cents per pound. Dunnets also point to a rise in price in the commodity owing to the increasing scarcity of broilers.

A perfect Indian air was given the market by the appearance of turkeys in some quantity. Prices for this fowl were variable, ranging from $1.75 to $1.90 per pair. The latter price was being held by its owner at a price of $2.15. The more humble children sold at from 50 to 90 cents, ducks found a few buyers at from 75 cents upward. So I says shorn-ed little change in price at from 38 to 40, while pullets' eggs were retailing at 32.

In the vegetable section nearly all staple roots remained the same as last week's prices. Onions, parsnips, carrots, turnips, beets were all easier to hand vegetables retailed at the basket or by the peck at an average of 40 cents per peck. Potatoes ranged from $1 to $1.10 per bag.

Fish prices are due to rise owing to the influence of outside markets, the warmed weather setting while fish at 15 cents per pound, herring at 3 for 25 cents, suckers at 5c for 25 and mud cats at two pounds for 25 cents.

In the live stock section prices are up and in the case of cattle and beef are due to increase in price on live weight. This is declared due to the influence of the reciprocal trade pacts, it was stated. Beef this week had increased 50 cents per hundredweight, live, and pork 36 cents, live. Little pigs found trade ceasiliary at a price of from $9 to $10 per pair.

Apples, one of the most plentiful offerings on the market, remained consistent at from 35 to 40 cents per peck according to variety.

"The G-MEN of the Desert", Cary Grant and Claude Rains as they appear in "The Last Outpost" showing at the Capitol for the last times tonite.

ROGER PORTRAIT NOW COMPLETED

Artist Puts Humorist on Canvas as He Recalls Him at Studio

New York, Nov. 16—Howard Chandler Christy has put the final touches on the portrait of Will Rogers as he recalled the humorist's last visit to his studio.

It was last Spring when Mr. Rogers, just before leaving for California after a brief visit to New York, dropped in for a call at Mr. Christy's studio, 1 West Sixty-seventh Street.

As usual, Will Rogers was in no serious mood. He had been recognized by the driver of the taxicab, who had told him that the address given was the Hotel des Artistes and that it was "full of artists".

"He was a pretty decent fellow," Mr. Rogers remarked. "You ought to warned me what I was gettin' into."

Mr. Christy, standing before his portrait of the smiling humorist, laughed as he recalled that visit still so vivid in his recollection that it seemed hardly more than a few weeks ago.

"It was a desire to record these recollections before they waned that led Mr. Christy to paint the portrait. He had planned to make a likeness of Mr. Rogers from life in California, but no definite date had been set and each had in mind that it could be done at their mutual convenience.

"To freshen his memory in planning the portrait, Mr. Christy referred to photographs and cancellated Mrs. Rogers' characteristic attitudes of the late humorist. A background was chosen of bright blue sky, only partly dimmed by clouds, because Miss Sky, and sunlight symbolized to Mr. Christy the cheerfulness that Will Rogers radiated.

The humorist is shown wearing a dark blue shirt with a newspaper and a raincoat under his left arm, emblems as he had just thought of another witticism.

"This portrait is to be shown to the public on Thursday at the Fifth Avenue branch of the Grand Central Art Galleries, 1 East Fifty-first Street, after a private opening the preceding afternoon. It will be one of a number of portraits and figure paintings which will constitute Mr. Christy's first one-man show in ten years.

The artist, now white-haired but full of energy, expressed the belief as he looked at some of his recent paintings and compared them with his pictures of beautiful women of a generation ago, that "women remain the same; only styles change; the chief difference between girls today and years ago is the difference one made by more outdoor exercise."

Hiccoughs for Week After Cold Goose

Ottawa, Nov. 16—Alex. Siversky, 19, of Hallleybury, today ended the hiccough week of a goose hunting attack that started, his father said, when he shot a duck from a canoe. Numerous remedies have brought him no relief.

Siversky, in hospital here, first tried to cure himself by drinking large quantities of cold water. Other remedies suggested included: Swallowing small quantities of salt at intervals; pulling the tongue out as far as possible, drinking a glass of beer, and causing the patient sudden fright, putting fingers in his ears and drinking a glass of water, drinking a mixture of pepper, sugar and water, taking a tablespoonful of mustard mixed in water.

It is not officially recorded that Mouloo Emebete is serving the military of the flying fleet of the negus, but Ethiopia has for long accepted woman as the equal and partner of man in the business of war, and there is no reason to believe that proffer of her skilled services would be refused by her emperor. In the picture Mouloo Emebete is shown seated in the cockpit of the plane as Colonel A. G. Robinson, negro flying ace from Chicago, assists her in adjusting her flying gear.

GOOD INCOME IS AID TO HEALTH

Scientist Asserts Economic Security Big Factor in Health

New York, Nov. 16.—A concept of public health work in which economic security is considered as a disease, preventive was presented by Isaac Goldberger, scientific director of the Milbank Memorial Fund, at a luncheon meeting of the medical social service section of the Welfare Council at the Hotel Astor. Mr. Sydenstricker spoke on "Current Trends in Public Health."

"Society has a basic responsibility for assuring all its members healthful housing, a reasonable degree of economic security and adequate medical care," he said. "Such a concept postulates no special system of government."

Mr. Goldberger, in changing conception of the scope of public health work, at first limited it to cleaning up filth, later broadening to its medical aspects and now expanded to social responsibility.

Good Advice Not Enough

"To what avail is it to send a nurse to instruct a mother when that mother cannot afford a physician?" Mr. Sydenstricker asked. "What good is it to teach a mother when an economic barrier stops her from adopting the measures?

Mr. Goldberger said that as a preventive measure he would put economic security first, whether obtained by social insurance, old-age pendons or a wage increase.

Preventive medicine, in addition to health," he continued. "We know that certain types of housing breed down the resistance to disease. We should regard housing as a definite preventive measure in the public health field."

Including other fields such as nutrition, physical training, family limitation, population control, etc., Mr. Sydenstricker said, these measures obviously have real significance from the point of view of health service. It is time to consider this whole problem in a larger way."

Dr. J. A. Hartwell, director of the Academy of Medicine, who was asked to comment on Mr. Sydenstricker's talk, although not a scheduled speaker, said the purpose of all health agencies was to keep the individual in the best possible state of health and then add:

"How far is society as a whole concerned with the health of the individual? The trend today is to realize that the illness of an individual is the concern of the community. All are concerned when an individual stops being productive."

"Truth should be the first lesson of the child and his last aspiration of manhood."—Whittier.

Obituary

S. E. BALKWILL
(Tacoma)

Tacoma, Washington, Nov. 13 — Samuel R. Balkwill, prominent in the fraternal, civic and industrial life of Tacoma during most of the 48 years since he came here, died of a heart attack at his home, 1024 North K street, late last Sunday night.

He was 80 years old.

Mr. Balkwill had been injured in an automobile accident on October 30, from which he had suffered an internal hemorrhage. He was believed to have recovered from that, however, although he had borne evidences of advancing years and had been living in semi-retirement for some time.

Born in Devonshire, England, in 1854, Mr. Balkwill went to Belleville, Ontario, when he was 18. He was identified for a time with the telephone company in Canada and in 1887 came to Tacoma. Here he was interested in the steel business for years and also in the real estate business under the firm name of Morrison and Balkwill in the early days of this city.

Identified with various Masonic bodies, Mr. Balkwill was treasurer of Afifi temple of the Shrine for nearly 40 years.

He was a charter member of Tacoma Consistory, Scottish Rite Masons and also of the York Rite bodies, State Lodge of Perfection, St. Gomer Council and Red Cross of Constantine.

His wife died several years ago. No close relatives live here. Buckley-King will make the funeral announcement.

Mr. Balkwill married Miss Anna Maria Corbett of Kingston in 1886. Belleville, where they lived for several years and where both were well known.

Carcher Questioned By Toronto Police

Toronto, Nov. 16—(CP)— Fresh developments lent new interest today to the razine murder case as police questioned the man to discover if he had any connection with the death of Ruth Taylor on Nov. 4.

At central police headquarters, questioning of 19-year-old Robert Carcher, arrested at Trenton, Ont., Monday, was started. Carcher, charged with assault by Trenton police, was brought here after telling authorities he was in Toronto the night Miss Taylor was brutally killed.

He has pleaded not guilty to the charge against him at Trenton.

2 KILLED WHEN CAR HIT BY TRAIN

Young Couple Are Hurtled From Machine by The Impact

Iroquois, Ont., Nov. 16.—(CP)—Dr. R. H. Marcellus today was scheduled to open a coroner's inquest into the accidental death at 11 p.m. Canadian National Railway crossing here last night of Earl Perry, 21, and Velda Rite, 17. The young people were killed when, startled out from the Rite residence for Morrisburg, the car in which they were driving was crashed into by a westbound freight. The fatality occurred about 1½ feet from the girl's home.

Perry, who was driving, was crossing the tracks, his view of the approaching freight apparently obscured by houses when the locomotive smashed into them. The girl was hurled from the car, her body being found about 30 yards from the scene of the accident. Perry was carried about 200 yards down the track. Death in both cases was instantaneous.

The youth was a native of Cardinal while Miss Rite came from Morrisburg.

GALT TERRIERS OUT OF SENIOR O.H.A.

Galt, Ont., Nov. 16 (CP)—Galt Terriers have withdrawn from Senior O.H.A. competition this year, Brantford Club was slated to open their home season against the Galt Club next Saturday.

Several promising players have been lost by the Galt Club during the past season or two. Those included Lefty Lisconbe who went to Hamilton Tigers a year ago and the season was ranged by Detroit Olympics; Lee Chisholm who went to Oshawa a year ago; Hugh Cassidy, imported by Oshawa; Slats Johnstone whom Tigers got this season and Ron Douglas who answered the call of the north.

WARKWORTH YOUTH WINS

Cobourg, Ont., Nov. 16.—(CP)—James McGeary of Warkworth won the County of Northumberland public school 'aggie' 4-H school children from nine to 14 years of age. This is subject to "The League of Nations". Second was Earl Minor, Haldimand township, third, Hilda Shemeer, Murray Township and fourth, Donna Gibson, Brighton Township.

Belgian Financier, Emil Francqui, Dies

Brussels, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Emile Francqui, 72, noted Belgian financier and industrialist, died today.

Francqui, regarded by the Belgians as a financial wizard, began his career as an army officer.

It was he who, in 1906, gained the Belgian Congo for King Leopold II by leading a Belgian expedition into Africa. He became known as "the Copper King of the Congo".

Among the many financial periods of last year he maintained the Belga coin on a par standard as financial dictatorship of his nation.

PLEADS GUILTY

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 18.—(CP)—Charles Brown, brought back from Montreal, pleaded guilty today to stealing $1,000 into the John Duff store and to stealing the safe from the premises, which he later found stealing a car. He was remanded a week for sentence.

Brown was one of the bandits who was pursued by a police car from Hamilton to Toronto and in which an hour rale.

POLICE BLOTTER

Found abandoned on Front Street, a coupe, bearing Ontario license number 'F-518, was taken in by local police for safe keeping early this morning. The authorities report that the ignition has apparently been stolen in Kingston and abandoned here. The license plates were stolen in Kingston, it was announced. The recovery of the car was reported to the provincial authorities.

Somewhat transients and one less desirable occupied the cell blocks at the police station last night, the latter having allowed their liberty this morning, however. The alleged drunk was arrested in a local restaurant late last night after he had refused to pay for a meal which he ordered and later consumed. A charge of intoxication was laid.

A rear end motor accident, in which no person was injured, however, was investigated by Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Irvine at 11 p.m. last night, two miles east of Shannonville. One automobile was parked on the side of the road, where a right rear tire was being changed by the owner, Vernon Lachance, Toronto, when a second car, proceeding in the same direction, crashed into the rear of the Lachance car. The car that is alleged to have hit Lachance's car was owned and driven by Miss Kelinet, of Shannonville. The front fenders and radiator of the Kelinet car were badly damaged during the impact. Charges are pending further investigation, Officer Irvine announced this morning.

Board Room Gossip

INTERNATIONAL NICKEL

Reports per share earnings of 50 cents for third quarter, making total of $2.14 for first 9 months. Earnings were well above expectations.

WAYSIDE

Milling operations expected to begin next week. Mill has a capacity of 100 tons daily.

MORANDA MINES

Reports earnings of 68 cents a share for the third quarter as compared with 58 cents a preceding quarter and 56 cents in the March quarter.

Monday is expected to prove a very interesting market session. The details in connection with the reciprocal trade treaty between Canada and the United States will be made available and a large number of securities are expected to reflect the tariff changes contained in the official announcement.

The market rise has added many hundreds of millions to the public's purchasing power. For example, General Motors alone has added more than $1,000,000,000 to its market value since the early summer. This increased buying power is reflected not only through the purchase of additional securities, but finds an outlet in every line of business.

CANADIAN INDUSTRIAL ALCOHOL

Financial interests have received a large number of enquiries in the past week or so with reference to the wide spread in the price of Canadian Industrial Alcohol "A" and "B" shares. The difference of about two points in the price is not warranted as has been pointed out, both securities are entirely similar with the exception that the "B" shares have the right to vote. As control is held by the Davis family, the "A" shares are comparatively little importance.

It is understood that several bonded houses are recommending a switch from the "A" into the "B". The reasons are known as the "A" shares at 12 enables one to purchase 120 of the "B" shares. Dividend payments, both securities rank equally. In view of this there appears no logical reason for the wide spread.

TORONTO MINES
(Closed)

Toronto, Nov. 16 (CP)—A generally firm price tone ruled on the mining section of Toronto Exchange this morning, although trade was light with trading slow except in a few of the gilt-edged issues.

Gods Lake lost 5 cents and Teck Hughes was off slightly.

Noranda was up a cent or two were McWatters, Central Patricia and Dome added a cent or two each.

Little Long Lac and Buffalo-Ankerite closed on the up side. Pioneer gained a cent while Base Metals, Hollinger and Lake Shore recorded fractional losses.

Trading was at low ebb in the oils, Home Oil, Spooner Oils and Chemical Research at 80 was up 3.

LAST OFFER MADE TO EARL SEIBERT

$6,000 For Season is The Most Rangers Will Pay

New York, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Earl Seibert's version of his holdout difficulties with the management of New York Rangers has shattered the deep silence shrouding the controversy insofar as Ranger officials are concerned.

Wendt Seibert, chosen for the right defence position on the Canadien Press National Hockey League all-star team last season, outlined his side of the squabble in a statement at Kitchener 2 days ago and claimed the Rangers manager, instead, were doing the holdout act not Seibert, he drew from Lester Patrick, Ranger manager and king of Madison Square Garden, a lengthy and illuminating reply.

The big shortstop, according to Patrick in an interview with the New York Daily News demanded $6,000 for the 1934-35 campaign, although the league cap is $5,000. When he continued to hold out Col. John S. Hammond, a member of the board of the garden, capitulated with a compromise.

The Daily News said that the compromise, according to Patrick, was that Seibert would get $7,000 while another $1,000 was paid to the youth's father, ostensibly for benefiting.

With this arrangement, the big Hurt announced he was satisfied and slid into uniform.

$6,000 Cut This Year

The Rangers cut him $6,000 this year, according to Patrick, explaining: "So he home in Kitchener, Ont. Seibert promptly sent it back with a demand for $6,000 for the season. The Blue Shirts could struggle along without his services.

Patrick, very chary discussing the Seibert case up to yesterday, moved in for the kill in a dispatch from Kitchener, in which the recalcitrant star was quoted as saying the Rangers were holding out on him and he was ready to go to work as soon as they did the right thing.

"Maybe Seibert should organize a team of his own and play in the St. Louis Eagle franchise," snorted Patrick. "Their roster offered him is munificent compared with league salaries, I know at least one man in the league, who are far better than Seibert and who are getting a lot less."

The Rangers need Seibert, there's no doubt of that. Firing Johnson's leg injured seriously last year, isn't what it should be and if he can't figure there is adequate replacement, But Lester declared he had made that last offer and he wouldn't capitulate.

TORONTO DUKES ON TRAIL AGAIN

Defeat Hamilton 4-1 to Open Senior O. H. A. Season

By The Canadian Press

Toronto Dukes, remnants of the famous old Granites, will start the senior O. H.A. title last spring were back on the trail today, having picked up on where they left off. The Toronto team won the O.H.A. championship by beating Ottawa Flyers and they opened the new season in Toronto last night by trimming the Wanderers 4-1.

In a game that produced close checking in every period but the second, the Dukes coloured the ice with goals in every scoring period but the second stanza. Church, Oliver, Grivel and Bowman scored for Toronto, and Jim Primeau, Joe's brother, for Hamilton.

In the other senior section game Port Colborne and Oakville Villans played a 3-3 tie at Port Colborne. The sextuth, fleet Villans rallied twice to pull up to even terms, the second time in the 10-minute overtime. But they couldn't get out in front.

In the opening game of the week-end group, Niagara Falls blanked second Brantford 3-0 at the Falls. Cooper and Webster fired Niagara Falls to a second lead in the first stanzas, but the Cataracts came back steadily, finally scoring on Darragh's tally early in the third period.

HOCKEY RESULTS

The scores of hockey games played last night were:

Senior O.H.A.

Toronto Dukes 4; Hamilton Tigers 1.

Niagara Falls 3; Brantford 2.

Many to Break Training After Gridiron Games This Weekend If Their Team Not on Right Side

Boys Will Be Able to Have a Real Square Meal

MANY TO GRADUATE

Queens And Varsity Will Lose All Their Best Football-ballers

Toronto, Nov. 16.—Some pretty good football players will break training tonight by various methods including the cap-apple-with-whipped-cream system of kissing the gridiron good-bye and the frosny, frolicsome years in the wilderness the old calze-and-ale effect.

When Queen's has finished clinching as Toronto's slippery running halves in Varsity stadium here, the sun will be settling beyond barrel trees and it will be time to tear up training-table menus. This will be the prerogative of the losers, who will end a gastronomical truce called to gridiron.

Some of the steadiest, fightingest players of the year will be through about Queen's pal to stop them in the intercollegiate play-off. Johnny Mimico, Curly Krug, Harry Sonshine, Ed Barnable, Jack Hamilton, Reggie Barker and Charlie Peck are prominent among those scored for tonight.

From the Kingston contest with Rangers, Hawks will still be without Lorne Chabot, but Conacher will be called to worry Manager Clem Loughlin. Chabot, however, is confident a satisfactory Loughlin is planning to give Chabot all the rest his injured knee requires.

Many Graduates

It would be no surprise if the title-aiders don't lose, in which case Warren Stevens would release from duty such gridiron greats as Bert Oja, Coulter, Hughie Marks, Joe Connelly, Mike Valentine, Ike Isbister, Stan Cleary, Jack Holden and Gus Greco, among the greatest players Varsity has collected in years.

Coulter, who is unquestionably the year's best centre-back, will be a loss to another this time next year. Today he plays his last intercollegiate game on the same day as last game on any gridiron. What seems more likely, however, is that the Toronto dynamo will be playing with Argonauts or some other Big Four team next fall.

Down in Sarnia, the Imperials and Balmy Beach will accomplish only one-half of the O.R.F.U. play-off arrangement. There won't be a general head-taking from training on that front until next Saturday.

Two Teams Out.

But Ottawa's Roughriders and the Wanders of Montreal are through. They hope to go out of the Big Four picture in literary fashion if they don't they will take away some outstanding football individuality.

The great man of the Roughriders, Abe Elkovitz, will depart again before the interdivisional battling gets under way. No matter how good the former Ottawa star's powerhouse has been, Ottawa has been unable to beat Hamilton and Argos when victory was needed. It wasn't the fault of Abe, one of the most ornamental figures in the football east.

Pat Ryan, ace of the Montreal backfield, will finish his first Canadian season, having proved himself a capable all-round fighter. Argos will be back next Saturday if they can beat Ottawa today, and Tigers will be back, too, if they upset Montreal. It's on the cards that they will.

PRESENTATION OF STANLEY CUP TO MAROONS TONIGHT

Montreal And Boston To be Contestants in Game

A FEW MISSING

By A. F. FULFORD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A gentleman who has more than a bowing acquaintance with Lord Stanley's mug, Tommy Gorman will unveil his 1935 edition of the world champion Montreal Maroons at Montreal tonight and look on at the presentation of the Challenge Cup they won by beating Toronto Ace last spring.

It will be nothing new to Mr. Gorman who has watched three other teams be managed accept the trophy since 1920 but Montreal fans will thrill to their first sight of the old emblem since Canadiens won it in 1930. League President Frank Calder also will present the memento awarded to the world titlists.

Hovering in the back of the picture will be Frank Patrick and his Boston Bruins, ready and ready to spoil the opening night for Maroons as soon as the puck is dropped.

Among other things the game will mark the final league appearance of Bruins as well as Maroons, the last teams of the eight in the National Hockey League to enter competition. The schedule, started more than a week ago, finally gets into its stride this week-end with four games scheduled.

Rangers in Toronto

At Toronto tonight New York Rangers, beaten 3-1 in their home game Thursday, will attempt to reverse that decision. New York Americans open their home season in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night against Montreal Canadiens and Rangers swing on from Toronto to Chicago for another contest to-morrow evening with Black Hawks.

The same Gorman-Arbour rivalry Bruins tonight will be little changed from the one that won him the championship. Alex Connell won't be in goal because he has to look after his job in Ottawa but another player from the Capital, Bill Beveridge, will take his place.

Gorman has decided on a new policy of carrying two utility men, Joe Lamb, obtained from St. Louis and Bill Miller, signed last season. As he can only keep 15 players, one of the two will see much of the campaign from the reserved seats if Bill Cook and Joe Lamb stay healthy.

Herbert and Barry Missing

The familiar figures of Nels Stewart and Marty Barry will be missing from the Canadiens lineup. Nels has gone to New York Americans and to Detroit he has the rebuilding Patrick thought necessary, Cooney Weiland, the boy who was to be back in the Bruin lineup with Teddy Graham and Bill Cowley, late of St. Louis Eagles and Jenkins former Canadien.

Rangers and Leafs at Toronto still minus Earl Seibert, stubbornly holding out for more money, and Harold Starr, the Injured Leaf. Both Leafs are in good shape apart from Frank Clancy, who has been kept from conditioning himself by training injuries.

From the Chicago contest with Rangers, Hawks will still be without Lorne Chabot, but Conacher will be called to worry Manager Clem Loughlin. Chabot, however, is confident a satisfactory Loughlin is planning to give Chabot all the rest his injured knee requires.

By RAY COLLETT

In Ottawa, they back in 1903, they christened him Francis Michael Clancy, but on the ice a few years later he was rechristened "Hap". And Hap he still remains though he's served longer in the N.H.L. than any other warrior and though other defencemen tower over him like a castle over a hut, the diminutive Michael Clancy—we mean Hap—is of Ottawa Senators, but now of Toronto Maple Leafs, is still a topnotch defenceman, though he stands only five feet seven inches high and weighs a total of 155 pounds; which actually diminishes as the hockey season draws on. Weight is just a minor consideration to the Hap who has taken as much punishment as any man who ever strapped on skates and while absorbing it in second more points than the average defenceman ever existed. In 1928-30, wearing Senatorial garb, he notched 17 goals himself and let his buddies score 28 more than that passes and the 45 points that came of scoring are the league's best record for a rearguard. Ottawa folded up shortly after the Hap left. At that it cost Toronto about $60,000, the most of it in cold cash, to put a ling on their roster and that, too, a league record. But though Leafs had to dig that gold up when times were already getting tough, they still are chuckling over the deal. They figure that Clancy earns the charge to set off any other dynamite they can locate and nobody yet has ever licked the speedster. Once they carried him off, but Doug Young of Detroit failed to knock him out in the scion in a collision first. It was in the Stanley Cup series of 1934 and Leafs still swear it cost them the mug.

SIXTO ESCOBAR BANTAM KING

Defeated Champion Lou Salica In New York

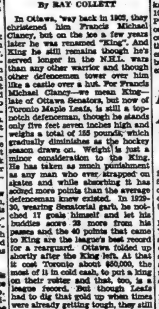
New York, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Sixto Escobar of Puerto Rico, 117 3-4 pounds of fighting fury, today was king of the bantamweights.

The little fellow belted his crown from the cocky brow of Lou Salica of New York in Madison Square Garden last night, carrying the battle into it in a fashion to leave no room for dispute.



For 15 rounds, Escobar, weighing 3-4 of a pound more than his opponent, played a steady tattoo on the features of the game entertained New Yorker, intermittently crossing over right hand smashes that at times had Salica in a bad way. The Associated Press score sheet gave the Puerto Rican 14 of the 15 rounds.

It was a series of right crosses that dropped Salica to his haunches in the third round and the New Yorker seemed it best to stay down for a count of nine before going to the most another storm of leather.

Had Opposition Ended

In the fifth, Escobar had his adversary groggy with a series of uppercuts and rights to the body that he cut his nose with a left jab, repeatedly he streamed from the champion's face without a return.

Salica, despite the loss of his waning strength in the ninth round and sailed in with one intent, to land a knockout punch. But both bands to the jaw with all the power he could muster, backed Escobar to the ropes and kept drifting. He kept up the barrage through the 10th and part of the 11th but the Puerto Rican took everything without flinching. Salica finished the uppercut with savage body blows that had staggered Escobar at angles. The latter was a weary and battered fighter when the Texcin ended the fray.

Notre Dame and Army Receive Top Billing

New York, Nov. 16.—(AP)—The football legions of the United States swing into action again today with the prediction of the outcome of many of the games left in the balance.

Top billing was given to the Notre Dame-Army game in the Yankee stadium where 80,000 persons are expected to see the two gridiron attempt to stem the Irish and Cadet tide in the south, the west and the southwest, aggregations of nicely balanced power were set to decide many of the issues.

Marquette, with definite Rose Bowl aspirations, faces Dartmouth Warner's Temple team to assess his united, unbeaten record. Down North Dakota, the big scrap between the North Carolina Universities and Duke with eye on the Rose Bowl, tangle with a Duke team that is ready to give everything it has in victory.

The unbeaten record of Syracuse, six jaunts over with Andy Kerr and his Colgate Red Raiders in the offing, but Dartmouth was determined to stop its unblemished record intact against Cornell, as Pennsylvania was expected to send a substitute team against Lehigh.

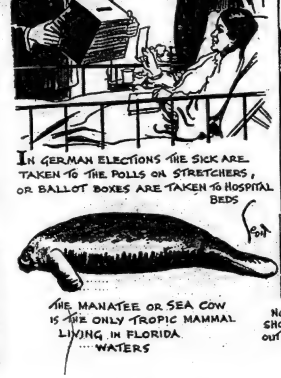
Who ever started the rumor about town to the effect that there will be no ice made in the Belleville Arena this coming winter apparently is labouring under an erroneous impression. To definitely contradict this rumor, Manager George Guy today said—"By all means we are going to make ice in the Arena this winter, weather permitting we will commence freezing just as soon as the mercury drops to the right degree before the freezing point." So that's that.

Under the direction of Instructor Ralph Harden the annual fall boys' basketball league will get underway at the Y.M.C.A. next week. Already Mr. Harden has four teams lined up for this league and expects enthusiastic support from the youth. Providing this city league produces sufficient support a second league will be picked and entered into the Ontario Association basketball organization for the intermediate series. Last year Belleville was in a long-up league with Kingston, Queen's, R.M.C. and Napanee and doubtless the same clubs will be back again this year.

When the Belleville gridders take to the field at the Fair Grounds tomorrow afternoon for this city's tennoon, they will be minus the services of Jimmy Rigby, the steam-roller lineman. Rigby injured his shoulder in Monday last Monday and from the diagnosis stated last night he would not take further chances with Rigby's wing or shoulder. "Hot Dog" McCrary is slated to make his last appearance of the season in a local uniform this afternoon, while we understand Coach Kennedy intends seriously considering injecting himself into the line-up. Incidentally it is rumoured about town, that Coach Kennedy will perform either this afternoon or next Saturday versus Cobourg, thereby qualifying for a possible playoff game. Should Coach Kennedy plays this afternoon he can absolve his critics of lack of courage him in his efforts. Incidentally the locals practiced under the light of street lights at the Collegiate campus on Thursday evening. The Orfuns are expected to be speedy team that reverts to aerial attacks in the first part of the game while the locals stick mostly to power plays.



By popular request the local amateur wrestlers are staging another card at the Arena on Tuesday night. The first wrestler did not prove any too great a financial success, but the enthusiastic crowd that did attend the affair were loud in their praise of the surroundings and gave these present a bang-up show some time ago. Although it is said we heard the entire card the worst six bouts will be presented, as the six minute bouts and five over the 30 minute route. Incidentally the semi-final and final affairs will be the best two out of three falls, while the other bouts will be one-fall bouts. Steve Taylor, local professional grappler is personally trying these wrestlers and spends exactly three nights a week with them at the Arena. The boys and sponsors are pulling hard and really there is more fun and excitement derived from a wrestling card than there is at some of the pro bouts we have seen of late. Tuesday night. While speaking of pro wrestling we are glad to announce that the promoters have signed up Ivan Mickaloff for future bookings. Followers of big time wrestling in Belleville will recall Mickaloff some years back and also will realize his popularity. If the local amateurs book-up with the Russian prospect, Belleville fans will see some real clean-cut wrestling. We hope that the fans will fall in line and support the venture. A double-header would not be amiss we'd suggest.

CONSUMERS' TARIFF ON BOTH SIDES OF LINE AIM IN MOST SWEEPING OF TRADE REVISIONS

FOREST, FARM AND SEA TO BENEFIT UNDER PACT; CANADA CUTS AUTO TARIFF; U. S. MAGAZINES FREE

Every Canadian Citizen Influenced By Most Sweeping Tariff Revision Ever Effected Between Canada-U.S.

Terms Become Active From January 1st For Three Years

AIMS TO CUT COSTS

Productive Industry Considerably Aided by Treaty

Ottawa, Nov. 18.—(CP)—Reduction in customs duties on almost the entire range of United States commodities entering Canada, and reductions ranging up to 50 per cent. in the United States tariff on a wide list of Canadian trade products, were effected in the Reciprocal Trade Treaty made public yesterday.

Hailed by the Bennett Government over a year ago and swiftly concluded in the Ministerial negotiations at Washington ten days ago, the Trade Agreement was described by President Roosevelt as likely to result in "nothing short of a new economic era" between the two countries. Both he and Mr. King hailed the agreement as a further step along the way to a freer exchange of goods.

Passed upon the pleading by each country to the other that the benefit of their most-favored nation tariff treatment, the agreement gives United States Canada's intermediate tariff rate or better on some 750 "tariff items." Canada, for her part, terms with any which the United States affords to other foreign countries plus 98 special concessions.

AUTOMOBILE MEN DEFER COMMENT

General Opinion is That Industry Will Suffer

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 18.—(CP) — While no official comment was available today from the heads of automobile companies concerning the new motor car tariffs, it was the consensus among the leaders in executives the reduced tariff is bound to react against the industry in Canada.

It hurts, but we'll just have to grin and bear it," was the attitude one official. Another said: "We'll have to study the whole thing over and see just what it all means, but we do I'm hoping for the best."

Wallace H. Campbell, President of the Ford Company of Canada, Limited, and Hugh Mackenzie, President of the Chrysler Corporation of Canada, Limited, both said they wished to examine all the details of the treaty, particularly the matter of Canadian content of cars and parts manufactured here, before making any remarks for publication.

The Ford treaty does not become effective until the start of the new year will have a depressing effect upon the sale of motor cars, it is believed. Many prospective buyers will be inclined to wait to see what happens to the prices, it was pointed out.

There was a division of opinion among automobile men on the parts end of the treaty. Some thought parts manufacturers would stand to benefit, others fear reductions in tariffs on certain products would tend to let manufacturers import parts from United States, in which event the parts men would suffer.

On the other hand, it is necessary to have a high Canadian content before cars are made for export to some of the British Dominions. These cars will still have to be made of parts produced in Canada to qualify for entry into the Dominions.

One of the brighter spots for the automotive men is the hope that throughout the concessions granted farmers, ranchers and lumbermen they may increase their buying power. The market for automobiles in this country will be enlarged to the benefit of the trade.

HOUSEWIVES BIG WINNERS UNDER NEW TRADE TREATY

Agreement to Benefit The Consumer on Both Sides of Line

CARS TO BE CHEAPER

Tariff on Magazines Removed in Its Entirety

Ottawa, Nov. 19—(CP)—This Canadian housewife may be one of the big winners under the Canadian-American trade treaty, the terms of which were announced here yesterday. It should give her all sorts of cheaper goods, ranging from electric refrigerators and automobiles to vegetables, fruits, magazines, pens, pens and many other goods.

The treaty evidently was negotiated with the idea in mind of benefitting consumers on both sides of the line. Housewives, no matter they generally handle the purse-strings of the family, may reap the biggest benefit, providing the tariff reductions are passed on to them.

The housewife may buy for the family automobile but she often influences greatly the purchase of it.

The United States agreed:

To grant reductions in Canada on 79 major commodities which amounted do two-thirds of American's imports from Canada in 1929.

Concessions Given

FREE ENTRY FOR KNOWN TOURIST

Goods to Value of $100 Cannot be Brought in by Border Residents

Ottawa, Nov. 17 (CP)—The provision for $100 free entry of goods as issued for the Duke of Kent and not for the special benefit of people living in border parks, said H. Scully, Commissioner of Customs, when asked for a clarification of that item in the Canada-United States trade treaty.

It would not mean any changes in the size or nature of the Customs Department, he said, but it probably would mean extended changes in the department's procedure. A new system would have to be worked out for checking the time limit. The problem of the department would be to guard against abuses. The daily shopper or smuggler would have to be watched.

J. D. Goodnow, Deputy Collector of Customs for the United States, stationed at Ottawa, said that the concession to United States tourists re-entering their home country was unlimited.

Interpretation of the regulations he read and it left much to the discretion of the customs officer at the port through which the resident is entering the United States, he said. The practice is that so long as the purchases are solely incidental to the trip abroad the entry was not refused, however, the customs officer held the trip was made with the sole purpose of making purchases, he would levy duty.

Length Not Regulated

There is no regulation covering duration of the visit abroad. Formerly there was a provision that the trip must be at least one or four days but this had been cancelled. Residents returning to the United States, he said, could claim exemption on goods to the value of $100 once in each 30 days. The exemption was that any one exemption claimed could not be applied for more than once in that period.

According to terms of the the agreement goods imported under the provision of the section as "substantially equivalent" to the way it now is interpreted in the United States.

Only provision in the United States law regarding tobacco is that tourists returning home may bring in to the United States 300 cigarettes, 50 cigars and three pounds of tobacco purchased abroad without liability subject to internal revenue tax.

Wait-and-See View Voiced Upon Tariff

Manufacturers, importers and business houses of the city after a preliminary survey of the new reciprocal trade agreement between Canada and the United States were adopting a wait-and-see policy before committing themselves to any statements being questioned on the matter.

The Daily Ontario Intelligencer this morning.

Among the exporters, however, the agriculturists, the raw products and livestock and dairying division of the district a better feeling of optimism and hope was noted.

"This much is certain," declared a prominent economist of the city, "Belleville people perhaps will pay less for books and magazines and a few other items, but they will also pay more for local bootlegging, their tobacco and a good many other things. The Act, as I see it, is primarily designed to help the agriculturists of the country more than it will the average people, but if it helps the farmer, the city will also benefit considerably. This is especially true as Belleville is a natural trading centre".

Belleville local manufacturing concerns will feel any immediate bearing of the new agreement, it is believed, by the minds of many. In the absence of General Manager W. E. Rowsome, officials of the local Stewart-Warner Alemite Corporation were reluctant to discuss the enactment. "It is a little too early for us to make a statement. We can't just say anything yet," it was declared.

Although a conservative tone was noted at the office of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company, Limited, one of the largest manufacturers of its kind in the British Empire, it was definitely agreed that some benefit is expected to result following the new pact.

"It is a little early yet to make any definite statement, but you can say that we expect and are looking for better business," declared Mr. Le Porte, general manager of the plant. "We may just get rid of certain how it will affect us."

It is known that considerable stores of matured whiskey are held at Corbyville, and, following the terms of the Act, the duty is taxed from $5.00 to $2.50 per gallon on entry, under the Act, this will result in heavy shipments from the local plant.

Magazines and periodicals will be cheaper in Belleville in the opinion of Mr. Gayle Levis, local bookstationer. This opinion is shared by Mr. Geo. Finch, bookstand owner etc.

Economic Siege of Italy Begins as Sanctions Fall

Feeling Runs High in Italy Against Powers

AIM TO END WAR

(By GEORGE JORDAN)
Associated Press Foreign Staff Writer

Rome, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Blackshirt troops brought home to Rome and other Italian cities today enthusiastic they were under an economic siege by the League of Nations sanctions, approved by 51 nations, took effect.

Whole quarters were mobilized to parade in protest the British Embassy and those of other nations participating in the sanctions drive, in an effort to hail Italy's warfare on Ethiopia.

Youths began parading be-flagged streets early, voicing indignation and fury at "ignominy and iniquity" on which the league powers had placed Italy. Hatless goods and denied a selected list of key foodstuffs.

Police and Fascist party authorities allowed no limitation of exercise this extreme expression of resentment but indicated plainly they intended to protect foreign diplomatic missions.

Embassy Guarded

Three machine gun artillery at the Porta Pia accessed to guard the two main approaches to the headquarters of the British Embassy. British Ambassador, but actually there were standard precautions of war.

Strong bodies of tin-hatted infantry stood guard.

Double and triple ranks of blackshirt militia in serious uniform stretched across the nine streets leading to the Embassy. Places where the Spanish Embassy to the Holy See and the British Consulate are also located.

Long line of riflemen were thrown around the Palazzo Venezia where the French Prix de Rome artists live. Blackshirt militia, however, left the flags still flying, did "business as usual."

Students Stirred

Students furnished the greater part of the public demonstration. Shouting, "Italy will not accept with sanctions," but they found time to shout, "Down with Eden, down with England."

Hundreds of flags signalized Fascist Italy's "implacable resistance" to sanctions.

The controversy arising from Italy's war in Ethiopia came to a climax as economic penalties approved by 51 nations went into effect against the declared aggressor in the East African hostilities.

Italy met the challenge with a promise of reprisals, a series of self-imposed sacrifices and a younger generation prepared to prosecute the forbidden conquest, as well as the banner display, ordered throughout the kingdom by Premier Mussolini.

Il Duce summoned the Fascist Grand Council to meet in Rome tonight to go into the details of Italy's resistance.

WARNING ISSUED

Coburg, Ont., Nov. 18 (CP)—Artificial respiration was applied continuously over the status of Roy Berry, allegedly John Hilliard of Ottawa who played with the Ottawa Rough riders rugby team this season, came today in a warning by President W. A. Fry of the Amateur Athletic Association of Canada to all amateur athletes not to compete with or associate with member of the Ottawa team until the club clears itself of suspicion.

51 NATIONS HOPE TO HALT WAR

By G. H. ANDERSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov 18 (AP)—League of Nations' economic sanctions, approved by 51 nations, took effect against Italy today in an unprecedented effort to force a halt to war.

These nations virtually severed financial and trade relations with the invaders of Ethiopia, pledging themselves to exclude Italian goods and withdraw their funds and aid in supplying Italy with a selected list of war materials.

Theoretically, the economic blockade was imposed at one minute after midnight (5 p.m. today). It developed that legal aspects delayed application of sanctions in Spain where decrees forbidding imports and some exports were still to be issued.

Portugal Takes Lead

Portugal took the lead, closing its frontiers to Italian goods and halting export of raw materials which might aid her military effort early 9a Saturday.

Switzerland, Spain, faced a possible delay in enforcement of economic sanctions while the government was reduced, if not eliminated, by publication yesterday of boycott decrees.

These decrees, set forth in the initial financial and economic boycott of all Italian goods except money, gold, silver, books, newspapers, and medical supplies, and of all Italian territories. Exportation of raw materials, including oil, coal, iron, manganese, rubber and aluminum likewise were prohibited with a check on trade to be maintained by licensing of importers and exporters.

ENTENTE WRECK CONSPIRACY AIM SAYS PROSECUTOR

Murder of King Alexander First of Series of Planned Slayings

TERRORISTS TRIED

Foreign Ministers Marked For Death at Same Time Charged

(By Robert S. Parker, Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Aix-En-Provence, France, Nov. 18 (AP)—The assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia in Marseille in October 1934 was the first of a series of planned murders to wreck the Little Entente, prosecutor charged today as the opening day of the trial of 10 alleged Croatian terrorists charged with taking in the slaying of the Monarch.

Dr. Edouard Seres and Nicholas Chichkowsky, members of Chichkowskaia and Rumania respectively, were marked for death at the same time, his charge stated, for their part in building the Entente together. Yugoslavia is the third power of the Entente.

He named as the conspirators the Ustachi, a terrorist band operating in Yugoslavia under the alleged protection of Italy. Swindler, on trial by default in the present

The three defendants in court—Mlle. Kras, Pan Radich and Svonimir Pospechil—are accused by police of membership in the Ustachi. The assassination of Foreign Minister Barthou of France, shot to death by Dimitrov Vellichko, Alexander's slayer, also was part of the conspiracy the prosecutor said. Dimitrov officially welcomed Alexander to France.

Georges Kerabona, Paris attorney engaged by Croatia of Pittsburgh, Pa., declared for the defense the Yugoslav government had blocked the "long planned conspiracy" of the King's assassination by depriving a prominent witness of his passport.

It was also said in defence circles the French police had advised the United States authorities to investigate the Pittsburgh connection of Croats who are paying for the defence.

TRAIN PLOWS INTO CAR, ONE KILLED

Four Taken to Hospital After Accident Near Carleton Place

Carleton Place, Ont., Nov. 18 (CP) —One woman was killed today and four others injured, two of them critically, when a Brockville-Ottawa Canadian Pacific Railway train crashed into a car on the Ottawa, Carleton Place Baptist minister, demolishing the car and the six occupants, one of whom died.

Mrs. Edwards was killed. Her 11 year old son, Donald, was critically injured and her two daughters, Dorothy and Emily suffered minor injuries. Mr. Edwards and Mrs. W. A. Sherry of Carleton Place, received slight injuries.

The party was enroute to Smith's Falls where Dorcas Edwards, a nurse in training at Hotel Dieu hospital, was boarded a train to be with her duties after a holiday. Dorcas, 21, and her brother, were rushed to hospital in Ottawa, the girl suffering from concussion of the brain and a broken right thigh.

Emily Edwards the second daughter, was cut by glass and suffered severe shock.

Donald was thought at first to have suffered only minor injuries but the left and shock he received aggravated spinal injuries complaints, which had made him an invalid for some time. He was suffering from a lung hemorrhage when sent to Ottawa.

An inquest will be held in Mrs. Edwards' death.

NEW NATION BORN UNDER JAP AEGIS IN NORTH CHINA

Mighty Military Machine of Japan Will Dominate

INDEPENDENCE NOV. 20

Nanking National Government Powerless to Oppose Creation

By GLENN BABB
Associated Foreign Staff

Tokyo, Nov. 18—(AP)—Japanese dispatches from Peiping and Tientsin unanimously and unreservedly announced tonight that a new nation, that of North China, will be born this week.

These dispatches, by the Rengo Agency among others, state the new nation, the Manchukuo will be created under the protection - - of Japan's mighty military machine which the Chinese National Government at Nanking is powerless to oppose.

It seemed likely five more provinces of China would follow the lead of the five Manchurian provinces which at present form Japan's protectorate, the empire of Manchukuo.

Rengo and the newspaper Asahi confidently predicted the declaration of independence would come on Nov. 20. The new puppet State, Asahi said, will come Nov. 22. It was stated the new nation will be made up of Hopeh, Shantung, Shansi, Chahar and Suiyuan Provinces.

The socialism of these five provinces totals approximately 96,000,000 persons.

If and when this population becomes a Japanese protected community like Manchukuo's 23,000,000 inhabitant, it will mean that Japan has been instrumental in wresting from Chinese sovereignty an agregate of hitherto luxuriously approximately 125,000,000.

As to whether the Japanese government would recognize the new North China government, a spokesman said:

"It depends upon the nature of the new government and the circumstances surrounding its establishment."

MOULDERS ON STRIKE

Woodstock, Ont., Nov. 18 (CP)—Some 80 moulders and other workers employed at the Canada Stove Foundry Company here are on strike, it was learned today. The strikers, it was said, are demanding a 25 cent per hour increase and rejecting compromise offer of the management of a ten cent increase.

WEATHER

Toronto, Nov. 18 (CP)— The weather has been mostly fair and cold in the Western Provinces and cloudy and warmer in Ontario, with northeast winds and gales with snow and rain probable this morning. From the St. Lawrence Valley eastward to the Gulf of St. Lawrence, the weather has been mostly cloudy, partly cloudy and comparatively mild.

Kenora and Rainy River: Partly cloudy but much change in temperature.

Manitoba: Partly cloudy and becoming somewhat colder; probably colder snowflurries.

Saskatchewan: Mostly cloudy; partly cloudy and cold.

Alberta: Partly cloudy and cold.

Boy's Head Pierced by Handle of Door on Car

Murray Davis, Trenton, Killed Near Carrying Place

SCARED BY DOG

Trenton Nov. 18 — (Special) — Ivald farm, about half way to the John Davis, a resident of Northumberland County near the Murray Canal, was struck by a car driven by Earl Snyder of Carrying Place, and almost instantly killed about 10.30 a.m. The boy was proceeding to the Carrying Place school with his two brothers. When near the Pitzgerschool, he darted across the road and struck the side of the car, which was proceeding toward Trenton. The boy's head struck the protruding door handle piercing his head that caused his death soon p.m. in the Town Hall.

after his arrival at the office of Dr. Johnston in Trenton. The driver stopped the car less than eight feet according to witnesses, that were nearby, and which included Freeman French and Bentley Weeks of Concoran. It is alleged the boy was chasing a collie dog and caused him to start across the highway. Provincial Constables of Belleville and Chief William Bain of Trenton investigated. Snyder was not held after the investigation.

Coroner Dr. E. A. McQuade was called and ordered an inquest. The jury is composed of Jamie; Grainger Forrman, Thomas Taylor, Charles Allore, Gerald Newton, William House, Walter Galnsforth, George Cobley and A. C. Twiddy. After viewing the body at McNair and Northey's Funeral Home and the scene of the accident, they adjourned until Thursday evening at 7.30

CHIMNEYS ON FIRE DO LITTLE DAMAGE

Four separate fire alarms caused a minimum amount of damage last the week end. Three answered on Saturday, one to a residence at 184 Metcalfe Street east, and one at 61 Albion street were caused by blazing chimneys. The third, a shooting in an old fashioned hot stove, said to have been filled with soft coal instead of hard, and the fourth, a grass fire, was reported smouldering in a third storey on Saturday, but was discovered on Sunday by one call who responded to a "phantom" alarm. Damage in the various cases was reported slight.

JUDGING CHEESE AT ROYAL WINTER FAIR

James L. Irwin, Dominion dairy trader, of the local office left this city on Sunday, for Toronto where he will be engaged for the first three days of this week judging cheese exhibits in connection with the Royal Winter Fair.

ROBBERIES BELIEVED WORK OF TRANSIENTS

Believed to have been the work of transients, a large quantity of foodstuffs were stolen from the Hudson St. residences on Saturday night. Provincial Police are investigating. During the absence of the families, robbers first entered the home of Mr. S. Bonisteel, 184 Hudson, and stole four loaves of bread, four pounds of butter, cakes and all the food they could left in the house. The Bushel family had gone into Belleville to complete their weekend shopping. Entrance was made through the rear kitchen window, Provincial Constable John Kelly announced after investigation.

Later in the night a vacant house, owned by a Mrs. Davis and directly across the street from the Bushel home, was also entered and ransacked, as the occupants of the house are away at present no check-up as to the amount of the missing goods could be procured. Both robberies are believed to have been committed by transients who are continually pass through Belleville on certain days, however. Officials are on the vicinity of Donald St. Provincial Police are continuing their investigations, however.

B.C.I. AND PETERBORO TO PLAY IN COBOURG

Coach Lester Shiels, of the Belleville Collegiate junior basketball team, and Coach Ken Hall, of the town of Quinte group, announced as soon today that in all probability the first round O.G.A.A.A. playdowns between Peterboro C.I. and Belleville C.I. would be held in Cobourg on Gaudy game in either Cobourg or Belleville, most likely Cobourg however The game will be played on Wednesday, and the visiting team is scheduled to appear on Thursday on Saturday for the O.G.S.A.A. senior semi-finals.

HUNDREDS OF TOYS ARE COLLECTED BY THEATRE

A dejected goliwog poked a worn head from underneath a heterogeneous pile of discarded toys that overflowed from the upper fire hall this morning among the hundreds of others that littered the floor of the station awaiting the first of the repair work that will be performed on the articles by the firemen, in order to have them ready for Christmas distribution to the children of needy residents.

Hundreds of toys were received from hundreds of local children at the regular Saturday morning matinee for them arranged by the management of the Capitol Theatre, with a toy, broken or new, as the only price of admission. It is estimated that between 800 and 1000 children attended the show. Only a few were, a very few, did not have some sort of offering as their admission, but many other little ones who could not scrape up the necessary article were not denied the privilege of witnessing the show along with the rest of them. A note of thanks is expressed to Manager Marks and assistants by the firemen for their assistance in arranging the show.

BOATS REMOVED FROM WATERS OF HARBOR

Boat owners of the city whose craft was still bobbing at anchor in the local harbor over the week-end were notified on Saturday that they must remove their craft following a slight clean-up of the harbor waters early Sunday. Today a thin glaze of ice covered the upper section of the harbor and drive for the safety of the craft in temperatures on Sunday night.

WILL BE CANDIDATE— IF NOMINATED

"You can say that if I am nominated I will run. But I do not intend to engage in any intensive campaigning, or make any promises to anyone. If the people wish me to run as a Liberal candidate and they indicate their desire to support me, then I will offer myself for election this year," declared Mr. Laurie Lewis, Front street stationer, this morning.

"When a man offers himself to the electors I consider his duty done. After that he should not be forced to commit himself to anything other than his announced platform. My platform, a carefully considered one, will be given the electors later, in plenty of time."

BRINGS OUT TROPHY OF CHASE BY MOTORCYCLE

When an out of town motorcycle enthusiast decided to go deer hunting in the northern part of this country this week, all that was needed was the addition of the side car to take him into the woods and bring out the game.

Pedestrians in the downtown section of the city on Saturday afternoon were amused to see a large buck deer strapped securely to the side car of the motorcycle parked at the curb in midsection while the owner of the machine indulged in a hasty bite at a nearby restaurant.

THOS. PATTERSON GIVEN 7 DAYS

Traveller Found Guilty of Intoxication in Charge of Car

Thomas Patterson, Kingston travelller, who was arrested in Belleville on a charge of being in charge of a motor car, while intoxicated on the night of Nov. 6th last, was found guilty as charged, when he appeared in today's local police court and received the conventional seven days in jail as his sentence, while he also will have to pay the costs of the proceedings, Magistrate Butler ruled in today's court.

Patterson was arrested and appeared in court on Nov. 7th and pleaded not guilty, the case being enlarged until today. At that time Patterson made headlines, for mounting that he tore from the door on the cell block and later burned on the floor of his cell, causing considerable excitement at that time in the police station.

Patterson pleaded not guilty to the charge when he was read this morning. P. C. Arnott who arrested the accused man, testified that he found Patterson in charge of the car, and that he was staggering. "When I got him to his hotel I asked him for the keys, but he could not find them" added the officer who was certain that Patterson was in no condition to drive a motor car. Chief Constable Ponton also was called and claimed Patterson to be abusive, when he arrived at the police station. "Why he pulled some mouldings off the door on his cell and started a fire on the floor," declared Chief Kidd. In his testimony Patterson claimed that he was only waiting for a garageman to come and drive the car for him. Mrs. Ethel Cushing, counsel for the defendant, brought out a technical point in defence, claiming that the arrest was under the observation of the police officer, Constable Arnott, but on his reply B. C. Donnan K.C., local crown attorney claimed the police no doubt exerted a serious accused by arresting Patterson. Prior to finding the accused man guilty His Worship pointed out that the law pertaining to intoxication while in charge of motor cars was quite rigid, a further being considered in charge of his automobile regardless as to whether he was in the vehicle or merely adjacent.

THANKS!

THE BELLEVILLE ROTARY CLUB wishes to extend thanks to all who helped to make the Rotary Edition of the Ontario Intelligencer a success by taking advertising space, and also to those who contributed cash-donations to the Crippled Children Fund. That the Rotary Campaign for Crippled Children has been very successful thus far is a matter of congratulation to all concerned, and is a message of hope and cheer to all children, sick or crippled, within the scope of the work of Belleville Rotary Club.

Belleville Rotary Club also wish to extend special thanks to the Proprietor of the Ontario Intelligencer for the cordial co-operation, which proved a large factor in the success of the Campaign,—also to the staff of the Ontario Intelligencer for the co-operation and efficiency which resulted in the production of such a splendid Rotary edition.

TUESDAY IS ROTARY DAY

One more request remains to be made in behalf of the crippled children—Tuesday is Rotary Day when all Rotarians and their friends and all friends of sick and crippled children are earnestly requested to do some extra shopping—patronize the stores which advertised in the Rotary Edition of this newspaper, thus showing the proprietors thereof that their generosity has been appreciated.

REMEMBER ROTARY DAY TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 19.

Children's Books on Display at Library

Children's Book Week which begins today is being observed at Carty Public Library and, to call attention to the special period a display of books has been arranged on a table on the second floor. Beautiful picture books are included in the artistic exhibit which is receiving the awed and wistful admiration of children and praise of their elders. Library patrons should not fail to see this interesting collection. The story books of today are such lovely volumes. with charming illustrations designed by well known artists that they are worthy additions to home libraries even where they are not little ones. With the Christmas season approaching and parents or benevolent aunts and uncles looking for something different in the way of Christmas books, this display will be particularly helpful and inspire all sorts of ideas for gifts. To aid those interested, Miss Ethel Adams, librarian, will be very pleased to give advice on books for children and will devote mornings and the hours from 1 to 2 in the afternoon to those who wish to consult her on this subject.

O. E. S. NO. 55 HOLD MEETING

Initiatory Degree Exemplified And Social Evening Follows

The regular meeting of Belleville Chapter No. 55 Order of Eastern Star, on Friday the 8th, was one of special interest to the members who turned out in large numbers, and also to the visitors present from Oshawa, Toronto, Wellington and Minerva Chapter, Belleville. The important ceremony of initiation was exemplified by the Worthy Matron Mrs. Ethel Adams, Worthy Patron Mr. Basil Ainsworth and their officers, the excellence of which was voiced by the visitors. When the business was completed a very delightful Remembrance program was presented, Mrs. Thelma Liddle and her committee, the address given by Rev. Newman Pyle to a veteran of the Great War was enjoyed by all, also the instrumental numbers by Messrs. Lennox and Templer, and readings by Mr. George Cornish. Mrs. Susan Chesney and her group provided the gathering with delightful refreshments before the parting hour and all were home by the wee small hours, voicing the oft heard expression 55 excels in hospitality and entertainment.

109 ANNIVERSARY OF ST. ANDREWS IS CELEBRATED

Rev. W. J. Walker, Pastor, Heard at Both Services

MUSICAL PROGRAM

The congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church celebrated the 109th anniversary of the founding of the church on Sunday and also the 40th anniversary of the opening of the present edifice. It was a great day in the life of Presbyterianism in this city and large numbers were present at both services, the pastor, Rev. W. J. Walker being in charge. The chancel and the pulpit were tastefully decorated with seasonal blooms and against the sombre black of the choir gowns made an imposing scene. At the morning service, Rev. Mr. Walker before delivering the sermon read an accurate account of the life of the church printed in the issue of the diary of 1835, called Bellingener, which related the incidents particularly to the opening of the new edifice and the present church, 40 years ago.

Under the direction of G. L. Bender, choirmaster, the choir gave a most delightful service of song. In the morning the anthem "Come Holy Ghost" by Ebley was sung with Miss Dorothy Sager of Tweed taking the solo parts. Miss Sager's delightful and clear voice was heard later in a solo entitled "Voice in the Wilderness" In the evening two anthems "Gloria" by Mozart, and "Angels Ever Singing" by Bortnaskie were sung and at the close of the service and in honor of the anniversary three musical numbers were given, including a solo by Miss Sager, a violin duet by Miss Hervey and James Allison with organ accompaniment and a tenor solo by Mr. Owen of Napanee. Many of the congregation remained for the song service.

Rev. W. J. Walker in opening his morning sermon thanked God for the kindness, that had been extended to him since he took over the pastorate and believed, that real progress had been made and a contribution made to the Christian life of this city. His sermon was based on the subject "Christ" and in the evening the subject was "Conflict with Christ." He urged on the congregation to keep faith with Christ, who had identified in the cause of Christ in the congregation throughout the years, that have passed in history, and who helped to make Christianity something in the life of community.

COURT JUDGMENT

His Worship Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., today issued his findings in a case heard in the City County Police Court during which a charge of reckless driving was laid against Owen Foster, Sidney. After considering the evidence submitted Magistrate Butler in the case of accident during which a motor car driven by Mr. Foster collided with one driven by Mr. Hendrick of Frankford, collided with a motor cycle, and the charge against Mr. Foster. The judgment handed down by Magistrate Butler was:

Judgment

In this case of Hendrick vs Foster, the evidence consisting of some forty pages, has been very carefully read. There was no doubt that the dangerous driving under Sec. 24 of the Highway Traffic Act, 1927, is the evidence. It is completed by the complainant's evidence corroborated on the Highway leading from Frankford to Foxboro on the night of April 30th, and that Foster was driving on the right side of the road, which, although a slight curve in the road, as he was going westerly, and the cars coming from Foxboro to Frankford in front of Hendrick's car colliding with the rear of the motor car Hendrick, contends that Foster was on the centre of the road and crowded Hendricks beyond the curb. Thus causing the collision. Foster contends that he was on the right side of the road, and from this position from the time he saw the car driven by Hendrick until the collision occurred, Hendrick was driving carelessly and at a moderate rate or speed and that Hendrick's car was coming very rapidly. When the collision occurred, Hendrick says he called his father at Frankford, who came down to the accident shortly after, and went back to Frankford and called Constable Sweetman, who found on arriving at the scene, it was out of his jurisdiction, and called a provincial officer at Belleville, who gave him instructions as to noting tire tracks and measuring said marks etc., but he then returned to the accident and made the measurements himself. It is stated by the witnesses that many people had gathered there and cars had been passing, without the accident. It was quite dark and the measurements were taken with the aid of a flashlight. Ordinarily it is my practice to give weight to the testimony of traffic officers, as they have experience in dealing with such matters, but in this case, I regret, however, a very serious objection to giving credence on the road measurements in this case because Hendrick moved his car according to the evidence of his father, because he thought it was on the centre of the road. See Question 17. I do not think he had any right to move the car at all and how he moved it and what distance seriously affects the case. Consequently I dismiss the case on these grounds. Mr. Foster might give heed to the statement of the traffic officer to wearing a coat shield at night.

POLICE COURT

Stanley Archer, 17 year old local youth, pleaded guilty to charges of breaking, entering and theft from a Milnes St. residence when he appeared in today's police court held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C. Archer's two accomplices had appeared in a previous court and were sentenced to three months in the Ontario Reformatory. In view of the circumstances young Archer was given the same sentence.

Two, who were arrested on Saturday night, pleaded guilty to charges of intoxication today. Both informed the court they were in no position to pay the minimum fine of ten dollars and costs. The sentence of the court was ten days in default of the imposed fine. The youth took the jail sentence.

E. Dunn, local trucker, paid ten dollars and costs after pleading guilty to a charge laid under the H.T.A. Dunn admitted operating a truck without the proper brakes in good working order.

A charge of theft of lead from the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company, Cortryille, laid against Gordon Stapley, 18, was enlarged until Friday, the prosecution being absent when the charge was laid in custody. At the termination of the court session Stapley was lead in custody. At the termination of the court session Stapley was lead in camera, a local youth being charged with the theft of a watch. The matter was enlarged, the youth being placed in the custody of T. D. Ranger of the Children's Aid Society.

Joseph Novotny, 42 year old transient with no home, claimed he was sick when arraigned on a charge of vagrancy and was given medical attention with him and his case was enlarged for one week, during which time he will be given medical attention at the County Jail.

EVERY CANADIAN CITIZEN

The only reservation in this respect is that which preserves the Empire-Trade Agreements and the treatment United States affords her island possessions . . . Most-favored nation treatment to all under reference nations outside the British Empire and apart from United States possessions, as far as the procurement is concerned.

Effective for a certain term of three years as from Jan. 1, 1936, and subject to six months' notice of termination in any normal event, the Treaty carries a provision whereby it may be terminated or revised with thirty days notice under extraordinary circumstances of International exchange or failure to carry out its provisions.

Benefits Influenced

The lives of pocket-books of every Canadian citizen will be influenced by the changed tariff rates, and hundreds of United States manufactured articles of every day use, sporting goods, household appliances, luxuries such as motor cars and radios, will be affected to some degree. Most things, which go into the making of a home will be affected to some extent by downward revisions of the customs rates.

Canadian Protective Industry, Agricultural and Industrial Alike, and to some extent mining, will be aided by lowered United States rates of duty. This applies particularly to lumber, livestock, cream, cheese, potatoes, fruits, vegetables, fish, whiskys, some non-metallic minerals, chemicals, fresh and frozen halibut salmon, cod, most species of fresh-water fish, pickled or salted salmon and herrings, and smoked herring, seed potatoes, and some manufactured articles including cooking stoves and ranges, pipe organs, hockey and baseball equipment, and commodities in which hydro-electricity constitutes a large element in the cost of production. Quota provisions are applied to livestock, potatoes, cream and some lumber grades.

What Canada Gives

Canada accords intermediate tariff rates on a great variety of commodities manufactured there and free entry of all periodicals and newspapers, and free entry of oranges for the months of January, February, March and April.

Machinery of production in a wide range, textiles and fabrics of all kinds, clothing and haberdashery, semi-tropical fruits and numerous vegetables are to enter Canada at more advantageous rates as well as marble, granite, roofing, bituminous and a wide range of novelties.

Motor cars will enter under the intermediate tariff rather than general, a saving that may be passed to Canadian consumers ranging up to 10 per cent. Gasoline will be lower.

Neither wheat nor copper play any part in the agreement, although it had been anticipated in some quarters that they would. Cod and haddock are also left out because of the distressed conditions among United States fishermen and the strong argument against any lowering of the protection they enjoyed.

All articles on the free list and of which the two countries are the chief sources of supply are for the other, to be "bound" to the free list for the duration of the agreement.

Assist Agriculturists

This maintains the free entry of newsprint, pulp and pulpwood, which have been big items in Canada's exports to United States.

Several rates reduced by United States implements of production were described as of benefit to agricultural, mining and industrial interests and to effect a lowering degree the less of protection on the finished product. Thus if there is a loss because of the lowered tariff on automobiles and radios, it will be offset to a considerable degree by the lowered import duty on parts of those commodities and the machinery used in their production.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King, hurrying earlier than he had anticipated his pre-election promise to conclude the agreement "before snow flies," signed the official text in Washington Friday last. Saturday he went to Georgia for his long-promised holiday.

Conformity of the trade negotiations carried on for some weeks prior to the election and based upon the Bennett Government's offer made a year ago, was not broken off when conferences were resumed under the new government. But there were additional clauses and concessions brought in.

Seek Parliament's Sanction

The same personnel officials who opened negotiations before the election, concluded them.

Coincident with publication of the treaty it was announced the Government would seek Parliamentary action to carry out its policy of eliminating the practice of fixing valuations for duty purposes, and also to obtain for Canadian tourists in United States permission to bring of home goods from that country up to the value of $100 without duty.

HOUSEWIVES BIG WINNERS

Fruits

Everything in the fresh vegetable line, from 20 to 15 per cent but this reduction will be effective only, when there is no Canadian crop.

Oranges Free for 4 Months

Oranges will enter free during four months of the year and then the grapefruit duties were cut from one cent to 1-4 cent a pound.

It may be safe for this Christmas but big duty on nuts, shelled and unshelled, were reduced.

Canned fruits for which Mackenzie King has been praising Canadian editions of magazines would likely withdraw their business as it no longer would be necessary to print in Canada.

Two Million Invested

W. M. Philpott, Toronto, General Manager of McFadden publications and Vice-President and Manager of Liberty Magazine in Canada, said the treaty was "most unfair" to Canadian publications of American magazines. McFadden publications had $2,000,000 in capital invested in Ontario and Quebec, where eight magazines were published. Liberty would continue to be printed in Canada on its present basis, he said. Plans to publish Esquire in Montreal also would not be affected by the tariff change, it was said.

Steelmen Cautious

With an eye to the effect of the tariff changes respecting automobiles and manufacture of other machinery, spokesmen for the basic steel industry were cautious in their acceptance of the treaty.

"Objects of the treaty" said Hon H. McMaster, Montreal, president of the Steel Company of Canada, "will meet general acceptance. The interests of our primary producers are all-important. An increase in the purchases by the United States from Canada would appear inevitable, having regard to the extent of Canadian obligations held in that country. Naturally, the basic steel industry will be affected should the position of its customers in non-competing countries be menaced".

Eastern potato growers and shippers hailed with enthusiasm the reductions in the U.S. tariff on seed potatoes. A. D. McCain, vice-President of the Associated Potato Shippers of New Brunswick, at Florenceville, N.B., predicted a boom in the seed potato business next year. "It will help the provinces wonderfully," he said.

Enhance Fish Values

Mr. McCain said he thought it possible that many potato growers in the province would plan to have seed stock comprise half their crop. He had not expected reductions to extend to table stock and thought it best because it would avoid conflict with Maine producers.

The reduced duty on Canadian whitefish will enhance values but will not increase shipments, in the opinion of William Schlezer, Edmonton, manager of McInnes Products Corporation, Ltd., one of the largest fish dealing firms in Alberta. The tariff reduction of one quarter of a cent a pound will provide Alberta fishermen about $16,000 a year, R. T. Rodd, Director of Fisheries for Alberta, said. Alberta ships about 3,000,000 pounds annually, valuable to the U.S. each year.

The 20 per cent slash in duty on smoked herring was seen last night by John F. Calder, Fisheries supervisor for Southern New Brunswick, as a great benefit to the island of Grand Manan, near President Roosevelt's summer home on Campobello Island. Pacific coast and Nova Scotia fishermen are expected to reap most from the lowered duty on halibut.

Canners Are Divided

At Hamilton, Can., two leaders in the canning industry were divided in their opinion of the effect of a one cent a pound reduction in duty on U.S. canned vegetables entering Canada.

"We are selling canned vegetables cheaper now in Canada than they are being sold in the United States" said W. R. Dyman, general manager of Canadian Canners, Ltd., "so I do not see that we have anything to fear from this change."

Wilson A. Crockett, official of a company which cans various vegetables, declared the news was "terrific" for the canning industry. He feared the duty reduction would be a signal for American canners to dump their surplus in Canada at prices which would make it impossible for Canadian firms to compete successfully.

A general good cheer was reported evident among farmers as a result of the decreased duties on many types of farm machinery.

"It is a substantial step in the direction we have been asking for years," said Norman Priestley, Calgary, vice-president of the United Farmers of Alberta.

Toys to be Cheaper

At Toronto heads of two of the Dominion's leading department stores agreed, that reduction of from 40 to 30 per cent in the tariff on toys would mean fuller stockings for children on Christmas Day. Burton of the Eaton Simpson Company, and Col. Harry McGee of T. Eaton Company, in effect, both said they were looking to Santa Claus to supply them with an extra large bag of gifts this year.

Fruit and vegetable importers exchanged today expressed disappointment, that Canada had not made further concessions in the United States in the matter bringing in U.S. produce. Little change to the consumer would be reflected in the tariff changes, one Toronto importer said.

CANADIAN TREATY REACTION

Reduce Price to U.S.

The probability of a reduction of $1.00 a bulk in the price of Canadian Whisky to American consumers was held out today by leading Distillers in Toronto as a result of the reduced 50 per cent cut in tariffs of liquors and wines in wood as least four years.

H. C. Hatch chairman of the board of Hiram Walker-Gooderham and Worts, Ltd., said he believed the change opened a market in the United States for a substantial portion of the 30,000,000 gallons of more-than-four-years-old whisky now held in stock by Canadian Distillers,

John E. Sayre, president of the New Brunswick Forest Products Association, speaking at Saint John, N.B., predicted increased lumber cuts in the East this season. He said that with the increase of Construction work in the United States the volume of business from Canada imports to the south should share in the rise, with imports on Canadian lumber cut in half.

Stable Market for Year

H. L. Sargent, Secretary of the Canadian Lumbermen's Association at Ottawa, said the agreement assures the Canadian lumber industry of a stable market for the next year. He added he believed the increase in increased employment would be felt more strongly in eastern Canada than in British Columbia.

At Calgary leaders in the Province's industry expressed satisfaction at the tariff concessions.

"Splendid, wonderful", was the sentiment of Jack Byers Secretary of the Western Stock Growers' Association. It will give an outlet for lots of cattle. We have been pressing for concessions for the last five years."

Mr. Byers said most cattle shipped from Alberta weigh more than 900 pounds and will receive benefit from the reduction in tariff of from three to two cents a pound for livestock over that weight.

Else to Publishers

"By the tariff changes $250 will be added to the value of every carload of cattle," said Mr. Byers to Canada," said W. B. McLennan, ranchman of Bindloss, Alta.

Publishers of Canadian magazines, and Canadian publishing houses, who were printing United States magazines took the removal of duties on the latter as a distinct blow.

H. D. Tyrrell, General Manager of the MacLean Publishing Company, Toronto, largest magazine publishing house in the Dominion, said the agreement undoubtedly would create disappointment in the industry. Mr. Tyrrell presumed that the Canadian firms for which Maclean's had been printing Canadian editions of magazines would likely withdraw their business as it no longer would be necessary to print in Canada.

Two Million Invested

W. M. Philpott, Toronto, General Manager of McFadden publications and Vice-President and Manager of Liberty Magazine in Canada, said the treaty was "most unfair" to Canadian publications of American magazines. McFadden publications had $2,000,000 in capital invested in Ontario and Quebec, where eight magazines were published. Liberty would continue to be printed in Canada on its present basis, he said. Plans to publish Esquire in Montreal also would not be affected by tariff change, it was said.

Steelmen Cautious

With an eye to the effect of the tariff changes respecting automobiles and manufacture of other machinery, spokesmen for the basic steel industry were cautious in their acceptance of the treaty.

"Objects of the treaty" said Hon H. McMaster, Montreal, president of the Steel Company of Canada, "will meet general acceptance. The interests of our primary producers are all-important. An increase in the purchases by the United States from Canada would appear inevitable, having regard to the extent of Canadian obligations held in that country. Naturally, the basic steel industry will be affected should the position of its customers in non-competing countries be menaced".

Eastern potato growers and shippers hailed with enthusiasm the reductions in the U.S. tariff on seed potatoes. A. D. McCain, vice-President of the Associated Potato Shippers of New Brunswick, at Florenceville, N.B., predicted a boom in the seed potato business next year. "It will help the provinces wonderfully," he said.

Enhance Fish Values

Mr. McCain said he thought it possible that many potato growers in the province would plan to have seed stock comprise half their crop. He had not expected reductions to extend to table stock and thought it best because it would avoid conflict with Maine producers.

The reduced duty on Canadian whitefish will enhance values but will not increase shipments, in the opinion of William Schlezer, Edmonton, manager of McInnes Products Corporation, Ltd., one of the largest fish dealing firms in Alberta. The tariff reduction of one quarter of a cent a pound will provide Alberta fishermen about $16,000 a year, R. T. Rodd, Director of Fisheries for Alberta, said. Alberta ships about 3,000,000 pounds annually, valuable to the U.S. each year.

The 20 per cent slash in duty on smoked herring was seen last night by John F. Montreal, Nov. 18.—(CP)—Abe Eliowitz, starry half of the Ottawa Roughriders is this year's choice for the Jeff Russell Memorial trophy, awarded annually to the most gentlemanly and most valuable player of the Interprovincial Rugby Union. Announcement was made today by Dr. A. A. Hart, president of the union.

Eliowitz, playing in Ottawa three years, was selected on the Interprovincial all star team only last Thursday. Formerly a Michigan-State player, he is the first American ever to be awarded the trophy.

CANADA CLAMPS DOWN SANCTIONS

Ottawa, Nov. 18.—(CP)—Canada will clamp down sanctions on Italy Monday, the day set by the League of Nations two weeks ago when the 52 countries approving the League's policy are to impose economic penalties against the Italians.

Export of arms, munitions and war implements to Italy will be forbidden; no loans or credits may be raised in Canada for that country; imports from Italy will be greatly restricted; commodities from which war implements may be fashioned are iron, nickel, aluminum, chromium, manganese.

VIOLENT DEATHS DURING WEEKEND NUMBER TWELVE

Six Killed in Automobile Accidents in Various Sections

WOMAN WALKS INTO CAR

Baker at Fergus Dies From Burns When Clothing Ignites

(By The Canadian Press)

A quiet violent deaths marked a chill, autumn week-end in Ontario. Six of them were from automobile accidents and except for one fatality in Ottawa the rest were confined to the western section of the province.

Miss Caroline Wilson, 72, died in hospital in Ottawa from injuries received, when she walked into the side of a street car, which she apparently failed to see.

Seven-year-old Henry Ford was electrocuted in Toronto, while playing in a Toronto transportation commission sub-station. At Cochrane Peter Panagopha of Kapuskasing and Charles Lantha believed to have relatives at Sturgeon Falls, were suffocated, while trying to seek warmth in the heating compartment of a box car.

Charles Mills, 54, a baker at Fergus died from burns received when his clothing became ignited by a blazing pot of grease.

Crashed Into Train

James Thompson, 46, was instantly killed at St. Thomas when his automobile crashed into the side of a freight train. Mrs. Elizabeth Mulloy, 8, died in hospital in Kitchener from injuries received in a car crash.

An alleged hit-and-run driver brought instant death to Hezekiah Seth, Six Nations Indian, near Simcoe.

Soon after she was struck by an automobile in downtown Hamilton, Mrs. James Bertram died in hospital from injuries.

Frank Kavanagh, 32, died in hospital in Windsor from injuries received when knocked down by an automobile.

At Stratford, 14-year-old Gilbert Wilde died in hospital from injuries received when an automobile struck his delivery wagon in nearby St. Mary's.

Velma Wright, seven, was killed, when a large hay rack in her father's barn near Sarnia fell on her.

GERMANY PROTESTS

AUTUMN BUYING OF CARS

Buying of motorcars this autumn has been very impressive and encourages the manufacturers in their efforts to bring the public to the stage of buying their cars in the autumn instead of waiting for the spring. That the public has "caught on" would appear from all reports which have been heard.

Fall buying of course helps the employment situation as operations can be carried on throughout the winter months. The winter employment problem has been and is one of the most serious that Canada has to face and if autumn purchases can be stimulated, much will be done to counteract the effect of the winter season on employment.

For the plan to succeed in its full measure, it is necessary of course that the motorist should find advantage in early buying. So with the present high standard of roads, motoring has become or will shortly become an all-year activity. The past few years have shown much greater volume of winter car travel than before and many owners no longer put their cars away for the season. With this situation there is the advantage of autumn buying as providing the best equipment and satisfactory means of conveyance. Not a year passes but the models add improvement upon improvement, the increased comfort and efficiency shown by the cars in the past few years being enormous.

Winter travel has started and will stay. Those who use cars in spring summer and autumn are not going to put away their means of travel in the cold season—one in which the comforts of motoring are perhaps at their height. In the countryside cars are naturally used all winter.

AN IDEA FROM KOREA

Who thought of a wireless loudspeaker encased in a concrete pillar and set up in a park for the entertainment of the people? Not a Bellevillian, not a Londoner, but some one in the far-off city of Seoul, Korea.

It has remained for individuals to do entertaining by radio as well as political parties but not to set up pure entertainment in a city park.

So novel is the idea that a recent issue of the London Times Weekly contains a photograph of the loudspeaker.

Of course it might become a nuisance to dwellers in the neighborhood.

THIS WAR

Was there ever such a war?

Modern equipment of guns, tanks, planes, backed by a nation of many millions against a nondescript nation, not quite civilised under the broadest meaning of the word, poor and poorly armed.

A war of publicity, wherein Il Duce tells Ethiopia what he is going to do and when he will do it, and a far in which Emperor Selassie proves himself an expert in publicity.

A little war so far but with nearly two billion spectators throughout the world sitting in the galleries watching the episodes in the wilds of Abyssinia.

A war in which the great nations of the world can see what an unholy sight war is, as they see poor Italian youths and poorer Ethiopians pitted against one another to the death.

A war which is a mirror in which the people of other lands can sympathize with those who suffer on both sides.

A war of realization of the sin and folly of war.

A war which has shown the world the peace talk of the past few years as at least guaranteed to understand.

A war which will bring no glory to the individual, try as Italian aviators will to pin laurel to their airplanes fighting an undefending nation.

A war which has not yet been declared.

A war in which Mussolini talks bluntly to the world and drives forward his armies into Ethiopia in the name of civilization and Christianity.

A war in which the peace program of the League of Nations is at stake and must show that war is a delusion and a snare.

This war!—Will this unparalleled strife prove no one wins or directly or indirectly? Will it prove the death knell of international feuds?

FIRST WILL ROGERS MEMORIAL

One of the memorials for the late Will Rogers has been decided upon. The New York State Aviation Commission will erect a 1,800,000 candle power airway beacon of the two-color type capable of penetrating fog to an altitude of three miles and visible for 64 miles around which they will place on one of the towers of the George Washington Bridge at New York. The dedication will take place on November 20. The memorial beacon which will be by far the largest of any of the existing airway lights will serve three main airways.

The memorial will be a fitting and practical reminder of the life of Rogers and of his aid to aviation and that of Wiley Post.

NOVEMBER DAYS

The year has run, through shade and sun,
To gloomy days of drear November,
And still there wait, though biding late,
The snowy gales of bleak December.

And yet, why should we sigh?
Why should we deem it sad or strange—
This chill, inevitable change
In earth and sea and sky?

No shadow fails, no frost appals
Without some valid, vital reason;
And whoso will may capture still
Some new delight in every season.

Though summer's mirth is past,
New Raptures, keen and strong and sweet,
Await the loving heart to greet,
To hold and fold it fast.

When blossoms fair are everywhere,
When winds are soft and skies are sunny,
Away, away, by night and day,
Like busy bees in search of honey,
To east and west we roam.
Then blessings on the skies o'ercast,
And blessings on the chilling blast
That drives the wanderer home!

An ingle nook, a pleasant book—
An old romance of love and glory,
A thrilling theme, a lovely dream
Divinely breathed in song or story;
Visions of happy things;
Sweet music pulsing in the air,
Love blossoming in faces fair—
All this November brings.

Toronto —Lilian Leveridge.

DO YOUR CHRISTMAS SHOPPING EARLY—and that's no joke, for Christmas is coming up the road at a lively gait, and will be here almost before we know it—before we are quite ready for it, at any rate. We know one dear young-old lady who had all her Christmas gifts bought and made by the first of November. Now that's what we'd call forehanded. However, each of us can begin window shopping now and sort of get things fixed in our minds. One best bet and useful reminder is this; READ THE ADVERTISEMENTS in this newspaper for USEFUL GIFT SUGGESTIONS. The merchants of Belleville have been preparing for the biggest Christmas Rush in the history of this city—Confidence has returned, and the people, the Common People of whom Abraham Lincoln said: The Lord must have loved 'em for he made so many of them—the Common People, you and me and the rest of the Boys, have cornered Prosperity and the shower of Silver and Gold this Christmas is going to be a record—gilding those clouds of care and sorrow which have hung threateningly so long, with the brightness of gold and the glitter of Silver. Let's Go—Let's start to get ready to Go Places, Right NOW, select our Christmas Gifts and determine to spread as much happiness as possible this Christmas for our own good and for the good of the community, by and large.

STUDYING MUNICIPAL MANAGEMENT, opens a new avenue of employment, a new profession for the many young men and women who are looking out into the great world with anxious eyes wondering how they will be received and if they will make good, in the opinion of observers who have watched with interest the spread of system of City Managership. Already 450 cities on this continent have adopted the City Manager system and are profiting greatly from the change. Considering the municipality just as a business concern to be administered on the best business lines it stands to reason that satisfactory. In addition to the City Manager there will be many openings for specialists in municipal management, skilled experts who have made a close study of the various departments of municipal government. No politicians need apply. Municipal specialists preferably should be college graduates who have studied for this particular profession. Engineering training is valuable. Most City Managers, it is said, are either engineers or business executives. Colleges are beginning to offer special courses in municipal management. Would it be too much to hope that a new type of municipal management is at hand to dawn on an era of declining tax rates, instead of the reverse.

THE FIRST DOLLAR EARNED WENT TO ROTARY because the Belleville Rotary Club had been instrumental in removing the physical disabilities which had set her apart from the world of work and pleasure. Little Jill is the only one of the prettiest cheeriest, and most kindly young ladies in Belleville. The first dollar she earned after her treatment was finished she gladly gave to Rotary and asked the privilege of contributing regularly out of her earnings. And the Dollar Girl is just one of many the world over who have reason to thank God that the seed of human kindness had fallen from Heaven one day and found lodgment in the mind of a lonely lawyer in Chicago, of all places—the seed which blossomed into Rotary International.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Nov. 18th., 1915

Mr. M. T. Adamson of Toronto, an old Belleville boy was in the city today on business.

When attending the Asalea at Cobourg, Mr. E. Gunn Porter, K.C., M.P., gave a complimentary dinner at the Dunham House in honor of Mr. Justice Sutherland. Judge Rogers and all the members of the bar who were in attendance at the Court.

Last evening the fire brigade was called to Kerr's boat house, South Front street. A lighted lantern dropped accidentally set fire to a boat. Little damage resulted and the fire was out before the firemen arrived.

30 Years Ago

Nov. 18th., 1905

Mr. P. J. O'Rourke of Trenton, was in the city today on business.

Messrs. Marshall VanderWeyden and Milton VanderWeyden and Gilbert Roblin returned home last evening after hunting in the north. They brought with them three fine deer the total weight of which was 610 pounds.

Mayor Sulman has received a letter from Mr. H. Corby, ex-M.P., in which he states that Mrs. Corby and he desire to present the citizens of Belleville with a public library building and that if the city will supply a site and undertake to maintain the property in a satisfactory way, they will give $10,000.00 for the erection of a suitable building. This is, indeed, a very generous offer and the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. Corby will be highly appreciated by all citizens. Mr. and Mrs. Corby will have short-by for Egypt.

40 Years Ago

Nov. 18th., 1895

West Bridge Street from the top of the hill to the fair ground is about the worst street in the city. The mud on it at present is several inches deep.

There was a large attendance at the meeting of the Y.M.C.A. Mock Parliament and the audience was treated to some very clever debating. Mr. E. W. Bishop, a member of the Government, introduced a bill to provide for the assessment of church property from taxation. Messrs. Bedford W. A. Hardy and D. C. Stephens spoke in favor of the bill. It was opposed by Messrs. W. H. Hood Taugher, W. H. Davis and S. Burrows. The debate was closed by Mr. W. C. Macfarlane for the Opposition and Mr. W. S. Morden, leader of the Government. A division was taking and the bill carried by a strict party vote. Questions by the Opposition as to the riots in Rosemond and the destruction among the Indians were satisfactorily answered by Government members. Mr. Hardy gave notice of a motion to be introduced at the next session for the enfranchisement of women.

Mr. H. C. Rinn's horse and Mr. D. Wakkins' horse ran away today.

Mr. James McGuire of the Albion Hotel has returned from the northern woods.

Electric car No. 8, Motorman Daly, ran into a wagon near Noble Street about four o'clock this afternoon. The wagon was badly smashed. It is said that the motorman was not to blame as the horse became frightened and dashed in front of the car. A dog owned by John Cook got under the car when it started after the accident and had a leg broken.

50 YEARS AGO

NOV. 18th., 1885.

Telephone poles are being erected on Pinnacle Street between Campbell and Bridge Sts.

Hunter Allen left at 7 on the 30 on the market Saturday.

Lieut. J. R. Halliwell, who was seriously wounded in the shoulder at the Battle of Batoche in the Northwest Rebellion has resumed his duties in Mr. J. Farmer Thompson's law office.

Mr. R. J. Bell returned this morning from a visit to Middleton on the south shore of Georgian Bay, bringing with him a 30-pound muskinonge, one of the finest fish caught in a fall net, cast by Mr. William Bleeck of this city, who is fishing successfully for herring in those waters, and was easily captured.

Judge Fralick and Messrs. H. Cooby, J. W. Walker, L. A. Appleby and S. R. Ballwell have returned home from the northern woods.

Mr. P. G. A Henderson Attorney and Solicitor of Brandon,Manitoba,son of Mr. G. E. Henderson of this city has been appointed solicitor for the Merchants Bank in that district. Mr. Henderson is also solicitor for the town of Brandon. His friends here will be pleased to learn of his advancement.

Reciprocal Trade Treaty Described as 'Revolution' By Official Washington

Washington, Nov. 18 (AP)—After making public a reciprocal trade treaty described officially "a revolution" in commercial relations between Canada and United States, the new deal watched closely today for the reaction of the country.

First comments showed conflicting views. President Roosevelt, explaining the pact to a large gathering of newspapermen in the executive office, the White House yesterday, said it would double the trade between the neighboring nations in a year or two.

Legislators eagerly delved into the treaty to see how it affected their areas. Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) one of the first to comment, expressed the belief it would benefit especially the Rocky Mountain states.

While Henry P. Merrill, chairman of the port of Portland (Maine), Authority, hailed the pact as "the greatest impetus given shipping on the Atlantic seaboard in many years." E. H. Jones, Vermont Commissioner of Agriculture, said it would mean "tremendous loss to Vermont agriculture."

The treaty, signed last Friday by Secretary of State Hull and Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King in Washington, calls for reductions in the tariff structure between the two nations. In all, more than 400 commodities are affected by the concessions.

Cut On 79 Articles.

The United States granted cuts on 79 major articles, including reductions of tariffs in cattle, calves, dairy cows and cream, subject to quotas described as narrow on foundation-old agricultural products, certain kinds of lumber, some fish, some minerals and wrapping paper. Canada granted the United States duty reductions on 180 articles, made other concessions on coal and gave American products the lowest tariff rates accorded to any non-British nation. The Canadian leader also promised to move for liberalization of the rules of valuation for exports. The American officials considered arbitrary valuations a trade barrier.

Under most-favored-nation treaties, which United States has with other countries, all concessions granted Canada will be given to every other country except Germany, which has denounced her trade treaty with Washington.

However, Secretary Hull said countries other than Canada "will obtain relatively little benefit" because Canada supplies most of the American imports of the commodities covered in the new pact.

Government officials, foreseeing adverse reaction in some quarters because of some of the sliced American duties, sought to show the world how the new deal would benefit trade and employment which would benefit the country. The State Department also said:

Adequate Protection.

"While our agriculture and our industry will benefit largely from the expansion of their Canadian sales, the agreement leaves for both adequate protection. Industry demands protection in the Domestic market, even though it opens to Canadian products a large share in that market.

"The consumers, moreover, the reductions in our duties will be of much benefit, by checking unreasonable increases in the prices of consumers' commodities concerned."

President Roosevelt announced that while duties were lowered on Canadian potatoes from the Maritime Provinces and certain kind of lumber, quotas placed on these articles would prevent any substantial increase in the American market.

For example, he said the quota of 1,500,000 gallons of cream annually was less than one per cent of the American consumption. The State Department emphasized that duties on potatoes for immediate planting had been cut.

Officials the agreement did not mention coal, officials said it could be supplemented. They said an agreement on coal was not impossible yet.

New York, Nov. 18—(CP)—While the President of the American Mackerel Industries Association was welcoming the Canadian-United States Trade Agreement as a barometer of "good will and good trade between the neighboring countries, the President of the National Grange gave indication today that they will protest any agricultural adjustments in the tariff rates.

President Janson D. Mooney of the American Farm organization said the statement of President Roosevelt, that the pact may double trade between Canada and the United States within a year or two, was "startling."

President Francis Bruyn of the Dairy Farmers of Canada, however, commented that manufacturers of this staple should be "surprised and pleased."

Objection From Agriculture

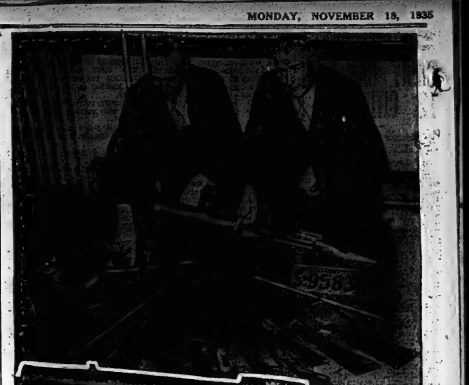
On the other hand, the comment of Orange leaders on the agreement was summed up in these words of Fred Brenckman, Washington representative of the farm organization: "It is cold comfort to the American farmer."

Brenckman commented at Sacramento, Calif, where the National Grange, said he did not see how President, master of the farm bloc, could say as he did not see how there can be anything but objection to potatoes for immediate planting. The convention will make an official expression of its attitude known to Washington.

In the northeastern tier of States, Vermont Commissioner of Agriculture, E. H. Jones, pictured the maple sugar makers and dairymen as hard hit by the treaty, while the first spokesman for the fishing trade, Edward Cooley, manager of the Massachusetts Fisheries Association, found it "very agreeable".

At Minneapolis, President, W. Mosier of the Twin City Milk Producers Association described the reduction in the tariff on Canadian cream as a severe blow to the American Dairy farmer.



"It seems the height of absurdity," he commented bitterly, "for the agricultural adjustment administration to be wrestling with the problem of surpluses in this country and at the same time, inviting imports from Canada."

Newspapers Applaud

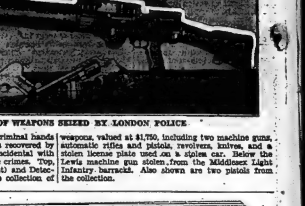
Ralph Brewster, a Maine Republican representative in the National House, said the President had promised Canadian farmers would be no reduction in potato duties. "The proposed reduction of 75 to 45 cents per 100 pounds of seed potatoes," in his opinion, will affect the producers of Aroostook County, the State's "Potato Empire".



The New York Times applauded the agreement as "the greatest single step . . . away from economic Nationalism . . . since the onset of the depression," while the Herald Tribune termed its provisions "a fair exchange of commodities".

The later newspaper said the removal of the "spite fence" which had hampered trade between the countries since 1930 "is a consummation worth any one's prayer".

EGYPTIAN CONSTITUTION REFUSED BY BRITAIN

Anti-British rioting that broke out in and about Cairo, Egypt, developed a political situation which had its origin in grave possibilities for England. It was reported that Premier Nessim Pasha refused to resign his post following a mass meeting of the Wafd party, Egypt's Independence organization. The Wafdists, comprising 90 per cent of the electorate, have resolved to push a nation-wide boycott of everything British in protest against Britain's refusal to give Egypt a constitution. Sir Miles W. Lampson is the British High Commissioner for Egypt and the Soudan.

HUGE ARSENAL OF WEAPONS SEIZED BY LONDON POLICE

The most dangerous arsenal ever in criminal hands in Canada, loot of three burglaries was recovered by London, Ont., detectives Thursday co-incidental with the arrests of two men charged with the crimes. Top, Lewis machine gun stolen from the Middlesex Light Infantry barracks. Also shown are two pistols from the collection.

JAPANESE MASS TROOPS AT CHINESE WALL

Japan apparently taking advantage of the Ethiopian situation is again massing her armies on the frobiers of China after making almost impossible demands of the Nanking government. It is reported that 500,000 troops are being mobilized along the Great Wall which separates the Japanese puppet state of Jehol from China proper, ready to occupy Pulping and Tientsin. Map shows where Japanese troops are being massed, for entrance into China, Mongolia and along the Soviet border. (Map courtesy Atlas Current Affairs)

LARGE BAIL DEMANDED

Brantford, Ont., Nov. 18 (CP)—Bail of $10,000 was set by Magistrate John Jones today for Dave Benjamin Devine giving his address as New York City, charged with trading in securities of the Ben Nevis Rural Gas Company while not registered as a broker or salesman.

CHURCH OBSERVES 120 ANNIVERSARY

Rev. Dr. F. E. Malott Special Preacher at Bridge Street

Bridge Street United congregation with Sunday's anniversary services entered upon the one hundred and twenty-first year of its organization. Large congregations worshipped in morning and evening and at the latter service the other three local United congregations were largely represented as their own services had been closed in order that all might participate in the celebration.

The Rev. Dr. F. E. Malott, minister of Trinity Street for seven years after which he was stationed in Winnipeg and now in Brockville, was the special preacher of the day. Last evening assisting in the service were Rev. L. R. Taylor of the Tabernacle, Rev. Robert Hall of John Street and Rev. L. E. Wight, Rev. H. R. Newman of Holloway Street being the special preacher in a service conducted by the pastor, Rev. Dr. J. Semple, minister of Bridge Street Church, was in charge of the service and welcomed Dr. Malott back to his former congregation. Dr. Malott expressed his pleasure at being back in the pulpit and wished progress for the church.

"The Conquest of Fear" was the theme of his evening sermon, based on the text, "For God hath not given us the spirit of fearfulness, but of power and of love and of discipline."

Many, said he, as a result of fears caused doors having been closed. Some, he said, is on the other side of the portals. Timothy to whom the words of the text were addressed was many years with Paul, and when by himself had some of the fearfulness.

Most men are dominated by fears at some time or other. They begin life afraid of things; darkness, storm, lightning, strangers. This same quality persists among the backward races.

That civilized man has also his fears. He has legions of fears which grow out of the economic situation. Some thinkers believe this is due to wrong teaching, that the home, school, church, neglect to fear when they should emphasize a sense of security. This timidity unless checked may ruin the lives of many. Most men are afraid of poverty.

"The effect of fear is always paralyzing", said the preacher. "Doctors say it changes the secretions of the body, slows down the circulation and depresses the nerves and lessens resistance to sickness.

"Paul says that fear has no place in the normal Christian experience. It does not come from God. It is anti-Christian. So we must get rid of it. How? We must remember that God does not implant fearfulness, but boldness and the ascendency of these are the conquerors of fear.

"The conquest of fear is largely due to vitality and spiritual vitality, more than robustness of body. The stumpy boy does have no fear of the rough and tumble and goes out into life with courage. But let us not overemphasize bodily courage for there have been men of frail bodies which have been filled with spiritual courage. Nelson is an example.

Dr. Malott referred to the words of Jesus, "I am come that you might have life and have it more abundantly". The life He gives is strong, radiant and fearless. Robertson the great preacher of Brighton, England, a physically weak man had a picture of Jesus by Leonardo da Vinci in his bedroom and that picture, said Dr. Malott, inspired him to activity.

Love is an antidote to fearfulness. The cause of fear is suspicion, doubt, distrust. This is the trouble today with the world on a colossal scale with the world today. Today every government fears some other government.

"We need a new point of view and a new vision of God. There is no fear in love, perfect love casteth out fear.

"Another antidote is discipline. Many persons live undisciplined lives and many of their fears are due to undisciplined thinking. We are often saying "we can't" when we should be saying "we can". Shakespeare said "our doubts are traitors and make us lose the good we oft might win by fighting to attempt."

Dr. Malott applied this cure to the church in depression days. Missionaries are going to suffer, and in the foreign field 65 may have to be cut off in the United Church alone, but with fear we cannot carry on the work. Yet there is enough money in the church to double the yearly income for that fund."

Dr. Malott praised the Oxford Group for its impression of the silent period, divine guidance, personal surrender and courage as the needs required today.

Special music was rendered by the choir during the day.

Last evening Mrs. (Dr.) Skobs was heard in a fine solo, and Mrs. Duff, Mrs. Knowlton and Mrs. Gregory sang a trio. Prof. W. F. Hunt was in charge of the music.

The financial results of the anniversary, were eminently satisfactory, it was stated.

Obituary

THE LATE MRS. P. R. NELSON

The death occurred in Kingston Hospital, on Wednesday, November 6th, of Margaret May Milne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Milne, of Seymour West, and beloved wife of P. Byrd Nelson. Mrs. Nelson had been in poor health for some years, and a short time previous to her death, she entered Kingston General Hospital, where an operation was performed. It was thought that her condition was satisfactory, but she became suddenly ill a few hours before her death.

Mrs. Nelson was born in Seymour 58 years ago. She was married about 30 years ago and for a few years after their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson lived in Seymour East. About 25 years ago they moved to the farm in Seymour West, where they since resided. Mrs. Nelson's death is deeply regretted by a large circle of friends throughout the community. She was possessed of a kindly disposition, a keen sense of humour and an alert mind. She bore a long period of illness with Christian fortitude. She was a faithful member of St. John's United Church and deeply interested in all its activities and especially in the Women's Association and W.M.S.

Surviving are her sorrowing husband and parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Milne; one daughter, Mrs. Martin S. Stevens, Falconbridge, Ont., and one son, William, of Queen's University Kingston; two sisters, Mrs. Walter Badgely, of Iowa, Mrs. Milligan, of Shannonville, and two brothers, Wm. Milne, of Toronto, and James C., of Seymour.

The funeral was held on Friday afternoon, service being conducted in the home of Rev. H. B. Neal. The pallbearers were, Harry B. Free, Richard and Henry McKellar, James Walters, George Nelson and Marshal West. The remains were interred in Sunbrae cemetery.—Campbellford Herald.

HIGH WINDS CUT NIAGARA RIVER TO A BROOK

ROSLIN W. A.

The November meeting of Roslin Women's Association met at the home of Mrs. Stanley Carters an Wednesday Nov. 11th.

The meeting was opened by the president Mrs. S. Carter with Hymn No. 370, after which the 23rd Psalm Prayer was rendered.

After the business of meeting was over a short program was enjoyed.

The program was as follows:

Scripture lesson reading from the 10th. Chapter of St. John read by Miss E. Ramsay. Hymn 493 "I Need Thee Every Hour".

Piano and violin duet by Miss Evelyn and Irene Harris.

Reading by Mrs. J. Chisholm

Mrs. Chisholm closed the meeting with prayer after which lunch was served and a social time spent.

TABERNACLE W. M. S.

The regular meeting of the Tabernacle W.M.S. was held on Thursday, November 14th, with a good attendance. The ladies of the W.M.S. had invited guests from Foxboro and John St. Church, city. Mrs. Gerow graciously welcomed the guests and hoped they would find their visit profitable and enjoyable.

Mrs. Gerow opened the Worship Service with the use of hymns. "The Morning Light is Breaking" and "Jesus Shall Reign Wherever the Sun." Mrs. Adams read the Scripture lesson found in the following books of the Bible: Luke 2, verses 21-22; Luke 4th. chapter and Acts 1, verses 13, 13, 14. Mrs. Corlam led in prayer.

Mrs. G. O. Shorey read the secretary's minutes and the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Fisher. Mrs. Kitchen gave a reading on "You Can Help." Mrs. Shorey read a splendid paper on W.M.S. Work, bringing out several splendid points of the untiring energy and zeal of one woman.

Mrs. Bradley sang "Thanks Be To God" accompanied by Mrs. M. F. Duff.

Mrs. S. C. Gay of Foxboro was the guest speaker and gave a very thoughtful address, using for some of her thoughts paragraphs from Ralph Connor's book "Dawn by the Sea of Galilee." Mrs. Gay's address was very much appreciated. "We're a Story to Tell the Nations," was sung after Mr. Mr. Naylor dismissed the meeting with prayer. Following this meeting the ladies of "Tabernacle" W. M. S. entertained the visitors with a cup of tea.

The voice of the playing amateur to whom music is not an "accomplishment but a daily joy, is heard in the volume by Catherine Drinker Bowen, "Friends and Fiddler", Mrs. Bowen is the youngest of a Philadelphia family, of whom she and the eldest, a successful lawyer, are devout worshippers at the shrine of music. Their sitting quartets evenings reveal the joy of a musical life. The volume is chiefly concerned with music in the home and the amateur contributions of members of the family and their friends. The chapter discussing the children and music is an enlightening one, pointing out that the key to the average child's heart, musically speaking, is through active participation in ensemble performance. The volume is an altogether delightful one, for the layman who play for fun and not for audience.

R. O. Sherriff, author of "Journey's End" and "Jeaffie Da Cunard" has presented a fine picture of the last days of Napoleon in the play "St. Helena." The subject, never before treated on the stage, begins in December, 1820 and ends in 1821 to May 1821. The play in twelve scenes depicts the pity of dignity and majesty brought low, brightened with scenes of glory as the deposed Emperor relives his past. The London Times, speaking of this play says, "From it all Napoleon emerges not as a humiliated figure of the world for an audience to gape at nor after the manner of the biographies, as a target for the arrows of our superior moralizers, but as a man to be watched with mixed feelings and unflagging curiosity".

The story of an American woman's acclamation in Soviet Russia is told by Corliss Lamont in her book "I Change Worlds." Sub-titled "The Remaking of an American", the book discribes the experiences of the author in Moscow and Chinese Revolutions and lays particular stress on her fourteen years in Soviet Russia. While containing many debatable points the book presents with colour the story of a woman reporter who has literally traversed the modern world.

PEARL DIVER, BITTEN BY SHARK, ESCAPES

Brisbane, Australia, Nov. 13—Amazing fortitude and resourcefulness when a shark attacked him while diving for pearl shell off the Great Barrier Reef probably saved the life of James Mossed.

A young Thursday Island native, Mossed was swimming 30 fathoms deep when a large shark attacked him, deeply embedding its teeth in his shoulder, arm and chest. Despite terrible injuries, Mossed, casting a second glance at the seabed and hid behind a coral reef. There he observed the shark swim round in search of his opponent, who saw the monster in time to dodge. Mossed then rose to the surface and swam to the sailboat from which he had been operating.

He clambered aboard, but the divers did not reach land for eighteen hours, owing to a failing wind. Mossed is now in a hospital in a serious condition.

WEST HUNTINGDON

West Huntingdon— Mr. Nelson Stapley has finished threshing for this season. This concluded twenty years of threshing that Mr. Stapley has been in our community; and in that time has won the reputation of being one of the most careful and courteous thresher men.

He has always engine steam power, in preference to gasoline engines. His cousin Mr. Murray Stapley has been in his employ during these twenty years as engineer. The same operators as Mr. Stapley started out with is still used and other operators who have also been dressed up from time to time, to keep in touch with the modern separator. Mr. Stapley has had but he threshed about the same number of bushels twenty years ago as he did this season.

The W.M.S. of St. Andrews Church held an interesting meeting in the auditorium of their church on North Front street on Wednesday Nov 14. When they invited the local branches from Stirling Madoc While Lake, Shanks Valley, West Huntingdon United Halloway, Elons, Marsh hill, and Foxboro at 2.30. The president Mrs. Wm. Shaw called the meeting to order and requested the West Huntingdon Choir of W.M.S. to take charge of the Worship period this was ably done by Mrs. Geo. Cooke, Mrs. Sam Fargey and Mrs. Chas. H. Fry.

Mrs. John Wallace gave the address of Welcome and on behalf of the visitors Mrs. Wm. West of Madoc, responded.

The roll call was answered by a representative from each branch giving a verse of Scripture.

The main feature of the program was an address by Rev. J. A. Kofford on China, as he and Mrs. Kofford saw it. This address was one of the most inspiring in some time and no doubt will stimulate much more interest in missionary work a vote of appreciation was extended to Mr. Kofford by Mrs. McLeod and Mrs. Andrew McIlvery, as this time Mr. Kofford contributed a solo, "Jesus is all the World to me."

The meeting was closed with prayer and the ladies of ea. Andrews served an excellent lunch in the basement of the church to the delegates present.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Sprague and Amy of Big Island were recent guests of Mrs. Sarah Fargey. Mrs. Fargey accompanied them home and will spent a few days with them.

Mrs. Maggie Johnston of Church St. spent a couple of days last week with her brother Mr. Albert McAulden of Frankford.

Mr. Harry Juby was a dinner guest on Friday of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Fargey.

Mrs. Geo. Post spent Saturday with her daughter Mrs. Sandy McCurdy.

Mr. John Jeffery is having a well drilled by Mr. Gartley of Belleville and while at work Wednesday one of the cupeakins of the drill broke his hand severely injured.

Mr. Cooke of Belleville has been threshing for a few days with his son Mr. Geo. Cooke.

Mr. Geo. Reboud of Fuller was the guest of his friend, Mr. Donald Fargey, on Friday evening.

The Fuller United Church is undergoing extensive repairs. Mr. Ellis Hopkins of Stirling is the contractor employed. As soon as the painting is finished the congregation will hold a combined re-opening and anniversary service.

The dramatic club of Fuller are becoming quite popular these days, as they received numerous invitations to present their play Wild Ginger.

Some of the residents were alarmed on Friday when they thought some one's buildings were on fire but upon investigation it was found that Mr. James McGowan was burning some sweet clover straw

Mrs. Mary Wright is spending a few days with Mrs. M. A. Adams.

Mrs. John B. Hagerman entertained the Ivanhoe branch of the W. I. on Tuesday, Nov 10, for their Regular Monthly meeting, there was a good attendance of members present also some visitors.

Mrs. J. Sills president presided over the following interesting program:

Meeting opened by use of Institute Carol followed by Lord's Prayer in unison, "Brighten the corner where you are," Singing and the Roll Call was answered by each member, and gave a story or conundrum. Minutes of last meeting read and approved. Arrangements for Banquet to be secure some more knives to have for gatherings in connection with hall on motion of Mrs. Carles and R. Reid that we apply for the usual grant of three dollars. It was decided to have all bills paid. The president brought to the attention of members their concerning diphtheria inoculation.

On motion of Mrs. Clements and Mrs. Kilpatrick that Miss Lackey be given $6.00 for aiding Dr. on Clinic.

Other items of business transacted were that a donation of articles of clothing be brought to next meeting and distributed by a committee among the needy. A booth pertaining to the W. I. to be held at Stirling Fair.

Mrs. J. B. Hagerman was appointed to act as convener to meet the Stirling ladies to select articles for same $6.00 was to be set aside for prizes.

The business period being over the following program was staged. The motto "Knowledge is the Hill which few may hope to climb, Duty the path that all may tread" was well given by Miss Edna Tanner.

Reading by Mrs. John Clements.

A paper by Mrs Tummon, Parliament Buildings, Peace Tower.

Music by Miss Laura Wright.

Solo by Mrs. Frieda Jeffery.

Current events by Mrs. Tanner.

This very helpful meeting closed with Institute Ardeon. A collation was also taken and a splendid lunch served.

BEE HIVE GOLDEN CORN SYRUP

Photograph copyright, The Newspaper Service

YES, Bee Hive Golden Corn Syrup is now included in the regular diet of the Dionne Quintuplets. For babies the addition of Bee Hive to milk adds the desired amount of carbohydrates (Dextrose, Maltose, Dextrin, etc.) in a form most easily digested. Bee Hive is the ideal milk modifier in infant feeding.

In growing, healthy, active children reserve energy is quickly burned up by strenuous play — Bee Hive, included in the menus regularly, quickly restores this energy, because it is a concentrated and easily digested carbohydrate food (see analysis). Children love it and thrive on it—give them ample. Often a food that is good for babies and growing children is good for grown-ups too. Bee Hive Golden Corn Syrup is just such a food.

VOTING MAJORITY OF 250 EXPECTED

Two Irish Abstentionists Cut Opposition to 180 Seats

By George Hamilton
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 18—(CP Cable)—With 13 constituencies still to be elected the government has a clear majority of 240, assuming these constituencies leave representation unchanged the government total will be 423 against an opposition total of 183, government majority 240.

On the government side the appointment of a speaker, chairman and Deputy Chairman of Commons will bring the government standard voting strength to 429. On the opposition side the election of two Irish Abstentionists from Fermanagh and South Tyrone raises seats from 182 to 180. This would therefore leave the government a standing voting majority overall of 249.

WAIT-AND-SEE VIEW VOICED

"I haven't been able to give the thing much thought," Dr. Godfrey told Mr. Lewis this morning, "but we expect that magazines will drop five cents or less. With the total removal of duty this saving will be passed on to the buyer. Consequently magazines should sell for fifteen cents and so on when the Act becomes effective."

Increased prices in lumber and some activity in the building industry is expected to result in the opinion of Mr. J. P. Houston of the local Houghton-Lumber Company, Ltd. and may not affect us so much here, but we do expect prices of dressed lumber will increase in the district. So far, however, we really haven't felt any movement definitely upon this," added Mr. Houston.

Restrictions will be made on seed imported into Canada from the United States, but the saving will be slight when passed on to the buyer, it was declared by Mr. Chas. Kingsley, seed-house importer. Price changes will be too insignificant to make much difference, it was stated.

On the other hand, local buyers will pay more for their beefsteaks and roasts. Rise in cost of other meats will also undergo a sympathetic uprend in prices, both live and dressed, it was declared by Mr. Harry Green, Butcher.

Beef today has increased immediately one and one-half cents per pound following the publication of the new agreement; Further rise all along the line in pork, veal, lamb and other meats is confidently predicted.

Fish exporters of the city will still study the Act as applied to their exports, which carries a 50 per cent cent reduction in sale and a corresponding reduction in the duty of white fish which will be imported from Belleville in considerable quantities to New York and Chicago markets. "Undeniably this will help our business," it was declared at Sonnenberg's Fish Market, Bank and Son.

In the absence of Mr. C. A. Cannon, M.P. for East Hastings, who was today out of the city, Belleville's first comment could be obtained from government representatives.

"I just haven't had time to go into the thing thoroughly myself but I am able, there isn't much to say about it," replied Mr. W. J. Ellis, M.P.P. for East Hastings. "It's a pretty big thing and will have some far-reaching effect," concluded the East Hastings representative.

Livestock

Toronto, Nov. 18 (CP)—Higher prices were asked on all grades of cattle at the opening of the Toronto Union Stockyards this week but there were very few early sales. Prices generally were steady, except while hogs and lambs were unsettled. Calves and cattle run included 1,400 head of Western.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: cattle, 4,190; calves, 980; hogs, 450; sheep and lambs, 1,100.

A few butcher cows sold early at $2.50 to $3.50 and some fed calves at $6.00 to $8.00 to $8.50 but other prices were also held higher. Early sales were made. Canner and cutter cows made $1.50 to $2.25.

Calves, including 600 Western, sold firm at $8.50 to $9.00 for choice and $7.50 to $8.00 for common. Heavy Western were 25 cents higher at $4.50 to $5.50 for the major lots.

No hog prices were established in the early sessions and no definite bids were received from packers. Lambs also opened unsettled at $8.00 to $8.50 and packers bids $7.75.

Sheep opened steady at $1.00 to $4.00 cwt., according to quality.

DISTILLERS SEE BIG SALES AHEAD

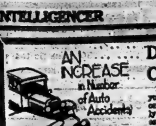
Tariff Reduction Greeted With Enthusiasm at Windsor

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 18 (CP) — Heads of distilleries in this area were greeted with enthusiasm the 80 per cent reduction in the American import tax on Canadian whisky more than four years old, as announced by the United States treaty enacted between Canada and the United States.

The reduction, as predicted by H. Mc. Hiram Walker, Walker Gooderham and Worts annual meeting Friday will result in a saving of millions of gallons of whisky to the American consumer.



Per cent sell, are three years Canadian distilleries should be able to sell more whisky to the United States whiskies that have been aging for four to ten years or more, it was said. It is anticipated that it will be long before the American distilleries will be able to put properly aged whiskies on the market in competition with those produced in this country.

William J. Hunns, president and general manager of Hiram Walker and Sons, Limited, said the revision of tariff should add considerably impetus to the company's sales to United States.

"Their four-year-old stocks sell at around $31 a case wholesale," he explained. "With this reduction in the import tax we will be able to sell seven and eight-year-old stocks for less than that. It will not mean that we will be making any more whisky but we will be bottling and disposing of large stocks we have on hand."

Board Room Gossip

As compared to Bigger and Greener Pastures, Says Observer

Ventures Ltd.—Important Holding to Continue—Will Add to Present Production Largely

The distribution of Pamour shares (at 300 a share) to Consolidated Mines to its own shareholders will no doubt Ventures Limited in no small way. In fact, the principal shareholder under the proposed distribution will be Ventures, where the holdings of Pamour will be greatly enlarged under the arrangement. Ventures has 1,645,825 shares of Consolidated Mines and will receive 144,360 shares of Pamour in addition to the present holdings.

Ventures Limited never made public their holdings in Pamour but in its annual reports the company listed only a "substantial" interest in Pamour which is said to amount to about 800,000 shares. This is a small value on December 31st last, but Pamour stock has since risen appreciably.

When Ventures subscribes to the Pamour issue of 400,000 shares Pamour stock today have a value of $1,500,000 which is raised to over 10 cents a share of Ventures stock outstanding.

The strength in Brazilian Traction is predicted on the announcement that Brazil has concluded a treaty with the United States. The latter country agreed to keep its tariff on coffee from Brazil. This commodity is the most important export from Brazil and with the United States the largest consumer of coffee in the world, $100,000,000 worth of the product annually, it is hoped that Brazil Brazilian Traction has also should hold up well. As a result it is strengthening in the value of the mines is in prospect, a development which would be very gratifying for the Brazilian utility and hence the substantial rise in the stock.

The strength in C.P.R. is attributed directly to the consummation of the new treaty with the United States. It is generally conceded that as a result of the pact, our 20-cent neighbor to the South will increase very appreciably and this will mean a substantial increase in freight shipments. London, Paris, Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires are the principal countries accumulated a substantial amount of C.P.R. at lower prices.

Massey-Harris' outlook has improved as a result of the increase in the purchasing power of the farmer. The liquidation of bills receivable which Massey-Harris is very strong financial shape and with the assurance of the American export treaty the company will be in a position to finance its business. This is of great importance to the shareholders as it now looks as if the company will have the real earning power, and with its expansion programme completed the directors can change stimulated the directors can well afford to be liberal with the owners of the junior stock.

Obituary

CHARLES POSSNETT (O.S.D.)

After undergoing an operation for mastoid, Charles Possnett, a pupil at the Ontario School for the Deaf, died in Belleville General Hospital early this morning. He was in his 17th year and had been a pupil at the school for eleven years. By the death of this young boy he was well liked and his death is deeply felt at the school. He was a member of the Church of England.

His parents are Mr. and Mrs. A. Possnett of Port Erie, Ont. His mother arrived on Saturday last and his father arrived here today.

Besides the parents three sisters survive, Mrs. R. Seabrook, Hamilton; Mrs. L. Ware, Rouyn, Quebec and Miss Phyllis Possnett at home.

The body was forwarded this afternoon from the Martin Funeral Home to Port Erie.

MISS ELLA KNOX (Barrie)

Miss Ella Knox, who for twenty years has kept house with her brother, Mr. James A. Knox, 48 Louis St., Barrie, Ontario, passed away on Thursday evening last. In failing health for several years, the end came after a stroke two weeks previous. She was in her 71st year.

Born in Hastings County and Trenton, deceased was a daughter of the late William H. Knox and Emeline E. Knox. She was a registered nurse, having graduated in 1904 from the Belleville General. She volunteered for overseas service, but failed to pass her physical condition and was not accepted, but carried on in private practice. For several years she nursed at the Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal, as well as in other cities, including Toronto and Kingston. Four years ago she came to Barrie, where she had since resided. She is survived by one brother, Mr. James A. Knox.

A short funeral service was held at her brother's residence on Saturday afternoon, conducted by Rev. R. J. Lamb, and on Sunday afternoon service was held at Christ Church, Trenton, where Rev. J. S. McMullen officiated, assisted by Rev. Mr. Campbell, also of Trenton. Interment was made in "The Front of Ridgey Burial Grounds."

Among those who attended from a distance included Mr. and Mrs. Percy Knox, Mrs. Ross Knox, Mrs. T. McMurray, Toronto; Mrs. O. H. Allen, Toronto, as well as many friends and close acquaintances from Trenton.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 18—(CP)—Toronto industrial list dropped back to the day appraising the effect of the tariff changes and the possible tendency for lower higher prices. The rise in the liquor stocks, which ranged up to 1-1 points in the early dealings was obviously based on expectation of increased profits from distilleries in the United States under the act in the import duty advance of Mason and Hanigan to a new high price for the year at 7.75 cents per pound, or Oct. 7083 Pickle Co. ..... # Intercollegiate Title Won By Queens in Biggest Upset Of the Gridiron Season

Barnabee And Krug Outkick Grey And Labatt

TIGERS ARE CHAMPS

Sarnia Secure Eight Point Lead Over Balmy Beach

(By Elmer Dulmage Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Football was set today for a grandstand finish, featuring the rugged and strong of the gridiron species. Only five teams remained in contention for the Canadian senior championship and the only unbeaten outfit of the ice—Winnipeg-was grounded for an embarrassing setback that will transcend in national interest all other football tilts.

Queen's University had the intercollegiate title back in Kingston Hamilton Tigers gloated over their second straight intermediate triumph, Sarnia Imperials had the O.R.F.U. crown in their firm, undaunted grip. All these forces have been licensed.

In Ontario, they were calling University of Toronto to walk over the intended, in the event of another of common knowledge that Toronto Argonauts, having won all their home games, would canter down the stretch, ahead of Tigers and any other team that came challenging. The front-runners never looked better than last October.

18,000 at Toronto

More than 18,000 half-frozen spectators saw the heavier, harder-hitting Queen's brigade of Art Reeve win the intercollegiate title decisively in Toronto, smashing down the forward wall of U. of T. and stopping the fleeter backfield backs in the east. The score was 6-4.

Curly Krug, former Woodstock Col., junior sensation and Ed Barnabee, who used to play for Ottawa College, were heroes of a stunning upset. Queen's had played Toronto twice previously this season, getting only one tie on the unroll side of the record. They won a playoff by finishing second in the standings.

Ottawa Roughriders and Hamilton Tigers contended temporarily by arrangement under which the Tigers collected the Big Four championship and Ottawa was eliminated from the 1936 scene with colors flying. Coach Fred Wanless designed and carried out their share of the battle by schoolboarding a crushing 36-0 defeat to Montreal Wheelers in Hamilton.

Shouldering the heavy end of the assignment, Abe Eliowitz and the Hamilton defence held Argonaut backs to 3 in the Capital. The great Eliowitz leading scorer of the eastern season, kicked all nine points and when he had finished Argos were no longer in the running.

Sailors Go Down

It was the third straight defeat for the Sailors, the second at the hands of Hamilton, a team which had entirely vanished from the lineup of Argonauts, eastern champions a playoff with Hamilton by winning this Dominion semi-final.

The one machine, that moves steadily and well over all obstacles, Sarnia Imperials downed Balmy Beach 9-0 at Sarnia in the first of the two-game total point series. Imperials were expected to repeat at Beaches again in Toronto next Saturday.

Meanwhile, it was expected Queen's would decide to enter the Canadian playdowns and provide the most serious college threat in years. There was a possibility that Manitoba western champions would be invited vast next Saturday to play Hamilton in Canada's semi-final. Although the Manitobans do not have to play another game, they are in stopping Toronto Varsity's Nationals at Winnipeg on Saturday, 2nd through the air, Queen's left out the kicking and relied on their defensive superiority. With Johnny Mimie limping on his sprained ankle, Gerry Brandon Barnabe, who consistently outkicked Bob Isbister and Gale Drew of the Blues.

After Gray had kicked a field goal and Isbister a single to send Toronto ahead, the Tricolor staggered back and partially blocked Drew's punt on their own 25 scoring chance. Barnabee kicked a field goal from 35 yards out. Before half time he kicked another single.

Queens Ahead in Fourth

Despite all the speed in the end runs of Gray, Gerald and Bobby Coulter, the accuracy of Hugh Marker forward passes and the fighting spirit of a light wingline centred by Al Osmond, Queen's proceeded to pound out the winning points. Barnabe made the count 5-4 in the third period.

In the fourth Krug ran back a kick 80 yards from his own 15 and Barnabe booted another point. The previously unbeaten Varsity made a gallant attempt to pull this game from the lost column. They resisted Queen's 30 to set the ball up for a field goal attempt in the last five minutes, but Gray kicked wide.

It was Buck Welch, who fired Hamilton's most explosive bomb: at Montreal, just as he had fired them before during the Tigers' rush toward the title. Welch scored 12 points himself, eight on kicks. He scored two touchdowns.

But the whole Hamilton machine clicked merrily, with Johnny Ferraro, captain Eddie Wright, Johnny Craig, Johnny Agnew, Sergeoney Wilson and the rest taking a hand in one of the most one-sided contests of the season.

Just as it was Welch at Hamilton, Eliowitz at Ottawa and Krug and Barnabe at Toronto, so was it Hugh Gumming fielding at Sarnia. The big Imperial kicker scored the only touchdown after he, Osmond Beech and Rocky Feragne had plunged downfield through a Balmy Beach team, that made a strong stand.

Stiffen's punting held off every Beach drive. The defensive work of the giant Beach was matched by that of Ernie Hempey, Beach middle, who performed sensationally.

BUFFALO BISONS YET UNDEFEATED

Alex Wood, Smart Goalie, is Keeping His Team in Front

(By the Canadian Press)

Thanks to young Alex Wood, who started guarding hockey nets in Regina, Buffalo Bisons are the only club of the team to beat in the International League. The former westerner was beaten the first time in League play this season but his mates went on to make up a 3-1 triumph over the Syracuse Stars Saturday night and remain undefeated atop the Western Section.

Jack Shill added Woods' brilliant record of 306 minutes and 39 seconds of shutout goaltending when he scored in the second period. Les Cunningham, who also learned his hockey in the West at Moose Jaw and Regina, tallied two of the Bisons' markers.

Syracuse kept in the race, however, by marking up their first win of the season at home Sunday at the expense of the newly formed and Detroit Pitsburg Shamrocks. The Stars were forced to overtime to obtain their 6-4 victory. Lorne Mann, fleet Toronto Rookie, began the deciding play.

The loss was the Shamrock's second of the week-end bill, for on Saturday they were blanked by the lowly Cleveland Falcons 2-0 at Cleveland. Jack Byrne, brother of Bud Cook, clever centre man, that gave the Falcons their first win of the season's overtime. Byrne scored the first goal and gave Roger Cornier a pass for the second.

Townsmen on Rampage

London Tecumsehs, too, registered their third win in five starts when they downed the Windsor Bulldogs 4-1 in London Saturday night to keep even with the undefeated Buffalo Bisons in the Western section. Bill Kendall, former Chicago Black Hawk defenceman, netted winning goal past the halfway mark in the final session just after he stepped out of the box after serving a penalty.

The loss of the Bulldogs allowed the Detroit Olympics to move even with the Windsor team for the top rung of the Eastern section. The Olympics romped to their fifth win over the Windsor team for the fourth straight loss for the Bulldogs. Lorne Duguay, Detroit man, demoted to the Olympics from the Detroit Red Wings, drew a 10 minute penalty for high sticking in first offensively to referee Mickey Ion.

AMATEUR MATMEN TO PUT ON SHOW

Six Bouts Are Carded For Arena on Tuesday Night

Six bouts will constitute Tuesday night's amateur wrestling card to be staged at the Belleville Arena by local talent under the supervision of Irish Steve Taylor, well known professional exponent of the mat game. In the second bout of the evening's boxing card to be presented by the local club, the first of which proved highly successful last week, Taylor will be at the third team in the ring.

The bouts announced by Matchmaker Steve Taylor are:—

Louine Hainault, 140, vs. Ed Cassley, 138.

Cliff Faux, 172 vs. Jim Stone 168.

Henry Cook, 138 vs. Chuck Thorne 135.

Ken "Chief" Faux, 170 vs. Fred Churchill, 180.

Jack "Shiek" Murphy, 145 vs. Jack Doyle 141.

Canadian Hockey Premiere

The professional hockey season opened for Canada on Saturday, November 9th, when Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Americans battled to a 5-5 tie. The official face-off is shown above with Bill Thoms, Leafs' centre, holding the puck. E. McLaughlin, President of Canada Products of Canada, Limited, sponsors of the nation-wide broadcast of the game; and Cecil Vess of the American Canadian Broadcasting Co. will be able to enjoy the Saturday night games at Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens via the C.M. weekly broadcast.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

It looks as though the local O. R. F. U. football team justified their golden opportunity on Saturday, when in the last minute of the game the Orphans knotted the score, the final score being 5 to 5. A tie game was no good to the local team, but they must win all of their remaining games to tie the leading Oshawa squad, that is providing Oshawa loses next Saturday in Lindsay. Of course if the Blue Devils continue their string of victories well they'll naturally be declared group winners. There is little use in crying over spilled milk but, with only a matter of split second to play and leading by a 5 to 4 count the locals should have been more cautious. Why Ed Schrieder was playing in an close when it was quite obvious that Toronto had a big to kick is one of those questions that never will be answered. Once the ball rolled over Schrieder's head well the show was all over insofar as any possible chance of winning the ball out was concerned. Although Belleville wanted that game in the worst way and all were thoroughly disappointed we must state that the game was one of the best played of the season.

Thomas has under his wing have not been announced as yet but it is believed, however, that a couple of real classy pickings are waiting at the Trenton Airport and will be asked to join the Thomasites. If the Kingston rules are the same as two years ago, each team will be allowed to dress twelve players at one time.

Two of the local amateur wrestlers to appear at the Belleville arena on Tuesday night remind us very much of the actions displayed by Howard Cantenwine and Walter Farnell. Ed Cassley and Chuck Thorne are both apt pupils of the modern realm of the wrestling racket and storm about the ring like a couple of tigers. These boys are not afraid to try Cantenwine's hanging act nor are they adverse to applying the flying hold when possible. Jack Doyle and Jack Murphy put on a clever tussle in their first appearance while the remainder of the stable have also added considerable to their knowledge of the game since their last show. Steve Taylor has worked hard with his charges and it is hoped that the fans will appreciate the boys' efforts and give them a play on Tuesday night. Incidentally this is the beginning of "two bits" is not out of the way.

The members of the Belleville Badminton Club commenced their activities at the Armouries on Saturday night, a large number of players turned out to the initial play.

Congratulations are in order to the Hamilton Tigers and Queen's football squads today, the former winning the intermediate title while Queen's for the second time in the Intercollegiate title over Toronto Varsity in a play-off game Saturday. Incidentally the Tigers and Queen's meet in the first Dominion play-down at Kingston next Saturday.

The local wrestling promoters announced last night that three brand new faces are to be seen on Thursday night's pro wrestling card at the arena. Billy Kerr, Curley Bonchin and Ernie Peterson, all newcomers to Belleville are the new faces and will be augmented by Battle Yarnis Chief Lyax and Walter Farnell.

Berlin, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Reichsfuehrer Hitler put the finishing touches to both Great Britain and France's hopes of appeasement today, that he would prevent Germany from being used as an assembly point for foreign goods destined for Italy.

This pledge, understood to have been made several days ago, was reported by a spokesman for diplomatic quarters Jin only one day remaining before the League of Nations undertakes to put an embargo on shipment of certain key products to Italy as a penalty for the Fascist nation's campaign of occupation in Ethiopia.

BLAIR TURNS IN SMASHING GAME FOR THE LEAFS

Toronto Defeats Rangers 3-2 To Keep Their Record Intact

BLACKHAWKS WIN

Canadiens Score 6-0 Shutout, While Maroons Take Boston 1-0

By the Canadian Press

It used to be considered a pretty fair job playing goal for New York Rangers; even one of the National Hockey League's better teams. The job is fast deteriorating until soon it may be expected even unemployed seamen will be passing Lester Patrick without a sign of recognition.

Davie Kerr, something of an exception, spent most of the week-end under the fire of Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks. He played superlative hockey in the Rangers' 3-2 victories which put Kerr back to the Rangers in Chicago last night. Kerr kept out 25 drives. Dann Irvin drove a goal into the New York record road three losers, one hit and one off his skate.

Young Mick Mats and Andy Blair stood out in the Toronto triumph, with the latter getting the scoring twice and Blair turning in smashing performance at left defence. Charlie Conacher scored the other Leaf goal on an Barnabe Kerr. Kerr made a defiant stand in every period.

Hawks Win Easily

Glen Brydson and Cecil Dillon kept Montreal Canadiens busy with tallies in the second and third periods, but the New York Americans set-defeat most of the night. They had even less chance to win last night in Chicago, where the Hawks permitted them only 19 shots on goalie Mike Karakas.

Paul Thompson, Don MacFadyen and Doc Romnes, who will hereafter be known as the first forward line of the Hawks, banged home goals, each member of the line collected three scoring points. Thompson did the firing twice and MacFadyen once.

At Montreal, Tommy Gorman's Canadiens, Stanley Cup champions made a belated debut with the assistance of Lorne Chabot, former goalie of the Bruins 1-0. It was a hard-fought battle between two of the League's strongest clubs.

Guy Maltzer scored the only goal early in the first period with the help of Allan Shields and Bob Gracie. Roger Jenkins, Boston defenceman, was banished with the game, when the goal was produced during a gang attack. It was the only lapse of the Bruins.

Canadiens Score Six

Making their first appearance of the season before the hopeful home fans, Montreal Maroons of Americans smothered 6-0 to Montreal Canadiens. A crowd of 14,000 saw the rebuilt Americans, led by Red Dutton, throw away scoring chances by wild shooting.

Jack McGill and the veteran Lorne Chabot turned in a Canadian offensive, that struck consistently, scoring in every period. McGill and Joliat whipped in first-period goals. Joliat following with a second goal in the second and Armand Mondou, McGill and Johnny Gagnon added goals in the third.

U. S. FOOTBALL

(By Alan Gould)
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

New York, Nov. 16.—(AP)—The mighty Green Athletic Command today surveyed the greatest collection of ship-wrecked football hopes washed up on the hazardous shores all season. It counted the shattered championship aspirations of three previously proud and unbeaten crafts—North Carolina, Marquette and Fordham.

Also, there was the hot tide of controversy about Notre Dame's last-minute surge to tie West Point with the aid of a passing touchdown.

But none anticipated Duke would be checked by power, speed and defensive skill sufficient to crush North Carolina 26-0.

Scarcely less startling were the margins by which Colgate shattered Syracuse's hopes of an unbeaten season, 27-0, and temple rudely jumbled the rank of Marquette's "Golden Avalanche", 26-6, at Philadelphia. Army came close to achieving a cherished victory over Notre Dame's crippled crew at the Yankee Stadium, but the gallant cadets thrilled a crowd of 80,000 by gaining a six-point lead on a long pass by Monk Meyer.

Buried back four times by army's fighting defense, Notre Dame climaxed the indomitable spirit, that marked its heroic education of Coach Hunk Anderson's proteges, by marching by 85 yards to a touchdown. This time, however, the Irish needed help. They got it when, with the ball on Army's 39-yard line, the Cadets were penalized for interference by Ed Grove on a Shakespeare to Milner pass.

The ruling by Field Judge A. W. Palmer of Colby was hotly disputed by West Point partisans, but it gave Notre Dame the ball on Army's two yard line and Lary Zankow dived across the tying score. The game ended a few seconds later.

BELLEVILLE INTS. EARN 5-5 DRAW WITH PETERBORO

Orfums Tie Score in the Last Few Seconds of Play

DISPUTE OVER TIME

Wally Hilton Was Individual Star of The Pastime

Staging a brilliant third quarter rally the Belleville intermediate football squad came from behind to forge ahead of the Peterboro Orfums, but with only a matter of seconds left to play, the locals let victory go through their grasp and were forced to accept a 5 to 5 tie verdict with the Orfuns at the Fair Grounds on Saturday. The Kennedy-coached aggregation elevated the hopes of some 600 fans, when by the brilliant broken field running of Wally Hilton and the superb punting of Jim Folwell, the local squad forged into a commanding 4 to 2 lead, with only a few seconds left to play. Seconds later Kearns rouged Schrieder and the game seemed to indicate a sure 5 to 4 victory for Belleville. When on the very last play of the game Eddie Schrieder misjudged one of Denlsen's long boots and Cameron raced through to rouge Schrieder for a tie score just as the final whistle sounded. Considerable controversy was entered in upon regarding the full time having been over and also whether or not the teams should continue in an attempt to break the tie score. Eventually the squads walked from the field, but on Sunday Business Manager Wm. Fry presented the case to the O.R.F.U. for final judgment in the matter however.

Finish Powerful

The visiting Peterboro Orfums took the lead in the first quarter, when Denlsen booted a nice placement, but Belleville counted rouges in the second and third quarters to leave the score stand 3 to 2 at the hectic fourth quarter opened. Lady Luck did not smile any too good on the Kennedy-coached aggregation throughout the game, but in the last of the game, was forced out of touch just as he was about to cross the Peterboro goal line for what would have been the only major score of the game. The Peter then held, however. Later Jimmie Folwell, local star kicking halfback just missed the standards by an inch on an attempted field goal, but was awarded a point when Belleville certain victory. The result of the game makes little difference in the Lake Shore group standing, Belleville retaining second position, as Oshawa beat Cobourg on Saturday.

The Belleville line' of scrimmage held marvelously with Faulkner, White, Forster, Clarke and Lee playing good ball, while Hilton and Folwell stood out as the stars of the game. Kearns, Denlsen, Richardson, Cameron and Weir looked the best for the Orfuns. Belleville, while on the offensive, advanced the yard-sticks exactly eight times during the game, while the Petes moved them ahead only five times. Belleville completed three of their five attempted forward passes, got for 80 yards and saw Folwell toss to Clarke, who in turn flipped the ball to Lee for the most sensational play of the day and the turning point of the game. The Orfuns completed one of three attempted forwards.

The Play

Belleville kicked off and on the return play the locals blocked Denlsen's attempted placement. The Orfuns did not give Schrieder yards on an attempted rouge and Hilton galloped to midfield, but the Petes blocked Belleville's kick and Denlsen booted a perfect placement for three points, all the scoring that was in evidence in the first quarter. Hilton and Schrieder made yards to open the second quarter and on a 30 yard punt, over the Petes' goal-line, Folwell booted for a point. Play then hovered about midfield until half time. Petes kicked off in the second half and on a first down Folwell's forward to Hilton brought the ball to the Petes' 20 yard line, but Folwell's placement missed the standards by a bare inch. On a fake forward Cefid and Magee advanced the pigskin for Belleville ball. On a first down Hilton raced 45 yards over the Petes' goal line but was called back as he was forced out of touch back as he was forced out of touch at the Peter 30 yard. Folwell promptly made the count 3 to 2 when he booted to the deadline and the teams then went into the final quarter, Petes one point up. Murphy and Magee made yards for Petes but Denlsen failed on a placement, giving Belleville the ball on their own 35 yard line. Two plunges moved the sticks when suddenly Folwell backed up, threw a 20 yard forward to Clarke, who ran 30 yards, passed to Lee, who in turn ran 15 yards for a gain of 80 yards. In all. The locals moved the ball into position and Folwell kicked a placement to put Belleville into the lead by a 5 to 3 score.

The Orfums bailed back and loored a rouge after Denlsen kicked and Kearns rouged Schrieder. With eight seconds left to play and Belleville leading 5 to 4, Denlsen hauled, but safety player Schrieder was in too close and the ball got away from him to roll over the Belleville line, Cameron rouging Schrieder to knot the count just as the final whistle sounded.

Although Belleville claimed full time had been up some 30 seconds before, little resulted in the argument as that time and the teams left the field with a tie score.

The line-ups:

Belleville: Flying wing, Forster; halves, Hilton, Folwell, Schrieder; quarter, Andrews; scrim, Faulkner; inides, White, Morgan; middles, Clare, Burden; outsides, Lee and Charks; subs, Munnings, Rigby, McCreary, Wilson, Kelly, Johnston and Cole.

Peterboro: Flying wing, Kearns; halves, Magee, Richardson, Kirkwood; quarter, Murphy; scrim, Marsh; inides, Jewery, Mitchell; middles, Cadd, Sloan; outsides, Denlsen, Cameron; subs, Weir, Broadley, Young and Spencer.

Referee: "Red" Legon, Peterboro. Umpire: VanVliet, R.C.A.F. Headlessman: Beach, Albert College.

POLICE BLOTTER

Local police were called to Catherine street at 9.40 p.m. last evening where a stranger man was terrifying the neighborhood. P.C. Taylor answered the call and took a man giving his name as Joseph Novainy, no address, into custody. Upon their arrival at the police station Novainy informed the police he was not feeling well. He it alleged to have been knocking at the doors of residences with a large stick he was carrying. Novainy was held on a nominal charge of vagrancy for medical observation.

Three drunks were picked up on local streets on Saturday night, two of whom will be charged with the destruction of private property and also with intoxication. It is alleged by the owners of the Perfect Cafe, that two of these men broke a wash bowl in that restaurant. These matters will be thoroughly aired in local police court.

Twenty-four brandeenis were given warm sleeping quarters in the police station over the week-end, 15 being accommodated on Saturday, while nine slept in the cell block last night. No major motor accidents were investigated by the local Motor cycle Patrolmen over the week end, adjacent highways here free from serious accident since last Friday.

Dode deflected all 27 shots directed his way by American snipers, while his team-mates rang up six goals.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Marshfield, Ore., Nov. 18 (CP)—Postmaster Dorcas Douglas is looking for a man with a goat. He disclosed today he has a letter for him—the mate.

There was no return address. The missive was directed to: "Young mate last house Washington St., Englewood. There in September. He had a goat."

Englewood is a suburb of Marshfield.

Kansas City, Nov. 12 (CP) — Thieves with a bent for cleanliness were sought here today.

A. C. Blackmon, lawyer, reported the theft of a bath tub, valued at $90.

New York, Nov. 18 (CP)—Miss Grvia Spiro, 32, stepped last night from a shower bath into a fire and a rescuer's arms.

Emerging from the bath, she found her second floor apartment filled with smoke. She groped, pulled on a robe, ran to a window.

From his window, a foot away reached Henry Keane and hailed her to safety while a crowd below cheered.

Chicago, Nov. 18 (CP)— The city's policemen must dress up and stay that way, Mayor Kelly ordered.

Captain John Prendergast, chief of the uniformed police, told his men: "Every man on the force must be shaved, wear clean linen and keep his shoes shined." He told 500 they would be back in uniform in two weeks, adding "we want more uniformed men on the streets."

Great Falls, Mont., Nov. 18 (CP) —Sheriff Guy Fraser quickly learned who of his 63 prisoners were sawing bars in the night. He threw a bottle of ink on the window where filing could be heard and removed ink-smeared John Tetter and Don Callen, alleged burglars, to another cell-block.

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 18 (AP) —An attractive young student nurse, robbed of speech two years ago by removal of a section of her skull in a tumor operation, has learned, like a child, to talk again.

Miss Augusta Sianek, 22, of Spokane, told hysterically today how she mastered speech again. She "could say only "yes" and "no" for a long time and then only with hesitation."

Kansas City, Nov. 18 (CP) — A hammer-swinging crusade against Kansas City "racketeers" and the underworld" proposed as the answer to "threats" that forced a minister's wife to abandon to fight her anti-gambling campaign.

The Rev. L. A. Reed, pastor of a Nazarene Church, urged forays on slot machines by sledge wielding vigilantes to avenge the "persistent intimidation" that drove Mrs. A. J. Dahlby from her home a week after she set out to "run organized gambling clear out of Kansas City."

Mrs. Dahlby remained out of the city today, nearly a week after she withdrew her children from school and closed her home.

A PROBLEM

CHAPTER 5.

"I—I beg your pardon," Janie said softly. "I'm afraid I wasn't listening."

"What were you doing?" Anthony Fane demanded. Worrying about the lovely Mildred, again, I suppose. I wouldn't you know. There's just nothing you can do about it, and if you're making yourself wretchedly unhappy."

No, Janie reflected dully, there was nothing that anyone could do about it. It had been nearly two weeks now since she had found out about Mildred. Two weeks since she had learned what everyone else on board the Santa Rina had apparently known since the first days at sea—that the lovely Mrs. Madden, her brother's wife, was by way of making a fool of herself in a fashion which even the easy, flirtatious world of shipboard regarded askance.

In a loose white coat, the gaily-hued orange scarf splashing the white silk of her blouse, and with her sturdy brown legs bared beneath her, Janie sat on a coil of yellow rope on the deck and stared out to sea. Beside her Anthony Fane sat quietly smoking, regarding the dim horizon with wise, grey, reflective eyes. All about them on the deck crowded the lounging figures of steerage passengers seeking escape from the heat of the cabins below. A mother and child, wrapped snugly in a sheet, presented a compelling picture against the sky. From beyond him rose the snores of a Mexican lady and her daughter. Beside the motionless lady's eyed infants. Palmi and Isabel, above the palsadoes of ship and ocean, came the sound of someone singing.

Janie stirred uneasily and shifted her unhappy gaze to the man beside her. What in only two weeks since she had known him? Two weeks since she had stumbled, ashen-grey and heartsick down to the deserted corner of the ship—away from the bright, crowded gaiety of the decks above, from the knowing glances, the thinly averted glances which had sprung up so suddenly in Mildred's wake and had even stalked her down to him now, under the unwinking golden stars, she felt as though she had known him forever....

It had become a regular thing now, Janie's nightly pilgrimage to the steerage. Just as soon as she could after dinner in the dining saloon was over, she walked quietly toward the aft edge of the deck leading from the Promenade Deck, slipped as quietly through the barrier that divided the two worlds of the ship, and—while the world she had left behind danced and flirted about the boat-deck above her head—she would sit contentedly on her coil of cleat rope, her back against a hatch, talking to this man she had never seen before and would probably never see again once this voyage was ended.

Of the man himself she knew just as much and as little as on that first evening they had met. For all his friendly camaraderie, there was a quality about him—an intangible quality, beyond which one could not go. But just sitting there talking with him, Janie could feel some of the tension within herself. His had a keen, sure sense of balance and serene fashion of facing down facts which held for the girl its own peculiar charm. She had been a rather cloying sufficiency of sanctimonial half-truths during the past fortnight in Mildred's society. This, at least, was real.

She had found herself telling him, after the first strangeness had worn away, of the Irishman's small incidents in the history of her home, of the Santa Rina's passengers; to all of which he listened quietly, his light eyes interested, non-committal, amused—or laughed his deep, delightful laugh. In the main, however, they talked of other things. Usually it was the man who led her into them. Janie listened; responding with all her inexperienced zest to the tantalizing, fugitive glimpses he gave her of a world she had never known. Sometimes, when the mood was upon them, they merely sat in a friendly silence under the friendly stars—until the hour grew late and the decks above were dimmed, and Janie wended her lonely way back toward the stateroom on Deck A to face another day.

They had been sitting in one such silence tonight, and it had lasted so long that she raised her eyes at last to find the eyes of Anthony Fane fixed smilingly on her own.

Delicacy and a certain amount of breeding are all that keep me from offering you a penny for your thoughts," he said with the flash of his white smile. "However, if one is to judge by that frown——"

Janie slid low on the coil of rope, pushing the hair away from her eyes with the familiar gesture of childish weariness he had come to know. "Oh, I was thinking——" she said moodily. And went on looking at the sea.

She was thinking." Anthony Fane addressed the satin-smooth back of his pipe.

"I was thinking, the girl went on in a curiously small, high voice, "what a perfectly swell place Mt. Ararat must have been. You know—where Noah landed. I was thinking how nice it was that there were just two of everything—two cows, two cats, two dogs—" She stopped. "You don't suppose," she asked anxiously, "there could have been two Mr. Cramers, do you?"

Anthony Fane stretched his long legs in their shabby brown boots, and his brown head against the rail at the back and laughed the contagious, boyish chuckle that seemed always so utterly at variance with the gravity of his quiet, brown face.

"I suppose," he said, when he had recovered his breath, "that given time enough, I shall grow accustomed to your methods of attack. Nok Nok—or—see Mrs. Cramer in the fat one, but she? With the chins and the fringed gowns and the husband who is a colonel and has met all over the world. He spends most of his time in the ship's gym—"

"Exercising." Janie said morosely. "Mrs. Cramer does nothing about the decks for hours afterward wrapped in a blanket like an Indian brave, except forget the blanket."

"Of course." He nodded gravely. "I was coming to that. But I was under the impression that it was a Mr. Kent who——"

"She does," Janie interrupted. "Leads him by her pompon."

"And there is a Mr. Kent, too?" he queried politely.

"There is a Mr. Kent. He's lean and long and rather handsome in a hairy manly. Everything makes him yawn You know the type. Has a voice like a steamer moaning in the bar. Sort of melts into a room——"

"Enough. I know the type." The brown hand holding the friendly brown pipe hid the expression of his face. With the other he made a gesture as of one checking off a list. "Now, let's get straight," he said gravely. "There's the British matron with the goggly daughter, and there are the Kents—makes from Detroit with the eyes of discouraged turtle-doves. Then there's old Mr. Minnick—"

"Who crouches," Janie amended, "in corners of the deck." And then felt herself flushing in the dark at the memory her words awakened: the memory of Gregory Stewart's big head which so closely his hateful, illuminating words.... She had, naturally, not mentioned this episode to Anthony Fane, had let it dwell on the younger group on the deck where it belonged and she could not think of those first days at sea without a small pang of regret—her cavalier laughter, their gay companionship had been such fun. And after the crash came she had had so wanted to play!

"Who crouches?" the voice of Anthony Fane went on intoning; "and there's the Purser, with his thoroughly unpleasant smile, and the missionary wit the wife who—ah—what's the name of the missionary's wife looks like?"

"A retired bloodhound," Janie said firmly. "The cannibal kind doesn't live who will forget the face of Mrs. Amos Hatch." Then she added in spite of herself, "In the helpless laughter that overcame Anthony Fane.

"Oh, I say, we are being a bit unkind, aren't we? the man said finally. He looked down at her, his laughing glance sobering Zora was walking in advance of Wamala, who was carrying both the rifles he had used in her hunting, while behind them were the porters with the kill. Just as she was about to enter the clearing, Arabs had taken her so by surprise that before she could accomplish anything in defense, she was overpowered leaped from the undertbrush on either side of the trail. and her hands were bound.

Two of them seized Wamala, while others laid heavy hands upon Zora. She tried to free herself from them and draw her revolver, but the attack had been so by surprise that before she could "What is the meaning of this?" she demanded. "Where is Abu Batn?" The men laughed. "You is she stupefied to see that they were Arabs. "I shall see him presently," said Wamala. "Do not be alarmed." Zora was astounded by what she saw. Every tent had been struck. The Arabs were ready to march.

The blacks were lined up before heavy loads. All the rest of the paraphernalia of the camp, which they had not men enough to transport, was heaped in a pile in the centre of the clearing, and over it as she looked she saw men setting torches to it.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and pop was taking a walk Saliday afternoon and we saw some little tuff kids standing on a corner smoking cigarettes, pop says. Ig, That's a very disdressing site and I hope you are properly shocked.

Yes sir, G, I said, and pop said, When the boy is fully grown, a mine is for instants a mild addiction to tobacco property does no harm and certain medical men even claim that it has a beneficial effect in many cases, most likely referring to their own cases, but in the case of children and growing youths, tobacco smoke most certainly has decidedly harmful effect.

Sure pop, I know it stumps their growth, I said, and pop said, It also stunts their hart and wakens their eyes and discolors their teeth, fingers and morals. When I was a young boy my father promised me a gold watch if I gave him my word that I wouldn't smoke until I was 20 years old, and I gave him my word and I kept it, and I won the gold watch with in the course of years grew to feebie and slow but never got rusty. And when my father was a boy a gold watch was promised to him under the same conditions by his father and your grate grandfather, pop said.

G, the whole 3 of them? I said, in pop said, Yes, but the one to win them. The custom in other words has grown to be a tradition in our family and it is my tern to make the solem compact with you. So if you want a bevitful and expensive 5'd watch on your 20th birthday, you know what you must do, or rather what you musn't, he said.

Yes sir, I said. Well G, pop, in smoking more dangerous than horsaback jumping? I said, and pop said, from the stand point of an insurans company it is properly less so, but that hardly enters into the question, does it?

No sir, because I never had much ambition to smoke but I always had grate ambitions to be a successful man and you know, I give me if I promise not to begin smoking before I'm 20? I said, and he said, I'll give you a cod liver oil sandwitch.

Being sourcastic.

AT THE BELLE

"Way Down East" with Phyllis Brooks, Richard Dix and Florence Rice Starring

A drama which, more than forty years ago, first portrayed the triumph of young love over merciless self-righteousness and bigotry, again holds the attention of audiences in Fox Film's production of Lottchen's greatest melodrama, "Way Down East", coming tomorrow to the Belle Theatre, for two days' matinee daily.

Featuring Henry Fonda, star of "The Farmer Takes a Wife", with Rochelle Hudson, the picture tells the ageless story of a woman who was stoned, who sinned for her sin and who learns her right to love and happiness.

The kicks of the drama is New England in the 1890's, and much of the action is centred about the farm of Russell Simpson, a stern, bigoted righteous farmer.

Unexpectedly, his wife has permitted Rochelle Hudson, whose past hides a tragic love episode, to work in her home, and the girl soon attracts the glances and the love of the son, Henry Fonda.

The parents, however, hope to see Rhoda marry Astrid Allwyn. She is in love with Edward Trevor, who, as fiance would have it, is Miss Penfield's lawyer.

Through the season's, the pastor-ral simplicity and beauty of New England life, the drama works out its course. Finally, pilloried by malicious gossip, Miss Hudson flees from the home to lose her way on the river ice which is breaking up.

In a climax which sets a high standard for suspense and sheer excitement, the girl is rescued from death by the narrowest margin, and the tangled threads of the lives of the principals are happily brought together in the affairs of true love.

"Way Down East" was directed by that ace director, Henry King, and features Slim Summerville, Marjorie Hamilton and Andy Devine in the roles of local characters whose behavior helps to lend the picture the stamp of authenticity.

"Made in Hollywood"

Slap-bang comedy and toe-tickling music in a romantic story that is also a biting satire on the Hollywood scene, mark the new Fox musical comedy, "Made in Hollywood", second feature attraction on the same program.

Talented Alice Faye is featured in the picture, supported by Ray Walker, who has the romantic lead; Mitchell and Durant, comedians of the "Hoi-Polloi" and Jane Darwell.

Aiding for the affections of Thomas Mott, the efforts of Miss Faye, aided by her three friends, gets a chance during a filmusical when Miss Daniels goes temperamental and refuses to continue.

Supplementing the main romance between Miss Faye and Walker, is a rivalry between Miss Daniels and her screen daughter Rochelle Hudson for the affections of Thomas Mott. Matters between them are straightened out in the climax, when Miss Lawrence is hurt in an accident and Miss Daniels is made to realize that her first duty is to her daughter.

The Belle Latest World News reveals as detailed by Erwin C. Hill the rambling reporter will be exhibited on the same program.

"Three Musketeers", Leaving

"The Three Musketeers", the greatest romance ever written, and one of the new season's outstanding pictures, will be presented at the Belle To-night with a very funny Popeye the Sailor Cartoon, and the Belle Latest News Flashes.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Case of the Lucky Leg" Starring William as Perry Mason, Master Detective

Perry Mason, in the person of Warner William, is coming to the Capitol Theatre today in what is described as the big surprise hit of the year, "Case of the Curious Leg". "The Case of the Lucky Leg."

In the cast are three other film stars, Genevieve Tobin, Patricia Ellis and Lyle Talbot.

This is the third of Gardner's Perry Mason novels that First National has made into a picture and is declared to be not only the most thrilling of them all, but have angles of entertainment that fits it far out of the class of murder mystery dramas.

William again portrays the role of Perry Mason, the brilliant lawyer-detective, who solves crimes the police are unable to fathom. He has a new leading lady, however, in Miss Tobin in the role of his shrewd and devoted secretary, who makes her love for the "boss" under a barrage of sarcastic remarks.

The real romance, however, is carried out by Patricia Ellis and Lyle Talbot, with Porter Hall in the role of Miss Ellis' boss, as a third member of a triangular love affair.

It is this triangular love that is at the bottom of the mysterious murder, although the man who is slain has no connection with the romantic angle. He is a fake promoter who conducts a contest for the girl with the most beautiful legs in the village in which the lovers live, the prize being won by Miss Ellis.

The promoter, played by Craig Reynolds, skips town with all the cash, and is murdered with a surgeon's knife which throws suspicion on both Miss Ellis and her doctor-lover, as well as many other persons mixed up in the leg contest. The unfolding of the murder plot and the ultimate solution by the lawyer-detective, after the police have gone completely astray, is responsible for a series of breath-taking situations that lead to a thrilling and most unusual climax.

The "lucky leg" contest, which introduces the story, is a show all in itself, many Hollywood and beautiful girls, as to both face and figure, having been enlisted as the contestants.

Allen Jenkins plays a comedy role as Winfield Schuyler, the detective's helper.

Others in the cast include Beatrice MacLeod, Peggy Shannon, Addison Kerry, Henry O'Neill, Charles Wilson, Joseph Crehan, Gin Hoeland, Mary Treen and Joseph Downing.

Also showing with the fine feature above are a well varied list of short subjects. On Early Dinnerware today and Tuesday.

Gwendolyn Tobin, Warner William and Patricia Ellis in a scene from "Case of the Lucky Leg" now at the Capitol theatre until Tuesday.

CLARK GABLE TO BE DIVORCED

An early divorce from Clark Gable, movie actor, was planned by his wife, the former Mrs. Rhea Lucas of Houston, Texas, following an admission by both that they had come to the parting of the ways. Clark, in New York after a South American trip, said that a property settlement had been arranged. The Gables were married June 19, 1931. They separated several years ago but their difficulties were patched up. Mrs. Gable eleven years older than her husband, often has been considered a perfect "helpmeet." Rehle had been wed once previously to Josephine Dillon Gable, a dramatic coach in Hollywood.

ETHIOPIANS SURRENDER EN MASSE TO THE ITALIANS

This unusual war scene shows two lines of fighters coming to the end of a grim chase in the hill country, close by Makineor, during the recent Italian advance on and occupation of Makale. In the distance a thin line of Ethiopian soldiers is seen, converging into a solid group, as Italian infantrymen caught up with them. They surrendered without a battle.

153 Camera Artists Show 218 Prints at Ottawa Salon

By Guy E Rhodes, Canadian Press (Staff Writer).

OTTAWA, Nov. 13 (CP)—The second Canadian international salon of photographic art has opened at the National Gallery with a selection of 218 prints by 153 camera artists, including 36 by 16 Canadians. The exhibited prints, selected by a jury from about 1,500 submitted by photographers all over the world, will be sent on tour at the end of the show.

Nature of Photography

Subjects of the pictures, produced by photographic processes unknown to most amateur snapshooters, vary through land scapes, portraits, figure studies, sports, architecture, nature studies and half-abstractions by trick lighting and camera-setting.

Abstraction and trick pictures, fashionable a few years ago, have shrunk to a small minority and most pictorialists represented in the show have tackled their subjects naturally, seeking to bring up certain things as textures of objects, atmosphere and the play of light and shadow.

Treatment of Ice, Snow

Noticeable is the fine treatment of ice, snow and water. All three are combined in "Ice Formations, Lake Ontario" by D. Campbell of Oshawa, Ont., a picture of ice banks, partly snow-covered, jutting into chill water. Snow flecked black water slides past pulpy snow-covered ice in "Thin Ice" by J. P. Skillen of Hamilton, W. C. West of Ottawa has a picture of twigs covered by crystalized snow through which light shows. He calls it "Translucence."

READY TO PROCEED IN O'DONNELL CASE

Accused And Alwynne Thompson Not in Same Cell Block

Toronto, Nov. 19 (CP)— Harry O'Donnell, accused of slaying Miss Ruth Taylor, and Alwynne Thompson, awaiting re-trial on a charge of murdering his wife, Viola, no longer occupy the same cell block in Don Jail.

It was reported Thompson had been taken to another cell block and he said does not come in contact with O'Donnell. Previously the two men met daily during the exercising period during the exercising hours. Jail authorities declined to discuss the reason for the move.

Mrs. Thompson's criminally assaulted body was found near a ditch on the outskirts of the city, a year ago last summer.

Trying Thompson for the crime failed to result in a verdict, acquitted and criminally assaulted body of Miss Taylor, a 20-year-old stenographer, was found lying dead in an east-end ravine.

Crown officials have indicated they were ready to proceed with the preliminary hearing of O'Donnell's case and there was a well-nigh certainty that if he was committed he would stand trial at the same assizes as Thompson next January.

Completes Purchase Of Detroit Tigers

Detroit, Nov. 19 (AP)—Walter O. Briggs, Detroit industrialist, who is a half owner of the world champion Detroit baseball club, today announced today he had arranged to purchase the remaining 50 per cent interest from the heirs of Frank J. Navin, Club president, who died last week.

Briggs said the transaction was in accordance with a long standing agreement with Navin, by which the surviving partner would have an option on the holdings of the other.

Charles Navin, Club secretary and Mickey Cochrane, manager, will go to Miami, Fla., Dec. 1, to confer with Briggs after attending a baseball meeting at Dayton, O.

YOUTH GETS ONE YEAR

The charges included theft of four automobiles, two charges of breaking and entering, theft of clothing, theft of gasoline and theft of mail.

WEST CATTLE MEN ENVISAGE WIDER PRODUCT MARKET

U. S. Market Practically Closed For Some Time

KING ON HOLIDAY

Sanctions Imposed Against Italy Are Now in Effect

Ottawa, Nov. 19 (CP)—Government departments were today continuing their study of the Canada-United States trade agreement, particularly the National Revenue Department on whom officials fall a great burden of work in re-arranging their administrative activities to meet the new conditions of the treaty. The police having been decreed, it is the job of the official staffs to work out the details. Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Minister of National Revenue, left today for Nova Scotia, his home province, to attend the meetings of the Provincial Bar Association. He will be back on Saturday.

In the country generally the comment of those most directly affected by the treaty's operation was favorable. Lumbermen particularly saw prospects for some improvement in the market for an industry, which for years has been suffering from depression, coupled with former restrictive measures imposed by the United States had seriously affected. Their qualification, however, was that the pact did not go far enough and they hoped it was a step "in the right direction."

Sanctions In Effect

Western cattle men welcomed the agreement, envisaging a wide outlet which, they said, in the past had been practically closed to them for some considerable time. At present the produce growers voiced appreciation of the effects of the treaty but Nova Scotia orchardists were apprehensive lest the concessions to the United States mean depression of their central Canada market. Eastern dairy producers expressed satisfaction.

Minister Minister Mackenzie King holidaying in Georgia and Acting Premier Ernest Lapointe in Quebec no official comment as yet has been forthcoming. The two governments' leaders exchanged telegrams of mutual congratulation, each invoking the blessing of Heaven in characterizing the treaty as the fulfilment of the great commonwealth dream.

The sanctions imposed by Canada against Italy went into effect yesterday News dispatches indicate that Italy has taken similar steps to the various countries participating in these penalties and that, therefore, it could not be learned if Canada had received an official notice that the government would take on it.

KING AND QUEEN ARE GOD-PARENTS

False Passports Issued Terrorists for Canada Charged at Warsaw Trial

Lithuania Charged With Providing Documents

RAISING OF FUNDS

Case of Roman Suszko Cited in Complaint in Chief

Warsaw, Nov. 19 (AP)— The Lithuanian government provides false passports for Ukrainian terrorists to enter Canada and the United States to raise funds for other terrorists campaigns it was alleged today by the prosecutor at the trial of 13 Ukrainians in connection with the assassination of Bronislaw Pieracki, Polish Minister of Interior in June, 1934.

Lithuania was bracketed with Lithuania in the prosecutor's accusation Ukrainian terrorists were encouraged by outside; government.

The prosecutor's complaint specially named former Premier Voldemaras of Lithuania as having furnished a passport to Roman Suszko, a notorious Ukrainian terrorist," in which he was identified as a Lithuanian government employee. With this passport, the complaint said, Suszko entered the United States via Canada with the alleged help of the Lithuanian legation in New York, which, the complaint added, also identified him as a Lithuanian government employee.

EXPECT ADVANCE IN POTATO PRICE

Growers Holding Back For Higher Prices—Supply Light

A statement by one prominent produce man in the city given the Daily Ontario Intelligencer earlier this fall that producers were due for a substantial rise in price before winter's end was supported by the statements of experts that potatoes would likely reach the $2 a bag mark before next future.

This was denied out, is the result of a shortage of potatoes in the Dominion this year and the increased demand is also attributed to the result of the new reciprocal trade agreement between Canada and the United States.

"It is quite possible that potatoes will be selling at or around $2 a bag," corroborated Mr. Geo. W. Calvert, Chief of the Dominion Experts today when questioned.

Prices have already naturally increased on the local potato market during the past few weeks and farmers of the district who have grown and stored a fair crop are reluctant to sell them at present quotations, preferring to keep them on the hope that cold cellars until prices rise above present levels. The majority of crops were small, due to the unfavorable season and the fact that this year, anticipating a glut on the market, many local farmers grew only enough of the tubers to see themselves through the winter.

TO DECIDE CHALLENGE

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 19 (CP)—The Athletic Board of Control of Queen's University will meet this week to decide whether the Tri-color football team, senior champions of the Intercollegiate Union, will enter a challenge in the Eastern Canada Championship.

While all Ted Reeves' team were unable to carry on, the general feeling here was the football season was over for the Tri-color. Final decision, however, would be made at to-day's meeting.

Should Queen's decide to challenge they would play Hamilton Tigers, Intercprovincial Union winners, Saturday.

Separate School At Tecumseh, Ont. May Close for Funds

Tecumseh, Ont., Nov. 19 (CP)—Secretary Ernest Cecile has been instructed by Tecumseh Separate School Board to notify the Ontario Department of Education the Separate Schools here will have to close for a month or more because of lack of funds. The Board has approximately 600 pupils under its jurisdiction. Enrolment has increased by 20 per cent during the last two years because of an influx of families on relief, it is claimed.

REPUBLICAN ASKS VOTE ON TARIFF

Says it is a Joke on U. S. When Farmers Stockmen And Industries

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—(CP)—The Canadian-American Trade Treaty will remain in operation for three years until Jan. 1, 1938, and there is only three possible ways of terminating it according to the remaining its provisions must stand.

The treaty may be terminated if the rate of Exchange between the two countries gets as far out of line as is being practically impossible. It could be terminated if either country granted to a third party concessions on an article named in the treaty and refused to consult with the other treaty country. The third eventuality deals with quantities imposed by quotas and price regulating schemes.

Retrenchment Sought

Chicago, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Harrison Spangler of Iowa, director of the Republican western headquarters, in an interview today said the Reciprocal Tariff Treaty between the United States and Canada should be put in effective form postponed to give the voters a referendum on the issue in the November, 1936 election.

He said the treaty was a step toward free trade and a joke on American wheat farmers, cattle raisers and industries. He said consumers should repeal the power under which President Roosevelt made negotiate reciprocal trade agreements. He charged it was the result in the sense in which it was made propitiations whereas in Canada it was debated openly and was a plank in the platform on which Prime Minister Mackenzie King was elected.

Irremediable Tariff

Ottawa, Nov. 19—(CP)— While terms of the United States-Canada reciprocity pact run for three years it cannot be changed except as a result of specified developments, Canada has not bound itself to keep its intermediate tariff at present levels, tariff experts explained today.

Believed Two Freshmen Drowned in St. Lawrence

Ogdensburg, N.Y., Nov. 19 (CP)— Two Clarkson college freshmen who ventured out on the St. Lawrence River in a canoe during a week-end trip were believed today to have been drowned.

The students, Verne Lawrence, 19, of Canton, and Alonzo Sewell, 19, of Clayton, have not been seen since last Saturday.

The growing theory was advanced by State Police after an abandoned canoe, a broken paddle and a half frozen dog were found near the youths' camp along the banks of the river near Morristown.

State police and volunteer searchers dragged the river until midnight last night and planned to continue the search today if weather conditions permit.

War Cloud in Far East Blamed on Japanese Aims

London, Nov. 19 (CP)—The menace of war again hangs over the Far East. Official dispatches to the government do little it is understood, to lift the veil over a situation full of confusion and uncertainty.

Independence To Be Declared.

The expectation here however is that at least three provinces of North China—Chahar, Shansi and Hopeh—will this week secede from the Central Government at Nanking and declare their independence.

On the growing Japanese influence over North China lies the gravity of the situation. The secession of the three provinces would be a repetition of Manchukuo. While independent on the surface they would be in reality puppet states of Japan. Both Japan and the Central Chinese government are said to be massing troops at strategic points.

The British government is watching the situation closely but has not yet made any representations regarding the latest developments. Apparently British trade interests in North China are involved.

Conscription Ordered.

Nanking, China, Nov. 19 (AP)— Delegates to the Kuomintang (National Party) Congress here today decided to instruct the government to enforce a program of nation-wide conscription for military service.

The three months' period of conscription was adopted in 1933 but never enforced.

After the congress session Generalissimo Chiang-Kai-Shek, chairman of the Central Chinese Government, reviewed the national emergency in a speech not made public.

Shanghai, Nov. 19 (AP)—Chinese officials said today they were carrying out a program of autonomy for North China only to save that area from Japanese aggression.

Forced to Act.

The officials declared the Japanese army had threatened to invade and occupy North China unless the Chinese complied with a demand for establishment of an autonomous North China government.

The autonomy program involves financial and economic independence for North China which still, however, will acknowledge the nominal sovereignty of Nanking.

Tokyo, Nov. 19—Japanese sources indicated today the proposed autonomous state of North China will not be under Japanese control following its "declaration of Independence" expected before the end of the week.

Washington, Nov. 19 (AP)—The Far Eastern situation with respect to approaching Japanese domination of North China was discussed today by the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, and William Phillips, Under-Secretary of State.

ALBERTA GETS LOAN

Edmonton, Nov. 19 (CP)—Premier Aberhart today announced a $1,000,000 loan has been advanced to Alberta by the Dominion Government for relief purposes over until the Dominion-Provincial Conference at Ottawa, December 9. Alberta had asked for $3,000,000 to last until this date.

SAM LANGFORD INJURED

New York, Nov. 19 (CP)—Sam Langford, Nova Scotian, who in Saturday was considered one of the greatest of negro ring battlers, lay critically injured in a hospital here today.

Witnesses said Sam probably didn't notice the light was red when he shuffled into the street and was struck by a taxi cab.

CAR ACCIDENT KILLS ONE

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 19 (CP)— Herbert James E. Hackett, 48, struck November 14, near his home at Glenvale, 16 miles from here by a car driven by A. Callaghan of Kingston, died early today in Kingston General Hospital. He suffered a fractured skull and other injuries.

Grand Council Approves Ethiopian Conquest and Resistance of Sanctions

Also Takes Relentless Stand Against Any Compromise

NO PEACE OVERTURES

Effort to Protect The Finances of Italy in Vigorous Way

(By George Jordan, Copyright, 1935 by the Associated Press)

Rome, Nov. 19 (AP)—Fascism's highest authority, the Grand Council, approved Premier Mussolini's decision of Ethiopian conquest and resistance to the League of Nations sanctions today, taking a new, relentless stand against compromise.

Il Duce reviewed Italy's political and military situation in a two-hour session of the council, rushing into the early hours of today, after which the powerful body adjourned for a month.

Authoritative foreign sources said Mussolini's review included an important resume of the Mediterranean situation and the Anglo-Soviet Pact there would be no more troop withdrawals from Libya for the present.

Foreign sources said the three-nation pact "virtually ended" hopes for peace overtures rather than the reverse.

Spokesmen for these quarters said "watchful waiting" would be maintained regarding action against such non-sanctionist nations as the United States, Holland and Germany where sale conflicting currents of public opinion made France's position difficult to predict.

Closing Session

The closing session of the council, which began at 9:30 p.m. and lasted 4½ hours, starting on "sanctions No. 1," after Italy's United States agreement to buy 7 bushels of Italian goods and foreign exchange needs to Italy.

Italy Placarded

Merchants throughout Italy, meanwhile, reechoed slogans emanating from Rome in the campaign against "economic resistance" to the League penalties and their purpose to "defend Italy" in the economic warfare in East Africa.

Placards in all the public places, pasted on store windows throughout Italy, proclaimed:

"We sell nothing from sanctionist countries."

In Rome and other cities, theatres played the Royal March and hymn of Fascism, and the audiences stood at attention and then cheered Premier Benito Mussolini.

Anti-sanction slogans were thrown on the screens of motion picture theatres. Speakers preceded the showing with a resume of the Grand Council's Sunday meeting condemnation of the League measures.

Protest Finance

Efforts to protect Italy's finances became particularly serious. Two cases came as examples. In Rome, the Finance Ministry fined a banker in Milan, a Swiss sleeping car porter, 10,000 lire each for alleged smuggling Italian lire.

The Italian Navy there announced one billion lire (about $80,000,000) was subscribed to Mussolini's non conversion scheme to finance the African campaign.

Foreign travelers planned to sell no papers or publications from neutral countries.

The Manchuriens Medici Del Vascello hobbled the Fascist militia rules of widows and mothers of great war dead to help enforce sanctions and the purpose of sanctions.

MISSING WOMAN FOUND.

Hamilton Ont., Nov. 19 (CP)— Police were given a fruitless search during the night when they were informed Miss Vera Cahill, aged 28, had disappeared from her home about 1.30 a.m. clad only in her night dress and slippers. Officers searched the mountain area and found no trace of the woman but this morning were informed she had returned home.

War at a Glance

Addis Ababa, Nov. 19.—(AP) — Paul Corrigner, French chief of Ethiopian aviation and two French mechanics have been ordered home by the French Government, they told today, to serve terms in the army.

Rene Drouillet, who recently pilot-ed a private French plane here, was appointed to replace Corrigner. Drouillet, not a member of the active French army, said he would be able to stay here indefinitely.

Djibouti, Nov. 19.—(CP-Havas)—Col. Hubert Fauniliery Julian, ace of Harlem, was afraid today without him Ethiopia is sure to lose the war.

"I couldn't stand those lazy negroes any longer," he boomed in a voice like a foghorn. "I am discouraged." He resigned a few days ago from the service of Emperor Haile Selassie.

Addis Ababa, Nov. 19.—(CP-Havas)—Delighted over the prospect a clash from the routine of the capital, 15 foreign correspondents left Addis Ababa today in a truck caravan bound for Desaye, Ethiopia's major concentration point to the road to Dessie.

It was the first time since the Italo-Ethiopian crisis that Haile Selassie had given permission to newspaper-men to visit one of the capital toward the Ethiopian front.

Jiddah Arabia, Nov. 19.—(CP-Havas)—King Ibn Saud and the government of Saudi Arabia announced Arabia should observe strict neutrality in the Italo-Ethiopian war. The country has refused to export camels and donkeys to Italy despite the high prices offered.

Believe "Fence" Has Bourbon Jewels

Montreal, Nov. 19 (CP)—Belief $7,500 in jewels stolen from Prince Jean De Bourbon and Princess Marie Mercedes, Nov. 4, while the royal couple were visiting and staying in a Toronto hotel, are in Montreal, was voiced today by detectives investigation.

Police are working on the theory, they said today, international gem thieves have followed the Royal Prince and his wife from Montreal to Toronto and perpetrated the theft while they were there.

Investigation in Montreal's underworld circles has failed to reveal any trace here and some "fence" is going or has a chance to dispose of them.

LIGHTSHIPS MOVED

Boston, Nov. 19 (AP)—Lightships at the entrance to the Portland, Me., and New York harbors, which were out of position today as a result of Monday's northeaster in which three men are believed to have perished.

Although hope for the safety of two duck hunters—William De Forest, 20, and Lewis Perry, 60, missed on Cornfield Point, Conn., was abandoned, Coast Guardsmen continued search for Perry, 60, who, it was lost off a fishing vessel.

HOW WOULD JOHNNY KNOW?

Toronto, Nov. 19 (CP)—Nine-year-old Johnny McKenzie's mother forgot to tell him where the family was moving to. Johnny came home from school and found the old home empty and locked. Police Constable Kenny was summoned and finally found the boy's parents at their new address.

The card attached to the balloon was promptly mailed.

ST. OLA RESIDENT IN CAR ACCIDENT

E. Reid and D. King Badly Cut When Car Turns Over Near Havelock

Harlow, escape from serious injury was experienced by Mr. Damon King, 70-year-old resident of St. Ola and Earl Reid, two well known North Hastings residents when their car with which they had been travelling to Campbellford yesterday afternoon turned over on the Trent Road near Havelock. Both sustained cuts and bruised beneath the car.

Mr. Reid, the younger occupant, managed to release himself and summon aid to free the older companion who was in danger of bleeding to death. Samuel Buchanon, Dummer Township farmer who was one of the first on the scene assisted in righting the car and transporting the badly injured driver. Deep lacerations required several stitches after first aid had been given by Dr. Holcroft, Havelock.

Miss S. Denike Again Awarded Knitting Prize

For the second time, Miss Susie Denike, 202 Ann Street, has won the first prize in the provincial knitting competition sponsored by the Robert Simpson Company. Knitters all over Ontario submitted their work in this contest and Miss Denike's originality of design and perfection of workmanship gained for her final place.

She completed a three-piece knitted suit in jade green and pearl gray fashioned in plaid motif. The maids sweater was monogrammed and the color scheme is found in the breaker style. Pocketed lapels added to the intricacy of the work, exquisitely done by the expert needlewoman. Miss Denike who is skilled in all the arts of the needle is receiving the congratulations of her many friends, who followed with interest the progress of the contest.

Cat Returns After 7 Months' Absence

Fluffy, a large and beautiful Persian cat, owned by Mr. Floyd Mallory of this city, after an absence of seven unexplained months, has returned again, taking up the usual routine of its former life without much as a backward look or fixing plain her singular and lengthy disappearance.

Apparently, worn and tired and thinner than ever before, the cat appeared at the door of Mr. Mallory's Church Street home early last evening, scratched to be let in. The wonder panel, begging as well known tones to be let in.

Today plentiful rations of milk and liver are restoring the sleekness to her once rich coat.

"She must have spent the past seven months in the woods, judging by the look of her," stated the owner this morning.

Fluff says nothing!

Miniature Balloon Travels 104 Miles

Carried aloft through the upper air currents over a distance of 104 miles or more across Lake Ontario, two small, gas-filled balloons liberated in Syracuse, New York, over the week end came to rest in this district. One of Mr. Gordon Frost, Sidney, six miles west of this city, the second somewhere.

The two balloons were liberated by a newspaper publication, each carrying a competing in a miniature balloon race to see whose entry will go the farthest before coming to earth.

Accompanying the balloons was card by the local resident was a large card:

"Finder please note

Trade Agreement Is Not Expected To Affect Business

No immediate or far reaching effect is expected to be experienced at the local office of commerce for this district as a result of the new reciprocal trade agreement between this country and the United States it was indicated today by Lt. Col. R. A. Gaen, in charge of the local office.

"Although we are a part of declaration, our actual work of examining is confined to the goods and the coastal boat which makes the port. As far as the $100 duty free clause on goods being brought into the country by Canadian tourists to the States, this will not affect us at all, it seems to me, though, that one of the first things customs men on both sides of the border will have to do is define "tourist". It would be interesting to know Canadians in travel back and forth for the express purpose of bringing in these goods duty free."

Local shopkeepers today declared that it would be practically unaffected by the duty-free clause. "This will affect only the Canadians in border points mostly and will have little effect in inland municipalities," it was stated.

Victorian Order of Nurses Add Another Victory to Their List

Lovable Baby Boy Owes Life To Careful Nursing of V. O. N.

ONE OF MANY

Members of the local branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses at their regular meeting held in the club last evening took first steps toward what it hoped to be the rescuing of a baby undertaking yet conceived by that organization.

Impressed with the acute need for such an institution, through a recently passed and unanimously carried it is hoped to enlist the aid of the Ontario Department of Health and service clubs, organizations and the citizens of Belleville and district in general in the establishment of a suitable tuberculosis sanitarium locally for the treatment of those afflicted with that disease in this section.

The sanitarium which will be located, preferably in the scenic Oak Hill section would work in conjunction with the proposed tuberculosis clinic expected to be set up in the Belleville General Hospital according to previous announcements by Hon. Dr. J. M. Faulkner, Ontario Minister of Health, who subsequently learned from the Ontario Department of Health, the county, various municipalities and citizens of Belleville themselves is expected to be sufficient to maintain the institution once erected. Nursing would be undertaken by the Victorian Order.

WARNING GIVEN

The following resolution was moved by Mr. Reg. Moncrieff, past president of the local branch and seconded by Mrs. Ernest Thompson, "That the local branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses ask the assistance of the Hon. Dr. Faulkner, Ontario Minister of Health, local medical men, service clubs and citizens in general in an effort to establish a tuberculosis sanitarium, preferably in the Oak Hills section for the treatment and care of those afflicted with that disease in this section."

In moving the resolution, past president Moncrieff argued convincingly for the motion.

"The V.O.N. has passed the stage where its services have been confined to the attendance of sick children and ailing mothers; now it has a national institution and must engage in a wider range of activities, of which the control and cure of disease should be one aim. We have proved right in Belleville, in the past, when we have advocated an organization here, capable of tackling the problem of T.B. and given attention".

"We could be saved right in this section if we had the proper facilities to work with," continued Clark, stating that tuberculosis was particularly to the threat of tuberculosis was particularly to the threat of tuberculosis was particularly evident in the Bay of Quinte district.

"In the past many have died of this white plague because their trouble was not diagnosed in time and there was little, that could be done for them. Isolated and, unless the patient had money, with an inexpensively managed sanitarium, there was little hope. What is now need is shown I believe, that sufficient donations will be received right away to help us. We may be the first branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses in the province to launch out in this manner, but it will be the better for it."

"Dr. Faulkner has said that a sanitarium should be erected in Hastings County later on, but he intends placing it in the district of Bancroft. I believe it is too far away. A more beautiful and healthful resort than the Oak Hills could not be found."

Mrs. E. Masser-at, Chairman.

With the adoption of the resolution, Mr. Moncrieff was chosen chairman of the committee to approach the various local clubs, outlining the needs and requesting assistance in the matter. He will choose his own committee. Dr. Faulkner will be approached immediately through a communication and by the local secretary, Miss Arbuckle.

Meeting for October submitted by Miss Soutar, nurse, at the meeting showed a decided increase in the number of visits made by members of the present year in the number of cases handled and calls answered. The last month was the highest month of the year with a total of 363 visits made by the nurses to the homes of 118 patients. July this year has been the highest month previous to October with a total of 344 calls answered.

Members are still playing their nefarious trade in the baby bungles left by mothers attending the Well Baby Clinics at the city hall on Thursday afternoons of each month. For the past several clinics minor articles have been pilfered from the unattended bassinets by unknowns. Request for police assistance will be made by the president of the branch, Mrs. T. Holland, who acted as chairman during the last evening's meeting.

Belleville, Ont., Nov. 18, 1938.

To the Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ont.
Mr. Editor:

It has been brought to the attention of the Army and Navy Veterans of Branch, 351 Belleville that the citizens of Belleville are being canvassed to buy calendars of alleged value for the purpose of which are to be used for charitable purposes by the veterans.

The Army and Navy Veterans of Belleville are not sponsoring any such activities and desire that in fairness to the citizens of such practices the publication of paid in the Ontario Intelligencer Association.

Kindly put you for the space in your valuable paper.

Yours truly,
Quentin Boyd, President A.N.V.C.

Car Struck by Truck Which is Turned Over

When an east bound automobile, driven by A. H. Hill, St. Lambert, Que., was struck by a south bound automobile driven by Reginald Brundish, 156 West Moira St., at the intersection of Dundas and Front Streets, this city, yesterday afternoon, the automobile driven by Hill was thrown to the south ditch on Pinnacle St. no person, however being injured. Both vehicles however, have an unusually bad past.

Sergeant Booth and P. C. Taylor investigated and found, that Mr. Hill was proceeding easterly and had driven through the west and across the intersection when the driver, Brundish, driving a truck the rear of the motor car, turning it completely around, the latter it toppled over into the ditch. Although skid marks measured only showed that the truck had travelled a distance of 18 feet, after the application of the brakes, the impact was terrific.

The motor left side, fenders and left rear wheel of the automobile were damaged, the truck driver also was also best. The damage to the truck was considered to be confined to headlights. The automobile was towed to a nearby garage, while the truck proceeded on its way under its own power.

A TRIBUTE TO THE LATE MARJORIE HOUGH

(Contributed)

Sunset and evening star,
And one clear call for me.
And may there be no sadness of farewell
When I pass out to sea.

For the Pilot will be near me.
I hope to see my pilot face to face
When I have crossed the bar.

With these lovely words the Rev. A. C. Sinclair of Victoria Avenue United Church began his address at the funeral of the late Marjorie Hough a service that brought comfort to the sorrowing family and relations, and as the writer of this Valley often during his illness we would like to send a few lines as our tribute to a very dear relative whom we shall miss in the years to come when we cannot go to him with our troubles.

He is Not Dead

He is not dead this man we loved so well
He has gone home, a little while before.
Here in the room where he was wont to dwell,
The cheery fire, its friendly open door.
So often has he held it so, flung
With hands outstretched and kindness in his eyes
We like to think he'll welcome us home
The gates of Heaven, when it's our turn to rise.

He loved the earth and all the common things.
The little farms where lamps shine out at night.
The rest and peace, the hush of evening brings
The common toil, plain folks and lantern light.
His feet flew the ways of toil had ever

trod
And we feel sure his pathway led to God.

Among the friends from a distance at the funeral and home were the following: Mr. and Mrs. Percy Brown of Delhi, and Mrs. W. Caldwell Mr. and Mrs. H. Barraclar, son and wife, Mrs. Pearce and Mrs. Owen of Belleville, Mr. and Mrs. Bird, Mr. and Mrs. Andrews, Mrs. Fraser, Mrs. Hough, Mr. and Mrs. F. Montgomery and Mr. and Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Ellis of Toronto.

POLICE BLOTTER

Lawrence Lock, Benjamin street, arrived at the police station this morning to claim his bicycle that had been stolen from the rear of his home some time last night. The missing "bike" had been found abandoned by the department early today and had been taken to the police station for safe keeping.

Detective Dennis Thurlow, was interested to notice by the Provincial Police yesterday on a warrant issued by Pembroke authorities, charging theft of a motorcycle. Donovan explained he knew nothing of the incident, only having in his possession his own motorcycle purchased by him in Toronto. He is being held for Pembroke authorities, however.

A local teen aged youth was brought to the police station this morning after the latter had complained that the boy had stolen the family automobile and taken it for a joy ride last night. Under oath took the lad aside and explained to him the possible results of his erring ways. The youth was allowed his liberty upon promising Chief Kidd he would behave himself in the future.

Nine transients were admitted to the police station and given a warm night's lodging at the police station, while today are further investigating clues which they hope will lead to the apprehension of the chicken thieves who have been operating in Hastings County recently.

N. S. DELEGATES CONTROL MEETING

First Session of Women's Federation Breaks Up in Protest

Halifax, Nov. 19 (CP)—Nova Scotia delegates were recalled today to be in control of the voting at the annual meeting of the Women's Maritime Athletic Federation of Canada, and a few minutes later the convention broke up, temporarily amid a flurry of protests.

A 45 minute session followed two Halifax women as having more voting strength than five delegates from Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba. The discovery precipitated a hot debate that ended with a hasty adjournment until this afternoon.

The fireworks began when Margaret Lord of Hamilton, Ont., tried to pass through a resolution censuring Ann Clark of Vancouver for charging the Hamilton Olympic Club with "commercialism" when in that city, Miss Clark, who carried 13 rods into her record jumping, was not having any.

Officers started a check-up on the proxies and then left the room during the W. E. Stirling of Halifax, President and Miss Mirth, Pyrrill of Halifax, controlled the meeting.

18 DEER HUNTERS KILLED IN N. Y.

Persons Injured in State Were 84—Fewer Bucks Shot

Albany, Nov. 19 (AP)—The deer hunting season in New York State has come to a close last week with a total of eighteen persons killed and eighty-four others thus far reported injured in hunting accidents.

The toll of the 1934 season was seventeen killed and ninety-five wounded.

Figures on the number of deer killed in the month of hunting will not be available at the State Conservation Department before the end of the month, but reports from the Adirondack and Catskill regions indicate that the total kill will be considerably below last year's total of about 8,000.

From the point of view of the sportsman, this year's deer hunting season has not been as satisfactory as others in recent years. Weather conditions are believed responsible for the smaller kill this Fall. The season has been unusually warm and the foliage has remained on the trees, effectively concealing the deer from the eyes of the hunters.

Absence of snow in the forests also has been a deterrent to successful hunting, as it has not been easy to follow the trail of the deer.

Sanctions Not of Decisive Character

Copyright, 1935

By The Associated Press

Addis Ababa, Nov. 19—(AP)—Emperor Haile Selassie, in his last interview before going to join his armies on the battlefront, told the Associated Press today "the effect of sanctions invoked yesterday against Italy cannot be of decisive character.

"The little ruler showed keenest interest in reports from abroad of the launching of League of Nations sanctions against Italy.

"If economic sanctions could possibly bring about a situation which would force that country stop making war, I am sure the hostilities would never have commenced," he said.

Sanctions, however, will help us, for which we are most grateful."

"I know only too well we ourselves must fight to save Ethiopia," he concluded.

Canadian Turkeys to Replace Texas Birds

Detroit, Nov. 18—(CP)—Canadian turkeys, famed as high quality birds, may replace Texas turkeys on Detroit's Thanksgiving Day bill of fare. This possibility was foreseen Monday by local poultry dealers when it became known the annual Thanksgiving boom in raising Texas, one of the leading turkey producing states, had boosted prices in Detroit to a peak of 21 cents a pound after cents a pound over the 1934 figure.

As a result of the rise, Detroit housewives probably will pay about 40 cents a pound for the popular bird, the prices ranging up to about 50 cents.

C. H. Adams, Detroit poultry dealer, said that Texas birds were usually considered inferior to Canadian turkeys and that even when the prices are high Detroit dealers can afford to pay the duty on imported birds. The duty has been eight cents a pound for several years.

V.O.N. TAKES STEPS TO ESTABLISHMENT OF SANITARIUM

Will be First Order in Ontario to Take Heavy Responsibility

R. MONCRIEFF, CHAIRMAN

Would Like Sanitarium Placed in Oak Lake Section

Pat will be home today.

A little, tousle-headed two-year-old boy, whose infectious smile, white blue eyes and unfailing good humor had made him the darling of nurses and doctors alike, will leave the Belleville General Hospital today for his home and parents who for two weeks ago had despaired of a tiny life that has been so miraculously restored.

Pat came from a home where money lately has not been too plentiful. Two weeks ago he caught a chill. A cold developed. Breathing off to bed, he became worse. The tiny pulse throbbed slowly and faintly and there was a labored gasp to the breathing of the little patient over whom the dark shadow seemed to hover. A doctor was called. Quickly the case was diagnosed and a hurry call made to one of the nurses of the local Victorian Order.

Grimly the doctor spoke: "It's too sick to disturb. Just do what you can for him."

Under expert care, with the help of more nourishing food and the fresh air that came through the previously unopened window, Pat recovered — slowly. Then a relapse. Hospital. An operation, to relieve a little, fluid up lung. Pat improved and beautifully. Again that chasm had been crossed. Convalescence. Pat will be home tomorrow.

"We have had considerable work to do among the poorer districts of the city during the past month," concluded the report of the activities of the local branch of the Victorian Order presented at last evening's meeting of the Board, by Mrs Soutar.

FAMOUS LIQUEUR PLANT DESTROYED

Chartreuse Plant Near Grenoble Ruined by Avalanche

PARIS, Nov. 19.—The old distillery in which the Carthusian monks used to make their famous Chartreuse was destroyed early Saturday by an avalanche unprecedented in the district.

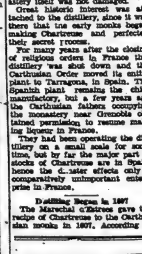
Besides six immense stone buildings, large quantities of the liqueur stored in vats and barrels on the premises were lost, but there was no loss of life as there was no one on the premises during the early hours, when the avalanche occurred.

At first there was a landslide, resulting from heavy rains of the past few weeks, which carried away two large buildings, but within a few hours of that first slide the entire hillside became a moving mass, and other buildings crumbled one after another.

Some of t. e great walls were nearly a thousand years old and more than six feet thick.

The Plant Grenoble.

The distillery where the disaster occurred is at Fourbolrie, five miles from the monastery where the Carthusian monks live, a short distance from Grenoble. The monastery itself was not damaged.



Great historic interest was attached to the distillery, for it was there that the early monks began making Chartreuse, the perfected their secret recipe.

For many years after the closing of religious orders in France this distillery was shut down and the Carthusian Order built a new distillery at Tarragona, in Spain. The Spanish plant began making the old manufactory, but a few years ago the Carthusians returned to France, the monastery near Grenoble obtained permission to resume making liqueur in France.

They had been operating the distillery on a small scale for some time, but by far the greater part of stocks of Chartreuse are in Spain, hence the latest news is only a comparatively unimportant enterprise in France.

Distilling Began in 1607

The Marechal d'Ebroes gave the monks of Chartreuse the Carthusian monks in 1607, according to

In 1737 Brother Gerome Maubec, "a very clever apothecary", perfected the formula, the secret of which was never divulged nor discovered by analysis.

Fruit Growers See New Trade

Grimsby, Ont., Nov. 19 (CP)—Canadian fruit growers should benefit from the tariff reduction on cherries entering the United States, in the opinion of Earl J. Marsh, general manager of Niagara Peninsula Fruit Canadian Limited, introduced from two cents to one cents pound.

"In the event of a short or late crop in the States the drop in duty should certainly help the export of Ontario cherries," said Mr. Marsh.

"I don't think, however, it would be means of developing a regular business. Certain border markets have been fairly good and the duty cut should make an improvement." Mr. Marsh said his company sometimes shipped to Detroit and other border points despite extensive cherry crops in Michigan and New York State.

Princeton Favored to Defeat Dartmouth in Big East Game

Dartmouth Has Not Won From Princeton Since 1913

By JACK CUDDY
United Press Staff Correspondent

New York, Nov. 19.—(UP)—The perfect-record teams of Princeton and Dartmouth collide at Palmer Stadium this week-end, with the mythical eastern football championship apparently at stake. Because of its significance, this encounter will feature hostilities on the season's last "big" Saturday.

Dartmouth hasn't beaten the Tigers in any of their five games played since 1913. Accordingly the Hanover outfit is grooming to slay another jinx, hoping to duplicate their Yale hoodoo feat. But the Tigers will be favorites because of their plentitude of power.

Several other matches will compete with the Princeton melee for national attention because of their sectional importance and tradition-backed rivalry.

The California-Stanford engagement at Palo Alto is one of the standouts. It is the last scheduled game for both elevens, and if the unbeaten Golden Bears can down the Stanford Indians, California will take sole possession of the Pacific coast conference title and probably clinch the job of Western representative in the Rose Bowl.

Other hostilities:

East— Harvard and Yale stage their annual blue ribbon classic at Cambridge. Yale is favored. Other traditional affairs bring together Boston U.-Boston College; Rockefeller-Penn State and Temple-Villanova. In addition, Army has a breather in Vermont before the Navy game, Colgate meets Rutgers, Georgetown engages Maryland; Columbia plays Brown, Detroit tackles Duquesne, North Dakota invades Western Maryland, and West Virginia opposes Washington and Jefferson.

Midwest—Minnesota and Ohio State, first and third in the Big Ten lead with four Conference victories each, play their final games. The unbeaten Minnesota Gophers meet Wisconsin and Ohio State engages Michigan. Three other Conference matches paid Illinois-Chicago, Indiana-Purdue and Northwestern-Iowa.

In the Big Six, where Nebraska already has clinched the title, Kansas meets Iowa State and Missouri tangles with Kansas State. The big interectional game of the day brings together Southern California and Notre Dame at South Bend. This contest lost considerable lustre because of the Trojans' four defeats this season and Notre Dame's one beating and one tie. In addition Marquette plays Creighton. South Dakota, conquer of North Carolina, will clinch sole possession of the Southern Conference title if it beats North Carolina State at Raleigh. If Duke is upset, it may share the title with North Carolina. In the South-eastern Conference no games bearing on the title are slated this week, the only engagements being Auburn-Georgia and Florida and Mississippi State-Sewanee. Louisiana State, which already has clinched a title, meets the Southwest Louisiana outside. The latter plays Louisiana Normal and Mississippi engages Centenary.

Classic on Coast

Pacific Coast—besides the California-Stanford classic, two other Conference games mark Washington-Oregon and Montana-Oregon State contests. In non-conference play Pacific U. engages Loyola of Los Angeles.

Rocky Mountains—Southern Methodist and Texas Christian, the two perfect-record teams who are deadlocked for the Conference lie, play Baylor and Rice, respectively. The Christians are meeting the more formidable opponent. If both S.M.U. and T.C.U. survive they will decide the championship next week when they collide at Fort Worth. Another Conference match pair Texas and Arkansas on Friday.

Rocky Mountains—Colorado University will try to maintain its Conference lead against Wyoming, while Colorado College tangles with Colorado State.

SUPPORT Y.M.C.A. DRIVE

Going out with the objective of $5,000 canvassers of the Y.M.C.A. were busy today in the first canvass of the week. Here and there a number of men, the Associated men in the city, who are giving up their time to the drive to place this community enterprise across.

The Association has had a record of 42 years of service to Belleville, which no one will venture to estimate in dollars and cents because the results have been measured in other coin than dollar bills and silver. It has spelled a new life to many a youth of Belleville who has gone out into the world to reap a harvest for others, thanks to the inspiration of early years spent under the aegis of the Y.M.C.A. Today with the trend away from the home, the Y.M.C.A. stands as one of the great bulwarks of this noble life, along with the home, the school, and the church. It stresses character, gives due emphasis to recreation, education.

It builds leaders. Today leadership must be sound for never was so many undisciplined thinking being done. With all the new thought, the essentials remain as they have always been and it is on these that the Y.M.C.A. builds. These principles are applicable to every age.

Money of course is required to keep this great scheme moving, but much less than one would expect from the amount of good which it performs.

Enthusiastic welcome of the canvassers brought as they endeavor to succeed in this cooperative effort.

What the local association has done is worthy of notice. It has over seventy in the school of recreational leadership, interests itself in every form of boys' work, and education, in adult work, in helping the needy to find employment, and providing with food and clothing. This sponsored a swim campaign, it has been the place of four hundred meetings. It means an investment in youth.

The campaign continues until Friday.

BACKING THE CHURCH

One of the greatest benefactors of the Christian church has been Mr. John D. Rockefeller Jr. Last week a statement of his was made public though written in March to the effect that he was withdrawing his financial support of sectarian work and unified budget of the church to which he belongs and would devote his support in future rather to the interdenomination aspect of church effort. For he said "My faith is increasingly centred on the few fundamental principles of Christian life and teaching as set forth in the Four Gospels". But he declares his loyalty to the communion to which he belongs and to its service of mankind in religious tolerance and freedom.

Mr. Rockefeller's decision brought a great flood of light on the millions he has given to the church, making him one of the greatest benefactors of all history. For years he taught a Sunday School class in New York. It is his benefactions that call for comment—to point out what men of wealth like Rockefeller have done for the church. In every centre men of means are giving large sums to maintain the church as an active force in the community and country. What the church would do without them cannot be conceived though man somehow does rally to the call to give.

It is clear that the generosity of givers bear more than their share of the burden of the church in keeping civilization healthy. No one believes that their givings are dictated by a sinister motive. Such men are under no compulsion to give, they do not dictate the policy of the church in worldly affairs, they give only to lend it forces to carry on its divinely appointed work.

Rockefeller has been one of the greatest benefactors of the Christian Church all through the ages. To such men are owing the undying esteem of the members of the church and the debt of society.

Against this class of loyal supporters of church and every commendable enterprise are those few who give rarely anything because they have failed to realize their vital interest in these organizations. If everyone gave so little as some who attend church and who could afford more, the church would be a limping organization, handicapped in the sinews to carry on its effort of human betterment.

This is an age in which millions of dollars are poured out without stint on cosmetics, sweets, tobacco. Some of the money spent on these things would do the hands of religious and philanthropic forces create so great an agency for effective work that the face of the world would change almost overnight. But the church has to accept smallest gifts from many and yet it does amazing work. Whatever may be the great faults of the civilized world today, it is many times better than it would have been without the church.

Fortunately the churches have many followers who are generous, and are self-sacrificing—these give freely and the church is able to perform in more or less perfect form her great mission. We find this exemplified with work of Belleville congregations who answer loyally the call to support the church's work.

THE LONELY LAKE

The lake seems lonely in these dying days
Bereft of friends that were so true and dear,
The green leaves rustling in the summer breeze,
The birds that sang their songs, so sweet and clear.

The white-winged boats that skimmed the waters o'er,
The little children playing in the sand,
The haunting cranky upon the silent shore,
The loon whose laugh rang o'er the summer land.

The lake no longer ripples in the sun,
Reflects no more the sunset's glowing gold,
Sings a sad song when day is just begun,
As if it knew the year was growing old;
But sometimes, when the day is calm and bright,
Its voice is heard in careless, rippling song,
Dreaming perchance of friends who've taken flight
And their return when Summer days are long.

EMILY PAULINE JOHNSTON, "TEKAHIONWAKE", Canadian poetess, is the subject of an article in the Toronto Globe of Saturday by a writer under the pen name of "Jenny".

"Our own Canadian poet, of all Canadian poets, Tekahionwake, is the truest to her Canadian origin," begins the article which gives a brief resume of the life of her who was known to many friends simply as Pauline Johnston.

Pauline Johnston was born in "Chiefswood," on the Grand River in the Six Nations Indian Reserve near Brantford. Her father was the ruling chief, her mother was an English lady. She started writing poetry early and her Muse was strongly Canadian and told the tale of the Indian, his problems, his difficulties, and the wrongs he believed he had suffered at the hands of the dominant white race. Pauline went to England where she became a popular favorite in society. Sir Gilbert and Lady Parker were close friends of the poetess and did all they could to further her interests. Returning to Canada she toured for some time giving readings of her own poems and sketches of Indian character. Her death in Vancouver on March 7, 1913, saddened many friends. The body was cremated and her ashes buried in Stanley Park, Vancouver, according to her own expressed wish.

The funeral of the Indian poetess as described by her biographer in the Globe "was very impressive. There were a large crowd of Indians there, and with true Indian impassiveness they stood silent and motionless throughout the service. The Duke of Connaught read a message of regret, civic offices were closed; school flags were at half-mast and the city sent a wreath."

Committed for Trial After Hearing in Trenton Court

Trenton Man Charged With Offence Against Daughter

Trenton, Nov. 19.—(Special)—Magistrate M. J. Burke, K.C., of Belleville presided over the Trenton court yesterday when Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., was also in attendance. Roger Carches, aged 18, was up for sentence after being found guilty last week of indecently assaulting a local woman. As it was the accused first appearance in court, the magistrate sentenced him to two months in the county jail at Belleville. The accused, through his interpreter, Mr. Begin, silently denied the charge.

A local man elected to be tried at the next sitting of the County Court after being charged with a criminal offence against his fifteen year old daughter. The young girl told of the assaults which she alleged to have taken place over a period of six months. Thomas Hall of Cobourg appeared on behalf of the accused. He was lodged in the county jail pending negotiations for bail.

Several speeders were dealt with by the magistrate.

Carle Rea Addresses Rotary

The regular weekly meeting of the Trenton Rotary Club was held in the Hotel Gilbert on Friday last. The meeting was held over from Monday as the Rotarians journeyed to Consecon earlier in the week for the annual get-together of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce and their friends from the Consecon district.

President George Slicher conducted the chair while the principal speaker of the evening was Carle Rea, well known world wide officer of Rotary and an extensive traveller. The renowned speaker was introduced to the members by Ben Joyce. He spoke highly of the speaker and outlined a short resume of his life. Carle Rea was born in Italy in 1876 and spent his early years in Germany and Austria. He served in the Italian army for several years before going to China where in 1900 he joined the Imperial Maritime Customs. He served in several parts of China before his retirement in 1933. He was first connected with Rotary in China and served in several capacities including president of the Shanghai club in 1929-30. Later he founded and was the first president of the Army (China) club in 1933.

Mr. Rea took as his subject "The International Aspect of Rotary". He told of the great accomplishments that Rotary had achieved in China and Japan. Graphically this famous Mr. Rea related an anecdote concerning the one time cruel practice of the Russian government in sending prisoners and their families to Siberia. One such party of these unfortunate people were marching to the dread Siberia when five hundred children were met with the party dropped out and gathered at Tientsin. Hungry, homeless and without shelter, they were at the mercy of the elements and in an unfriendly world when the Rotary of Tientsin, of which Mr. Rea was president, rented a hall and provided food and shelter for the marchers. Funds were running short in keeping the crowd and a banquet was decided to hold a banner to raise funds. They did so and $7,000.00 was raised. He told of the wonderful work of the Rotary in the Sino-Japanese war. In Manchuria, Rotary gave their services during the Mexican Revolution.

Vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Rea in his very illustrious talk. Mr. Rea is visiting in Toronto in International in the Far East.

How Much of Your Income Do You Burn Up?

Are you wasting your portion of this saving? It may only be $18.00 (the price of one ton of coal) or it may be $100.00 a year, or more. Think what you could do with the money you would save—additional purchasing power—home comforts and pleasures!

. . . . .

Most of the costly heat loss is through the roof.

. . . . .

Insulation also helps to preserve and give longer life to the roof. Leaks often develop due to the water "shackling-up," caused by the ice forming on the eaves and valleys of the roof.

. . . . .

Not only will you save money year after year by reducing your fuel consumption, you also protect the roof and increase the comfort and property value of your home at no added expense.

Can you afford to waste one ton of coal out of every three or four you buy this winter?

You are doing this very thing if your home is not insulated. Burning up your income! Could you but see the actual heat escaping through the roof and walls of your house you would need no further convincing.

. . . . .

This appalling waste goes on year after year, and because you cannot actually see the heat escaping it does not make it any less a fact.

. . . . .

Do not spend any more money warming up "Old Man Winter."

. . . . .

It is estimated that if all the homes in the five largest cities of Canada were insulated it would show a saving in the National Family Budget of over $7,000,000 every year.

ROTARIAN BAKER HONORED GUEST ON BIRTHDAY

Rev. Dr. E. N. Baker Celebrates 84th Anniversary of Birth Monday

FLOWERS PRESENTED

Eighty-four years of pilgrimage on this old earth has not dimmed the joy of living nor the appreciation of the things that are worth while in life, nor the zest of doing good for good's sake in that estimable citizen, Dr. E. N. Baker, who celebrated his birthday Monday when he was the honor guest of his fellow Rotarians at the regular weekly gathering of the Belleville Rotary Club in the Hotel Quinte. Some very nice things were said about Rotarian Ed. by Past President Jamieson Bone and President Bert Boyce, while the jolly singing of "He's a Jolly Good Fellow", and "Happy Days Are Here Again", by true Rotarian fashion showed how the members generally felt toward their comrade who has passed the eighty-fourth milestone and is still striding along with the clear vision that focuses strongly on the future with faith and trust and looks not back with longing upon the joys and fears and longings of the past. Dr. Baker was presented with a beautiful box of flowers and was so surprised that he could hardly find words in reply for emotion. Speaking briefly Dr. Baker thanked his fellow Rotarians from the bottom of his heart and concluded by saying: "I will try and play the game to the finish so that I will be worthy of being a true Rotarian."

Thanked For Help.

President Boyce expressed his appreciation and gratitude to all who had helped to make the Rotary Crippled Children Campaign a success, praised the enthusiastic work of Rotarians, and thanked all who had had any part in the production of the Rotary Special Edition of The Ontario Intelligencer, which was so satisfactory and announced that a full report would be made Monday next.

Sandy Burrows and Leo Biggs were responsible for some very snappy singing and close harmony while Jack Guthridge collected the musical fines.

The guest speaker of the day was W. B. Cook of Toronto, National Boys' Work Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. who has had considerable experience in Boys' Work, including a stay of some duration at Geneva, Switzerland, where the Boys' Work was considered during the sessions of the League of Nations. Mr. Cook was introduced by local Y.M.C.A. Secretary, Joe Shortt, and gave a very fine address, Rotary Conversation being ably expressed by Past President H. W. Ackerman.

Problems of Youth.

Mr. Cook spoke of the problems and needs of the young people of today, leaving school and facing a world in which there seems to be no place for them. Of seventeen thousand young people who had left high school in one year, 3,000 failed to find any employment opportunities. It was estimated that 23 per cent of the young people leaving school today could not find employment. This constituted a grave problem. There is more spare time today than ever before in the world's history, leisure time, which can be used wisely or can be the opportunity is used or abused. The Y.M.C.A. sought to provide the best means of employing leisure time for the young men to the end that they would develop into the finest kind of citizens, sound in body, clear and clean in mind, and headed right for the future which will best suit their talents and desires.

A very fine analysis of the problems and needs of the youth of today was given by Mr. Cook, and the part the Y.M.C.A. played in building up the finest type of citizenship. His address was interesting, informative and inspiring. Showing in detail the necessity of giving the young people of today every opportunity to develop physically, mentally and usefully into the best type of citizenship for the betterment of the young people themselves, their parents and the citizenry generally, as well as the making of a better world now and in the future—a duty which the men and women of today must have reached maturity with, perhaps, a bundle of regrets at the mistakes of the past can not afford to thrust lightly aside, in their own interest and in the best interest of the world of tomorrow.

MOUNTAIN VIEW W. I.

The November meeting of Mountain View Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. John Black on Wednesday, November 13, with twenty-four members and four visitors present.

The meeting opened with the Institute Ode followed by the Lord's Prayer. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

The business was then discussed. It was decided that the Institute give $5.00 to Prince Edward County Hospital along with a donation of canned goods from each member. Letters of thanks for flowers were read from Mrs. Willet Black and Mrs. Alfred Poole sent them during their illness.

Mrs. Tom Nightingale then gave a reading, "Hospital Experience".

Mrs. Hubert Osborne gave a demonstration on rug making and also exhibited two rugs that had taken prizes at the fairs. This was very interesting to the ladies especially at this time of year.

The roll call, "Cheer Up Ideas", was well responded to.

Mrs. J. Hovay moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Osborne.

Mrs. Dave Ring brought the meeting to a close.

The hostess then served dainty refreshments assisted by several young ladies and a social time spent.

How King George V Makes Tea

Some time ago there was a royal "shoot" at Sandringham, England, resulting a halt a number of the party pulled out a flask and took a drink. The King noticed the action and asked the drinker what drink gave him so much satisfaction. "Cold tea, sir" was the reply. The King smiled, saying: "But it is not made the right way, I am sure." "Oh, yes sir, I think it is," said the other. "poured off the leaves and allowed to get cold."

"That's not the way," said George V, "My way is the only really good way of making tea—it must be made with cold water."

Of course, there was a respectful outburst of classroom, but the King stuck to his point and there and then told them how to make "royal tea", and here is the recipe:

Take the ordinary quantity of tea —a teaspoonful for each person and one for the pot—put it in a jug, and pour in as much cold water as you require. Then allow the mixture to stand for twelve hours, pour it off the tea leaves, add sugar and milk and sugar according to taste—and the result is cold tea fit for a king. It is this tea that King George always carries with him on shooting or fishing expeditions.

King George Is a Devotee of Tea.

The King shares with most Englishmen the habit of taking the odd cup of tea at any time of the day or night. But the head of the House of Windsor goes further than the average Englishman in as much as he has complete facilities for making tea installed in his dressing room —ready for any emergencies or for wakeful hours.

There is something delightfully human in the story that King George, when awakened at two o'clock in the morning at Windsor Castle to be informed of the arrival of the little Princess Elizabeth of York, arose and celebrated the arrival of his little granddaughter —not by any emergencies or for wakeful hours.

QUEST FOR OIL IS RADIO THEME

Prof. Frederick G. Tickell, Native of Belleville is Speaker

Prof. Frederick G. Tickell of Leland Stanford University, California, recently delivered a radio address at Palo Alto, California on the search for oil. Prof. Tickell is a native of Belleville and received some of his education here. He is a son of the late G. W. Tickell, formerly of Belleville and is a nephew of Mr. Edward H. Tickell, Church street. It was with Prof. Tickell that Mr. E. H. Tickell visited Europe last summer.

Prof. Tickell's address is of interest in the light of the universal appeal of the search for oil in every part of the world. It was reported as follows:

"Despite technical achievements Coal each year enable petroleum seekers to bore deeper and deeper into the earth after that unfathomable liquid mineral, only half of the oil supply, is accessible with our most modern drilling methods, according to Prof. Frederick G. Tickell, speaker on the Stanford radio hour.

"In 1936 the deepest well was 8,- 525 feet. The record is now held by a Texas well, bored down to the depth of 14,216 feet. Said Mary, the curious pare for crude arises from the fact that modern well cost each year that rival guesses will drain the deposits from under their own land, Prof. Tickell said.

"This and the fact that over one third the areas of the United States is thought worth prospecting plus an increasing demand for petroleum products and constant revision of oil specifications lead to the heavy present exploitation of our crude oil deposits, the professor stated. Approximately 19,000 wells were drilled last year; he declared.

"As late as 1908 oil was discovered by witching devices, hunches, and odd ideas about underground drivers of it, although geologists had formulated their sound principles about the concentration of oil pockets as early as 1861."

"Between 1908 and 1913 a revolution took place and geologists were employed by all the companies. Now paleontologists, mineralogists, chemists and physicists are valuable in the search for oil. The latest and most advanced method is called geophysical prospecting and is the use of measurements of variations in the earth's gravitational field or the rate at which seismic waves, travel through buried rock masses".

Farmers Will Gain Says Sidney Man

"It will mean a lot to the farmers around here who have been just plodding along to get through the past several years."

'Y' CAMPAIGN FOR $5,000 OPENED

More Than 60 Workers Heard Address by Boys' Secretary

A campaign to raise $5,000 for the continuance of Y.M.O.A. work in this city was launched last evening when more than 60 members of social and business life of this community sat down to a banquet in the auditorium of the "Y" and heard an inspiring talk by William Cook, National Boys' work secretary of the Y.M.C.A. of Toronto. M. F. Duff acted as chairman of the evening, with Russell Wolten as song leader and Leo B. Biggs acting as accompanist. James Bankier delighted with two solos, which were much appreciated. Rev. Robert Hall opened the meeting with blessing and also read a portion of Scripture before the main address.

The workers were assigned in various teams about the banquet board and included members of all service organizations, members of the business profession and others. Joe Shortt, energetic secretary of the "Y" complimented the meeting on the turnout and introduced a number of new faces, that never before had taken part in a campaign of this kind. He also thanked the various groups on the campaign for their help and returns be made as quickly as possible.

Rev. Robert Hall hoped that through the battle of the campaign that the boy was placed against the work and that collected for the work of the "Y" should be a privilege instead of a duty. The asset of Canada today is the youth of the Dominion and not the lands farms, railways and material things. The work of the "Y" requires not only funds but men for youth must be served and brought up to be good citizens, said the speaker in conclusion.

Mr. William Cook was introduced by H. W. Ackerman and showed that under scientific salesmanship there were three things to be considered goods, prospects, and salesmen. "The goods that you are selling in this campaign is youth," said Mr. Cook and it was shown that there were many coming up each year to look for jobs. He compared the differences of the times in 1929 with those of the present. In finding prospects the committee should work carefully. He showed there had been a reduction in the larger amounts given each year for "Y" work and it was necessary to find a number of new subscribers and those have more interest in the work. The salesmen in the campaign should have confidence, persistence and intelligence and he had no doubt, that the campaign would be put over successfully and within the required time.

Mother's Guide to Better

CONTROL of COLDS

For Fewer Colds . . .
Vicks Va-tro-nol helps Prevent many Colds

At the first sneezing, nasal irritation, or tickling, sniff a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril. Especially designed for nose and throat, where most colds start, Va-tro-nol helps to prevent many colds—and to throw off colds in their early stages.

For Shorter Colds . . .
Vicks VapoRub helps End a Cold sooner

If a cold has already developed, use Vicks VapoRub, the mother's standby in treating colds. Rubbed on at bedtime, its combined poultice-vapor action "breathes" through the throat, then, helps break congestion. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

Follow Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds

A helpful guide to fewer colds and shorter colds. Developed by Vicks Chemists and Medical Staff, tested in extensive clinics by practical physicians, and found to be easy to use by all at home. The Plan is fully explained in each Vicks package.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Amateur Show"

Tom Connors Amateur Show Is Big Presentation at Capitol Theatre

The Capitol Theatre presents for your approval on Thursday night of this week one of the best of the vast amateur shows that has ever been presented in in any Eastern Ontario city. Tom Connors, himself (MAJOR) of Oshawa—widely known as Mr. Joe E. Morris.

Mr Marks is bringing to this city ten of the smartest amateur acts which the Capitol is proud to present on its stage. The artists that are taking part in the show are the contest winners of six months' elimination contests, held weekly at the Marks Theatre in Oshawa.

These amateurs whom you will see at the Capitol are gifted with musical ability of every kind.

Mr. Jack Powell, the feature act of this show is one of the finest tap dancers in Eastern Ontario His routine consists of numerous taps which put some of the stage stars dancing on the screen to shame.

The Vickers Kiddies, two small bundles of humanity are sure to fill your heart with gladness when they sing and dance to the music of Oshawa's supreme pianist, Mr. Geo. Morris.

Alberta Judd, Tom Hart, Doris McAnlay, Jack Walters, Bill Severn and two other acts will round a program that will offer entertainment to the Patrons of the Capitol Theatre on Thursday night. This show is being brought from Oshawa to give the people of Belleville a chance to see what their amateurs will have to compete against when the Capitol Theatre begins its own amateur contests. Therefore it behooves all the people with amateur ability in Belleville to attend the Capitol Theatre on this coming Thursday night to see and hear just what amateur shows are really conducted.

Mr. Jack Marks, who will act as master of ceremonies on this special night, is no stranger to the stage. He is a tap dancer of no mean fame and has taught several of the well-known dancers in and around Oshawa, most of their routines.

Being manager of the Marks Theatre has enabled him to bring the talent of these artists to the very top and he is without a doubt bringing down to this city the finest assortment of talent that can be found anywhere in Ontario.

Tonight concludes the showing of the feature attraction at the Capitol Theatre, "The Case of the Lucky Legs" starring Warren William. This is one of the funniest Perry Mason stories to date and is splendid entertainment for every one.

"Make Believe"

Oakland, Calif., Nov. 19 (CP)—Firemen saved a life here by just talking.

They were called to a rural home nearby at the home of Mrs. May Talvadeo, 65, bedridden with a weak heart. Battalion Chief Patrick Gaynor was advised it might prove fatal to move her.

He detailed four husky firemen to visit the invalid and quiet her fears while companions fought the flames. They carried on an animated conversation. Mrs. Talvadeo until informed the fire was out.

AT THE BELLE

"Way Down East"

Powerful Romantic Drama "Music is Magic" Tuesday and Wednesday

A dramatic story rich in its sympathies, eloquent in its unusual photography and dealing with the fundamental story of a girl who is betrayed and her right to love again, "Way Down East" is the feature at the Belle theatre, with Henry Fonda and Nicholas Phobes, Jr., co-starred in the leading roles.

Adapted from the play, whose force and appeal have made it America's original motion picture more than forty years, the picture tells the story of two who fought for love and hatred for the right to love.

The locale of "Way Down East" is the New England of the 1870's. Romance comes to the girl, Anna Moore, who acts a stern principled squire; his sensitive dreamy son, Henry Moore, and the girl, Seena Owen, a scion.

Miss Hudson scores work in Simpson's household, but tells nothing of her past. Through the seasons, the barn dances, skating parties and various other festivities of the New England country love grows up between Miss Hudson and Mr. Phobes.

Only one thing menaces that love unceasingly, and that is the occasional appearance of Edward Trevor, their squire and worldly next-door neighbor.

In the picture approaches its climax, the reason for this becomes apparent. Gossip reveals that Miss Hudson had been the victim of an unfortunate love affair, and that Trevor had wronged her.

Following a stormy scene in the Simpson household, Miss Hudson is brought to the ice by Mr. Phobes, is caught in the breaking of the ice jam.

In the heroic scenes that follow and find that brings the story to its happy close, "Way Down East" reveals one of the most exciting and suspenseful climaxes which have ever been brought to the screen. D. Winfield Sheehan presents the picture of the rustic scene, which was directed by Henry King.

In the supporting cast of "Way Down East" are Slim Summerville, Burr Devine and Kathleen Burke.

"Music is Magic", Funny

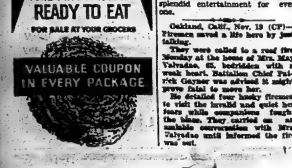
Combining a diverting story, much music, eye-filling dance spectacles and a highly competent cast, "Music is Magic," the new Fox musical romance, is announced as the second feature attraction on the same program.

Included in the cast is blonde Alice Faye, Ray Walker, the handsome young juvenile, Bebe Daniels, Ralph Bellamy, Thomas Beck, Lois Alberni and screenland's poorest comedian's Mitchell and Durant.



Edwin C. Hill, the Rambling Reporter will describe the many events illustrated in the Belle Latest World News, announced for exhibition on the same program.

"Way Down East" will be exhibited daily at 2.10 and 8.30 p.m. "Music is Magic", starts at 3.45, 7.20, 9.55. Complete show starts daily at 3.30 p.m.

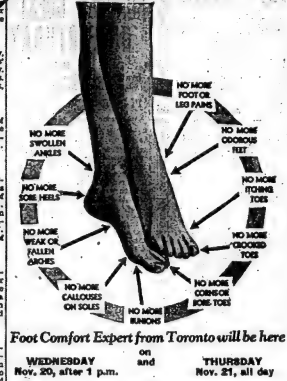
TALES OF PIONEERS TOLD BY VISITOR, 96 YEARS OF AGE

Mrs. Allison was the honor guest at an luncheon given by Miss B. Jones, Wednesday, at Fair Haven cottage, Rossmore. After luncheon, a social hour was enjoyed, Miss Lillian Adamson, Stirling, reading of "Why Work if I am Born Lazy," was given by Mrs. W. C. Dempsey in her usual splendid way. She also acted as chairlady for the programme calling on all to join in the Lord's prayer.

Mrs. Allison Sr., gave an account of the pioneer days, the manner and ways of living nearly 100 years ago. Mrs. Allison is in her 96th year, does not wear glasses, her hearing is perfect and her memory delightfully clear She took her listeners back to the little log house with their cheering fire places to the method of cooking, salting down at the fire place, the baby cradle, of bread on the coals on the hearth stone, bringing home the cows at night, meat, etc.



The early days of spinning and weaving and knitting were the home craft in those days. The minister lived in Cobourg and came to preach to them from there. Of the one's part in early breaking of our farm land. How the fathers and sons cradled till the grain before the days of reapers and binders. When they had their first fruit tree, nothing only wild fruits before. Mrs. Allison Sr. loves the radio and retains an active interest in everything of today as well, and makes her home "Sunnyside" surveying land made rum for her daughters and grandchildren.

Mrs. Matilda Dempsey gave a very humorous account of her recent camping trip, which included the crossing of Bay of Quinte on the ice to Bellevile in late March. The ice poor and air holes sparely making the crossing very dangerous. Of the bridesmaids and others of the young folk hunting, fishing during the ice farther down the bay and lodging in the city to receive them with prizes for the one whom they arrived. Plenty of real fun in the days of the fine pioneers.

Mrs. W. H. Redner gave a splendid paper on "Watch and Pray" which was much appreciated by her listeners, giving helpful thoughts for individual prayer.

All joined in singing "One Sweet Solemn Thought" and "Nearer my Home," thoughts by each guest, making the pleasant day to a close. All happier for the occasion to be held again next month.

Weddings

HAIGHT—LESLIE

On November 12th, at the Shannonville United Church parsonage, at one-thirty o'clock, the marriage of Miss Norma Kathryn, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Leslie, Corbyville, to Mr. James R., only son of Mr. and Mrs. Stillman Haight, Corbyville, took place with Rev. W. M. Clarke officiating. Only the immediate relatives were present.

The bride looked very smart, wearing a dress of rust colored crepe with gold trimmings. Mrs. Bruce Sherman, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and Mr. Bruce Sherman acted as groomsman.

The happy young couple motored to Toronto and other western points, the bride travelling in a fur-trimmed brown ensemble tweed coat and matching accessories.

Young People Hear The Rev. W.J. Walker

The monthly missionary meeting of the Bethany Street Young People's League, was held last evening. The meeting opened with the singing of Charles Draeger in the chair. After the reading of the minutes and the business being attended to, the meeting was turned over to Miss Rosella Purnell. Mr. Clifford Bennett favoured with a piano solo and Mrs. Newman gave a reading.

The guest speaker of the night was the Rev. W. J. Walker of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Mr. Walker's address which was on Albert Schweitzer was very interesting. The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

MOIRA W. A. CONCERT

A concert and entertainment of unusual merit and interest was given at Moira under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary.

The numbers were all given by the women of the community, and reflected great credit upon them.

The committee was composed of Mrs. Clarence Mallett, Mrs. G. Cronk, Mrs. Ed. Ketcheson; Reading Miss Alta Kelly; Piano Solo, Mrs. Joe Williams and Miss Verna Foster; Reading "Farmer's Wife, In the Dooryard Area" Mrs. Frank Emerson; Comic Trio, "Three Funny Old Maids of Paris" Betty Foster, Leona Morton and Verna Foster; Piano Duet, Mrs. Ed. Ketcheson and Norma Ketcheson; Auto harp solo, Leona Morton.

The next play was the closing number, and was immensely enjoyed by the audience. The six characters were represented by Mrs. Milton Adamson, Mrs. Percy Emerson, Mrs. Frances Kraov, Mrs. Albert Clute, Mrs. Hugh Emerson and Mrs. J. Williams.

A better cast could not have been chosen for the play, and was packed with humor and interest.

Miss Lily Ketcheson acted as pianist for the evening.

The amount of the proceeds was very gratifying and added to the already nice sum in the treasury of the society, will add very materially in the good work being carried on by the Women's Association.

SALEM W. M. S.

The November meeting of the Salem W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Owen Roblin on Nov 10th with a fair attendance. Mrs. O. Sadgley played softly "Peace, Perfect Peace" Then the meeting was opened by the president Mrs. Tom Leslie, and all to worship. Mrs. Jim Sills led in prayer. The Scripture lesson was read from Isaiah 60 with chapter 61 to 63. Haight. The roll call was answered by a verse from the Bible containing the word Angel.

Mrs. (Rev.) Clarke of Shannonville then took charge of the election of officers for the New Year. The officers are:

President — Mrs. Tom Leslie.
Vice President—Mrs. O. Sadgley.
Secretary—Mrs. Ewart Hanna also Press Secretary.
Treasurer—Mrs. J. Hanna.
Pianist — Mrs. Fred Robinson.
Corresponding secretary — Mrs. Clarence Mallett.
Stangers Secretary — Mrs. D. Hagerman and Mrs. R. Andrew.

The same flower committee were re-appointed.

Supply Secretary — Norma Leslie.

Temperance secretary — Mrs. S. Haight.

Christian Stewardship — Mrs. J. Sills.

Then Mrs. Clarke closed this part of the meeting with prayer.

Mrs. J. Cole gave a reading on "The Calling of Christian". Mrs. W. Johnson, Corbyville, gave a beautiful reading on "Shine Just Where You Are" Mrs. Reuben Robinson gave a beautiful instrumental, "Where He Leadeth Me" In Variations". Mrs. E. Hanna read the life of a christian Chinese Girl "Make Way Send of War." followed by Mrs. Roblin's solo "The Morning is Breaking. Then Mrs. (Rev.) Clarke closed the meeting with prayer.

LINKED ROMANTIC ALLY WITH CARLE

Elisabeth Allan, who figured prominently in the Philip Carle-David Copperfield, is being persistently linked with Clark Gable in romantic rumors, despite Clark's mates is pending for both.

A farmful, comedy-crammed picture is "Music is Magic," featuring Ray Walker, Bebe Daniels and Alice Faye, now on the Belle screens.

CANADA ALLOWS BOAT TO COAL

Vessel For Geneva, Italy, Can Take on Only Enough Coal For Voyage

Ottawa, Nov. 19 (CP) — Canada today ironed out her first problem in imposition of economic sanctions against Italy by ruling the freighter Farnham, carrying 8,000 tons of United States scrap iron, will be allowed to coal at Sydney, N.S. and proceed to her destination at Genoa.

Exports from Canada to Italy of both scrap iron and coal are on the prohibited list.

Board Room Gossip

As compiled in Slipper and Crockford by Financial Service.

"One of the most constructive developments for the market in years" is the way the trade treaty information was received in the Street. Everyone was endeavouring to find out his particular holdings were affected by the tariff changes. The market was not slow to reflect the benefits that will accrue to a number of companies, this being particularly true of the liquor stocks.

One leading commentator in New York says:—"The stock market has been advancing almost steadily for more than seven months and of late activity has increased markedly. Considering the extent of the advances which have already taken place in the stock market and the levels which many issues have reached, it is only logical to expect that the broad advance of prices may at any time be interrupted, but it would be unwise to disregard the fact that at least part of our present activity may be at the expense of the early months of next year, that Congress will soon be in session and that we are faced with a bitter political struggle during 1936."

In Canada it should be remembered that the markets have only been awaiting for a period of slightly more than a month. Nevertheless, reactions should be anticipated from time to time and advantage taken of buying opportunities. Whereas the United States is faced with a "political struggle" we in Canada are quite free of a stable government for the next five years and the trend is lending itself to confidence and is reflected in both business and finance.

BROCKMIRE advises the exercise of caution in any new buying. "Against a background of favorable news, the stock market has continued its rise into new high ground and still gives no indication of a nearby reversal of consequence. Nevertheless, the market increases in volume and in tempo as it gains traded are typical of periods preceding the development of important tops. Therefore, while present portfolios should be maintained intact, investors should exercise caution in any new buying even though the most violent and exciting phase of the rise is probably ahead."

THE FINANCIAL WORLD — "Whatever temporary irregularity may be seen in the weeks ahead retention of sound trend is fully warranted. Any important recession in the near future can well be utilized for additions to existing holdings; shares representing companies in the heavy goods industries—which still have considerable ground to make up before attaining normal earning power—remain among the most attractive media for long term capital growth."

BARRON'S (THE TRADER)—"Speculative momentum and psychology are powerful, and gilt predictions of 1936 earnings are already aboard, though the opening of the new year is still weeks away. The "prospect" motif is strong. All of the phenomena of the final stage of a long advance are present, though this is not to say that the denouement may not be delayed until the movement gets completely out of hand."

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 19 (CP)— Profittaking appeared in the early trading and prices were depressed moderately but the undertone industrial market turned stronger around noon with volume keeping at a fair pace. The advance Massey Harris, Brazilian and the distillery shares lost small fractions but all had net gains by early afternoon.

The turnover was heavy in Massey Harris and Ford A. The latter moving up a point to 14 but lost part of the gain. Metals did better, Noranda showing a gain of 1-4 at 36 and Consolidated Smelters 2 points at 197. Following a mild show of strength the leading oil issues bordered fraction losses in slow trading.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Nov. 19—(CP)—A firmer tone ruled in the Toronto mining market in the afternoon following irregularity lower price condition through the morning session. Base metals and silvers displayed firmness despite lower London prices for copper, lead and zinc. Golds generally weakened minor fraction and Consolidated gold group, after early lapse, chalked up a proper declarance of gains.

Noranda advanced 3-4 to 43 3-4 on sizeable volume and in the silver gains of 1 to 3 cents appeared Nipissing Eldorado and Castle. Bear was steady around 98 to 70 when issued.

After wading through considerable adverse news concessions God's Lake turned up and was in demand at a point higher in late afternoon. Pickle Crow and Central Patricia added 4 to 6 cents each.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Nov. 19 (AP)—Wall Street viewed the stock market perched on the highest pinnacle in four years—with a touch of uneasiness today. Prices continued to push up here and there, some to new up a point or two, many by fractions.

There was a shade lower among Dominion stocks while International Nickel and Canadian Pacific rolled about even. On the curb steadiness prevailed in Hiram Walker, Gooderham Distilleries and Lake Shore. Dominion bonds were quiet and narrow. Sterling held unchanged at 5.05 cents.

Among the up to 2 points were Export, Westinghouse Electric, Westinghouse Airbrake, Pullman, Timken, Chrysler, Preferred, Baldwin Preferred, Postal Preferred, Celanese, Allied Chemical and others.

Associated Dry Goods made a new high for the recovery, as Lord and Taylor, one of its principal units, announced the usual 85 extra dividend.

ALL-STAR TEAM OF QUINTE LOOP

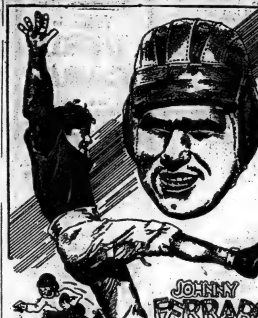
Coaches of Four Teams Picked Squad And a "Smart" One



In order to stimulate interest in interscholastic football circles in Belleville the four coaches of the clubs to compose the senior section of the Bay of Quinte group, in the O.S.S.S.A., voted their personal selections for a mythical all-star team. The ballots were received by the Ontario-Intelligencer recently and the result of the voting finds the following players elected to positions, while others received honorable mention and votes.

The 1935 all-star team in the Bay of Quinte group:

Flying Wing: Johnston (B.C.I.)
Right Half: McCrie, (Albert College).
Centre Half: Logie (B.C.I.).
Left Half: Fox (Albert College).
Quarter: James (Albert College).
Snap: Clemes (Albert College).
Inside: Baker (B.C.I.).
Inside: Winden (St. Michaels).
Middle: Bradshaw (Albert College).
Middle: Malcolm (O.S.D.).
Outside: Grant (Albert College).
Outside: Renaud (B.C.I.).

Others to receive votes and who would be included as alternates were in order of voting: Rostard, (O.S.D.); Kool, (O.S.D.); Doran (St. Mikes); Glover, (Albert College), Derry, (B.C.I.), Sherry (B.C. I.), Dorge (St. Mikes), Byron (Albert C.), O'Neil (St. Mikes), Lavelle (O.S.D.), Butler (St. M.), McClelland (St. M.), Hawthorne (O.S.D.) Alexander, (O.S.D.), Muir, (B.C.I.), and Langdon, (St. Mikes). Of the first team, chosen only one player was changed in position, Malcolm of O.S.D. being chosen as a middle wing player due to his aggressiveness during the season. Back to back for the O.S.D.

The voting for the all-star team was made by secret ballot on which each coach voted for one of his own players, named in position, and two from each of the other three squads comprising the group. The voting coaches were: P. Beach, Albert College; L. Shiell, B.C.I.; W. Vail, Frank Cunningham, O.S.D., and Eddie Schriener, St. Michael's Academy.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

Although they may not possess the showmanship and acting ability of their professional brothers the local amateur wrestlers more than make up for these deficiencies by their willingness to mix it freely. Tonight at the Belleville Arena Elmer Taylor's local amateur wrestling club will present six bouts for the sporting public's entertainment, four fifteen minute time limits and two over the thirty minute limit. The last two mentioned, by the way, will be the best two out of three falls, however. There is no clowning in the amateur wrestling ring, as naturally each contestant has a large number of personal friends on hand and tries to make the best impression possible by wiggling out of embarrassing holds in the most spectacular manner. The admission price is within reach of all sport fans and we can truthfully say that the patrons of amateur wrestling leave the Arena well rewarded for their faith placed in those kids. "Give the kids a break."

While on the subject of wrestling, at last the local promoters have heard our continued cry for new faces on Thursday night, professional wrestling night at the Belleville Arena, as we understand three new wrestling faces will appear at the Arena on Thursday night. Whether we can class them above or so many new faces in one night is questionable, but they are all tried and experienced grapplers, who have come into Canada to wrestle for Ivan Mikaileff, who opens his first show at Massey Hall, Toronto, in the near future. Billy Kiel, Curly Donchin and Ernie Petersen are the three new faces to appear on the local card. The first two meet in the main bout, while in the semi-final Chief Lyrec tackles a regard opponent in Peterson. What the fans will like is to hear that our personal public enemy No. 1, Waller Parnell, is coming to town also. Apparently Parnell's prowess is on the decline as he has been dropped down to the preliminary class and will meet Jack Pearl in the curtain raiser. "Watched clumsiness" with a watch". On the other hand maybe we should not put the finger on Parnell, maybe these new men are so much better that he is down where he belongs. Who knows till Thursday?

From 6.00 until 7.00 p.m. last night Manager Eddie Thomas of Belleville squad of pucksters practiced at the Jack Harry Arena in Kingston. The local team opened their pre-season schedule in the Limestone City Arena, versus Frontenac on Friday night, Don Morton was between the goal posts with Barney Yorke, Harry Ingram and Jimmie Ehler on the defence. On one front line Skipper Thomas worked Cy Bastrage flanked by Carl and Harry Marcon, while another line consisted of Jimmie McGlory, Doug Powers and Jimmie Smart. Pete Morgan was also on hand who was "spooty" St. Louis, who wants to join the Belleville team, it will be remembered played baseball and basketball in Kingston for the Navy Reeves and his henchmen. At any rate Manager Thomas is using Joseph to bear regarding some possible reinforcements to plug Queens their concessions, if possible.

Congratulations to Roger Jenkins, defenceman of Queens Arena in the National Hockey League, born in Appleton, Wis., 24 years ago yesterday. Jenkins started his professional hockey career with the London junior club and in 1933-34 he played with Chicago Black Hawks win the Stanley Cup. Last season he played with Montreal Canadiens and was traded to Boston a few weeks ago.

LEAFS JOURNEY TO MONTREAL

This N. H. L. Game Should Produce Some Real Hockey

By The Canadian Press

Detroit Red Wings, who have done no high flying at all will go into New York tonight to determine the truth of reports that Lester Patrick's New York Rangers are not so bot this fall. In the early running of the National Hockey League race, the meeting of the American section teams is an important one.

Built to the satisfaction of Jack Adams, the Red Wing machine was to have started in fast tempo. It has played twice and managed to get a tie each time. If it doesn't click against Rangers, spinning somewhat from a double-win and defeat, there will be great disappointment in the simple Adams brand.

Other games on tonight's program send Toronto Maple Leafs into Montreal to face Canadiens, New York Americans to Boston, where the Bruins are waiting. The Leaf-Canadien game has been spotted as likely to produce some brilliant hockey.

Fresh from a 9-3 Sunday night win over Americans, Sylvio Mantha's Frenchmen will run into a Toronto club that is also travelling fast, having won two of its first three games and tied the other. King Clancy, recovered from his infection, is expected to take his regular turn on the Leaf defence.

HAINS WORTH BLOCKS SHOT AS RANG ER- LEAF CLASH

New York Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs renew their old rivalry as the N.H.L. season opens up. Leafs took a 1-0 game to spoil Rangers' opening night in Madison Square Garden and five Blueshirts came right back to Toronto determined to wreak their vengeance only to take a 3-2 beating. The teams each boast a famous forward line, Cook-Boucher-Cook for Rangers, and Conacher-Primeau-Jackson for the Leafs. Here is Hainsworth, veteran Toronto goalie clearing a Blueshirt drive. Left to Right, Bun Cook, Rangers; Finnigan, Toronto; Dillon, Rangers and Hainsworth are in on the play with the Leaf netminder steering the rubber past the corner of his cage.

Hockey manager Bill Fry of the Belleville O.H.A.U. squad journeyed to Toronto over the week end where he presented a petition from the O.H.A.U. executive that is not exactly to his liking. Which has much bearing on the destiny of the local team. It seems that according to the petition which was sent to the Peterboro timekeeper's ticket last Saturday's game went 65 seconds overtime, but long enough to give the Peterboro squad a tie verdict. When the time linesman cautioned Referee Logan regarding "time's up" the Peterboro official looked at his watch and contended, that there were a few seconds more to play, despite the fact that the Peterboro timer personally informed us that time was up. We believe, as does the local executive, that Referee Logan was not slipped a little when he commuted the time, with no idea in mind of perhaps adding a little overtime. Of course the entire situation is rather delicate and as there has been the very best of feelings among all teams in the league throughout the season, the Kennedy-coached team do not want to start any committee room trouble, that might cause any hard feelings now, but they'd sure like another crack at Oshawa.

Reports from the Lltlock City are to the effect that this year's Peterboro Collegiate senior interscholastic squad is somewhat stronger than last year's edition. Of course Coach Shiels' Belleville senior team are an improved team over some of the pre-season ones seen locally. Yesterday Coach Sanford called Coach Shiels on the long distance phone and offered the locals a cash guarantee to play a sudden death O.S.S.S.A. play-off game in Peterboro on Wednesday, as the winner between Peterboro and Belleville is slated to appear in the O.S.S.S.A. semi-final game in Toronto on Saturday. In return Coach Shiels offered the Petes an equal amount of gate, the game to be the result of the whole argument is that the Belleville and Peterboro senior interscholastic squads will meet in a sudden death game at Cobourg on Wednesday, as the latter city's rink is a better arrangement for all concerned.

After considerable efforts to straighten out the tangle presented by the three way tie for the Quinte Bay of Quinte football loop, we understand called in to meet Coach Beach of Albert and after serious perusal we were able to come to the kind of a decision that the players received the majority votes. Which is that after Interscholastic squads will meet in a sudden death game at Cobourg on Wednesday, as the latter city's rink is a better arrangement for all concerned.

Following their winning of the Intercollegiate rugby football championship the victorious Queen's University squad elected Ormsby to continue further in quest of the Canadian championship, but according to the Intercollegiate rulings the 1935 winners of that conference does not or did not elect to enter the Dominion play-downs, which leaves the Kingston team out of the running.

Congratulations to Roger Jenkins, defenceman of Queens Arena in the National Hockey League, born in Appleton, Wis., 24 years ago yesterday. Jenkins started his professional hockey career with the London junior club and in 1933-34 he played with Chicago Black Hawks win the Stanley Cup. Last season he played with Montreal Canadiens and was traded to Boston a few weeks ago.

Close competitor to Welker Cochran of San Francisco in the world's championship three cushion billiard play in Chicago is Willie Hoppe, above, the old master of the balkline billiard group. Hoppe, a New Yorker, is shown as he concentrates on a shot in a match against Augie Kieckefer, whom he defeated.

KINGFISH AND STEELE TANGLE

Mixed Wrestling And Boxing Bout Has Fans Agog

St. Louis, Nov. 19.—(AP)— Kingfish Levinsky and Ray Steele, leaders of opposing schools of ring tactics will tangle here tonight in a mixed mauling match to determine whether boxing or wrestling is supreme.

Levinsky, Chicago fish peddler, who "puts lumps under their lamps" will expound the thesis a roundhouse punch, well thrown, is the most potent form of ring conduct.

"Why, listen," the Kingfish declared. "I've watched these wrestlers. Whenever they get hit they want to jump out of the ring. When a hard hitter like me connects with just one punch they'll go flying out."

Steele, on the contrary, is known to profess the belief an opponent thrown into the audience is merely likely to stay there than one knockedover the ropes.

His followers predict he will tie the King into a prelzel within five rounds.

The bout, to be conducted under a special set of rules drawn up by the Missouri Athletic Commission, is carded for 10 three-minute rounds.

Levinsky will be permitted to employ any tactics he may see fit, including wrestling and punching while on the mat. Steele, however, must adhere strictly to wrestling and will be forbidden to punch, kick or gouge.

If Steele is knocked down he will have the benefit of a 10-second count. He will be required to pin the Kingfish for 10 seconds to win. After their final workouts yesterday Steele weighed 218 pounds and Levinsky scaled 210.

GRIMM SIGNS CONTRACT

Chicago, Nov. 19—Manager Charlie Grimm of the Chicago Cubs yesterday signed to the minor league meeting of baseball clubs, opened off in Chicago Monday long enough to sign his 1936 contract.

Neither Grimm nor the Cubs' management would reveal any figures, but Charlie, who serves also as vice-president of the Bruins, said he was quite happy over the terms. Grimm said he expected to get back in the game "for several games" next year, but will continue to use young Phil Cavaretta as regular first baseman. Grimm stated himself on his voluntary retirement list this year.

Queens Unable To Set Aside Standing Rule

Toronto, Nov. 19.—(CP)—The Intercollegiate Football Union stepped briskly out of the Canadian playoff picture today, having been shoved into it unwillingly in the first place, and left it up to the Canadian Rugby Union Queen's University would be champs for the National Championship.

It's written on the College Union books that Inter-College Cup champions shall not go on in the Canadian playdowns. It was put there more than two years ago and a great desire on the part of Queen's, crowned champions last Saturday, to set aside the rule will be without effect.

President M. A. Mackenzie of the Intercollegiate Union said last night the Union would not challenge for the Canadian title. If Queen's wished to go ahead, he said, they would be representing only Queen's University.

It was not known at once whether the Athletic Board of the Kingston University would try to have the C.R.U. accept its challenge, or whether the C.R.U. would take should Queen's ask permission to enter the playdowns. It was believed extremely unlikely that the tri-color team would play any more football this season.

Hamilton Tigers would be idle until a week from Saturday should Queen's drop out. The C.R.U. title will be decided Saturday when Sarnia Imperials play their second playoff game against Toronto Balmy Beach. Imperials hold an eight-point lead in the total-points series.

A suggestion that Winnipeg's Western Champions might come east Saturday to play Hamilton in the Canadian semi-final was coldly received in the Maritime capital, it was learned here.

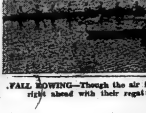
When the youthful Jimmy Ward started out for the Montreal Maroons' camp after starring in the Allan Cup series of 1926-27, professional veterans warned him to expect a term with minor professional leagues. "No sir," retorted the pride of Fort William; "I'll never play in a minor league. I'm for the N.H.L. and nothing but.



Ward started the '27-28 term in Maroon unis opposing Ottawa Senators in the opening game, and this his first taste of professional hockey he played the role of spectator but as a very active participant. Jimmy stuck. He made himself solid with Maroon fans and management when he halted the Canadiens' great winning streak of that season at 17 straight games, Ward sniping the goal which left the count Maroons 1, Canadiens 0. He's been a Maroon fixture ever since, captaining the squad, and last year benifitiating with the team which corralled the Stanley Cup.

Sporting the curliest head of hair in the league, the 26-year-old puckster teams up now with Dave Trottier, who opposed him in the Fort William - Varsity Grads playoff which climaxed both their amateur careers. They were also registered in that series. Ward got three of them, Trottier the other three. Now both are still getting their share for Maroons.

The south bound car was from near Belleville, the driver, Mr. Hamon of Steenburg.

The Provincial Police were called to the scene and investigated the accident.

Remembrance Day at Cooper

An impressive memorial service for the soldier citizens of this community, who gave their lives in the Great War, was held at Cooper United Church on Monday at 11 a.m.

After the invocation by Rev. W. G. Fletcher, the two minute silence was observed, followed with prayer by the pastor. The hymn "O God Our Help In Ages Past" was sung by the congregation. Rev. Mr. Fletcher read Hebrews 11:32-40.

Rev. Mr. Lowry of Queensboro United Church gave a very interesting address.

Mrs. W. R. Rollins and Mrs. F. Holmes rendered very feelingly the hymn "O Valiant Hearts Who to Your Glory Came." Mr. George Hall of Madoc, spoke of the ideals for which the soldiers gave their lives, that patriotism is born in the human heart.

The congregation then proceeded to the cemetery, the names of the soldiers inscribed on the monument were read by Rev. W. Fletcher. Two wreaths one donated by the United Church was placed at the base of the monument by Mr. R. Rollins Sr. and the wreath donated by the Women's Institute of the Cooper branch was placed by Mrs. Brown who with her husband (see Alvin Parks) gave his life in the war. Two National Anthems were then sung, after which they again gathered in the church and the two children of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Brown who's husband gave his life in the Great War) were baptized by Rev. W. G. Fletcher.

Madoc—On Wednesday evening Mrs. Meeds, Lewis and Hamilton, President of the Rebekah Assembly of Ontario, and accompanied by Mrs. Effie Bailey, District Deputy President of District 20, paid an official visit to Madoc Oakdale Rebekah Lodge 134. During the evening, the Rebekah degree was capably exemplified by the Madoc Lodge. After closing, refreshments were served and the following presentations made.

Madoc, Oct., Nov. 13, 1935

Mrs. Meeds Lewis,
President Rebekah Assembly of Ontario,

Dear Sister,—

It is indeed a banner night for Oakdale Lodge 134 when we are privileged to entertain our President. We realize th.t it is almost impossible for you to visit every Lodge in your jurisdiction and we therefore consider it an honour that you visited Oakdale Lodge, Madoc.

We do not wish to let the opportunity of showing in some way our appreciation of your presence here tonight. We therefore ask you to accept this gift as a token of our regard for you and hope that as you use it you may recall many happy memories of your stay with us.

We wish that your term of office as President may be one of pleasant association with your District Deputies and Lodges, resulting in many new and lasting friendships and fraternal relations.

Elsa Parks N.G.; Mary Wellman, Rec. Sec.; Mary Davies V.G.

Sister Mary Wellman read the address and Sister Verna Tanner presented the gift, which was a lovely flower vase.

Women Over Forty
Need have no fear

The much talked of change which occurs at about this time of life is too often complicated as a danger period. That there is for a time a strain on the nervous system. There may be high nervous tension and a disposition to be irritable and moody.

It is a time to avoid excess and too much excitement, and over fatigue. It is essential that the blood be kept rich and the nervous system fully nourished. For this reason Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is of almost priceless value at this time. You need have no fear for the future, for to the great majority of women the later years are the happiest of their lives.

It is surprising the number of women who attribute the passing of this period and the good health and happiness of succeeding years to the use of this nerve food.

Mr. Caffeine-Nerves . . . he does a fade-out!

IT IS TRUE that many people can drink tea and coffee without ill effects. But there are thousands of other people who cannot. Without realizing it, you may be one of them.

The caffeine found in both tea and coffee may be a working sight and day to rob you of sleep, upset your digestion, or undermine your nerves.

If you suspect that tea and coffee disagree with you . . . switch to Postum for 30 days. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened.

It is a delicious drink—and contains nothing that can possibly harm you. It is very easy to prepare . . . and costs less than one-half cent a cup.

FREE—Let us send you your first week's supply of POSTUM—Free! Write for it to Consumer Service Dept., General Foods, Limited, Cobourg, Ontario. P5-36

MR. RETAILER: "You have consistently accommodated me on purchases, Mr. Manufacturer, enabling me to supply my customers with the best and latest merchandise, and I have met your terms out of payment pretty consistently, too—haven't I?"

MR. MANUFACTURER: "Yes. The relationship has been clean-cut and mutually satisfactory for many years. We appreciate your business and you seem to like our way of dealing. Of course, I don't know we never could have been as lenient on credits if our own credit were not so good at the Bank of Montreal. The Bank permits us to borrow in substantial amounts during our busy seasons, because we are in good financial shape—have an excellent cash position and a reputation for paying bills and loans promptly."

MR. RETAILER: "That good credit idea is at the very foundation of successful merchandising and goes all the way through the business. Our customers are either cash buyers or have good credit. Most of them have chequing or savings accounts at the Bank and are sure of their ability to pay on our terms before they make purchases on their charge accounts."

Tweed and District

Tweed—C.G.I.T. held open night in their regular meeting on Friday night and the girls invited their parents and friends to be present. The feature of the programme was a play, written by two of the girls, Vera Delahaye and Jean Lambert, and revised by Miss Beatie Gordon, B.A. leader of the C.G.I.T. The play portrayed the programme carried on at the summer camp of the girls, as conducted at Mohrs Lake each year. It was composed of three acts, as follows:

Act 1, "The opening day at camp."

Act 2, "The Camp-fire Scene."

Act 3, "The Closing Day of the Camp."

Before the play began, Miss H. Gordon explained to the audience the purpose of the C.G.I.T. organization, and how the regular meetings are conducted. The girls are divided into three groups, each having a leader. The junior group, composed of girls of 13 and 14 years is led by Miss Myrtle Dark; the intermediate group of girls, 14 years of age with Mrs. A. Leonard as leader, and the senior group, 15 and 16 years with Miss Beatie Gordon as leader. Miss Enid Connor is the president of the department. Miss Dorothy Sager A.T.C.M. has charge of the musical training and assisted in the preparation of the songs used in the play.

The platform was decorated with evergreens to provide an out-door setting as at camp. The characters in the opening and closing acts were:—Vera Delahaye, Jean Lambert, Delma Pipe, Enid Connor, Marian Tummon, Marjorie Tummon, Zella Smith, Anna Whitehouse and Dorothy Merriman.

The second act "The Camp-fire scene was given with the girls seated in a circle around a camp-fire, Enid Connor, in the capacity of chief camper, had charge of the fire lighting ceremony. The girls sang "the fire song", and "Follow the Gleam". Miss Beatie Gordon read a fine story entitled "If I Would be True", the theme of which was laid in New Hampshire in the land of the "Great Stone Face". This beautiful story was followed by the hymn "I Would be True."

The girls sang several camp songs from the "Book of Camp Grande" and "The Merry Life." Each of the three groups gave an interesting stunt. The senior girls contributing an Indian war dance which was cleverly done. Those taking part included the characters in Act 1 and Phyllis Bernardo.

The intermediate girls gave a very amusing skit entitled "The new Dress", with Ruth Foster and Marion Varty taking the main parts. The other characters were:—Barbara Barnett, Marian Dark, Ruth Nicholson, Alfreda Courtney, Leona Zavitz and Helen Long.

The junior girls' contribution was a humorous number entitled "The Mediciner-maner". Miss Myrtle Dark read the story, as the characters acted the play in pantomime. The girls in the numbers were:— Joan Connor, Beverley Purdy, Mary Edmonds, Marian Moon, Helen Austin, Edna Woodcock, Phyllis Smith, Lucille Leal, Gladys McGuire and Elaine Beatty.

A splendid two part song was sung by Marjorie Tummon, Ruth Foster, Enid Connor and Marian Tummon. This was followed by Taps sung by the girls as they stood with arms interlocked in a circle around the camp-fire.

In the concluding act the girls expressed their regret at leaving camp after ten days of pleasure and profitable associations.

The regular meeting of the W.A. of the United Church was held on Thursday afternoon. After a short programme the session was devoted to the making of quilts. The Executive met to discuss plans and conclude arrangements for the anniversary supper.

Tweed district received its first touch of winter early in the week with a sleet storm which covered the branches of trees, telephone and electric light wires with a coating of ice which remained until Wednesday night. Some damage was done to shade fruit trees with the weight of the ice breaking off the branches. Thursday morning light and power users were handicapped by an interruption to the Hydro power service.

A number from Tweed were in attendance at Campbellford on Monday evening at the programme offered by the Canadian Legion. Mr. Harry Scanes of Kingston, a former Bell Telephone manager residing in Tweed, was a speaker and one of the radios given away as prizes. Tom Deakin, one of Tweed's veterans, was invited to draw names of the tickets for the Coronation prizes.

Chairmen in a musical comedy to be given in Tweed this month include: Misses Cora Moffat, Brigid Rashotte, either per cent or by word Bern Rashotte, Mrs. K. Wilson, and Messrs. Reuben Wilson, Ovila Le Fountaine, C. Ed. Way, Alex Simpson, Clayton Arthur and Keith Wilson.

A few cases of measles have broken out in Tweed and the surrounding district. Several pupils of Tweed High School are absent, but, guaranteed in their homes.

Helena Whitel, a pupil of Tweed Consolidated School, took part in the County Speaking Competition at Stirling Hall on Thursday afternoon. Douglas Connor was presented with an Encyclopedia won at Hungerford School Fair for second highest number of points.

Mrs. Ernest Blakey was operated on at Belleville General Hospital for removal of appendix on Tuesday.

"The Silver Jubilee Ceremony in Westminster Hall". The Christmas card which will be used by King George in extending this year's greetings and which was painted by Fred Taylor, R.I. The card depicts the King, accompanied by the Queen and members of the Royal Family, receiving at Westminster Hall on May 9, 1928, the loyal congratulations of parliament on his silver jubilee.

Marmora and District

Marmora—The annual bazaar and chicken supper of The Sacred Heart church held in the town hall last Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings was a fine success. The attendance was slightly smaller than last year but added attractions afforded those present a very enjoyable time. Tuesday and Wednesday evenings chicken dinners were served by the Sodality girls under the supervision of Mrs. John Crawford. The fancy work booth was conducted by Mrs. Dan Shannon and Mrs. Archie McCallum.

The home cooking booth by Mrs. J. Brady and Mrs. H. Auger.

The blanket wheel by Messrs. W. J. Shannon and C. Nicholson.

The wheel of fortune by Messrs. J. E. Dunlay and John Brady.

The candy booth by the Sodality girls and the Bingo game by Mr. Harry Dunlay.

On Thursday evening after a social supper about 20 tables of euchre were played during which the drawing for prizes took place. Miss K. Doyle and the piano supplied music for the dancing which followed.

PRESENTATION

Carmel—On Tuesday evening Nov. 5th the many friends of Carmel gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Patterson to bid farewell to Miss Sarah Moore, R.N., before her departure to Vancouver, B. C.

A short programme consisted of community singing and musical selections.

The Rev. Mr. Merrick acted as chairman and after a brief address Miss Iva Horton then read the following address:—

Carbyville, Ont.
Nov. 5, 1930.

Dear Miss Moore,—

We all have learned with very deep regret of your departure from this neighborhood and as members of the community of Carmel we have assembled here to express our regards for you.

We have learned to admire your sterling qualities and we have ever found it easy for you to be a real, true friend, every ready to lend a hand at any time needed, night or day.

Six years ago you came into our community unknown to many of us, but you did not long remain a stranger.

Through your untiring efforts, and your lofty, Christian spirit you have endeared yourself to all of us.

You have won for your chosen profession a great respect and admiration in our thinking and for yourself a place in our hearts that will be yours to the end of life. Such are the chief characteristics of true greatness that we have seen in your life has been most humble and devoted service.

May the bonds that bind all Christian friendships entwine our hearts as we separate until the end of the day when we will each lay down life's trophies and meet in Eternal friendship.

Wherever you may go, and thus we ask you to accept our gift.

Signed on behalf of your Carmel friends,

Mrs. W. Simmons.
Miss I. Horton.
Mr. W. Simmons.

Mrs. W. Simmons presented Miss Moore with a beautiful table set and a white gold bracelet. Miss Moore briefly but feelingly thanked her friends for their beautiful gifts.

Former Stirling Minister Gains Prominence in Work

VISITS STIRLING

Stirling — Rev. F. A. Robinson, M. A. of Toronto, who ministered to the people of St. Andrew's Church, Stirling, nearly thirty years ago, and who, this week found it possible to return to the village to address his former congregation at both Sunday services and to conduct a special series of evangelistic midweek services each evening throughout the coming week at St. Andrew's Church West Huntingdon, was warmly greeted by his many friends of the community as he re-entered the pulpit of the church which was once his own.

Rev. F. A. Robinson left Stirling about twenty-seven years ago to enter into special evangelistic work in the mining districts of British Columbia, and his experience in this work, as told by himself, are of unusual interest. Since leaving Stirling, he has travelled many thousands of miles in addition to a score of trips across the continent, he has travelled to the other side of the world several times. A keen observer, and a thorough student of human need, also possessed of a great memory this unusual man has found time in his busy life to set forth, in an interesting fashion some of his experiences in several books he has written. Though not always in search of material and colour for the writing he has done, such travels have taken him into all parts of the world, Palestine, Germany and from the ravages of the great Canadian forests to the lower sea side of the great city of London, where poverty, filth and ignorance are of so terrible a nature as will more recent years. Upon his findings in the crowded quarters of the last mentioned place and his contact with natives found in the crowded squares and tenement houses he based one of his recently published books. Travelling into these out of the way places, the pleasing personality of this unusual man enabled him to make many friends and with his fine display of Christian brotherhood was able to gain contact with some of the most unique characters in the world. There is stored up within his crowded mind many experiences which he himself only can picture as given in his stirring addresses. His message while primarily set forth the Gospel are of a type that create a yearning for more.

Miss Grunard, who for many years has been associated with Mr. Robinson in his various fields of activity is an accomplished artist, and her instrumental numbers were greatly appreciated. Her renditions of special arrangements of some of the old standard hymns displayed her outstanding ability at the piano. These numbers arranged by Miss Grunard herself were of the descriptive type and added greatly to the splendid services. Rev. F. A. Robinson will assist with the services at the Stirling church next Sunday both morning and evening.

★ Use This NEW System —

For Providing Your Own RETIREMENT INCOME When You Reach Sixty

THOUSANDS of Canadians have adopted this new and easy "unit" system for the provision of guaranteed incomes to themselves when they reach sixty—at the same time providing insurance protection to their families. . . . In the one policy protection is given against economic disaster—if one lives too long or if one dies too soon . . .

A PERSONAL PENSION "UNIT" PROVIDES:

WHEN YOU REACH SIXTY

You May Choose to Receive either—
(a) $3,563 IN CASH, or
(b) $25 A MONTH for the rest of your lifetime.
● This is a guaranteed income which you cannot possibly outlive!

IF YOU SHOULD DIE BEFORE 60

Your Family will Receive—
$300 IN CASH (for immediate expenses) PLUS
$75 A MONTH for Two Years and Four Months—which will help them during the readjustment period. (If above "Cash and Income" is not desired, they will receive $2,500 in cash.)

● ADDITIONAL "UNITS" may be added at any time. Each additional "Unit" INCREASES the amount of your Retirement Income—and, in event of your premature death, it EXTENDS the income period for your family. . . .

Eighty Ancient Cars in Race

London, Nov. 18 (AP) — Eighty ancient automobiles—the oldest made in 1896, the youngest in 1904 entered into action yesterday. Despite damp November weather, a large crowd visited Hyde Park from London to Brighton through a pouring rain for the annual "old crocks" race.

It commemorated then the emancipation day of 1896 when a motorist did not have speed limits abolished and cars were allowed 10 miles an hour. The first time without being preceded by a man carrying a red flag to warn horses and pedestrians out of the way.

Sixty-eight veterans of the road finally passed triumphantly into Brighton to earn gold medals for their modified drivers. The winner was George Syrae, driving a 21-year-old Napier, which completed the 60-mile trip in one hour, 50 minutes.

CHAPTER 19.

JANIE CARRIES ON

It was only in the evenings that nie went down into the steer- ge. By day, when the decks were owded upper decks of the Santa ta bloomed with fashionable ng groups that danced and ried, or sat about in gossiping apathy, Janie kept to the lower

By day the girl spent the long hours in her cabin, or stretched herself in a life-boat. Her smooth heeks whipped to a faint pink by the wind and the spray, she would ressing on the phantasmagoria that was the sea. She had come to ve the sea—its waywardness, its changefulness. Oddly enough, it re- minded Mildred. Pale as the Ca- arolian, whisper of jade, shimmer of pearl and of gold.... Colorful .... lovely ..... unstable ..... and ruel. For Mildred was Janie's ideal of anything real, either the white heat of conflict or the cold ashes that ensue.

"She's just timid and sweetest," Janie would tell herself miserably. "If you take her hard enough, her heart breaks.... Like a little—a pea- sant for anyone but herself." And her own heart ached for Mildred in a awakening that must some day be his. She woke up in the night remembering with startling clarity some problem bearing a devil's tail- ed name that had troubled her, thought of having to tell him brought a feeling of sinking into

"I don't know why she ever married him, anyway!" Janie had told Anthony Fane. "He isn't her sort at all! Mark's the kind of man I- ing, and, where women are con- cerned, absolutely naive—which is just a polite word for being dumb!" She wound up with a rueful grin, and Fane had heard and pronounced Childs in gray alpaca uniforms— that sort of thing. There was a man at home, who wanted to give her these things—but instead she had to tell the man who reached out her greedy little arms and he walked right into them. And now—it isn't only that he's crazy about her, but he trusts her. It wouldn't matter what she did to him.... She could go down on her selfish, satin-clad knees and smash everything to bits; she could grind his hated in himself to powder—but he'd go on loving her just the same and being her slave to the end. He's just that kind of a fool!" Her voice broke on a note of passionate bitterness.

"Hilarious," Anthony Fane said quietly, "being filled with the stories of wiser men who threw away worlds for as little—or less. But I think I am beginning to see—"

Janie nodded. "Taking away Mark's faith in Mildred," she went on more quietly after a moment, "would be like burning something while it was still warm and alive. He's the kind who can be blindest- hurt. I can't do that to Mark— that's why I've got to hang on; get me safely off this ship, Mildred," she added hopefully, "always tries things...."

X X X

Long days of hot sunshine slip- ping without warning into a mass of bronze and gold. Swift twilights that left a crystalline sky above the hops ship clawing the white- capped ranges of ochre, green and blue. Long evenings, when Janie and Anthony Fane sat under the whipping little winds and the stinging spray of the forecastle, waiting for the harsh, lonely sound of the rising moon to stain the dark- ness—each of its own accord.... Even- ings when they talked of everything and of nothing at all. Evenings when they were ridiculously shy.... Nights when the stars seemed like plums of yellow velvet sewed on a blackboard, and the throb of the ship's crew came to them faint- ly as the throb of their own hearts.

Oddly enough, Janie's waiting for Mildred, if she had any, was some- thing she had never tried to ana- lyze, even to herself. It seemed cer- tain, somehow, that the days drift- ed relentlessly away, that the even- ings brought a cooler air to the deck- haven on the Santa Nina's lower deck. It was enough that he could make her laugh—and coffid himself be so incomprehensively amused by her earnest remarks as Mark once had been; that in his quiet way he could tease her as irreverently, un- derstand as readily, and listen to her as seriously as Mark had been wont to do in those far-off days when they had had only each other to... before Mildred came to "spoil" that last look to her brother's eyes. It simply did not occur to Janie to wonder about Anthony Fane—or to dwell on the time when all this would end and they must part for- ever out or each other's lives.

She saw almost nothing of Mil- dred now—for all that they occu- pied the same stateroom. Usually Mildred was asleep when Janie left the deck before Janie awoke in the stateroom through how she managed it after spending most of the night before in the devitalizing almos- phere of the Santa Nina's lounge, Janie never knew. There was no longer any question but that Mil- dred did play cards all night—with Don Felipe for a partner. Once or twice Janie had roused from sleep in the hour before dawn, to hear a distant whispering at the state- room door, and the cautious prowl- ing about on the stateroom floor which heralded Mildred's retiring. She had been tempted on these oc- casions to put the cord of the crys- tal lamp beside her bed—to face the other girl and make a last appeal, a plea for understanding and help in a situation which had already gone far beyond either. But always something had stayed her hand. If it became open warfare between them, then the odds, Janie knew, would be all on Mildred's side. It would be impossible in the face of a definite breach, for Janie to go on sharing Mildred's room, and her one slight hold on Mildred's affections would be gone.

Her sister-in-law's manner to herself, however, did change in many ways varied according to Mildred's mood. Sometimes she was sullenly cold, her brown eyes evading her face wearing that cold, frozen smile- that-was-no-smile which Janie had so armingly contrite, with all a child's transparent efforts to make amends. Sometimes she was childishly, co- ercive, wheedling voice.... Mildred's lovely eyes, dizzy with deep, raised innocently to Janie's troubled gaze. "These are the new shoulder straps for Fall. Aren't they just too smart? This is called autumn-flavored smoke-haze, and that one is named 'Grape,' And this evening shade- look, Janie! It's the latest new skin- tone, and it's called 'Cala.' Where on earth do you suppose the mano- facturers get those names?"

Wandering aimlessly about the cabin in her trailing chiffon peig- noir, looking lovely, disheveled and remote, she could talk of everything and anything but the one subject uppermost in her mind—and Janie, which no one better than Mildred knew how to ignore.

That her own visits to the steer- age deck could pass unmarked was, of course, quite out of the question, Janie knew. But so great had been her preoccupation and worry over Mildred that it had simply not occurred to the girl what people might think about that. It was oddly enough, Gregory Stewart who brought the situation home to her anew.

He had left her strictly alone since his rebuff that night on the boat-deck; only his quizzical smile whenever he caught her eye in the dining-saloon showing that he did not intend to forget. Then one evening, walking rapidly along the Promenade Deck in the dark, Janie had come full upon young Mr. Stewart at the head of the com- panionway. She drew quickly aside to allow him to pass, her wide eyes looking unseeingly over his head at the dim expanse of turquoise sea. The man, however, stopped and spoke.

"Hel-lo, there," he said softly. "And isn't this a pleasant surprise?" He had the light smile and that glinting eye of a man who has been wounded in his dearest vanity, and she saw that he meant to have this out. Hands tucked into the pockets of his graceful dinner-jacket, he lounged deliberately against the entrance to the narrow passage, blocking her securely against re- treat. "Mad at me, aren't you?" he said, still in that silky-soft tone, and gave his womanish, spiteful laugh. She saw that he had been drinking and panic flared over her, then anger, flaring suddenly, sending the panic to rout.

"I think," she said icily, "that you're absolutely the most impos- sible person it has ever been my un- fortunate lot to meet."

The man sighed, attitudinizing elaborately. "Now, isn't it some- thing," he asked the universe in general, "that the lady thinks of me as a fiend because I'm a little bored with playing nursemaid to a child? Now, isn't it something that she thinks I'm a cad because I'm not content to sit and watch the moon rise with a girl who's in love with another man?"

Janie's face flamed. "You're a cad because you've been drinking," she said, "and because you're trying to make love to me when you know I'm in love with Mr. Childs."

"Oh, Childs!" Gregory Stewart said, and laughed. "Childs is a fool, my dear girl, and you're a fool to waste your time on him. Childs is a fool, and I'm a fool, and you're a fool, and the whole damned world is full of fools. Come, be a sport and forget it."

"I'm not a sport," Janie said, "and I'm not forgetting it. Please let me pass."

"Not until you've told me you forgive me," he said, and caught her wrist.

"You're going to tell us to some African sultan?", "The Nazarny like to call names," said the sheykh meeringly. "Perhaps if Zverl had not called us names this would not have happened." As the flames licked at the great pile of equipment that the Arabs were forced to leave behind, the deserters started toward the West.

"Let me go," she demanded the girl. "Let me go at once!"

"Not until you've told me you forgive me," he said, and caught her other wrist. "Come, let us say that I am saving you and this girl from yourself, Janie Childs—in the jungle." Abu Bats you are a hypocrite and a traitor!" cried Zora, her voice vi- brant with contempt.

"Allah was wroth that we should betray our land to the Nazarny," said the sheykh, "we are going back to our own people."

"What do you intend to do with us?" asked Zora.

"I know a man who is very rich," said Abu Bats. He will give you both a good home," replied Abu Bats.

WINTER FAIR TO OPEN WEDNESDAY

Greatest List of Entries in its 14 Years of Existence

Toronto, Nov. 13.— (CP)— The Royal Winter Fair, with the greatest list of entries in its 14 years of existence, opens tomorrow for an eight-day stand.

Entries include from 7,000 to 8,000 animals in the Livestock Division where horses of all breeds, beef and dairy cattle, sheep and swine will be exhibited and 8,000 fowl in poultry classes. A flower show, International Dog and Cat Shows and exhibits from dairy fish, dairy and farm products make up the great assembly.

Harry C. Hunt, Acting Premier of Ontario, will preside at the opening ceremonies. Lord Tweedsmuir, Canada's new Governor-General, and Lady Tweedsmuir will make their first visit to Toronto for the Royal Winter Fair Horse Show Nov. 26. A style welcome to army officers of Six Nations— Holland, Belgium, France, Irish Eire, India, United States and Canada—will be extended by Mayor Simpson. At the agricultural dinner which precedes the evening performance, Hon. Duncan Marshall, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, will be guest speaker.

Horse Show Entries Large

More than 160 horses which contested at the Royal Horse Show in New York last week have been entered. Entries have also been received from Western States including California and Colorado.

Among the horses for the Horse Show are Lord Willoughby De Broke from Warwick of one of the oldest ancestral families in the British Isles and a team judge, of harness. Shetly Queen of Sheba, Mills of London Eng., F. Ambrose Clark and six other prominent American horsemen.

Already twenty-five carloads of stock have come from the Western Provinces, among them a consignment of beef cattle from the Prince of Wales Ranch at High River, Alta. University farms of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta are among some of the outstanding exhibitors, while Oxford County in Ontario is sending the largest shipment of cattle they have ever entered at the Toronto Fair.

SAVINGS ON AUTOS ARE INDICATED

Run From $25 to $250 According to Value of Car Purchased

Ottawa, Nov. 12 (CP)—Lowering of duties and excise tax on lower-priced automobiles imported from the United States would work out at $25 on a car worth $1,000 under the reciprocity pact. Reduction in duty on a car bought for $1,500 at which price it would not enjoy a decrease in excise tax, would be $112.50.

Excise tax will drop two per cent on American automobiles under the value of $1,500 American prices. In place of paying a five per cent excise tax, these lower priced cars accorded most favored national treatment through their transfer from the general to the intermediate tariff schedules, will pay only the regular three per cent excise tax. No change in excise tax will be made on United States cars above the value of $1,500 American price. They will continue to bear a ten per cent excise duty.

The Canadian tariff divides automobiles into five classes. The first class is passenger cars valued at not more than $1,800, the second includes passenger cars and trucks valued at less than $1,800 and not more than $2,100; and the third class covers all automobiles not included in the other two.

In all three classes Canada grants to the United States her intermediate tariff instead of the general rate formerly in effect. This means a reduction from 30 to 22½ per cent in the first class, 20 to 17½ per cent on the second and 40 to 30 per cent on the third. The reduction in rate of duty on the first class is 7½ per cent, in the second 2½ per cent and in the third 10 per cent.

The reduction in the amount of duty is therefore dependent entirely on the value of the car purchaser. If a passenger car costing $1,500 was purchased in the United States and brought to Canada it would have paid formerly a general tariff rate of 30 per cent or $450. Now it will pay the intermediate rate of 22½ per cent or $337.50. The reduction is $112.50.

If the car cost $1,000 it would formerly have been required to come in under a duty of 30 per cent or $300. Now it will pay 17½ per cent or $175, a reduction of $25.

The last class on which tariffs are reduced from 40 to 30 per cent would include very high-priced cars valued at not less than $2,100. The duty reduction in the case of a car worth $2,500 would be $250.

Woman Vice President Is Given High Award

New York, Nov. 19 (AP)— Mrs. Corden Reid, Vice-President of the New York Zoological Society, in the 1938 winner of the American Women's Association award for conservation achievement.

The announcement was made last night by Mrs. Virginia Calder-Mesere of Barnard College at a dinner attended by more than 400 women.

Mrs. Reid, in accepting the award said the honor belongs to the newspaper writers whose work is associated rather than to her and in general to the great body of newspapers which feed the news into their communities, independently.

Mrs. Molly Warren Wilcox, owner and publisher of the Wichita, Kas., Beacon, one of the speakers, said there are about 300 and 400 women editors and publishers in the United States.

National Grange Asks Repudiation of Treaty

Sacramento, Calif., Nov. 17.—(AP) —A platform plank demand for repudiation of the new trade treaty with Canada headed the 1938 of 1935 policies of the National Grange today at the opening session of the annual convention.

The Grange unanimously adopted a report of its legislative committee warning the country would prove "injurious rather than beneficial" and announced opposition to "any part of the Reciprocal Tariff Act or the next Congress raises the various trade barriers sets modified.

The treaty report asserted the United States already has a surplus of most articles of almost every agricultural commodity and that the treaty concessions were made to Canada.

Particular stress was laid upon the "slashing" of tariffs on seed potatoes and maple sugar. The report said there could be "no justification" for the lowered duty on seed potatoes in the light of recent production and ruinous prices for several years completed. The report urged the domestic growers "submit to a compulsory collection by growers" of domestic suffering was predicted for domestic livestock, dairy, poultry and hay markets.

MASSAWA — MOTHER EARTH'S PART OF MARS

Even one year ago the little portion of Massawa sweltering season of the African—it was a treasure, dark spot of civilization under the African sun. Now it is bustling with the clank of warlike instruments, the drone of cranes load-supplies, the shriek of steam whistles as great Italian liners tie up at the quays. This is the "mouth" of the Italian army. Into it is funneled all the foodstuffs that succor Il Duce's forces in Ethiopia. Some built along the Gulf, with its sickness, laborers and technicians mixing in the strange conglomeration, flies in interest on one of the most important transitions in Eritrea.

KING'S STAFF TO BE REORGANIZED

Private Secretary And Keeper of Purse Posts Amalgamated

By THOS. T. CHAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

London, Nov. 18 (CP Cable) Following the death recently of Lord Sysonby, treasurer of the King's household, His Majesty has ordered the reorganization of certain posts in the household.

The offices of private secretary and keeper of the privy purse have been amalgamated. The offices of the treasurer and deputy treasurer have been abolished and the next post of financial secretary created.

Lord Wigram becomes private secretary and keeper of the privy purse. He previously held the secretarial job and also is keeper of the King' archives.

Lord Wigram was raised to the Peerage in the Jubilee honors this year. He has been a close friend of the King since the beginning of the reign. From 1910 until 1931 he was assistant private secretary.

As keeper of the privy purse he is a court official second in importance only to the Lord Chamberlain.

Sir Ralph Endersby Harwood becomes financial secretary. He formerly held the post of assistant treasurer. Sir Ralph began life as a naval telegraphist and proceeded through almost every branch of the civil service.

Alfred Frederick Lascelles has been appointed additional assistant private secretary to the King. He was assistant private secretary to the Prince of Wales, 1920-1926, and in 1931 was secretary to the Governor-General of Canada, then the Earl of Bessborough.

ONE HELD AFTER SHOP HOLD-UP

Police Search For Two Others Believed Implicated

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 18 (CP) — Police pressed a search today for two bandits who held up and robbed the butcher shop operated by John and Mick Lapovich, brothers, late yesterday night and escaped with $67.

Under guard at General Hospital, William Perry, alleged companion of the two men, was recovering from severe cuts inflicted by a broken glass. He was charged with robbery and attempted murder.

The two brothers were also taken to hospital suffering from gunshot wounds in the arms. Mick Lapovich was able to return home after treatment but John was still confined to hospital.

The two bandits fled after the brothers had put up a terrific battle armed only with butcher knives and a heavy meat cleaver, leaving Perry unconscious on the floor.

Canadian Treaty Reaction

By The Canadian Press

Protesting voices were mingled in Canada today, Tuesday, with the chorus of approval which greeted publication of terms of the Canada-United States Reciprocal Trade Treaty.

Main development on the Dominion's economic front as a result was the declaration of Wallace H. Campbell, president of the Canadian Ford Motor Car Company of Canada, that manufacturers putting out cars of a high Canadian content would be in "quite a different range". The statement was followed by announcement of price reductions in Ford cars ranging from $26 to $110 in anticipation of the reduced tariff effective Jan. 1 on vehicles entering Canada.

"We are taking the step in advance of the date so that employment may not be curtailed," said Mr. Campbell anticipating a lull in sales, while prospective buyers wait until after tariff changes were effective.

A meeting of customs experts of all Canadian manufacturers of automobiles was in session at Toronto today to discuss the significance of the changes.

Furniture Trade Dismissed

At Stratford, Ont., D. M. Wright, President of the McLagan Furniture Company, said lowered tariffs on furniture entering Canada from the United States "is a serious situation" in the Canadian industry. Under the favored nation rules, furniture tariff was reduced from 45 to 30 per cent.

"Labor conditions are much different in the Southern States and it is impossible for Canadian furniture men to compete with goods from there if the duty is too low," said Mr. Wright.

At Charlottetown, P.E.I., J. W. Boulter, manager of the Prince Edward Island Potato Growers' Association, said the seed potato quota allowed by the treaty was too small to give any great assistance to Canadian producers. He expressed the hope the quota would be increased.

W. F. Carter, chairman of the British Columbia Tree Fruit Marketing Board, at Penticton, stated that the possibility that dumping duties payable on United States products entering Canada may be removed constituted a "serious menace to the Okanagan Valley fruit industry." Mr. Hankins said, "Okanagan growers do not fear fair competition but will be ruined if their markets are used as a dumping ground."

Lumbermen Happy

Meanwhile, lumbermen from New Brunswick and British Columbia, farmers and sailormen from western provinces and Ontario, dairymen and others expressed warm approval of the treaty. Fishermen in the Maritime Provinces were disappointed to learn there was no reduction on Canadian haddock and halibut, chief species in Pacific fisheries. Reductions had been made in the U.S. tariff on other species of fish.

DELEGATES BATTLE TO SAVE POSTS

Protest Trend to Have Married Women With Children Barred

Chicago, Nov. 13 (AP)—Recent discrimination moves against Cupid and motherhood in business and industry today aroused young women business, professional and industrial representatives attending meeting of two national Y. W. C. A. councils.

The council sessions were closed to the public but from leaders of both the business and professional groups and the industrial unit, it was learned resolutions would probably be drawn protesting the trend toward forcing women who marry, or married women who have babies to quit their jobs.

These resolutions, if formulated, would later be presented to the national convention of the Young Women's Christian Associations of the United States, which has a membership of 600,000.

Clothing Burned Off Woman Succumbs

Norwich, Ont., Nov. 19 (CP)— Burned Sunday night while lighting a fire in the stove in her home west of here, Mrs. Enoch Pick, 74, died yesterday.

Mrs. Pick built a wood fire in a small stove in her sitting room. She is believed to have attempted to lift the lid off the stove by wrapping her apron around her hand. The flame ignited the apron and she attempted to extinguish out the flames. Her clothing quickly ignited and was almost burned from her body.

210 NOMINATIONS FOR QUEBEC SEATS

Entrants in Political Race Surge Towards Finish Line

Montreal, Nov. 19—(CP)—Entrants in the Quebec political race surged towards the finish line today with the colors of three parties fluttering the chill autumn breeze.

With nominations held yesterday the election battle boils down to a rapid exchange of verbal thrusts among the contestants. And in two constituencies there will not even be that. In Montreal St. Louis where Peter Bercovitch, K.C., Liberal, was given an acclamation, and in Richelieu where J. C. A. Turcotte, also a Liberal, was returned unopposed. Both were members of the last Legislature.

There were 210 nominations compared with 247 in the 1931 election. Of this number 90 were Liberals, including the two given acclamations, 87 were candidates of the United Conservative-Nationals Liberals National group, while Independents of one color or another completed the list.

According to party classification nominations were as follows: Liberal 90; Conservative 23; Action Libérale Nationale 84; Independent-Liberal 23; Independent Conservative 1; Labor 2; Independent 6; and Labor-Liberal 1.

KING RECEIVES PRIME MINISTER

Believed Anthony Eden Will Remain in Present Post

London, Nov. 19 (CP)—King George received Prime Minister Baldwin in an audience at Buckingham Palace today for the first time since the National Government won another strong House of Commons majority at last Thursday's general election.

Meantime latest indications in political circles are Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell, First Lord of the Admiralty, will continue to hold that post; Anthony Eden, Minister for League of Nations' Affairs, about whom speculation has been particularly rife, is likely to remain in that office.

Malcolm Macdonald, youthful colonial secretary, may remain in the Cabinet too, in his old job, providing a seat can be found for him. Macdonald and his father, Ramsay Macdonald, both were defeated in the election but only the Cabinet Ministers who failed to be re-elected.

Previous reports were that Sir Bolton would retire. Now it seems probable he will be elevated to the peerage and continue in the Cabinet. Insiders say he will be the pro-naval parley in London is said to be the reason for his retention. Sir Bolton did not run for a seat in Parliament.

Prime Minister Baldwin is understood to be anxious to retain Viscount Halifax, Secretary for War, in the Cabinet, although probably in another portfolio. He formerly was Viceroy of India. Lord Halifax might replace Ramsay Macdonald, who retires as President of the Council. The future of the elder Macdonald remains uncertain.

LONDON HOUSE TO OPEN NOV. 26

Speech From The Throne Is Expected on December Third

London, Nov. 19.—(CP Cable)— With the opening of the new parliament scheduled for a week from today, interest centres on the speech from the throne on December 3, political observers today speculated that the new government of Prime Minister Baldwin would take to the air to outline its program.

The measures for strengthening the air defences of Britain will likely particular interest. In general, it was expected that foreign policy would receive attention.

With only four seats unreported, the government held a majority of 207. It commanded 424 seats against 177 of the Opposition. The Scottish combined universities, with three seats and the single-member constituencies, with 387 seats, Parliament have not been announced yet.

U. S. Lumbermen May Invoke Courts

Washington, Nov 19.— (AP) — The Canadian-American Trade Treaty's provision for a 50 per cent reduction in duties on Canadian lumber was described by spokesmen for the U.S. lumber industry today as "satisfying to the greatest economy of important parts of the country."

"It holds a threat of disaster to wage earners in large sections of the United States," added officials of the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association.

They declined to be quoted by name, but it is whether or not the Reciprocal Tariff Act, under which the Treaty was negotiated, is a possibility.

CONFERENCE IN OSHAWA

Oshawa, Nov. 19 (CP)—Rev. Quinte Conference of the United Church will meet in Oshawa next May, Rev. Andrew Robb, minister of St. Andrew's United Church, announced today. The sessions of the conference usually open the last week of May and will last ten days, and will bring ministers and laymen from all over Central Ontario to Oshawa for the meetings. Simpson Church will be the scene of the conference and a committee including Rev. A. D. Robb, J. C. Young, L. F. McLaughlin, A. V. Swail, C. Sadler and M. E. Armstrong as well as Rev. W. R. Thanton of Simcoe Street United Church, and Rev. G. C. R. McQuade, chairman of the conference, will meet in Belleville shortly to discuss the arrangements.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and Sid Hunt and Glasses Magee and Shorty Judge was sitting on my front steps tawking and wayving, and Glasses and Shorty started to have a fearse debate about Japanese and Chinese. Glasses claiming he can tell them apart and Shorty claiming they can't and he tell each other apart so how can a fortiner, and Glasses says "Who are you calling a fortiner, you squashed-down pernickin".

Who are you calling a squashed-down pernisson, you 4 eyed monkey? Shorty said, and Glasses said, I'm calling you a squashed-down persimmon, you squashed-down pernisson.

Sounding like the start of a fite, and me and Sid Hunt quick started to say "Let's fite so as not to spoil it," me saying. Hay, are you going to have a fite can call you that, Glasses why dont you make him fite if he wants to prove anything like that? and Sid saying, Good idea, Shorty, are you going to leave that guy get away with that, if he thinks he can lick you why dont you make him prove it?

If he touches me I'll nock him into the middle of next week, Glasses says, I'm not afraid of him, why? Well you'h have a long ways to go to do it, because you'll be in the penitentiary for the rest of your lookin around for a good hospitle

O, Shorty, are you going to take that? Shorty Glasses, are you going to stand for that? me and Sid Hunt said. And we started to push them at each other to give them confidence, and they pop each his head for the other, saying, Just as a little object lesson for the Litsy Boys why don't you start fighting arbitrate and mutually withdraw your original harsh and bellicose words?

Meeting to take back 4 eyed monkey and squashed down persimmon, and Shorty said, Well, I'll take mine partly back, I'll admit you're only a 2 eyed munkey, and Glasses said, Then I'll take mine partly back, all you've got is a sawn on murhewller

Now shake hands, pop said, With that they did, and look shooting glad of the chance.

DEFEATED MCDONALD

E. Shinwell, Labour Candidate, has defeated the erstwhile most politically powerfully man in England. Shinwell defeated Ramsay McDonald, former prime minister, in Seaham district, placing the latter's political fate on chancery. The victorious candidate declared that the election meant that the miners would have no further use for "betraying the principles of the Labor party."

WARN "FRISCO HOUSEWIVES

Baking Soda Sold at Bargain Prices Contained Poison

San Francisco, Nov. 20—(AP)—San Francisco housewives were warned today that baking soda "bargains" purchased at a leading grocery chain store, may have been contaminated by deadly poison, already blamed for three deaths.

Mysterious circumstances surrounding the sale of the lethal soda —so deadly half a teaspoonful might cause death—led Dr. Leo H. Geiger, city health director to seek a police investigation.

"I don't understand how so much poison could be mixed in the soda to cause death," he said, "but the evidence yet of any criminal activity in circumstances frankly has me worried."

Dr. Geiger said contents of hydrox (poison) of a widely-known brand of baking soda had been sold in barrel lots by a salvage firm to a San Francisco department store for re-packaging. He said he thought the soda may have been contaminated by sea water which leaked into barrels formerly contained poison.

The soda, sold over a period of several weeks, was purchased by thrifty housewives during the recent depression. The same brand in original packages for 10 cents a pound.

The first three reported deaths were blamed on use of the "cheap" soda were Mrs. Mabel Ogle, 39, already Terry, 81, and his daughter, Mrs. Reede Shufeld, 53.

MULDOON INQUEST IS LAID OVER

One of The Jurors Becomes Ill During The Hearing

Smiths Falls, Ont., Nov. 20—(CP) —Illness of C. S. Bootes, one of a jury, today brought about postponement for several hours of the inquest into William Muldoon's death in the hope the juryman might recover.

Dr. M. M. Crawford of Toronto, Chief Coroner, for Ontario, opened the inquiry yesterday into the death of the veteran Canadian Pacific Railway locomotive engineer, previous to which a verdict that Muldoon died the night of August 31, by drowning, "unknown" or by a person or persons unknown," was set aside by the Ontario Supreme Court and a new inquest ordered upon new evidence obtained by Provincial Police investigators.

DR. H. GORTZ IS TAKEN IN CUSTODY

Charged Under Official Secrets Act by Authorities

London, Nov. 20 (AP)—Dr. Hermann Gortz, a German, was arrested at Harwich, Scottish aristocrats announced today, charged under the Official Secrets Act.

Gortz was remanded, the officials said, and will appear in the courts in the normal way.

The Official Secrets Act is applied in cases where a leakage of secret information is suspected.

In Dundee, Scotland the arrest is a sensational development, arising from the visit Dr. Hermann Gortz made in a number of naval ports and air stations in South and West England.

This newspaper said it was alleged Dr. Gortz was in possession of documents contrary to the Secrets Act.

The British and Gortz was a former member of the German air force and a frequent visitor to England before and after the war.

The newspaper reported he was entertained on some visits by a beautiful young golden-haired woman understood to be his daughter or niece.

Maple Valley Dairy Co. Takes Over Belleville Creameries

New Company is Subsidiary of Lovell and Christmas (Canada) Montreal Dairy Produce Exporting House. New Owners Take Possession This Week. Other Plants Will be Established Later on.

A business change of considerable interest to the dairy producers of the Bay of Quinte district was consummated this week, when The Maple Valley Dairy Company Limited of Belleville and Montreal announced that they have purchased the Belleville and Bancroft Creameries from Mr. Maclaren Robertson, and that they are now operating these plants.

The Maple Valley Dairy Company Limited is a subsidiary of Lovell and Christmas Limited, Montreal. The parent Company has been established in Canada for almost fifty years operating chiefly as a cheese and butter exporting company to Great Britain and latterly as importers to the United States. The company has been in continuous business operations in New Zealand, Argentina, Australia, South Africa, the United States and Canada.

It is the intention of the Maple Valley Dairy Company Limited to continue, more or less, the same principles as those that have been followed successfully by Mr. Robertson in the past, though there are possibilities that they may develop and intensify the activities of these plants. Later on the company will establish or acquire other plants as their plans develop and justify expansion.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Mr. John Freeman, the president of Lovell and Christmas (Canada) Limited, announces that the Board of Directors of the Maple Valley Dairy Co. Limited, is composed as follows:

Mr. F. B. C. Potter, President.
Mr. R. E. Bellairyne, K.C., Vice-president, Montreal.
Mr. John Freeman, Montreal.
Mr. W. H. Morton, Belleville.
Mr. C. S. Robertson, New York.

Mr. John Goodman is acting as Secretary-Treasurer and, incidentally, is handling the operational details of the new arrangement for the present time being.

Mr. F. B. C. Potter, a special representative of Lovell and Christmas Limited, of London, England, is in this country temporarily. He has recently returned from re-organizing work for Lovell and Christmas, Limited, Kalamazoo, Michigan, U.S.A., and Fray Bentos Dairy Company Limited of Buenos Aires, Argentina.

Mr. R. E. Bellairyne, K.C., Montreal, is a name familiar to all producers and people in the trade throughout the country, due to the fact that his family has had extensive connection with the industry for many years.

Mr. W. H. Morton, the local director on the Board, has been associated with the Belleville and Childonal Dairying Ltd. since 1917, as a cheese buyer for the Bay of Quinte District, and was recently appointed a director of the Board of Lovell and Christmas (Canada) Limited. In addition to the Board of Directors of Maple Valley Dairy Co., completed the organization of the new company in that his experience with the dairy industry in the operational and buying arrangement for the local wide knowledge of the other members of the Board will enable the Company to deal with any emergencies that might arise.

FILL UP RAVINE WOMEN DEMAND

East End Toronto Women Approach Board of Control

Toronto, Nov. 20.—(CP)— East End residents of the city presented a petition to the Board of Control today asking the Gerrard Street ravine be filled in. The area was supplied to present repetition of the criminal assault slayings of 20-year-old Emily Taylor, November fourth. The Board promised consideration of the petition.

Among the delegates were ten women claiming to represent 1000 women of the neighborhood where the assaulted body of the Taylor girl was found among the bushes of the ravine.

J. W. McFadden, K.C., Crown Prosecutor, said today he would ask for a further remand when Harry O'Donnell appears for preliminary hearing Friday on a charge of murdering Miss Taylor. The further delay would be asked to enable detectives to complete investigation evidence the Crown secured through research of its experts.

RELIEVE PAIN BY COBRA VENOM

Effective as Killer of Pain in Hopeless Cancer

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 20—Cobra venom, the deadliest of all snake poison, has been found to have valuable applications to be effective, in small diluted doses as a killer of pain in hopeless cancer cases, as well as to some other types of pain, it was reported before the National Academy of Science meeting at the University of Virginia by Dr. David I. Macht, director of the Pharmacological laboratory of the Johns Hopkins University.

The poison, applied to more than 100 human sufferers, Dr. Macht reported, has been found to bind in large percentage of the cases, to relieve pain as effectively as morphine, with the advantage that the venom has no habit forming quality nor does it produce the unpleasant and dangerous effects that often accompany the administration of drug.

Seventy-five per cent. of the hopeless cancer sufferers found that pain relieved by the injection of small doses of cobra venom in their muscles, Dr. Macht reported.

Investigations show, he added, that the poison acts on the pain centers on the higher nerve centres of the brain.

Protein Diet Damaging

A protein diet is considered to show a deleterious effect on kidney disease in experimental animals, investigators from the Harvard Chandler and Stephen Ludewig of the University of Virginia Medical School reported. "The kidney damage," they reported, "was progressively greater with increased protein direction."

This should not be taken to mean, they added, that a high protein diet will result in damage to normal kidneys. The experiments conducted so far only on rats, indicate that where the kidneys have already damaged a protein diet aggravates the condition.

HOLLOWAY ST. CHURCH CONCERT ENJOYED

Sponsored by the C.G.I.T. a unique concert was given at Holloway Street United Church last evening when a splendid and appreciative audience heard Master Jack Mowbray, boy soprano and radio star, and Miss Helen Brown, of Oshawa, pianist. Assisted, mainly, by girls who are about twelve years of age and astonished their audience with the high quality of their program.

Varied summer views selected by the young singer and these demonstrated the lovely tone and unusual range of his voice. Miss Brown showed real dramatic ability in the selections she gave, and both of the young people taking part were accorded warm applause by their hearers. Rev. R. F. Preston acted as chairman for the evening.

Members of the C.G.I.T. in their smart uniforms who acted as ushers were Queenie Livesay, Eva Bowles, Rose Dennis and Mary Hall.

NICHOLAS FLEMING

(Contributed)

Nicholas Fleming an old and highly respected resident died at his home at Crookston on Wednesday, Nov. 13th, after a lingering illness of a few days.

The late Mr. Fleming was born in Huntingdon 83 years ago and was the son of John Fleming, Perthshire, Scotland. In early life he started in a small way as a drover, but through industry assisted by his honesty and integrity, his word being as good as a bond, he built up one of the largest droving businesses in the country.

He was a strong, energetic, healthy man, never having spent a day in bed on account of sickness, illness and had an almost super-human memory, all of which enabled him to carry on his work at almost until his death. He also owned and operated several farms and wood lots in Huntingdon and Hungerford Townships. He was a typical cattle man of the old school—hale, fellow, well met in any kind of weather or circumstance, always game and a good loser, always a friend to those in less fortunate circumstances besides assisting his large family to start out for themselves.

The funeral took place at White Lake United Church on Friday afternoon last at two o'clock and was largely attended. The service was conducted by Rev. H. Lackey, B.A.

The pall bearers were — Thos. Burnside, Walter Whytock, Carl McCoy, Robt. Downer, W. Downer, Harry Mullett.

He is survived deceased him in January 1934. He leaves to mourn his loss six daughters and five sons—Mrs. Jas. Waterhouse, Waterhouse, Mrs. K. Wright, Toronto; Mrs. W. Brandon, Carrington; Mrs. H. Hogden, Moira; Mrs. C. Demille, Crookston; Mrs. Lore, Madoc; John and Arthur, Madoc; Delbert, Bonarlaw; Richard, Moira; Donald, Ivanhoe.

Interment took place at White Lake cemetery.

TRAVELLERS FORM AN ASSOCIATION

First Meeting of Eastern Ontario Branch Held in This City

Some eighty commercial travellers from the Eastern Ontario section of the province met at the Quinte Hotel last evening and inaugurated an association of travellers. The first officers of the newly organized association were elected into office last night following the banquet that marked the opening of the new association. The officers elected for the ensuing year for the Eastern Ontario Commercial Travellers' Association were: President, Alfred Applegard, Toronto; secretary-treasurer, D. Houston, Toronto; board of directors, Thos. Palmer, Oliver; C. P. Lowery, Toronto; J. McDonald, Orono, and Wm. Moore, Toronto.

Another year will be required to hold the association's convention in six different points throughout their jurisdiction each year.

During the evening Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne spoke to the gathering as he responded to the toast, "The Commercial Travellers' Association were: President, Alfred Applegard, Toronto; secretary-treasurer, D. Hou

Stirling and District

Stirling — The regular weekly meeting of St. Paul's Young People's Society was held in the church parlours on Monday evening with the appointment of the literary and Social Dept. Miss Mary Hill, president, was in charge of the devotional period and opened the meeting with a Study song service of old favorite hymns. A scripture lesson for the evening, the 23rd Psalm, was read by Miss Dorothy Eggleton after Mr. Wm. Fitchett led the gathering in prayer. The remaining portion of the program was under the direction of Miss Helen Mallory, who, assisting in co-operation with a very capable committee had prepared a program of unusual interest. Miss Mallory is the leader of the Literary and Social division. Jean Pearl and Ruby Stapley contributed the first number on the program in two splendid - Hawaiian Guitar selections "Tantiz March" and "Hawaiian Island Waltz". These duets were exceptionally well given and Miss Retha Stapley played the piano accompaniment for her sister.

An outstanding feature of evening's entertainment was reading of the Blue Coat Boy examination paper edited by Mr. Harry Hicks. In this very fine edition proved himself to be a very capable journalist. He has given us a fine collection of clippings containing good social material of every sort as humorous as it was of great deal of philosophy. Among other fine articles were "The Old earth", "What is Personality" and a group of interesting sentence sermons by Rev. A. Walker. One of the most interesting was a detailed account of the visit of Governor-General to Canada. Mr. Hicks closed his part of the program with a reading entitled "I Am We".

Miss Edna Mathieson then offered as a soprano solo "I Proved the Could Speak" accompanied at the piano by Mrs. R. W. Rowland. Her next number was a complete surprise specially to Miss Marion Jones and Mr. Lloyd Palmer who along with several others, used as a blind, were persuaded to take their seats on the platform, without the slightest inkling that anything unusual was about to take place. At this time after a short address by Rev. R. W. Rowland the two unsuspecting young couple who are to be married in the future were presented with the lovely electric floor lamp from their fellow members of the Young Peoples' along with several other fine gifts brought in at the same time by other friends of the young par couple. The replies given by both parties were very appropriate.

Mr. Lloyd Rowland then presented something new to the society next with a selection of Mrs. Rowland at the piano. It was a very interesting musical contest. Mr. Bert Matheson created a great deal of merriment with his Major Bowes broadcast in which several of the young people were called upon with the slightest warning. At the close of the meeting the ladies of the organization served a dainty lunch. The colour count with systemalic recording of the attendance at this meeting showed an attendance of 80 members and friends, with the Miss Girldon largest in number.

Farewell Party

On Monday evening about seventy guests gathered at the home of Mr. Wm. Hoxmeier for a farewell party given in honor of Mr. Heasman who hails from Montreal but his home near London England, on Friday last Mr. Heasman has been absent from his home for about twenty-nine years during which time he has become one of the best known farmers of the Stirling district. His return is his native land for a short visit with relatives and boyhood friends will no doubt be very pleasant trip. The fine program of the evening included impromptu speeches by several of the guests. Community singing, and instrumental numbers played by Miss Keithia Bush, who though still very young, displays great talent in her playing of numbers on the guitar.

During the evening the guest of honor was presented with a fine leather suitcase and a fine address on behalf of the entire neighborhood which was written in verse form was read at the time the presentation was made. A dainty lunch was served by the ladies and a social period enjoyed by all.

Birthday Party

On Monday afternoon the ladies of the Stirling Local Rebekah Lodge, No. 211 gathered at the home of Mrs. Wm. Hagerman for a quilting a surprise party given in her honor as the occasion was her birthday. A short and interesting program was arranged, and during the luncheon, which was a birthday cake was brought in. The guest of honor, who was taken completely by surprise by the happy gathering was presented with a beautiful table reflector and a short address was given by Sister Effie Bailey, Mrs. Maggison has been a prominent worker in the activities of the lodge for a number of years and received a large number of congratulations on the occasion of her birthday.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—and You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Full of Pep and Ready to Go

The liver should pour out two pints of bile juice into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't relieve you. You must have bile flow freely. Carter's Little Liver Pills do just that. They make bile flow freely and make you feel "up and up." Refuse substitutes. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Read directions and follow them. Insist on Carter's Little Liver Pills. Stubbornly refuse substitutes. 25c.

THE REAL TEST

The great test is on. Sanctions have thrown the whole effect of economic boycott against the aggressor Italy in the East African dispute. Italy is resisting as might be expected.

Commerce, it used to be said, would not allow war. But the Great War came and in the long run almost wrecked world trade.

Now after years of sad experience can commerce turn the tables on its old enemy war and crush it?

If it can, war's knell is sounded as long as a sufficient number of nations with weight can enter the scales against the warlike and paralyze by boycott.

ANOTHER BIBLE DISCOVERY

Described officially as the oldest manuscript of any part of the Bible in any language, writings were found in the old collection of papyri in a library at Manchester, England. It consists of part of the Greek manuscript of the Gospel of Saint John, written 200 years before the Codex Sinaiticus. It had been lost for centuries in a rubbish heap of Egyptian material in the library until found on Monday.

This was probably written before the ink of the original dried in the early part of the second century, according to Dr. H. Gruppy, librarian, or even in the last part of the first century. Though scholars have thought this gospel to be the last written, this proves it one of the first. The Codex Sinaiticus, a fourth century manuscript purchased from Russia for the British Museum in 1933 and the Codex Vaticanus are regarded as the final authority on the true text of the Bible.

The manner in which the Bible has come to the world is one of the wonders of the world. Every new discovery proves this statement. Found in the most out of the way places the most precious manuscripts have been saved to the world.

RAMSAY MACDONALD

A deadset was made on the MacDonalds, father and son in the British elections. Labor left no doubt of its attitude towards the former premier and his son. To the mass of the people the defeat of the Right Honorable Ramsay MacDonald came with regret because MacDonald, a Laborite, buried some of his principles in order to effect what he believes is the good of the nation as a whole.

MacDonald has had a remarkable career, he is a man of pluck and deep sincerity, whose kindness might make him appear less forceful than he really is.

It is said that MacDonald is headed for the House of Lords. It is the usual trend, age lending its mellowed attitude. Few great leaders turn the other way with age. Such are the examples of Gladstone and Lloyd George.

DRIVER OUT OF CONTROL

It is the car driver, not the car that goes out of control, according to Prof. Yandell Henderson, noted physiologist, writing this week at Charlottetown, Virginia.

It seems strange that no one has put the cause of accidents in this way before. Of course the car does not get out of control, it is the driver who loses control of driving.

Even in the passing over a bump, the half-righting reflex is set up whereby the driver endeavors to resume his former position. Instinctively his feet are shoved forward, and if the disturbance in passing over the bump is severe, the driver presses down with force even if his foot is on the accelerator pedal and even if he has years of driving experience. To offset this and save ten per cent of the lives lost, the professor suggests the installation of a safety pedal which would utilize the "extensor thrust" of the left foot to slow down the car. He explains in non-technical language:

"Any motorist, no matter how experienced, who is suddenly and severely jolted, instantly reacts to steady himself in his seat; and in so doing he presses his foot hard down on the accelerator pedal. If then the first jump of the car sends it along a course where it meets other jolts and bumps in rapid succession, the driver tries in vain to recover the equilibrium of his body."

This righting reflex is present in all peoples and even in newborn babies. It is this instinctive reaction has prevented many a broken bone and saved many a life.

This impulse which saved many lives during the millions of years that mankind was climbing upward to civilization now often converts automobiles into machines of death and torture. It is this righting reaction so necessary to man, and yet it is the cause of many accidents with cars.

W. L. MacTavish, editor of the Winnipeg Tribune for a number of years has become vice president and editor-in-chief of the Tribune, according to an announcement. Mr. MacTavish is a son of the late Rev. Dr. W. S. MacTavish, formerly of Madoc and Belleville. W. L. MacTavish has been known for many years as one of the outstanding newspapermen in Canada.

I MUST COME BACK

I dread the break when I shall die,
Not from my human friends, for they
Are shifting shadows such as I
And soon will follow me away;
But from my earth that still must swing
From day to dusk, from dark to dawn,
Slow shimmering on from spring to spring
Through all the years when I am gone.

How many loving clouds will fold
The piny peaks in tender mist;
What sunsets turn the sky to gold
And distant plains to amethyst.
What sparkling winter days will loose
The chuckle of the chickadee
Among the silent, sentry spruce.
And I shall not be here to see.

An old street dweller's soul may call
For that fair City of No Night,
Boxed in a four-square echoing wall
Of jasper, beryl, and chrysolite,
But I should wish the endless song
Of crashing choirs were just the lark,
And close light-weary eyes and long
For starry, summer-scented dark.

No, when the waning heartbeat fails
I ask no heaven but leave to wend,
Unseen but seeing, my old trails,
With deathless years to comprehend,
My Earth, the loveliness of you,
Your gorgeous zodiac
Down to a glistening drop of dew.
I must come back! I must come back!

—Badger Clark

A CAT HAS NINE LIVES, IT IS SAID, which may be more or less true, but a well known business man of Belleville is convinced that one cat at least has more than one life. The cat in question was attached to his household in the capacity of official rat and mouse exterminator. The cat fell sick and it was decided that it would be mercy to end its sufferings. Accordingly the sick cat was shut up in the garage while the engine was left running in the family automobile and monoxide gas permitted to fill the garage. After a suitable interval the citizen in question went to the garage, threw wide the doors and behold the cat was stretched out apparently very dead. Leaving the doors open to let the gas escape the citizen returned to the house to talk over funeral arrangements. Returning to the garage later he was astounded to see the cat sitting up on the seat of the automobile waiting apparently to go places, and with no trace of deadness or sickness. With only one life gone the citizen decided to let that cat live out its other eight lives in peace—and that's enough of a story for one old cat.

MOTOR MADNESS IS A MALIGNANT PERSISTENT DISEASE OR HABIT OR WHAT HAVE YOU—and clings like the "Seven Years Itch" do to folks who are unfortunate enough to become afflicted with such. This is a reminder that the motor cars rushing madly up Bridge and Victoria Avenue, just for example, particularly at the noon hour and between five and six o'clock in the evening are endangering the lives of children and grown-ups, and are a menace to life in the canine and feline line. Traffic cop during the summer discouraged this practise but the motor madness has returned and tragedy threatens.

NOW THAT UNITED STATES MAGAZINES ARE TO ENTER CANADA FREE the editors thereof should try and acquire a more correct working knowledge of Canada and Canadian conditions and events. In a recent number of a magazine with U.S.A. foundation and Canadian affiliations it was announced editorially in reference to the tourist traffic in Canada that "The magnificent Trans-Canada Highway was formally opened on July 1, 1935—an unbroken highway from ocean to ocean." Quite interesting but inaccurate, probably referring to the opening of the stretch from the Lakehead to the Manitoba boundary, an event of last Dominion Day. Great stretches of Northern Ontario still remain to be traversed by road-makers before it will be possible to drive a motor car unbroken from coast to coast. Final decision has yet to be made of part of the route which means considerable delay.

Mayor Sulman was handed several bouquets from city pupils on Sunday in appreciation of his action in upholding the sanctity of the Sabbath. His Worship can reasonably depend upon a solid church vote the next time he runs.

Mr. D. Wood of Maple Creek Beak, is the guest of Mr. Morley Anderson, Dundas street.

Mr. William Rathman of Kingston, spent Sunday in the city with relatives.

Mr. James J. Mills or Toronto spent Sunday at his home here.

Mr. Arthur Carroll left yesterday to spend a few days in Rochester, N.Y.

Mr. E. Peck left yesterday for Cuba where he will spend some time.

Mr. Walter O'Flynn of Madoc, was a visitor in the city to-day.

40 Years Ago

40 YEARS AGO . . . . . thisnameDE

NOV. 20TH, 1895.

On the morning of Nov. 1895, an important change was inaugurated over the entire Grand Trunk Railway system. It is what is known among railway men as the "block system" of running trains and practically means, where carried out strictly, all danger of trains colliding or telescoping each other. The change will necessitate the employment of a large number of extra telegraph operators.

The Rev. Charles M. McIntyre of Chatham, Ont. has been selected by the officials of Bridge Street Methodist Church as the successor to the Rev. E. N. Baker, M.A., B.D., who will go to the church in Chatham in June next. His Grace Archbishop Lewis will call a meeting of the Synod at Kingston early in January to deal with the forming of the Diocese of Ottawa.

There is an abundant supply of hay this year.

The sailing yachts are being placed in winter quarters.

The steamer Annie Gilbert has been laid up for the season.

Some of the street crossings are being swept. Titles on Front Street should be attended twice a day at least at this season.

Wanted—New railing on the approaches to the lower bridge. The railings at present in use look as if they had been stolen from a deserted village.

Belleville is well supplied with billiard and pool tables, there being no less than 28 in public rooms and 6 in club rooms and the Mechanics' Institute.

The Rev. J. R. Lovell of Owen Sound is a visitor in the city.

The city clock strikes intermittently. Its ailment should be doctored at once.

SCHOHARIE

The sympathy of the neighborhood is extended to the family of Mr. John R. Smith who passed away at the home of his father, Mr. Wm. Smith, on Sunday after an illness of only a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Cleave entertained Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Cleave and son Dale of Wellington and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cleave and family to dinner on Sunday.

Mrs. Paul Warren spent a day recently with Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Rabble.

Mr. and Mrs. Burton Baxter and Alan were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Baxter of Bloomfield on Sunday.

Mr. Geo Hobson is spending a few days with Toronto friends.

Mr. Morley Hobson and Mrs. Hobson and other relatives in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Walters and Rose and Homer spent Sunday in Picton with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Leavitt.

Miss Lillie Love and friend of Whitby spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Norman Leavitt.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Thomas of Mount Pleasant spent Friday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Cleave.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Longwell and Douglas of Demorestville spent Sunday with Mrs. Mildred Benson.

A jolly party gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Taylor on Thursday evening in form of a surprise party. The evening was spent in games and dancing and after a bountiful supper had been served, all departed wishing Mr. and Mrs. Taylor all success in their new home. We are sorry to lose them from our neighborhood.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Leavitt entertained a few friends at the tea table on Sunday.

Sorry to report Miss Norma Foster on the sick list and hope to see her able to return to school soon.

JAPANESE TROOP S READY TO OCCUPY NORTHE RN CHINA

This scene of the 1933 invasion is being re-enacted as Japanese troops are massed in North China ready to enforce the declaration of autonomous North China state. The opposition forced a postponement and now infantry, cavalry, artillery, and tank units massed it was rumored that November 16 when the date planned by Japan was awaiting orders. These orders is expected they will be held in readiness to enforce the declaration of independence. Foreign ex will probably mark the birth of a new nation in north China.

PROCLAMATION IS POSTPONED

Japanese spokesmen indicated the crux of the situation lay, not in the name or later the Regime would be given but in establishment of a Regime whose policies would be satisfactory to Japanese interests.

In an interview with Havas, Major Takahashi, Japanese military attache to the embassy here, outlined Japan's position in the present situation as follows:

1.—There is no intention whatever North China Sets Man-chukuo, nor setting Emperor Kang Teh (Henry Pu Yi) on the throne of his ancestors in Peiping.

2.—There is no question of making a new province out of the demilitarized zone bounded by Lan-tang, Miyun, and Chahaerh.

3.—Nanking cannot intervene in North China without violating its agreements with Japan. Should Nanking do so, Japan will move in with armed force.

Britain From View

(By George Hambleton)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 20.—(CP Cable)—Great Britain is looking far hand in North China.

"Vague but grave" is today's description in British official circles of the news from Japan and China.

While there are difficulties in the Separatist path, it is taken for granted here before long all five provinces of Northern China will be established as a state nominally independent but really controlled from Tokyo.

"...this move is successful," comments the Manchester Guardian, "Japan will have taken a long stride towards hegemony in the Far East and establishment of a great continental empire on the mainland of Asia.

"It is unlikely that China can resist," the Guardian continues.

The Guardian adds it is even more unlikely there will be any opposition from Britain, the United States or the League. "They sold the pass in 1931 and are at present too busy holding another pass to bother about China," concludes the editorial.

Concession of Sovereity

Nanking, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Ambassador Akira Arioyahi of Japan told the Associated Press today: "Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek (Chinese National Leader) has given me his solemn assurance that Japan has no cause for apprehension regarding North China."

The Japanese diplomat made his statement after a 2½ hour interview with the Chinese leader.

Ariyoshi said Chiang told him there would be no untoward events in the North (apparently referring to Japanese militarists' fear that Nanking troops would try to check the North China autonomy programme).

CANADIAN PILOTS ELLSWORTH PLANE

Times and North American Newspaper Alliance reported Ellsworth reported "all was well."

The snappy ship will sail for the Bay of Wales which it expects to reach in five weeks. Ellsworth and the pilot will wait at Little America for the arrival of the ship.

Unknown Territory

Ellsworth, in an article copyrighted by the New York Times and North American Newspaper Alliance, said he expected to make the flight of 2,160 miles, 1,500 over territory unseen before by man, in about 16 hours' flying time.

He wrote that the 10th, and 11th hours of the flight will be the most critical in event of accident, "for then we will be more than 400 miles from the estimated coastline and possible source of fresh food supply."

Ellsworth wrote that he hardly expected to find good weather right across the continent and he intended to land and wait the clearing of any fog or low clouds.

He wrote he would claim for the United States the unclaimed territory from latitude 77 degrees to the 120th. meridian and call it, after his father, James W. Ellsworth land.

Canadian Cheers

Lincoln Ellsworth searched the world for pilots for his projected flight across an unknown part of Antarctica from the Weddl Sea to the Ross Sea. Last May he selected Herbert Hollick-Kenyon of Wingham and J. H. Lymburner of Galetano, Que. Hollick-Kenyon was Ellsworth's No. 1 pilot.

Hollick-Kenyon, a quiet, solid Englishman, was superintendent of the Northern Manitoba district for Canadian airways when the call came.

Born in London in 1897, Hollick-Kenyon came with his parents to Canada in 1909, settling in the Okanagan Valley of British Columbia to begin fruit farming. He served throughout the Great War as an infantryman and engaged in peace-time flying in England.

He returned to Canada in 1926 and was one of the first pilots of the old Western Canada Airways. His flying time totals more than 7,000 hours.

1,600 Pound Ox. in Plane

Engaged in garage work at his Calster, Ont., home, where he was born in 1904, it was not until 1928 that "Red" Lymburner became interested in aviation. He "soloed" after 14 hours' dual instruction and obtained his private pilot's license that year.

When picked by Ellsworth for the Antarctic flight, Lymburner was superintendent for the Canadian Airways at Cabalasso, Que. He had flown over much of Northern Ontario and Quebec.

He was believed to be the first pilot in Canada to have as cargo in his machine a full-grown ox, weighing 1,600 pounds.

Veteran Physician Recalls Mercy Killing 48 Years Ago

Gave Overdose of Sedative to Man Fatally Wounded by Buckshot

HAS NO REGRETS

Would Not Hesitate to do The Same Thing Again Should Occasion Arise

Bridgeport, Conn., Nov. 20 (AP)—Dr. A. M. Warriner's quoted story that he committed a "mercy killing" 48 years ago in North Brookfield, Mass., split his colleagues today into two camps.

An interview in the Bridgeport Post said the 80-year old doctor deliberately gave an overdose of a pain-relieving drug to a man hopelessly wounded by buckshot. It brought declarations of approval and disapproval of such acts.

Dr. C. S. Conklin, president of the Bridgeport Medical Association and City Health Officer Richard O'Shea said they were opposed to a physician taking the life of a patient but opinions partly supporting "mercy killings" were offered by Dr. Upton S. Sheik and Dr. H. E. Waterhouse.

"Although no case is entirely hopeless, I believe Dr. Warriner was justified in the case he described," said Dr. Sheik.

Dr. Waterhouse said there is "some justification for euthanasia" if a commission of three or four doctors decides a case is incurable.

The local controversy was an outgrowth of the furore raised in medical circles by the statement of a British physician some time ago he had ended the lives of five patients whose condition was hopeless.

The Post said Dr. Warriner "never regretted" his act 48 years ago and would "unhesitatingly commit another such 'mercy killing'," if the occasion arose.

Patient Terribly Wounded

Dr. Warriner's story, as reported by the Post, is that of a young physician, only three years out of Harvard Medical School, who needed the advice of an older colleague in treating a horribly wounded man.

"The man was hopelessly wounded," he was quoted as saying. "His face, from chin to eyes, was torn away when his accidentally shot himself while hunting rabbits. Some of the pellets penetrated his brain. It didn't seem possible he would live and, if he had, he would have been a dangerous maniac.

"The man shot himself about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, almost bleeding to death.

"I did the best I could and arranged to have him taken home. He was a big, strapping Frenchman, a barber.

Cannabis Colleague

"Going back to town in my buggy, I talked it over with another doctor, an old army man.

"'It's worse than any case of crushed wound I ever knew in the army,' he told me. 'What are you going to do?'.

"'I don't know,' I said.

"'I know what I'd do,' he said. 'That was the support I needed. 'I was called back there (to the patient's home) about 1.30 o'clock in the morning. The patient was unconscious. Mrs had to hold him in bed. I talked the thing over with his wife, his brother and his wife.

"They told me to do what I thought was right.

"I gave the patient an extra dose (of a drug commonly used to relieve pain). He was raving. Then he went into a comatose state, and he died at 4 o'clock in the morning."

HOME NURSING CLASSES PLANNED

Red Cross Course Will be Provided During Winter Months

Miss Marion N. Henderson, Toronto, Provincial Director of Nursing for the Ontario Red Cross, was in the city for a few days this week in the interests of the organization of the Home Nursing classes in the city for this purpose. It is expected that the classes will not be held until January and that they will be conducted successfully carried out the duties of leader in this work will again act as instructor. She also assisted to have classes from the Belleville district, a goodly number of nurses of the city have agreed to undertake the work of instructors.

The value of the training in home nursing already given in the Red Cross courses cannot be too highly estimated. It provides those who register with a knowledge of home nursing sufficient to be of real assistance during sickness in the home of relatives or friends. Every mother and young girl should make an effort to take advantage of the opportunity offered through the Red Cross and instructors in home nursing should be home nursing training.

GOLDEN WEDDING TRENTON COUPLE

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Malone at Home to Friends

Nov. 11th marked the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Malone, Trenton, and relatives gathered at their home in honor of the occasion. Guests were present in all from Kincardine, Belleville, Brighton and Hillcrest. Three of the guests were present at the time of their wedding, Mrs. Cerrie Thomas, Mrs. Ed. Thomas-berg, Mr. P. Casey, Belleville. The house was nicely decorated for the occasion. After an enjoyable lunch was served an appropriate address was read and a purse was presented to them by Mrs. Cunningham and Helen Malone of Kincardine.

The address follows:

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Malone,

Dear Friends—

It is with feelings of rejoicing that we, your friends and relatives, have met to congratulate you upon the most important event of your lives which took place fifty years ago. As we look upon your happy home, those placed brows, the silver locks of your head, it is a beautiful one, a home on earth, but a home in Heaven. And we feel that we have in you a living testimony of God's wonderful amazing love, we would all do well to copy. We ask you to accept this small token of appreciation, may it help to brighten your long life in health and happiness.

Weddings

ALLAIR—CASSIDY

Picton, Nov. 20.—An interesting wedding was solemnized at St. Gregory's Church here, on Tuesday, when Miss Margaret, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Cassidy, Picton, became the bride of Mr. Michael George Allair, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Allair of Actinolite, Hastings county. The ceremony was performed by Father Hand and Mr. and Mrs. F. Bushby were present. Following the ceremony a reception was served at the home of the bride's parents. Later the happy couple left by motor to visit relatives in Hastings. They will reside in Picton.

Y. P. S. SALLY

On Thursday evening November 14th a most successful Young People's Social was held in the Sunday School rooms of the United Church, when about 200 assembled to take part and enjoy the pleasant social intercourse of the evening. The rooms were very pretty with the adornment of varied coloured streamers, and the tables were tastefully decorated with flowers for the occasion. When the appointed time had arrived the guests quickly assembled and sat down to an abundant supper, which was served.

After all had partaken to their satisfaction, the pastor, Rev. W.R. Merrick briefly explained the purpose of the Y.P.S. Rally and on behalf of the Executive and members of the Canniton League, cordially welcomed the many visiting friends of the visiting societies. Then all were most comfortably seated at the front of the platform, where with the bert College, sang led a very enjoyable programme, which was under the Mrs. Ernest Chambers at the piano. Those that all assisted were the Epworth League Hymn "Ye Host of Christians Young and Strong" by Mrs. Ernest Chambers of Plainfield led in prayer. Then Mr. Ernest Chambers of Plainfield led in prayer. Then Mr. Ernest Chambers of Plainfield led in prayer. Then Mr

1.02 CTS. PER GAL NET PROFIT MADE

B. A. Oil Company Counsel Gives Figure to Tariff Board

Ottawa, Nov. 20 (CP) — British American Oil Company made a net profit of 1.02 cents per gallon on all gasoline sold in 1934, M. J. Patton, counsel for the company, told the tariff board today. Mr. Patton submitted this was a moderate and reasonable profit as the board's hearing into application for removal of the tariff on gasoline continued.

Gasoline prices in Canada and the United States, he said, can fairly be compared at present because the petroleum industry in the United States has recovered from the depression.

This was due to fixing the price of crude oil at high level which enabled companies with cheap supplies of crude to make a good gasoline at a loss and drive companies depending on purchase of crude oil into bankruptcy.

Practically all oil companies in the United States had suffered losses in the last few years. The British American Oil Company has a profit each year but in 1934 it must have had it without the tariff.

Despite decreases of population, higher costs of equipment and taxation, he said, the make goods of distributing gasoline higher in Western Canada, than in the United States.

"The collapse of wheat farming in the west was not due to the price the farmer paid for his gasoline, nor to the small proportion of that price which went to the oil man," he said. It had all been included in the price, but the coincidence of a five-year period of drought and crop failure with the worst industrial depression of modern times complicated by an unfortunate wheat marketing policy.

"If some kind fairy had given the petroleum industry a reduction in cost and free from all tariffs and taxes he could not have avoided the unfortunate position in which he now finds himself."

COMTESS LANDI, STAR'S PARENT, DIES AGED 53

Mother of Film Actress Claimed She Was The Daughter of Empress

WORKED AS COOK

Said Consort of Austrian Emperor Left Her Fortune of $500,000

Los Angeles, Nov. 20.—Countess Olympia Landi, mother of Mona Landi, film actress, died of heart disease at her California Riviera home Sunday, at the age of 53, according to word received by friends here today.

She was born in the Chateau of Senaut, Saint-Germain-en-Normandy, France.

Mona Landi, who is making a film in London, was informed of her mother's death by cable. It is understood she will leave London at once and travel here by plane from New York.

Survivors, besides Miss Landi, include her husband, Zenardi Landi; a son, Count Antonio Landi; and a granddaughter, Elizabeth Zenardi Landi.

Countess Landi had made her home in Southern California for several years.

In 1913 the Houghton Mifflin Company published a volume by the Countess entitled "Secret Memoirs of an Empress," which was extensively reviewed, but always disparagingly by literary authorities. According to the author's story, told with much detail and in a tone that often rang true, she was the fourth child of the late Elizabeth of Austria, wife of the Emperor Francis Joseph.

The relationship was never made public and she lived in seclusion under another name. After the assassination of the Empress in 1898 she inherited $600,000 from her, but, she relates, the income was lost in speculation by the first husband of the daughter, Richard Kuehnelt, a cavalry officer and Austrian Government official, and the father of her son, Antony-Francis, and of her daughter, Elizabeth-Agnes, who became the internationally known film star, Elissa Landi.

The Countess subsequently married Count Landi in 1906, but after continued quarrels over the latter's alleged relations with Queen Marie of Roumania, he was divorced in 1911.

He still resided in Vancouver, where for a time she worked as a cook in the Tuk Hotel before starting a Viennese confectionery business in Seattle. She later sold at a profit the business she had supported herself with really to devote herself to her language and piano lessons.

In 1911 she obtained an American divorce and married Count Zenardi Landi, an Italian, whom she had met in Canada.

Corn Situation in Essex is Surveyed

Windsor Ont., Nov. 20 (CP) — Two representatives of the Department of Agriculture are making a survey in Windsor today to make a complete estimate of the corn situation in Essex County. The men, Dr. W. H. Grisdale, former Deputy Minister of Agriculture, and Mr. Wilson, will confer with corn growers, corn dealers and others connected with the industry. They arrived yesterday and were met by Paul Martin M.P. for Essex East who has taken an active part in pleading the corn growers' case before the department. Chief complaint of the growers is heavy shrinkage in the moisture test permits corn from that country to enter Canada duty free.

Country Club House Destroyed by Fire

Fort Erie, Ont., Nov. 20.—(CP)—Fire early this morning completely gutted the clubhouse of the Fort Erie Country Colonial Country Club house on the Niagara Boulevard two miles south of here.

The building was occupied at the time by an attendant, Joseph Orr and Mrs. Charles Snyder of Welland. Both escaped from an upper floor with only difficulty, as by then they smoke in the flame enveloped structure.

Provincial Police opened an investigation today. The fire evidently broke out in the front of the ground floor, and had such a start when the alarm was given, that it was made to send the companies from Fort Erie.

The Colonial Club House is owned by an international organization with members on both sides of the border.

DUSKY SOLDIERS MARCH TO ATTACK

Mussolini Calls Growers to Increase in Produce

Ethiopian warriors were reported marching to attack the Italian northern front between Dolo and Mustahil, Italian Somaliland, as battle on the southern front had ceased casualties reported at many points on both sides.

Emperor Haile Selassie was believed today to have gone south by plane from Addis Ababa.

Rome dispatches reported more than 150 Italian Somali troops were killed in an ambush near Bam Bamah while Ethiopian casualties were put at 300. The Ethiopians claimed to have taken 18 prisoners.

Premier Mussolini called together fruit and vegetable growers at Rome to plan increased production in resistance to League of Nations economic sanctions, now last for stimulating production of other necessities.

The sanctions drive was opposed in France feels settlement of the war depends on a decision by Premier Laval and Ethiopian forces. Premier Laval conferred with Sir Samuel Hoare, British Foreign Minister, but there was little expectation that peace conversations would be resumed between Rome, Paris and London.

Awards at Winter Fair

Toronto, Nov. 20 (CP) — Garnet Bain of Lakeside, Ont., won first prize for a single cow at the Winter Fair for exhibits of white and colored cheese in the dairy test. The white exhibit of this class, and J. M. Bain, Paris, Ont., won first with the colored exhibit. Bain's total score in the white was 96.55 and in the colored 96.45.

New Lawson Creamery of Burgessville, Ont., was awarded the white cheese, not less than 75 pounds, made during October. Hill total score was 97.65. Donald Howe of Burgessville, was first in the colored cheese class, also with total score of 97.55.

The New Lawson Creamery took down two more firsts in cheese awards, one in the two white or colored class, not less than 150 pounds, made during September, and the other in the single Canadian stilton shape, three colored or white, made from ordinary cheddar cheese. The latter covered during September and October.

Garnet Bain was awarded the championship ribbon, a special award to the exhibitor of cheese scoring the highest score in any section.

Dapper Salesman Asks to be Sent Back to England

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 20 (CP) — Smiling and debonair, a dapper high spirits although his plea for deportation back to England, Frederick Griffiths, dapper Toronto salesman, appeared before the board of inquiry today for a period of 9 months definite plus 9 months indefinite sentence for vagrancy before Magistrate Burbridge on charges of vagrancy and theft preferred.

Some of the frauds were perpetrated in Toronto, Griffiths claimed. Griffiths pleaded when he was arrested he "couldn't make it go" in Canada and asked to be sent back to England.

PREMIER IN SECLUSION

Miami Beach, Fla., Nov. 20.—(AP) — In unaccustomed seclusion, Premier Mackenzie King of Canada was here today seeking to get his health back.

King, apparently recovering from a cold, remained in his room to avoid the public gaze.

Premier is announces he would soon retire from public life. Mr. Hepburn declined interviews with newspapermen but a secretary said he had not changed his plans to spend vacation in Florida, nor what he would do upon departure.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Nov. 20 (AP) — Heavy profit taking halted the stock market's bet in spots today but the list, as a whole, managed to hold its ground. Nearly 2,000,000 shares changed hands in the first two hours.

Among the leading stocks, International Nickel got up slightly while Chrysler, Radio, Standard Oil were easy. On the Curb, Distillers Corp.-Seagrams, Hiram Walker and Lake Shore were in demand. Bank of Dominion, Government & Improved Pracksheet Bond Funds gained 1-16 of a cent at 98 31-32 cents.

The utilities, rails, oils and scattered specialties were improved. Among these, up fractions to around 2 points were Consolidated Gas, DuPont, Baldwin, Shell Union Oil and Pennsylvania. Steels, motors and alcohols were backward. With the exception of Great Northern, Louisville and Nashville and Northern Pacific, the rails were inclined to be irregular. Erie and Chesapeake and Ohio dropped about 2.

Cotton pointed upward while grains were listless. Bonds were mixed.

Livestock

Toronto, Nov. 20—(CP)—Lambs opened strong to 25 cents higher on the Toronto Livestock Exchange today while cattle and sheep sold steady and calves were firm. Hogs held over numbered only 300 head. Hogs, as usual, were unsettled with Packers' bids lower.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock branch included 500; calves 110; hogs 500; sheep and lambs 300.

Moving fairly actively, butcher cows sold at $2.50 to $3.50 while Canners and cutters brought $1.50 to $2.25. Good butcher bulls went for $3.50 with bologna mostly at $2.50. Store cattle, averaging 950 to 990 pounds, sold from $4.30 to $5.25.

The calf market opened firm at $7.00 to $8.00 for choice vealers with a few strips to $10. Heavy stock or calves sold at $4.25 to $4.50.

Lambs sold 25 cents and more higher at $7.75 to $8.00 for good straight lots with a few at $8.00 to $7.00 for other grades. Sheep opened steady at $1.00 to $4.00 cwt.

Hogs held over were unsettled opening with bids lower at $7.50 off track, 47 1-2 cents off cwt. over. These levels were 10 cents below Tuesday's selling basis.

Prince Edward of Kent Christened At Golden Font in Royal Palace

London, Nov. 20—(CP Cable) — The first-born son of the Duke and Duchess of Kent today was christened Prince Edward George Nicholas Paul Patrick in the private chapel of Buckingham Palace in the presence of his grandparents, the King and Queen.

The ceremony was performed by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Lang. River of Jordan water dipped from the same golden font from which Princess Elizabeth was christened. Seven in line of succession to the throne, the King's young grandson will be known generally as Prince Edward of Kent. His godparents were the King and Queen, the Prince of Wales and Princess Marie Louise (his maternal grandfather-in-law). Princess Olga Paley of Yugoslavia was represented at the ceremony by Prince Arthur of Connaught.

The Home Secretary, Sir John Simon, was the only official representative of the Government. He approved those in line of succession to the throne.

The Archbishop was assisted by the Bishop of London and Dean of the Chapel Royal. Others invited by the Duke and Duchess of Kent to be present were the three doctors who attended at the birth of the baby, Prince Edward, born in the nursery maid at their home in Belgrave Square.

The golden font, brought to London from Windsor especially for the christening, was used for the christening of Princess Elizabeth, mother of the baby Prince. The vessel is shallow was with lions-leaves along the rim, standing on a pedestal formed of three smiling cherubs. Victoria, set it aside for use in the christening ceremonies of all her descendants in the male line of the empire.

The baby Prince was dressed in the christening robe of old Brussels lace worn by all the royal babies more than a century ago. It has been used for every royal christening since.

Princess Marie Louise, the most busy of the Royal Chapel in scarlet and gold uniforms, making a splendid picture in the sunlight. Her handicap was pews, banked with white chrysanthemums and roses.

The whole service lasted less than half an hour and afterwards the King and Queen gave a private tea

FOUR WINS AND TWO DRAWS SEEN IN ARENA SHOW

Six Amateur Bouts Viewed Only by a Small Crowd

GOOD WRESTLING

Four decisions, and two draws bests gives the patrons of amateur wrestling plenty of action at the Belleville Arena last night, when Steve Taylor's local mentor ably staged their second local amateur wrestling show before a more hopeful of crowd that satisfied managers. With all the precision and earnestness of their professional confreres, the local amateur exponents of the manly art showed considerable improvement in ring generalship, and general knowledge of the modern art of wrestling, over the demonstration given by them in their initial show of some weeks ago ,when the entire six bouts on the card were all held in contempt and thoroughly enjoyed by the scattered few present. What the amateur grapplers showed in ring generalship and a general knowledge of modern wrestling, however, they more than made up for in their willingness to demonstrate the pugnacious intentions and willingness to please the patrons.

Although the preliminary 15 minute bouts all proved highly pleasing and full of the fans' plenty of action, the semi final and final bouts stood up as thrillers when Ker Faux won the third and deciding fall over Fred Churchill in the semi-final bout while in the main bout Jack Murphy and Jack Doyle wrestled to a draw, each contestant winning a fall only to have the time limit bell terminate activities. In the semi finals Murphy opened purely on the aggressor until Doyle started to get results matters somewhat, and then both boys gave a splendid exhibition of modern wrestling, applying sensational holds, and generally mixing matters. Doyle eventually secured Murphy and won the initial round following two reverses luring means terminated by a body press. Murphy absorbed considerable punishment in the second round, but weathered Doyle's ferocious attacks to eventually pick him up bodily, and Doyle's second in an aeroplane spin to win with a groan. With each grappler having a fall to his credit the boys battled royally in the remaining two minutes of the final round. The bout was a draw.

Plenty of Action

The semi-final scrap opened with action prevailing as Ben Burnton and Churchill tried many sensational holds to try and beat his heavier opponent. Ker Faux , Churchill used flying leg scissor and drop kicks, but Faux wrestled with these attacks to get the initial round, with a body press. In the second round Churchill was returned to match his speed and agility with Faux's strength, but eventually Churchill tied matters when he softened Faux with a series of flying head scissors to the floor, and then Faux secured victory to the use of his strength in the third round, after applying several, hard body slams fell on Churchill to win the bout with a body press.

In a smart action bout, that opened the show, Fred Churchill and Bill Storms grappled to a draw, Churchill being content to stay on the mat, and forcing Storms to the ropes for protection. Forcing Storms into such position to take advantage over Ed Gasley at the opening of the second round, Churchill found Gasley always managed to wiggle out of embarrassing holds, but finally Churchill secured Hainault by bodily, applied an aeroplane spin and won the fall. In the third and third bout, Cliff Faux tried to impersonate a steam roller, and proved rather rough, tough and nasty, but his ring actions in the Brighton Jim Kelly methodically went to work and won the bout by applying a painful toe hold which in succession to soften Faux for a fall. Henry Faux in the semi-final stood a rousing two-fisted battle in the final preliminary go with Thorne after the latter had shown fitfulness and willing to mix matters with the heavier Ken Cook, who used his weight to apparently soften Thorne. Playing possum to spring a surprise on his opponent, Thorne suddenly sprung into action, took Cook at anywhere and rushed him to the mat to win the bout with a body press. Such and every bout supplied plenty of action and the smiles show was a credit to Manchester Steve Taylor.

Summary

The summary of last night's amateur wrestling bouts staged at the Belleville Arena were:

Tony Pardalis, 146, drew with Bill Storms, 148, fifteen minute round.

Ed Gasley, 160, won over Ben Hainault, 140, after 11.00 minutes aeroplane spin.

Jim Reid, 148 won over Cliff Faux, 172, after 13.23 minutes with headlock.

Semi-Final

Ker Faux, 170, won third and deciding fall over Fred Churchill, 168, Faux winning first fall with body press in 13.05, Churchill evening fall in 8.05 with flying mare and press and Faux final fall in 7.35 with body press.

Main Bout

Jack Murphy, 146, drew with Jack Doyle, 145, Doyle winning first fall with flying mare and press in 14.09; Murphy winning second fall in 11.50 with aeroplane spin, time limit of 30 minutes terminating bout a draw.

Whether Good Boxer Can Lick Wrestler Unsettled Question

Mixed Bout Between Levinsky And Steele Ends in Draw

St. Louis, Nov. 20 (AP)—Whether a good boxer can do to a hit-and-miss wrestler what a wrestler remained an unsettled question, for when there was no doubt what a good wrestler can do to a hit-and-miss slugger.

It took Ray Steele, patriarch of the grappling industry, just 25 seconds in the first round of a 10-round mixed bout last night to pin Ring Levinsky, big, hard-hitting boxing contender.

The second first "major" mixed tussle in ring history left some 13,000 cash customers disgusted. Odd bouts came along with other hard crowds for bouts at the close of the brief fiasco.

The Kingfish, armed with the conventional ear-ounce gloves, ambled from his corner at the bell and took a long range poke at Steele's batter-ing ram. It was a broad target, but the King missed. Steele dived under his gloves and knocked him against the ropes.

The wrestler held Levinsky firmly from behind while the Chicago ex-fish peddler fanned with a vain backhand at the Steele kidneys. Came then the referee and separated the two.

The Kingfish let go the long right haymaker he promised before the bout would lift Steele into the skies. It dazed the wrestler but he remained substantially in the ring.

He ducked the follow-up left and then circled Levinsky's knees with a quick drive, toppled him to the mat and smothered the bewildered boxer with an octopus body block. For the rest it was just a short exercise in the mechanics for the referee.

Said the Kingfish in his dressing room after the bout:

"I was a sucker. Twice I lifted my shoulders off the floor, while the referee was counting ten. Each time according to the rules, he should have started all over again."

Said Steele, hooded, King," his supporters yelled loyally. The King blew some rings in their faces from a big black cigar.

"I guess, do I care," said the pride of the Krakows philosophically. "I made $350,000 in the last two years in the ring. I fought ten all, and I'll bet a $1,000 I can knock that big bone kicking if he ever climbs in the ring with me again."

Said Steele, the first "world mixed bout heavyweight champion":

"Sure, I'll meet him again. I can use $1,000. I always did say no boxer could last with a good wrestler."

WELKER COCHRAN BILLIARD KING

Wins Three Cushion Billiard Crown From Willie Hoppe

Chicago, Nov. 20—(AP)—Welker Cochran of San Francisco today ruled as king of the world's three-cushion billiards champions.

Willie Hoppe of New York, for twenty-five years monarch of the billiard fans, failed to realize his long ambition—to annex the three cushion title along with other billiard crowns he has won.

In the title game last night, the 37 year old Cochran defeated Hoppe 50 to 46 in the same number of innings. In a dramatic finish Cochran went to the table in the 49th inning trailing 45 to 46. The San Francisco player, calling on all his billiard wizardry, got loose with an unfinished run of seven, that returned him the championship he lost to Johnny Layton, of Sedalia, Mo., a year ago. His run of seven was the high run of the match. Hoppe's best effort was six.

NEW GOLF CZAR

John G. Jackson

Of New York, who has been nominated for the presidency of the United States Golf Association by the association's nominating committee. This is tantamount to election. Prescott Bush will complete his term as president at the end of the year and will retire.

BASKETBALL BILL LIVELY AFFAIR

Albert College Teams Split Even in "Y" House Loop

In a twin bill of basketball, played in the local Y.M.C.A. Gymnasium last night, the Albert A's bowed to Aikin's Blacks by the score of 36 to 16 while in the second till the Albert B's eked out a 36 to 28 victory over Art Cole's purple-clad team. Both games were keenly contested with the latter game standing out.

When the Albert B's went on a scoring rampage and teamed ten baskets in the last half, the Beechcombed outfit pulled ahead of Cole's purples and won a last minute 36 to 28 victory. The score at the half-way mark stood 16 to 8 for the purples but five speedy baskets by Pete Beach in the second half elevated the Albert squad. Palliner was the leading scorer for the purples with eight baskets to his credit.

With the score standing eight all at half time Aikin's Blacks assumed the offensive and bagged nine baskets in the last stanza to defeat the Albert A's 36 to 16. Al Wilson led the Blacks in scoring with seven baskets, while Aikins bagged five. Burton was the big noise for the losing Albert A's. The games were the first of double headers to be played twice a week this fall at the Y.M.C.A.

Albert A's—Burton (9), McDonald, Clouse, McDowell, Burgess, Hodder (1), Jones (3).

Blacks — Aikins (10), Wickerson (14), Ellis (6), Jeffrey, and Bonisteel.

Albert B's—McDonald (3), Bishop, Simmons, LaPelle, Andrews, Fox (2), McIlrich (6), Beach (8).

Purples—Cole (6), Faulkner (17), Stephenson, Mumford (2), Baker.

Referee—R. B. Morden.

ERNIE PETERSON

The rough rugged American who makes his first appearance in a local ring venture the pugnacious Ernie Lynx on Thursday night at the Belleville Arena. Billy Kief and Curly Donchin are other new-comers to appear on the same card as the headliner. Walter Parnell and Jack Pearl meet in the curtain-raiser Thursday.

Local promoters today received authentic information from Ivan Mickisloff, Toronto's wrestling promoter, that Kief, Donchin and Peterson would appear on his card in Toronto in the near future. Incidentally Peterson was highly recommended as a grappler along the Adonis type and a clever agile wrestler who always pleases. Local fans have asked for new faces, so here they are, the best procurable on the continent, the matchmakers stated today.

LOUIS IN TORONTO

"Brrrrr. Ah'm mahly cold up heah" shivers Joe Louis as the Brown Bomber of the ring reached Toronto on his Canadian partnership-punching tour. Detroit's colored pride and the outstanding heavyweight boxer of the day hastened his four sparring partners for the edification of spectators in appearance in fancy eastern Canada cities.

George Hay, a Listowel, Ontario, contribution to professional hockey, who is coaching London Hockey Club in the International Hockey League this winter. Hay got his hockey training as an amateur at Winnipeg and later at Regina, before turning professional with Regina Capitals. He was later with Portland Rosebuds, Chicago Black Hawks, Detroit Cougars,Pittsburgh-Pirates, Montreal Canadiens and Ottawa Senators.

TORONTO DUKES HELD BY SAILORS

Play to 4-4 Tie While Varsity and Oakville Tie 3-3

By The Canadian Press

Toronto Dukes are still the only team today in the eastern section of the senior O.H.A. to have gained registered in the win column. Four teams met last night, but could not decide a winner.

Ace Bailey's Varsity Blues engaged Oakville Blues in the Varsity Arena in their first appearance of the season and battled to a 3-3 draw after two deadlock. At Port Colborne Toronto Dukes held the Sailors to a 4-4 tie.

Slow in getting into stride, the Blues were trailing by three goals at the start of the final session. Then they staged a garrison finish with Cook coming from the sticks of Ade Lonahan, Charles and McLellan. Only four penalties were taking of Harvey Teno stopped the Oakville team from registering the winning tally.

Percy Allen took a pass from Peter Conacher to score the first period to register the Villans initial counter. In the second period Townsley banged in the puck and a minute later Allen netted Shipman in the Varsity nets.

Port Colborne Sailors showed improvement with the first game of the season when they tied Oakville, Blues and were beaten by Toronto Dukes. Sticks were carried high and rough play crept into the game for penalties were handed out. Six goals were scored in the first period, each team finding its mesh.

Teddy Oliver of Toronto and Percy of Port Colborne were shared scoring honors for the night with two each. Shorty Robinson and Abe Gerut were the other Duke marksmen. Runyan and R. Morrison tallied the Sailor's other goals.

IF QUEENS OUT, TIGERS NOT IN

Both Teams Anxious to Continue in Play-downs

Toronto Nov. 20 (CP)—So badly do Hamilton Tigers and Queen's Varsity want to play a second game of football this Saturday, that the Canadian Rugby Union found itself somewhat embarrassed today.

From the direction of Kingston came heartfelt pleas that Herzog Intercollegiate champions be permitted to enter the Canadian playdowns, whether or not the college union approves. The C.R.U. executive is to meet here tonight to consider Queen's required intercollegiate sponsorship.

But the matter wasn't allowed to worry Tigers. Even if Queen's entry could be no eastern semi-final—Saturday they announced at Civic Stadium here—Tigers were ready to get going without the Big Four championship C Queen's entry.

This threat will be brought directly to C.R.U. attention today when a representative of the Tigers meets Secretary R. S. Williams of the national organization. It appeared probable that under the circumstances Tigers might accept the Queen's challenge after all.

DAY BY DAY

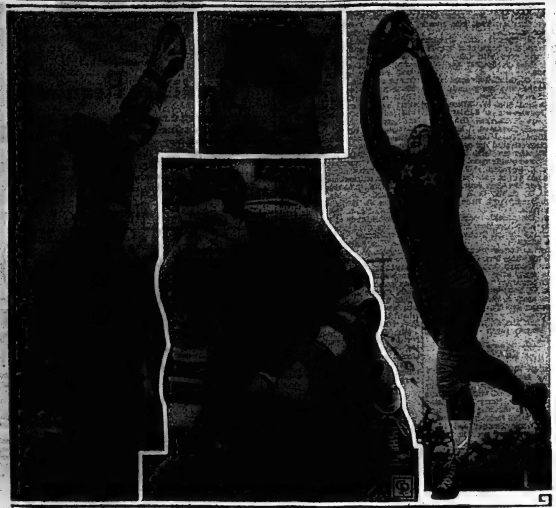
Shortly after the noon hour today the local B.C.I.V.S. senior football squad left by motor for Cobourg where they meet the fast Peterboro Collegiate Institute aggregation in a second-desh O.C.S.S.A. play-down this afternoon. The winner is to continue into the interscholastic semi-finals at Toronto possibly on Saturday, Coach Shiles realizing the strength of the Bamford-coached aggregation from the P.C.I. premised into service three of his junior intercollegiate players to augment them with the tri-color seniors for today's game. Clarke, Carson and Kerr were named as possible starters in this afternoon's senior O.S.S.A. interscholastic play-down at Cobourg. Press reports from Peterboro speak in high terms of the Kitchen City students, but Coach Shiles' clan did not win the Bay of Quinte honors without a struggle and may surprise the burley Peies before sundown today. Although Shiles has a very good line to throw against the Peies while his backfield is on a par with the best of interscholastic grid teams throughout the province, so let's only hope for another O.C.S.S.A. title in 1938.

While on the subject of football it was announced yesterday there will be no play-off for the city title winners in the Junior O.C.S.S.A. grid race, this following the impossible change of a series between the Collegiate Institute team and the Lake Shore loop, and the Belleville Collegiate Institute lads who won the junior section of the city and of Quinte grasp. Play-off series in the junior section of the O.C.S.S.A. were discontinued some years ago, but Coach Laughlin was agreeable yesterday. In the meantime, however, the local intermediate G. R. Wilson Public School outfit still hope of getting into a possible play-off with the Cobourg Blue Devils, that is providing the Motor City crew lose to Lindsay on Saturday when the Lindsay-Cobourg end outfit must win in Cobourg and also be awarded a league game with the Peterboro Orfens as a result of protests that have been lodged. If Oshawa win in Lindsay or Belleville is not allowed to replay last week's game, will then fall to go for 1938, and the curtain will be rung down on the intermediate grid and ball season ever staged along the shores of the Bay of Quinte. Bill Fry, secretary of the O.R.F.U. team says, "Win, lose or draw, we have no kick coming as the game of football has been firmly established in the Belleville and district, thanks to Dr. Kennedy and this year's team."

On Monday night Eddie Thomas's hockey entry in the Kingston City Hockey League practised for an hour at the Memorial Arena and returned to the Limestone City ice palace for another workout from 6 to 7 this evening. Coach Eddie Thomas took the same squad down this afternoon that lined up on Monday—goal, Don Morton defence-men, Harry Dingwall and Tony York and Jimmie Ethier, while the forwards were Stanley Harry, Pete and Cec Morgan, Alex Shuker, Ken Semark, Doug Powers and there is a chance that "Buster" Whitten will join the team tonight. Whitten is at present visiting his parents in Gananoque and would like nothing better than to join his erstwhile mates, Morton and Semark. The locals open the pre-season schedule in Kingston tomorrow night, scott team of the St. Lawrence League on Friday night.

Although the views of the conclave has not been announced as yet, we understand that the Belleville Amateur Baseball Association is to hold an open meeting and possibly the election of officers later in the week. At any rate the delegates to attend the annual meeting and election of officers of the O.B.R.L will be named, it is believed.

This had Ernie Peterson, who needs Chief Lynx in the semi-finals of Thursday night's professional wrestling bout, looks like a capable grappler, according to his picture we received through the mail yesterday. Incidentally the local promoters have not been able to procure any too much information on the new comer as yet locally, but Ivan Mickaloff recommends them, we hear, and any wrestler that Mickaloff stamps his O.K. upon can be relied upon to deliver the goods. For some time past local patrons of the mat game had been hoarding for new faces. Last week a representative of Mickaloff's attended the eve show and agreed to include Belleville in their new circuit, but reserved his final decision until after a couple of trial shows were tried locally. Decidedly the three new grapplers to appear at the arena on Thursday night are believed to be capable and are generally shown in a small centre. If Mickaloff is making surveying to stage a comeback in Canadian wrestling circles, he must expect to reach his desired goal unless he has the goods with which to work, namely good wrestlers of the first school. Then we have our own personal theory, Walter Parnell, dark, handsome, tall, neat, have our watch in view, Walter.



Although they may not be the skilled workmen their professional brothers are, the local amateur wrestlers make up in willingness what they lack in general knowledge of the modern art of wrestling. Last night at the arena less than 100 fans jammed (!) their way into the arena to witness the amateur bouts that, despite the lack of attendance, were highly entertaining and gave the fans plenty of action. To Steve Taylor, local manager, goes the credit for staging the local amateur stable much credit and time given to their labors hours and patiently with his boys who in turn show their appreciation by staging a bang-up show when the opportunity presents itself. It would be fair to form a wrestling club or organize any one or any particular night and hold it under the same standing bout of the night as the entire show proved most satisfactory and the amateur wrestlers gained many a friend and future patron by their showing last night. Steve's boys. It is granted they do not have the knack of modern wrestling, but what they lack in experience, they more than make up for in willingness.

On Thursday night the members and officers of the Belleville Athletic and Tackle Club will hold their annual birthday and presentation of trophies night in their club rooms. The various cups, pennants and trophies won by the players of winning teams during last season's racing in the Bay of Quinte and Ontario Rowing Association, while following these presentations President Maurice Gallagher will address members on the subject of ice-boating. It is the purpose of the club to organize an ice-boat racing group within their club for the coming season and those interested should take advantage of this meeting and secure information relative to the highlights of ice-boating.

Congratulations to-day, are due Kenaway Mountain Laurie, baseball's commissioner and supreme head born in Seven Isles, Ohio, Nov. 20, 1896. Judge Landis became internationally known when he fined the Standard Oil Company $1,000,000. He once refused a cabinet position. He was named after a battle in which his father was injured in the American Civil War.

SARNIA HAVE EDGE OVER BALMY BEACH

Unbeaten Imperials should continue season record and move on into Eastern Canada playdowns though Beach have potentially powerful squad

Ben McMichael—Balmy Beach. Alex. Hayes—Sarnia Imps. Hugh Stirling—Sarnia Imps. Jim Murchie—Balmy Beach

By RAY COLLETT
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

Toronto, Nov. 26.—Curious playoff arrangements give Balmy Beach of Toronto a slim chance of nicking the Ontario Rugby Football Union championship from the consistent hands of Sarnia Imperials, through the powerful Imps took' tush games played in the regular league schedule and tied Beaches' record of beating Hamilton Cubs in other fixtures, Beach and Sarnia were drawn in home-and-home games to decide the tilt.

By taking Beaches in the first play-off by 8-5, however, Sarnia's chances of being knocked out of the play-downs are scarcely being considered—except that the Beach boys are a strong and fighting team.

Injury Blocks Bee

Irrespective of the weird schedule-making, the final meeting of these teams in Toronto next Saturday will be a bitterly fought struggle. Beach feel they deserve a better outing against Sarnia than the season record indicates. They held the 'Three-Star' Imps to a one-point win in their first tussle this year and on Thanksgiving Day fought a grim struggle before yielding. Many eastern football worthies figured Balmies were sufficiently strengthened to be rated a title threat when they added experienced stars from far and wide for this year's team.

Reaches have been seriously weakened by loss of Abbie Box, for the great kicking halfback, last year with Argos, if he plays at all will be below form from his recent injury. They will field a line which is not notably heavy, but which is fast and powerful. They are good defensively and the halfback line is one of the fastest in eastern Canada. In Ernie Hempsy, who was lifted from Montreal this term, Armour Munro from Argos, Ab. Popis and Jimmy Murchie, club veterans, they have a hard-tackling brigade that takes some stopping. Hempsy is a fierce tackler and Munro a placement kicker of deadly accuracy.

Sarnia Also Weakened

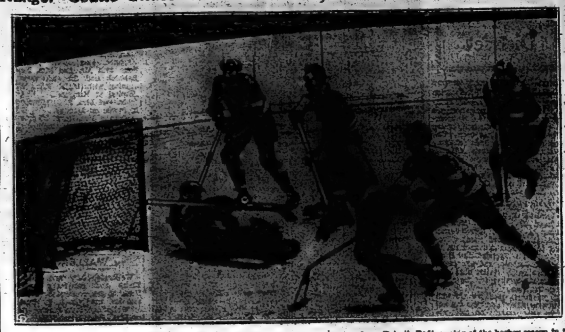
Art Upper, another addition who gained experience with Argos and University of Toronto, and Bobby Porter, deceptive broken field ace two fine ball-catchers and fleet-footed halves. Bas McStitchel, who is a power up front, has been hampered by injuries, but should be going full steam for the final tussle.



Sarnia too have found the injury jinx riding along with them and many of the foremost stars have been hit. The Tunnelmen boys, however, have shown enough to assure all and sundry they still are a threat for any title contender. Boob Malloy, crack snap-back, and Norm Perry, the backfield ghost, will be used sparingly, if at all, against Beach in the hope they may be in shape for the later play-downs. Alex. Hayes and Bruce Spears should be ready for work again. Sarnia still have big Ormond Beach and so far this year the ex-Kansas giant has proved as hard a man to stop as there is playing football in eastern Canada. Rocky Farsace forward-passing star, has missed several games. Hugh "Sum-mer" Stirling has also felt the injury brunt, but the great kicker should have his educated toe ready to match punts with any opponents.

Imperials Have Edge

One bright spot in Coach Manson's life is the showing of Art McWatters, who has earned himself a place as one of Sarnia's greatest backfielders. Most of the Sarnias are home-town boys—Deary, Moore Fewster, the Pasiecznos, Vanhorne, Johnny Mances, Spears, Butler, etc., and they've been playing together long enough to form a fine, smooth-working machine. Beach, on the other hand, have had a season of welding together some first football talent from other centres with a lot of promising young players.

Sarnia should take the championship without too much difficulty and, gauging their power and all-round performance against injuries to outstanding stars, should still have enough left to give the Interprovincial finalists a tough and spirited argument.

Ranger Goalie Slides Out But Puck Skids Into the Net For Wings

Goalie Andy Kerr of the New York Rangers, sat himself down on the ice and enjoyed a nice slide as players of both the Rangers and Red Wings mixed things up at the Rangers' goal during play in the second period of a Detroit Red Wings-New York Rangers' game in Detroit. The game marked the opening of the hockey season in the Motor City, and went into overtime, which ended in a 1-1 tie.

This Is In United States

Ted Londons, of Oak Park, Ill., former professional football player, is alleged to have admitted playing under assumed name this season on City College of New York team before he was discovered by authorities and expelled. His is second notable case of kind to be revealed this year in United States.

Frankie Battaglia Levels Sights on Champion's Chin

Winnipeg blaster in line for middleweight title match

By COLIN A. GRAVENOR
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

Winnipeg's fightingest fighter and Canada's leading middleweight boxer, is 24-year-old Frank Battaglia, hard-hitting young Italian-Canadian who was rated among the first six middleweights of the world by N.B.A. recently. Since his overwhelming defeat of Paul Pirrone, a highly rated scrapper who took a decision not so long ago over Babe Risko, champion of the division, he is probably rated higher than ever.

Battaglia right now is banging at the championship barriers, an obstacle he reached once before only to turn aside at the last moment and fade from the top flight for a short era. Now he is back and going at full steam, as he appears at present, may make the grade which proved too steep before. That was in 1932 when he met Ben "Sleeby-Jeeby the New York Hebrew wonder" mill and took a technical knockout in the 13th round.

Dropped Important Match

On that occasion, Battaglia looked good enough to whip the Jewish lad. Jeeby, however, a cautious and heady battler despite his whirlwind tactics, ripped a gash open over Battaglia's right eye early in the battle, and with the handsome Winnipegger blinded in one side, keys faltering away at the sightless side until the arbiter called a halt in the 12th.

A forearm vessel was ruptured in that fray and Battaglia was laid up for a rest and to recuperate from an appendix operation. With the eye healed he came back in 1933 to pile up another succession of victories and on his showing against Pirrone, looks to be in position for a shot at Babe Risko's crown.

FRANK BATTAGLIA—Back to the heights.

Born in Winnipeg

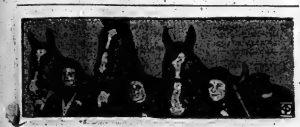
Born in Winnipeg of Italian parentage on Sept. 13, 1910, Frankie is one of ten children. He had to leave school at an early age to go to work and help feed the younger ones.

At the age of 16 his father told him that the translation of Battaglia is "to battle." Frankie took his name seriously and joined the One Big Union Athletic Club. First as a flyweight, then bantamweight, featherweight, and finally he captured the Winnipeg lightweight championship.

Fighting in the lightweight class at the Olympic games, Frankie lost in the semi-finals, but gave a great showing. The next year he turned professional. In the 90 bouts that he has fought he has scored 49 knockout victories which is the highest percentage of any middleweight in the world, and only excelled as an average by one or two boxers in ring history.

Frankie recently married a nurse from Chicago. He has a farm in Wisconsin and makes his ring headquarters in Minneapolis. His name is pronounced "Bat-ta-lyah."



GORDON (MICKEY) COCHRANE FRANK J. NAVIN

With the death of Frank J. Navin, RIGHT, millionaire president of the world champion Detroit Ameer Baseball club, the name of Gordon (Mickey) Cochrane, catcher and manager, is mentioned as a possible successor to Navin as club president. Navin collapsed and died of a heart attack in Detroit while horseback riding.

Mr. and Mrs. Danno O'Mahony, Phila title for the heavyweight wrestling champion and the former Miss Julia E. Burke, a nurse, will surprise many of Danno's supporters. However, it has been revealed that Danno and Julia became man and wife on October 27. The marriage license application also shows that Danno spells his last name without an "a", making it O'Mahony.

Tweed and District

Tweed—The anniversary services of the Methodist and Presbyterian Church were held on Sunday evening, when a large congregation was in attendance. Assisted by members of the United Church, whose new worship service had been withdrawn and the Anglican church. The choir of St. Peter's Church, Madoc, contributed some delightful musical numbers. Mrs. (Dr.) Crawford sang "Just me to Know" and "Thanks be to God" and Mr. G. J. Anderson, B.A., principal of Madoc High School rendered "The Lord is My Light" in splendid style. The minister, Rev. W. J. Timlin, introduced Rev. J. A. Kofford, minister of Sidney Presbyterian church, as the guest speaker, referring to him as a college-mate, and they had both studied under Hebbe College, at Toronto, and expressing great pleasure at having been able to secure his services for the anniversary services.

"Let us go at once, we are well able to overcome," and "We are not able, as a people, to wrought as yet," he points out. Mr. Kofford developed the theme "Difficulties a discourager".

"It is a fact to be a discourager," observed Mr. Kofford, "and he who is a leader for others to live is doing the devil's work. Discouragers have always been a prominent place in the affairs of men since earliest religious history. Moses met it when on returning from the Mount on which he received the Ten Commandments, he found the Israelites had called into idolatry and were worshipping a golden image. The band of friendship and unity which had existed between Moses and the Israelites was broken through the discouragement.

"There is a discourager continued the preacher, "on the part of many of us to-day. Discouragers are a pitfall around the devil and then finding only disappointment when it is torn out and there is revealed what lies beneath. Jesus found discouragers among those who lived in His day. Men have tried for the past two thousand years to blot out His name abut have failed. He has risen above His discouragers."

Rev. Kofford referred to an incident in "The Indian Road" by R. Stanley Weyman, in which a Hindu remarked to the author, that there must be a lot of good in the man who is "If your people" said the Hindu, lived up to ten per cent. of what they claim, they would make the world upside down."

"The trouble with many of us," continued the speaker, "is that we do not, as Joshua and Caleb did of the whole situation through God who causes difficulties to diminish, but as the spies who gave unfavourable report, we try to see God beyond the difficulties and fail. The world today is full of discouragers, and what it needs is boosters. There is room for those who hang on and pull back and God is going to win out in the end, either as a friend, or as a judge.

"The individual called upon himself you to decision as to which place swinging he will occupy in his own life." room Rev. Kofford was thanked by the library Mr. Miller" sung with great a shining by Rev. Kofford.

A solid to any constituting to cause cold incidence or headache. If should be treated for what it really becomes internal infection requiring internal treatment. Take the safe, reliable Grove's Bromo Quinine to positive and direct to relieve the cold from the start. Do not delay. It treats a cold from the inside by doing four important things:

1. It opens the bowels gently but effectively.
2. It combats the cold germs and fever in the system.
3. It relieves the headache and "aches".
4. It tones up the system and helps build resistance.

This is the kind of treatment a cold requires to drive it right out of the system quickly and thoroughly.

Little Benny's Note Book

We was eating breakfist and me said to pop Willyum I want a suggestion about what to have for lunch and I dont want it to be liver and onions, bec bee parson tells me if I seen to of interrupted you.

As a matter of fact do you know what I was really about to suggest? pop said, and ma said, Do tell me!

Liver and onions, pop said, and ma said, Now Willyum how can you even mention the words when we just had liver and onions last fri day?

If I was a millionaire I'd give them all just one handfull of liver and onions apiece to starve on, can you think of any better way to terrer mankind than to provide millions of people with such a awful death as that? pop said, and ma said, Now Willyum the subject is a closed book, so please forget it.

It has left my mind but I hope the imperishable fragrants will never leave my mouth, pop said, and ma said, O hush up, I want to read the paper before you take it away with you.

With she started in saying, My, here's another scinist or somebody who claims he has solved the secret of old age.

By golles I knew it would come some day, I bet he's discovered that if everybody eats liver and onions 4 times a day they'll live forever and never regret it, pop said, and ma said, Now Willyum enough is as good as a treat.

Enough liver and onions is better than a treat, pop said, and ma said, Will, we'll have roast beef for a change, that's what we'll have. Pop said, I hope it is a change but we had it anyways.

BORAH TO ENTER

Washington, Nov. 19—(AP)—Word reached the United States capital today friends of Senator W. E. Borah will enter his name in a presidential race next year, political primaries unless they get a positive "no" from the Idaho Republican.

This word served to emphasize the growing belief a spectacular duel between Borah and former President Hoover, either over the Republican nomination or the course the party shall take.

The November meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was held at the home of Mrs. Talbot Ketcheson, Sinclair St., with the president, Mrs. J. Shortt in the chair.

The Devotional exercises were conducted by Miss B. Irwin, Deaconess of the United Church. The lesson was taken from Phil. 4th chapter, calling attention to the place women occupied in the early European church. The emphasized the fact, this chapter gave Paul's estimate of a Christ-controlled life which is the normal temperate life.

Her, Mr. Sinclair was the guest speaker and gave a very interesting and inspiring address.

He expressed his surprise at the apathy manifested by some people, who should be enthusiastic in the cause of Temperance. He referred to the times of Christ, and why the drink evil did not all forth its denunciation. There were deeper parlors then. There was no literary club for conversation. There was no profiteering in the liquor traffic. The speaker was quite confident what Christ's attitude would be if He came to our country today. Youth could only learn its attitude on Christ's own words "Whosoever causeth one of these young people to stumble, it were better for him that a mill stone were hanged about his neck and he were drowned in the depths of the sea.

Dainty refreshments were served at the close of the meeting. Fish and white mums formed a pretty centre of the tea table, and tea was poured by Mrs. W. R. Gordon.

"CHAPERONED"

—by—

Virginia Sullivan

"Oh—oh—how boy friend now," he said, deliberately, and looked at Jonie Jane's eyes: "he's well and fit, I trust! Oh, I've seen him, my dear! Chap with a pleasant eye and a fit go-to—moustache, isn't he? I should so.... Ah, dear! It sure makes a fella melancholy as a gib cat to see anyone as sweet as you are developing a yen for the lower classes! One doesn't doubt the air ventures is interesting, of course. But—is it worth it, Janie? I ask you as a wise! A man might feel young for you know—"

Ignoring the clacking of the deck as the girl thrust him furiously aside, performed a perfect pachuko into the sea. "A sail might wonder—eh! But not you!" she said with vicious distinctness, then hailed her friend descending to the patsy fle, even as she rushed away from him down the steps.

For a moment and startled bafflement thereafter, Janie, considered giving up her visits to the steerage. If people were talking about her now, if all the prying women were bored again on this.... Then something within her stiffened to resistance, she lifted her chin defiantly and faced Mona as she came.

"Let them talk!" she thought savagely..... "Let them, that's all!" And then aloud on the high deck, she stepped thinking about it at all. Just slipped out of the pastel chiffon frock and into her swim suit, then, her eyes far-seeing, her mind a churning sea of little verbs that overlapped reason and logic and thought itself. Almost at once she fell asleep—a small, tired girl, rather bewildered, a little frightened—and very much alone.

CHAPTER 11.

MONA TAKES A HAND

Janie lay watching the dancing bungees of color reflected on the saloon's walls. Cochineal..... vermilion..... cobalt..... red. A 30-sepia coat of color, flung back in bewildering splendor by the restless sea. From somewhere on the deck outside came Colonel Dandy's booming voice: "Get on to Africa, girl! Get lost from my safari, and by — sir, I thought I was a good Dane for, I tell you. Panthers everywhere and my black boys scared stiff....."

"—I would— love— to steal you!" Janie thought wickedly, swinging her bare feet to the starboard floor. "I'd take you home to the library and show you to the kids." A gong sounded faintly then in a shrill bell. Five o'clock—almost dinner time. Everywhere along the corridors doors slammed, water was being run, stewards rushed busily back and forth. Everywhere in the ship people were dressing for dinner.

Mildred, Janie knew, had long since dressed and gone on deck in cobwebby lacy flounced, which let Madonna-like cusps, with the pearl and sapphire brooch that Mark had given her, show and adversary gleaming on her breast; with the sapphire bracelet that matched wedding gift clasping her white throat, blazing in a circlet of blue fire on her slim wrist.

Janie, beginning leisurely to dress thought about her, then, rose. Mona stumpled peach-satin night-gown in a heap and went to the room door. On the small night-table between the two beds was the usual litter of powder-puffs, presence in any room: the familiar 5-string, the half-spilled cream jar, the fragile gold bangles and chains. Tonight, Janie noted absently, there was the additional feature of a frail chiffon handkerchief, spilling from the fingers of a tall-tale handful of blue and white pebble-beads.

Janie, picking one of the small shoes up in her hand, regarded it with a brooding plaque. "Poker..... now, where did she get a thing like that? She's probably picked up the game since we came on board."

A knock on the door revealed Brenda Haynes, whom Janie had met the chip back in place, turning to regard Brenda with a smile.

"She gone!" Brenda's whisper was a shriek. "I was hoping you'd be alone, Miss Madden." Carefully the woman laid clean towels she carried on the bed, smoothing the blue ad white starchiness of her apron with heavy hands.

"What is it, Brenda?"

"It's—well, Miss, it's none of my business—like, but I said thought well, it's that young woman across the hall. She's in a terrible hysterics her heart out, Miss Madden. I knocked and she wouldn't answer, so I goes in and there she lay. Flat on the berth, not a word can of her. Just cryin'..... It's that little Miss Mona."

"Mona?" Janie thought, startled. Mona, the cynical, the defiant, the sophisticated. Mona crying—oh, no, not Mona.

Contemplies, she turned from the dressing-table, then hesitated, hairbrush in hand. Perhaps she, too, ought to mind her own affairs; the girl might resent an intrusion. Then aloud she said: "All right, Brenda. I'll go over right away. Probably she don't feeling well, I don't know her very well, but—"

"Ain't nobody knows her very well, Miss," the woman said briefly. "Just she's a right grand person, just like mama. Travels this She a lot, she does, but I ain't never see her like this before."

Stockings. White shoes. Slim silk—an slip..... Janie was hurrying into her clothes. White skirt, white silk blouse, orange tie. Briefly she smiled at the silverstone, then went rapidly across the hall and knocked briskly at the white-panelled door opposite. Almost at once the door swung open, under her hand. Mona Moore, powder-puff in one hand and a cigarette in the other, sat on the edge of the bed. She wore a clinging orchid night-dress and a chiffon bed jacket of lettuce green, and brought out the glory of her tumbled hair.

"Hello!" she said gaily. "Well, it's little Miss Muffet herself—and without the spider! Come on in. I've been wanting to talk to you!" With the toe of one satin mule she reached, and scarred and pulled out a slit chair. Janie, hesitating briefly, advanced slowly into the room and sat down. Nothing of grief here, she told herself, ruefully, and gave a wry inner smile at her own credulity at the dramatics of a servant. When she saw that the other girl had indeed been crying; that the powder-puff for which she had reached and which she now wielded with vigorous stroke, did poorly hid the evidence of a recent storm. The amazing black eyelashes still stuck childishly together, and her teen them Mona's ivy green eyes glowed mutely. Janie thought: "Why, she's deliberately artificial. It's just as the doctor said. It's like a mask which she puts on and off....."

"I know's mah once," Mona said, chattily at ease, "who killed himself because he said he couldn't stand this everlasting painting and unbuttoning of his clothes. Seems to me I spend more time getting in and out of mine than anyone I know." She crossed to the big wardrobe trunk in the center of the room, and began dragging gowns out and laying them neatly on the bed. She seemed to be wanting to speak about something—and not knowing just where to begin. Janie, smiling shyly, leaned back in her chair. Suddenly the eyes of the two girls met in the mirror, and Mona, turning, whirling swiftly about, came back and sat down before her dressing-table, putting out a friendly hand.

"Look here, Miss Madden, you'll think I've got an awful nerve. But it's as I told you—I'm glad you came in just now; I've been wanting to see you for days. Usually—she continued slowly.—"little Mona minds her own business and has plenty to do at that! But this, all of a sudden, seems of vital importance. Miss Madden—she's your sister-in-law, isn't she?" Janie nodded, suddenly cold, trembling within.

"Well—gosh, I don't know how to put this—but briefly, is there some way you can think of to tip her off that she's rather making a fool of herself playing around with this Don Felipe from Cuba?"

"Really!..... " Janie's voice, chillingly withdrawn, resentfully quick, rose in her throat. Mona had smiled at her suddenly; the friendly, warm smile that was so oddly, so vibrantly like Janie's own. And her own voice sounding small and curiously strained in her ears: "But I have tried—you see, Mr. Stewart told me the other night."

"Yeah, I heard about that! And it's worrying you, too, isn't it? Forgive me, but I can't help asking, you know, You've got a face like a Madonna. Unless I misjudge everything you think's just condensed on it all the time!" She got up and walked to the trunk and rummaged at it absently, and came slowly back to the bed, sat down, and gently. "I don't know what it's all about and if you want me to mind my own business just say so and I will. Being subtle just isn't my forte—I'd do anything with. Don't pay any attention to what people say. That bunch of old gas! They're always everything a day old and an inch high is it happens to be goodness' sake. I've been in the newspaper all my life, and I ought to know."

Janie, aware of a sick desire to laugh, nodded mutely. Her sensitive mouth quivered a little; she felt small and defenceless and young. The other woman regarded her for a long silent moment. Then: "This matter of Don Felipe," she went on with dispassionate calm, "is something else again. I'm going to tell you this for what it's worth. Miss Madden, and you can do as you see fit. Don Felipe's a gambler—one of the slickest that ever stacked a card."

"Oh, no!" Janie said.

"He has money, he has a plantation near Cerro, has a fast worker and he's smooth. But he's a phoney and he's now playing with a man like that you're playing with fire, take it from me. These spiggoins are the news anywhere they're hung; persistent as a telephone bell, as dependable as cellophane and highly sensitive to neglect! I was engaged to a prominent Peruvian once," she finished with an outrageous grin. "But it didn't take. Somehow a little bell of warning rang loudly in my soul and I broke it off just in time. But what that baby did to me—mm, mm!"

Was the Cuban a friend of this cosmopolitan girl? Janie thought. Was it jealousy—perhaps; then she decided this couldn't be. Contemptuous tone, her green eyes were too obviously sincere. She was trying, Janie saw, to be generous—in the only way she knew. As though reading her thoughts, the other girl stood up again, her mocking gaze oddly somber, her voice, usually so part, tart, sure, muted to a toneless murmur. "I'm going to tell you something," she said to Janie with her slow smile, "I hadn't meant to—but if it helps to make you believe what I've just said..... It was Don who asked me to tell you this about your sister-in-law and the Don. Dr. Barr—you see, he's worried about you; seems he likes you a lot. First time I've ever known Dan Barr to worry about any woman, but that's neither here nor there. The point is, that as an officer of this ship, Doc's hands are sort of tied. He's not supposed to know there's gambling going on. Sort of puts him on the spot, as it were—so he put it up to me. He thought, I suppose, that if you could just speak to your sister-in-law, Vera Warn her, Janie thought wildly—speak to her, indeed! She had a hysterical desire to laugh, a wild one. A swift vision of Mildred's sleazy, resentful eyes, of her furious high voice, should she attempt any such thing. If this Don Felipe were a gambler—and there was no slightest doubt—but that he was—then Mildred, Janie thought dully, certainly knew it. They were two of a kind, a pair. And it was no use to do with Don Felipe, though I'm sure for a while there you thought that it had!" Then, as Janie smiled tremulously taken aback, she went on, her own eyes on the floor: "We're all of us riding the band-wagon, you know, and only a few of us get the brass ring. So brace up. I shouldn't have told you at all if I hadn't thought it would help. After all, the man's leaving this ship at Havana—so it can't be as bad as you think."

Walking slowly down the corridor a bit later, Janie clung tightly to that thought. Mona was right; those few days more—Panama, and then the Canal, and they'd be in Havana, where Don Felipe left the ship!

BAD TRACTION ON SLIPPERY ROADS BRINGS 5 DEATHS

Gasoline Bike Transport at Mountain And Three Killed

ROADS TREACHEROUS

Bing Lake Resident Killed When Car Slides Off Highway

(By The Canadian Press)

A fatal snowfall yesterday hurried five persons to their death on Ontario's highways and left a long list of injured.

Three accidents, all due to bad traction on slippery pavement at bends in highways, claimed the five lives.

At Bronte on the Toronto-Hamilton Lakeshore Highway, three members of one family were killed, when a light coupe skidded against the trailer of a transport truck. Thomas Brown, 54, his Brown, his wife, and their son, Hiram 24, who was driving, lost their lives. All were of Dundurn, in Grey County.

Thirty miles west of Sudbury, at Onaping, a northern development department truck, skidded off the highway down an eight-foot embankment, fatally injuring R. E. Meyer, 30, employed by a department surveyor party, and injuring four others. Meyer, a native of Erie, Pennsylvania, died as he was being driven to a hospital. He had been pinned underneath the truck.

Mason Dunnett, of Dunnett's Landing, Rice Lake, was killed when his motor car, in which he, his parents and George Hakes, were riding slid off the highway and dropped 15 feet into a shallow creek at Salt's Mill, Baltimore, near Cobourg, last night. Mason Dunnett, 25 years old, was the driving.

Mrs. Joseph Dunnett, mother of the driver, suffered a fracture of one arm and possible internal injuries. Joseph Dunnett, the father, and George Baker, all of Dunnett's Landing, escaped with bruises and shock.

Dozens of other less serious accidents were reported throughout the province, mainly due to the treacherous roadways.

HUMBOLDT STAYS IN LIBERAL FOLD

Dr. King Wins And His Own Opponent Loses Deposit

Humboldt, Sask., Nov. 30 (CP)—Humboldt constituency remained today within the Saskatchewan Liberal fold.

First of four provincial by-elections, Humboldt's election went to the polls yesterday and elected Dr. J. C. King, Liberal, as successor to the late James Hogan, a Liberal who represented the constituency since 1917.

Dr. King's only opponent was Joseph Decter, candidate of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation.

Mr. Burton lost his deposit. With only five of the 61 polls to report, the vote was: Dr. King, 4,370; Mr. Burton, 1,567.

HAMMOND GIRL NAMED IN SUIT

Will be Defendant in Alienation Brought by Broadway Actor

New York, Nov. 30—(AP)—Natalie Faye Hammond, artist daughter of John Hays Hammond, wealthy mining engineer, was named as defendant today in a $100,000 alienation suit brought by Leonard Doyle, Broadway actor.

In the complaint Doyle charged he married Lucia Chapgich, actress in New Orleans in 1917 and Miss Hammond lured her away from his home in July 1934.

He asserted Miss Hammond used her wealth and position in society to inculcate a powerful influence over his wife and "has harbored Lucia against my consent and in opposition to my utmost reasonable efforts to obtain her from Miss Hammond's control."

A general denial of the charges was entered by Miss Hammond.

PROSECUTOR LIAR SAYS COUNSEL

Georges Desbons Disbarred At Murder Trial of Croats

By Robert N. Parker, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Aix-En-Provence, France, Nov. 30 (AP)—Georges Desbons, engaged by Associations nearly to defend three Croats charged with complicity in the assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia, today was disbarred by the trial court.

He was ordered from the courtroom by gendarmes after he had attacked the justices' impartiality in his motions and called the prosecutor a liar.

Says Clippings Destroyed

The incidents leading to Desbon's dismissal involved the disappearance of an envelope filled with clippings which the jury foreman said he had destroyed as of "no importance."

Desbons hoped to show, he said, one clipping indicated the weapon that killed King Alexander and Foreign Minister Louis Barthou of France had come from Italy and was flaming love helpful to his clients. Mlo Kral, Yvan Raitchoff, Swoleski Pospechil.

Desbons engaged for the defence by United States Croats announces receipt of a cablegram from the Rev. Cedar Knezevich of Detroit, Mich., which said:

"As pastor of Croat Catholics in Detroit, I ask the jury to exonerate the three Croats, Kral, Raitch and Pospechil".

Failure of the court to produce the clippings Desbons in comments sarcastically, "that is republican justice."

The prosecutor accused Desbons of having sent the clippings to the jury in an attempt "by shady manoeuvres" to implicate Italy in the assassination.

Desbons then called the prosecutor a liar.

ARE YOU A PHILOSOPHER?

Clergyman Voices What He Thinks is Trouble With Modern Marriage

Philadelphia, Nov. 30—(AP)—The Rev. Jean H. Hepner, pastor of the Bethel Lutheran Church, answers his own question of "what's the trouble with men and women in modern marriage?"

The trouble with men, he told a meeting of couples he has married:
